FOREWORD

This valuable handbook of Federal programs, trusts, foundations and voluntary agencies which assist the aged, is the most comprehensive compilation of public and private resources now available. OEO is delighted to have financed the creation of this book because it should be of significant help to all those eager to improve the lot and livelihood of our older citizens.

When the War on Poverty began in 1964, one of the most pressing problems was America's 5.4 million older people living in poverty. The Office of Economic Opportunity initiated and established several programs to eliminate the suffering caused by poverty in old age. We are aware that our efforts and those of other agencies are only beginnings — and that much more must be done to help our older Americans live in dignity and security.

INTRODUCTION

We call this book an Action Handbook with the hope that it will be a stimulus to local, state and national groups to act to develop programs to assist the aging and aged poor who suffer more of the pain of poverty than the pleasures of life.

Recently, it was estimated by the Office of Economic Opportunity that more than one-third of all family households considered to be living at a minimal or poverty subsistence are headed by persons 55 years and older, and more than one-fifth by persons 65 years and older. In numbers, 5.4 million persons aged 65 and over live in poverty (based on the Social Security Administration Poverty Index). With 35 million people of all ages receiving incomes under the poverty level and millions more just barely above this level, our efforts to combat poverty and the problems of poverty have scarcely been adequate. We, as a nation, have been slow to provide large-scale, extensive income maintenance and social services on a national basis. Historically, we have thought that we could provide for the poor and the old on a local basis. The resources and structures of local social, health and welfare services, however, proved inadequate to do the job. We were slow to learn this and only came to terms with this long-standing problem during the years of the Depression when, most reluctantly, we made our first steps to establish welfare and social security legislation on a national scale. Since then, our efforts have increased but have been in "stops and starts," providing piecemeal, small-scale specific solutions to often interrelated problems. As a result, those interested in developing programs to serve the poor, particularly the older poor, have faced great difficulty in locating and compiling sources of support for their programs. This catalogue is aimed at easing this task and speeding the development of funding of new programs to provide increased opportunities for employment of and service to the older poor.

Resources

Primarily, this catalogue is of nationwide, federal-sponsored programs. For the most part we have sought to present information about federal grants-in-aid and basic service programs that serve the old, plus foundations and trusts, and national voluntary agencies and associations who either have programs for the aging or are involved in planning such programs. Federal programs make up the larger part of the catalogue—that is, where the largest resources are. Our inclusion of foundations, trusts and voluntary agencies has been selective; it is not exhaustive. In general, we have included only those that are national in scope.

Local program planners should not, however, overlook the innumerable other resources available at both the local and state level. Local and state resources are, in some instances, the most immediately available and may be the easiest to get. These take a variety of forms and include the following:

1. State, county and city programs of health, housing, welfare, etc.
2. Local service groups such as Soroptomists, Kiwanis, Chambers of Commerce, fraternal organizations, ladies auxiliaries and women's clubs, and civic organizations.
3. Religious groups of every denomination.
4. Voluntary associations, community councils and professional groups.
5. Unions and related groups.

Where they exist, these should be among the first sources contacted. They may, of all groups or agencies, be among the most interested and available to any plan or program. Many may have programs that provide the service or project being considered. The extent and strength of these sources naturally vary from area to area. Local program developers need to assess the strength and potential support available in the community from these sources. A telephone call or visit to local leaders or to the regional, state, or national office of the public voluntary agencies listed in this volume can bring quick information regarding existing local programs and sources of help.

Foundations and Trusts

If the community's plan or proposal is an ambitious one, or one for which there are no funds available at the local or state level, the major alternatives are generally Federal programs and foundations and trusts. There are a growing number of the latter, many of which are particularly concerned with the aging or related problems. The Russel Sage Foundation Directory, published in 1964, listed 6,700 foundations that had assets of at least $100,000 or had made grants of at least $10,000. Most of these are local in scope, but many are national; only a few of the local foundations are listed here. Those we have listed have indicated an interest in aging problems in a survey carried out by the publishers of the directory, or have recently come to our attention as sponsors of aging projects.

Foundations are a good source, not only because there are so many of them, but also because they often have broad or flexible purposes or aims which may be reinterpreted to expand or develop areas of interest. Quite often this flexibility allows them to fund the unusual project which may not fit easily into Federal programs. One should remember that the Directory of Foundations (available from the Russell Sage Foundation, 230 Park Avenue, New York City, New York 10017) is a most valuable list of resources and one that should be given close attention.

Federal Programs

On the other hand, Federal programs are more specifically defined or circumscribed. Eligibility, the forms and extent of the program are usually prescribed. It may take some searching to find the right program which can fund or assist a particular proposal, but the results can be worth the effort. This catalogue is an attempt to supply an outline of information that will make this search easier.

In selecting the programs to appear in this listing we have tried to include those that deal with all the major problems of the aging. Some programs are designed particularly for the aged and deal with that age group exclusively; others may include the aged because there are no specific requirements as to the age group to be served; and, lastly, we have selected some programs which could include the aging when purposes and eligibility standards are broadly interpreted.

The listing was planned as an outline and includes only brief or pared details of the various programs, and, as such, can only suggest possible programs. Detailed information that will allow one to determine exactly how a plan or proposal fits existing programs will require further inquiry. Well placed letters, telephone calls or actual visits to regional and field offices of the sponsoring departments can provide this needed information. Catalogues, handbooks and published pamphlets can only give a general idea of the existing programs—they only help one to choose the program or programs that may fit the proposal. Most Federal agencies suggest that programs and the specific proposal be discussed with their representatives in their regional and field offices to obtain detailed information regarding the agencies' policies and programs. These offices are prepared to help local program planners and, if need be, can supply required application or contract forms. If serious problems arise the national officials of the Federal agency can be approached.

Federal programs may offer assistance in various forms. Usually they offer direct services to individuals and groups; but often they provide grants-in-aid or contracts. Services may be offered in any number of ways and often depend upon the specific aims of the program and the legislation which authorized it. Grants-in-aid programs, in general, are money grants with particular specifications as to periods of time, prescribed purposes, and persons and institutions eligible to receive them. Some grant programs also require matching contributions of funds or services from those applying for the program. In addition to grants, some departments and agencies also make contracts for services required. Legal arrangements are made between the granting agency and an institution, organization or individual to supply some specific service desired by the Federal agency undertaking the contract. Such contracts are increasingly being used by a number of agencies and may eventually become a major resource for programs.

Voluntary Agencies

To supplement these Federal programs a listing of the major, national voluntary agencies that serve the aged is included. The services of these agencies are varied and extensive. Most of them stimulate and initiate local groups to develop programs of service for the aged and are active in compiling and distributing information which can assist groups to develop programs. There is a wealth of information and professional ability in these organizations and most exist for the purpose of giving assistance. They also may be useful in the search for resources, for some, either singly or in combination with foundation and government grants, fund and provide assistance as well as information.

Acknowledgments

Any compilation such as the one we've undertaken requires considerable help and assistance; particularly from the departments and agencies of government that administer the programs we've included. All have been most kind and helpful in our search for information about their programs. Specifically, we would like formally to acknowledge the Administration on Aging of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; the Departments of Agriculture, Housing and Urban Development, Labor; and the Small Business Administration of the Department of Commerce. Our greatest debt, however, is to the Office of Economic Opportunity and particularly to their recent publication Catalogue of Federal Programs for Individual and Community Improvement. That catalogue is a major contribution to any study of resources and was both an inspiration and constant reference for our own research.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS

PROGRAM TITLE: ADMINISTRATION ON AGING—SERVICES FOR OLDER AMERICANS

General Nature and Purpose:

This broad program provides grants to states, public or nonprofit agencies, organizations, institutions, and individuals to provide services to the aged. Grants to States are made for community planning and coordination of programs, demonstration projects, training of special personnel, including establishment of senior centers. Grants made to agencies and organizations other than States, as well as individuals, can be used for study, development, demonstration, evaluations, and training for specialized personnel. Administration of the grants is carried out by the Administration on Aging, which also serves as an information center (or clearinghouse), gathering and disseminating information, stimulating and developing programs and activities, and providing technical assistance through a consultation service. Concern is with all categories of the elderly and its funds may be used to eliminate gaps either in services to, or knowledge of, older people.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

Examples of projects which localities might undertake if in accord with a State's approved plan:

1. Community planning and coordination of programs.
2. Demonstrating programs or activities.
3. Establishing new or expanding existing programs.
4. Training special personnel.
5. Developing communitywide programs of health, social services, employment, recreation, and education.
6. Staffing and operating multi-purpose activity centers.
7. Developing preparation for retirement courses.
8. Staffing informational, counseling, and referral centers.
9. Arranging for meal centers and home-delivered meals.
10. Increasing the numbers and the effectiveness of volunteer workers and affording older people an opportunity to participate in giving as well as receiving.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Support in the form of grants may also be provided to public and private nonprofit agencies and associations in areas of research, demonstration, and training which are national in scope and implication, or would be of benefit to a number of States. Projects under these titles might include:

1. Conducting experiments in total community organization of services to older people.
2. Developing or demonstrating new approaches, techniques, and methods that hold promise of helping all older persons.
3. Stimulating research in areas not now being supported by existing programs.
4. Developing training materials.
5. Designing and testing curricula.
6. Providing short-term or in-service training courses.
7. Providing traineeships, fellowships, and stipends for advanced training.

Eligibility:

Grants are administered under two titles. Under Title I any State that has a designated State agency and a plan for programs and activities that is approved by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare is eligible to receive funds on a formula basis. Any public or nonprofit agency may apply directly to the State agency administering the plan.

Under Title IV any public or nonprofit private agency, organization, or institution may receive grants on contract with the Administration on Aging—directly for research, demonstration, and training projects.

Legal Basis:

Older Americans Act of 1965; P. L. 89-73; 79 STAT 218. Congress has authorized a total of $1.5 million to be appropriated for grants and contracts to public and nonprofit private agencies during the 1966 fiscal year, and $3 million for the 2 succeeding fiscal years.

PROGRAM TITLE: OLD AGE ASSISTANCE

General Nature and Purpose:

This program provides grants to State programs to pay part of the costs of furnishing financial assistance, medical care, and other welfare services to needy persons 65 years and older. The primary objectives of the program are to provide needy aged persons with income and services to help them attain or retain self-care, insofar as it is practicable. Financial assistance and supporting services are made directly to needy individuals 65 years of age and over by the State. In determining the individual applicant's need for assistance, the State plan may require consideration of the income or resources of the individual, but the State plan may permit the State agency to disregard the first \$10 plus  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the remainder of the first \$50 of earned income a month. When a State plan comprises both financial and medical assistance for the aged, the program also allows the State to provide medical assistance to elderly individuals who are not recipients of old age financial assistance, but are unable to afford the necessary medical services.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

State plans must meet Federal requirements as to income, age, residence requirements, etc. Federal grants equal $29 of the first $35 of a maximum average monthly payment of $70 per recipient. The Federal proportion of the next $35 varies from 50 to 65%, depending on the average per capita income in the State for the most recent 3 years. Federal funds are available for 75% of the cost of certain preventive and rehabilitative services. Federal funds also cover 75% of the cost of staff training. The Federal share of other non-assistance costs is 50%.

Eligibility:

State plans must be in effect in all the State's political subdivisions, and if the program is to be administered by political subdivisions, it must be mandatory upon them. Administration is usually vested in a single State agency.

PROGRAM TITLE: SOCIAL SECURITY--OLD AGE, SURVIVORS AND DISABILITY INSURANCE

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a social insurance program that provides a regular monthly income to: (1) a worker and his family when he retires, (2) a worker and his family if he becomes disabled, and (3) to his family upon his death.

This program is financed by contributions in the form of Social Security Taxes made by both employees and employers. These taxes are added into a special fund and benefits are paid from the fund to replace part of the earnings lost when earnings stop due to retirement, death, or severe disability.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

1965 legislation increased benefits by 7% to $20-million, which will result in increases to beneficiaries of a minimum of $4 a month for a retired person, aged 65 and over; or to a disabled worker; and $6 for a couple.

Eligibility:

Persons are eligible for retirement benefits at age 65 years; reduced-rate benefits may be made at 62 years of age.

A surviving widow or dependent widower, age 62 and over, of an insured worker is also eligible for payments; as are children under 18, or disabled before 18 years; a mother who has such a child in her care; and dependent parents 62 years and over.

Monthly benefits are also paid to totally and permanently disabled workers and to the workers' dependents.

PROGRAM TITLE: HEALTH INSURANCE FOR THE AGED—MEDICARE

General Nature and Purpose:

This program came into effect on July 1, 1966 and is a broad health program that provides two types of health insurance for persons 65 years and older. The general purpose of the program is to help the aged with heavy medical expenses during a period in their lives when their incomes are generally reduced, while the probability of illness and the need for medical services are high. The two forms of this insurance are: hospital insurance that helps pay the cost of hospital and post-hospital care and medical insurance that pays the cost of doctors' services. In the first, hospital insurance, direct assistance is given to pay part of the cost of hospital care, care in extended-care facilities, post-hospital care, home health visits, and out-patient hospital diagnostic services. This insurance plan is financed by Social Security contributions made by both employee and employer. The second type of insurance is a voluntary program in which individuals pay monthly premiums, which are matched by funds from the Federal Government. This insurance helps pay bills for doctors, and other services not included in the hospital insurance.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Through an agency named by the Government, bills for care and service in authorized hospitals, in excess of $40, are paid for up to 60 days of a hospital stay. After 60 days of a hospital stay the patient will pay $10 a day, and the insurance will pay the rest for another 30 days. This insurance, for up to 90 days of care, will pay for one "spell of illness." A "spell of illness" is a period of illness beginning on the first day of hospital care received, which is covered by Medicare, and ending after the patient has been out of a hospital or extended-care facility (usually a nursing home) for 60 consecutive days.

The voluntary medical insurance for payment of physicians' services costs an applicant $3 per month. This insurance pays 80% of all doctors' bills of that part of the total greater than $50. In other words, the patient must pay the first $50 of the bills for a calendar year and 20% of the amount greater than $50.

Eligibility:

Any citizen or legal resident of the United States who is 65 years of age or over is eligible for hospital insurance. Excluded from the program are federal employees covered by the Federal Employees' Health Benefits Act of 1959 and certain aliens. The voluntary medical insurance is available to any citizen 65 years and over, including federal employees excluded from the hospital insurance. Excluded are aliens who have not resided continuously in this country for five years.

PROGRAM TITLE: KERR-MILLS PROGRAM—MEDICAL ASSISTANCE TO THE AGED (MEDICAID)

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a grants program available to States for the development and operation of a medical assistance program for the aged. Under such a program the State furnishes broad medical assistance to persons 65 years and over. This would include both recipients of welfare assistance and individuals who are not recipients of assistance, but cannot meet necessary medical service costs. The objective of this program is to encourage the States to provide a wide range of medical services and appropriate social services to low-income aged persons who generally have sufficient income to meet their needs except for medical care.

Under Title XIX of the Social Security Act of 1965, the Kerr-Mills program is expanded to provide a minimum program of in-patient and out-patient hospital services that would include physicians, laboratory, and nursing home services by July 1, 1967. Coverage of other items of medical service are optional with the State plan. Extension of coverage is also authorized to include dependent children, blind and disabled persons, and all persons who qualify as medical indigents.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

This assistance is in the form of payment, to suppliers, of part of all the cost of such care and services made available to eligible individuals under the State program. State and local governments are required to match a portion of the medical assistance. This portion varies from 17 to 45% of expenditures under the plan. In addition, State and local governments are required to cover 25% of the cost of providing staff training and certain preventive rehabilitation services designated by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. An additional condition for the State plan is a requirement that plans provide a minimum of services designated by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. When State plans do not meet the minimum services, the non-Federal share is 50%.

Eligibility:

Federal funds are available to States making expenditures under a plan that has been approved by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Each State must provide that the program shall be in effect throughout the State and be mandatory in all political subdivisions. Eventually this program may be superseded by Medicare as it is due to expire in 1970. Until then the States have the option of selecting this program or the newly established Medicare Program.

Emphasis is given to projects that develop and improve nursing care of the sick-at-home, homemakers' services, coordinated home care information and referral services, health appraisal, and nursing home care.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Grants are allotted among the States by a formula which takes into consideration the population, financial need, and extent of the health problem. Minimum grant for any State is $60,000. The 1965 legislation extended the program until fiscal year 1967.

Eligibility:

PROGRAM TITLE: CHRONIC DISEASES AND HEALTH PROBLEMS OF THE AGED

General Nature and Purpose:

Under the Public Health Service Act of 1965, this program was authorized to provide grants to support research in the areas of chronic diseases and health problems of the aged. Research may include the following areas: preventive medicine, restorative services, and evaluation research.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

Generally these grants are used to sponsor research of an applied nature, designated to gather information which can be used in providing technical consultation on community services for the aged. Currently, studies are being directed toward investigation of the patterns of utilization and provision of health and related services for the aged with particular attention to personal factors influencing those patterns. Another example, a project of special importance that was funded, was a longitudinal study of a specific aging population to assess social, psychological, and economic aspects of aging.

PROGRAM TITLE: PUBLIC HOUSING PROGRAM FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a broad program of financial assistance to local housing authorities to provide assistance in meeting the special housing needs of needy elderly, disabled, and handicapped. Special provisions -- such as higher room construction costs and additional annual contributions to the local housing authority ($120 maximum contribution per dwelling unit per year) -- are allowed the low-income elderly, disabled, and handicapped that are not available to other families that occupy public housing.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

This assistance includes temporary loans to build the projects and annual contributions to amortize bond issues sold on the private market by the authorities for permanent financing. Existing private housing can be leased or purchased by local authorities and assisted by annual contributions under new provisions of the 1965 Housing Act.

Eligibility:

This program applies particularly to families whose heads (or their spouse) or sole members have attained the age of 62 years or older, or persons who, regardless of age, are disabled.

Applying agencies must be local housing authorities established by local and State governments.

PROGRAM TITLE: FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION—RENTAL HOUSING FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

General Nature and Purpose:

The general aim and purpose of this program is to fill a housing credit gap in rural areas and offer rental housing to senior citizens, 62 years of age or older, who are capable of caring for themselves and who live in rural areas. Two types of assistance are provided—direct loans and insured loans. Direct loans are made to consumer cooperatives and private nonprofit corporations. Insured loans may be made to individuals, trusts, associations, partnerships, and corporations (including State, municipal, or local corporations). Both types of loans may be used to purchase, construct, improve, or repair rental housing. This housing may consist of individual detached houses or cottages, duplex units, or apartment buildings—but must be designed to meet the needs of the elderly and be suitable for independent living. Funds may not be used for nursing, special care, or institutional homes.

As well as providing housing, the loans may also be used to provide recreational and service facilities for tenants; to buy and improve the land on which the buildings are to be located; and to develop the water, sewage disposal, heat, and light systems needed for the housing.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Direct loans may not exceed $200,000 and insured loans $300,000. The rate of interest is 3% on the unpaid principal on direct loans and 5-3/4% on insured loans. The maximum term of repayment is 50 years for the direct loan and 40 years for an insured loan.

Eligibility:

For eligibility purposes a rural area is defined as open country or small rural towns of not more than 5,500 population which are not part of, or associated with, an urban or suburban area. Applicants must be able to incur the obligations of the loan, give adequate security, and have sufficient income for repayment. They must also show the ability and intention to maintain and operate the housing for the purposes for which the loan is made. Another condition for eligibility is that applicants must show evidence that they are unable either to finance the housing with their own resources or with credit from private or cooperative sources.

PROGRAM TITLE: SENIOR CITIZENS RENTAL HOUSING—DIRECT LOAN PROGRAM

General Nature and Purpose:

This program of direct loans permits assistance for development of nonprofit projects to serve those elderly (62 years and over) and handicapped people whose incomes are above the levels set for admission to public housing projects but below that needed to pay the rentals for adequate private housing otherwise available. These loans are to be used for both newly constructed and rehabilitated rental housing. Loans are not available for refinancing purposes.

Loans may also be used to provide related social and service facilities which could be used by the residents. These could include the following:

1. Management office space.
2. Maintenance workshop and storage space.
3. Recreation and social center, including a lounge.
4. Snack bar.
5. Crafts shop and art room.
6. Multi-service center (where social, educational, counseling, and employment services could be made available).
7. Laundry facilities.
8. Limited facilities for health examination and emergency treatment, but no nursing homes or hospital facilities.
9. Cafeteria or dining hall.

Groups contemplating the construction and operation of housing for senior citizens can receive advice and guidance from the program and technical staffs in the Regional Offices.

Eligibility:

To be eligible an applicant must be a private nonprofit corporation, consumer cooperative, or a public agency—but not a local housing authority receiving financial assistance under the Housing Act of 1937.

Proof must also be shown that the applicant has been unable to obtain the necessary financing from other sources which have terms and conditions as favorable as those under this program.

PROGRAM TITLE: RENT SUPPLEMENTS FOR DISADVANTAGED PERSONS

General Nature and Purpose:

This program assists individuals and families of low income who are elderly, handicapped, displaced by government action, occupants of substandard dwellings or dwellings damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster (subsequent to April 1, 1965) with rent supplement payments to help make privately owned housing available. It can also apply, on a restricted and experimental basis, for housing under F.H.A. housing for the elderly (financed by direct Federal Loans), rental housing for the elderly, and housing financed by F.H.A. low-interest rate mortgages. Only new housing projects or existing housing projects involving major rehabilitation are eligible to receive rent supplement payments.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Payments will be made directly to the owners or projects on behalf of qualified tenants. Families and individuals who are eligible will be required to pay 25% of their income for rent. The difference between this amount and the full market rent for the particular dwelling unit occupied will represent the amount of the rent supplement.

Eligibility:

Eligible housing owners for contracts to receive rent supplements for eligible tenants should be nonprofit, cooperative, limited dividend owners who provide housing financed with mortgage insured with F.H.A. Such a mortgage must have been approved for insurance by the F.H.A. subsequent to August 16, 1965. Certain other housing, particularly for the elderly, is also permitted on an experimental basis.

Eligible tenants are persons whose income does not exceed the maximum amount that Federal law permits to make them eligible for public housing and must fall under one of the following categories:

1. Have been displaced by government action, such as: urban renewal, code enforcement, or highway development, etc.
2. Either applicant or spouse is 62 years or older.
3. Either applicant or spouse is physically handicapped.
4. Now live in substandard housing.
5. Occupies or did occupy housing destroyed or extensively damaged by natural disasters.

PROGRAM TITLE: RESEARCH AND DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS IN PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a grant program for Federal and State public welfare departments to develop and improve the methods and techniques of their programs through the development of demonstrations, pilot, and experimental projects. Projects may include assistance programs, services, training, and administration but must indicate originality and innovation and be of such a nature that they might be incorporated into the agency's regular program.

As part of the on-going public assistance program, it is possible for States to provide programs of consumer education for assistance applicants or recipients. This is only one of many possibilities which might aid the needy elderly.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

Primary factors considered in evaluating an application are: (1) objectives of the public assistance titles of the Social Security Act; (2) soundness of the project design; and (3) the possibility of incorporating the new approach into regular State and local public assistance programs.

Eligibility:

Grants are made directly to State public assistance agencies, but not to other public or nonprofit agencies or individuals. State public assistance agencies may, however, enter into contracts with public or nonprofit agencies and with individuals.

PROGRAM TITLE: RESEARCH AND DEMONSTRATION PROJECT—SOCIAL WELFARE AND SOCIAL SECURITY

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a grants program—authorized under the 1956 amendments to the Social Security Act—which offers financial support to pay part of the costs to State, public, and other nonprofit agencies and organizations for research or demonstration projects relating to the broad field of social welfare and social security.

Projects must add to existing knowledge or practice in such areas as prevention or reduction of dependence, improvements in the administration and effectiveness of programs, and coordination of planning between public and private welfare agencies. The projects must relate to programs carried out or assisted under the Social Security Act.

These may be for the following purposes:

1. Experiments in total community organization of services to older people.
2. Developing or demonstrating new approaches, techniques, and methods which hold promise of helping older persons.
3. Stimulating research in areas not now being supported by existing programs.
4. Providing short-term or in-service training courses.
5. Developing training materials, designing and testing curricula, etc.

To the extent that consumer education can develop or improve skills in allocating limited financial resources, it can contribute toward raising levels of living. A consumer education research or demonstration project to assist low-income groups could, therefore, meet the overall purposes of this research or demonstration grant program.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

This program supports a wide range of projects. Very recently it sponsored experimental, protective service units in three cities; special programs for the elderly in public housing; and multi-purpose neighborhood centers.

Eligibility:

Grants may be made to State, public, and other nonprofit agencies and organizations, but are not available to individuals—even through they may be affiliated with public or nonprofit organizations.

PROGRAM TITLE: COMMUNITY ACTION PROGRAM

General Nature and Purpose:

The purpose of Federal assistance to community action programs is to help urban and rural communities to mobilize their resources to combat poverty. Because community needs and resources differ widely, variety is encouraged in development and conduct of a Community Action Program. The long-range objective of every Community Action Program is to effect a permanent increase in the capacity of individuals, groups and communities afflicted by poverty to deal effectively with their own problems so that they need no further assistance. CAP funds are available for a wide variety of projects and programs. A suggested but not exhaustive list is given below.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The Community Action Program is authorized to provide financial assistance for the following purposes:

A. Program Development

Grants for program development are made under Section 204 of the Economic Opportunity Act to enable public and private nonprofit agencies serving particular communities to prepare sound and effective plans and programs and to organize for community action.

B. Conduct and Administration

Grants for the conduct and administration of a Community Action Program are made, under Section 205, for a wide variety of projects, including but not limited to the following:

1. Remedial and noncurricular education.
2. Employment, job training and counseling.
3. Health, family planning, and vocational rehabilitation.
4. Housing and home management.
5. Welfare.
6. Consumer information and education.
7. Legal services.
8. Multi-service neighborhood centers, such as senior center programs.
9. Community Search Programs.

C. Research and Demonstration

Grants are made under Section 207 for the conduct of studies, surveys, and investigations into the causes and nature of poverty and the means by which poverty might be eliminated or reduced, and for projects that represent novel and experimental approaches to elimination of poverty.

D. Training

Grants are made under three different sections of the Act for training projects:

1. Section 206: training as a part of a single community's Community Action Program.
2. Section 206: training as a part of the Community Action Programs of several communities.
3. Section 207: novel and experimental training programs related to the purposes of the Community Action Program.

E. Technical Assistance

Grants are made to agencies providing technical assistance to communities in developing, conducting, and administering Community Action Programs, under Section 204(b) to State agencies, and under Section 206 to other agencies.

Recent Amendments:

1966 legislation, particularly the Scheuer Amendment, provide that $88 million in community action funds be specifically earmarked for a public employment program in the 1967 fiscal year. It also provides that the program be designed to enhance participants' prospects for normal employment and should include basic education and training when needed. The variety of jobs include positions in the fields of health, education, welfare, public safety, conservation, development or management of natural resources, and community beautification.

Eligibility:

Private nonprofit and public agencies are eligible for CAP financial assistance. Grants are made both to broadly based Community Action Agencies (CAAs) representing an entire community and to single purpose agencies. CAAs may delegate individual projects by contract to other agencies. Single-purpose agencies must submit project proposals to local CAAs for comment. For grants under Section 204 and 205, non-Federal contributions must make up a part of total project costs and applicant agencies must provide for participation in policy-making by residents of the areas and groups served. Non-Federal contributions are also encouraged in connection with grants under other sections of the Act.

PROGRAM TITLE: COMMUNITY ACTION PROGRAM—ASSISTANCE FOR MIGRANTS AND SEASONAL FARM WORKERS

General Nature and Purpose:

This program provides financial assistance to public or private organizations to assist the migrant and seasonal agricultural worker and his family. Title III-B of the Economic Opportunity Act provides for housing, sanitation facilities, educational services for adults and children, and day-care projects. A broad range of services and projects is available within those categories. Title II-A provides for establishment of Community Action Agencies (CAA's) that may be developed to deal with the needs of migrant farm workers. The CAA may include financial assistance for many of the programs discussed in the Title III-B provisions, plus additional projects, including: establishment and operation of migrant opportunity centers; manpower training; counseling before and after a migrant leaves agricultural work; and demonstration projects to test and develop new methods of assisting migrants. These programs are directly related to the War on Poverty and should be developed and conducted with the maximum feasible participation of residents of the area and members of the groups served.

Eligibility:

Public agencies and private nonprofit organizations concerned with the migrant and impoverished farm worker are eligible to apply either jointly or independently. Direct grants can be made to eligible organizations. In addition, under Title III-B, direct loans may be made to institutions, organizations, and farm associations. Up to 100% of project costs may be paid under Title III-B and up to 90% under Title II-A, provided that the community maintains or increases its previous level of effort in related activities and that the project would increase opportunities for the worker and his family to achieve economic independence and social self-sufficiency.

PROGRAM TITLE: COMMODITY DISTRIBUTION PROGRAM

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a food distribution program whose purpose is twofold—to help improve the general nutrition of school children and families in need of assistance and to broaden the market for foods acquired under price support and surplus removal operations. Donation programs have been established in all States and foods may be made available to charitable institutions serving needy persons, State and local welfare agencies for distribution to low-income households and low-income aged, needy, Indians on reservations, nonprofit school lunch programs, and summer camps for children.

Many nonprofit hospitals, nursing homes, and health centers may be eligible to receive food donations—especially those operated by counties and small towns.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Food is donated by the Department of Agriculture who processes and packages the food and pays transportation costs in carload lots to points chosen by the State. State and local governments, in turn, pay all costs of interstate transportation, storage, and distribution.

Eligibility:

Any local government may participate by distributing food to low-income families. If a local government can demonstrate to the Office of Economic Opportunity that it cannot finance its share of the donation program for its needy families, the Office of Economic Opportunity will consider application for assistance under the Community Action Program.

Any charitable institution that serves the needy is also eligible, as is any public or nonprofit private school.

PROGRAM TITLE: FOOD STAMP PROGRAM

General Nature and Purpose:

This program, like the Commodity Distribution Program, was enacted to expand the market for domestically produced foods and, at the same time, help to improve the diets of low-income families. Food supplements in the form of coupons are provided to low-income families who can then purchase domestically produced food in retail stores. In exchange for money that the family would normally spend for food, the government or representing agency provides coupons at a value greater than the money exchanged. The U.S. Government assumes the difference between the two values. Families may then use the coupons to buy any domestically produced food (imported foods are excluded). Food retailers are authorized by the Consumer Marketing Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. Coupons can be redeemed by retailer, at face value, at local banks or authorized wholesalers.

Eligibility:

Any State Agency administering Federally aided public assistance programs may submit requests for the program on behalf of local governments that want to participate.

Individual families are eligible if:

1. There is a program in the area in which they live.
2. They are receiving some form of welfare assistance and are unemployed, or employed part-time, working for low wages, or living on limited pensions.
3. They are found by local welfare officials to be in need of food assistance.

The eligibility of families that are not receiving welfare assistance is based upon income, level of liquid assets, and family size.

PROGRAM TITLE: AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

General Nature and Purpose:

In addition to its general regulatory programs, the Agricultural Research Service also provides information and technical assistance on a broad range of topics to projects for economic and social development. Most of this information emanates from research that the service conducts. Areas which might have particular interest for the elderly are the following:

1. Research findings having to do with nutrition, food budgets, group feeding, and effective consumer use of food.
2. Housing research dealing with most effective use of space in the home.
3. Consumer use research that includes: studies of family food consumption, income, and expenditures. Guides are developed on effective use of money, time, and energy.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

This is a general information service that disseminates research findings.

Eligibility:

Research findings and general information are available to the public directly through the Agricultural Research Service.

Available Printed Information:

PROGRAM TITLE: LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING

Nature and Purpose:

This is a low-rent housing program originally enacted by Congress in 1937. It was established to enable State and local housing authorities to assist low-income families to obtain clean, safe low-rent housing. This housing may be in the form of new construction or purchase and rehabilitation of existing structures. Elderly families and individuals, those with physical handicaps, and families and individuals displaced by public action are included in a special benefits section of the program. One of the more recent developments is authorization, under the Housing Act of 1965, allowing local housing authorities to provide quarters for low-income families in dwellings leased by the authority from private owners

Form and Extent of Assistance:

State and local authorities are enabled to secure loans (either directly from the Federal Government or through private sources) for purchase and construction at low interest and to receive annual supplements, in the form of contributions, to allow them to offer rentals low enough to serve the poor, elderly, or handicapped. This program also provides direct benefits to low-income people.

The Federal share of contributions and benefits is 90% to be matched by 10% in cash or in funds from State or local authorities.

Eligibility:

Those eligible for the program are local housing authorities established by the local government under State legislation. The proposed program must have the approval of the local government.

The eligibility for rentals is limited to low-income families and to single persons who are elderly, handicapped, or who have been displaced by government action or urban renewal.

Its general aim is to stimulate innovations and improve the means of providing homes.

Proposals may include, as well as construction, other aspects of housing such as new and improved means of finance, land acquisitions, land use, and design.

PROGRAM TITLE: HOME REHABILITATION GRANTS

General Nature and Purpose:

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorizes a program of grants to low-income owner-occupants, in urban renewal and concentrated code enforcement areas, to enable them to make repairs to bring their homes up to applicable code or urban requirements for their areas. The aims of this program are to effect rehabilitation and renewal of housing, buildings, and communities by repairing, remodeling, and restoring—rather than by clearance and demolition.

Eligibility:

Families with less than $ 3,000 yearly income may qualify for a grant of up to $ 1,500. Families with more than $ 3,000 yearly income also can qualify when repayment of a rehabilitation loan plus their other housing expenses use up more than 25 % of their monthly income.

Grant funds may also be used to buy land on which housing is to be located.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Loans are made for the maximum term of 33 years or the useful life of the security, whichever is less, at an interest rate of 5 % a year on the unpaid principal. A loan to an individual farm owner may not exceed the normal value of the farm as improved, less other liens.

Eligibility:

A loan may be made to a farm owner or association of farmers, state or political subdivision or nonprofit organization. A grant may be made to a State or political subdivision or a broadly based nonprofit organization that intends to provide labor housing as a community service.

PROGRAM TITLE: FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION—RURAL HOME LOANS

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a loan program to assist farmers and non-farm residents of a rural area or small town to construct, improve, or repair rural homes and related facilities and farm service buildings. Funds may also be used for fallout shelters; to provide water for household and farm use; for modernization, enlargement, or remodeling service buildings and related facilities—such as fences and driveways. Rural residents may also use the loans to buy a minimum adequate site on which to build a house.

Special provisions and considerations are given to rural residents who are 62 years of age or over.

A most recent development in this program has been a series of self-help pilot projects. These projects allow prospective home owners an equity ("sweat equity") for their own labor, thus enabling persons of low-income to earn while they build their own homes. These projects are particularly suited to able-bodied, rural residents with seasonal occupations and low-cash incomes. A similar program exists for American Indians. (See page 32.)

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Loans average $10,000, but vary according to the needs of the applicant. The maximum repayment term is 33 years. Each loan must be adequately secured.

Eligibility:

Rural areas are defined for purposes of eligibility as open country or small towns (with populations of not more than 5,500) which are not part of, or closely associated with, an urban or suburban area.

An applicant must:

1. Be unable to finance the improvements himself or to obtain credit from other sources at reasonable terms.
2. Be a U.S. citizen of legal age and of good character.
3. Own a farm or non-farm tract or be a rural resident who will own an adequate building site when the loan is closed.
4. Be without decent, safe, and sanitary housing or without essential farm service buildings.
5. Have sufficient income to pay operating and living expenses and meet payments on debts, including the proposed loan. A senior citizen who does not have enough income to repay a loan may be able to qualify if someone else co-signs his note.

PROGRAM TITLE: PROPERTY IMPROVEMENT LOANS

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a broad loan program devised to assist individuals to pay for alteration, repair, improvement, or conversion of existing homes and other structures; two-family dwellings; apartments; non-residential dwellings such as stores or service buildings. The work to be done must substantially improve or protect the basic utility of the property.

Loans are also available under this title for new building of certain non-residential structures—such as retail stores, warehouses, or farm service buildings.

These loans are made by banks, saving and loan associations, finance companies, and other lending organizations that are approved by the F.H.A. Commissioner. Many loans are arranged through local contractors, but they can also be made directly by individuals. By insuring private lenders against loss on the loan, the F.H.A. makes it less expensive for the individual to obtain the needed credit.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Maximum limits vary depending upon the kind of construction and the use of the structure. Rates of interest and terms of repayment also vary. Most loans, however, are made in amounts up to $3,500, at an interest rate of 4 to 5% for a term up to 5 years.

Eligibility:

Individual applicants must own the property they wish to improve, purchase it under a contract, or hold it under a lease not to expire sooner than 6 months after the repayment term of the loans. Applicants must also have sufficient income to assure repayment.

Both residential and non-residential properties are eligible.

PROGRAM TITLE: F.H.A. MORTGAGE INSURANCE—RENTAL HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY

General Nature and Purpose:

This program was enacted to facilitate the financing of rental housing projects designed specifically for tenants who are 62 years and over and for handicapped persons of any age. It provides mortgage insurance to both profit and nonprofit sponsors of new or rehabilitated rental housing. Structures in the project may be detached, semi-detached, or apartment houses. Projects assisted in this program offer more extensive non-residential facilities and services than is generally the case under the direct loan program of the Community Facilities Administration or the Public Housing Administration low-rent program.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The mortgages which this program insures may not exceed  $5\frac{1}{4}\%$  maximum interest, and the term of repayment may not exceed 40 years. For non-profit sponsors the mortgage can finance up to 100% of replacement cost of rehabilitated value; profit-motivated groups may finance up to 90%.

Eligibility:

Any individual, corporation, association, or non-profit organization is eligible if the project contains at least eight dwelling units and meets minimum F.H.A. property standards in regard to location, design, and adequacy of market.

Nonprofit sponsors must show in the proposal that they have had a long-term interest in providing adequate housing for the elderly and handicapped.

Profit-motivated sponsors must provide capable and experienced management.

PROGRAM TITLE: F. H. A. MORTGAGE INSURANCE—HOUSING FOR FAMILIES OF LOW AND MODERATE INCOME

General Nature and Purpose:

The aim of this program is to assist the provision of homes at costs within the reach of people of low and moderate income. The program insures mortgage financing for construction or rehabilitation of single family homes and multi-family rental projects at the regular interest rate for families with moderate income and below-market rate of interest for lower income families. Families displaced by urban renewal or other government action are given special consideration and lower financing terms for purchase or construction of homes.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The maximum mortgage amount of an individual home is $11,000 (which may be increased to $15,000 in high-cost areas) at a maximum of 5½% interest, with a varying maximum term of repayment from 30 to 40 years. Mortgage insurance premium is ¼ of 1%.

Maximum mortgage amount for multi-family rental projects is $12.5 million. Repayment must be made the lesser of 40 years or ¾ of the remaining economic life of the property. Maximum interest rate varies from 3 to 5½%.

Eligibility:

Any family (or person) of low or moderate income, or displaced by urban renewal or other government action, may apply. Multi-family rental projects at the regular market rate are available to any mortgagor approved by the F.H.A. Commission. Multi-family rental projects (financed at below-market interest rates) are available to public agencies, cooperatives, private nonprofit corporations or associations, and builder-seller and limited distribution mortgagors.

Occupancy of below-market interest rate multi-family rental projects is controlled by limitations of family income established by F.H.A. and special priority is given to elderly, handicapped, and displaced persons.

PROGRAM TITLE: F.H.A. MORTGAGE INSURANCE—FINANCING HOME PURCHASES AND HOME IMPROVEMENTS

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a broad program that provides insurance for mortgage financing to mortgagors at a more favorable rate than is usually allowed. Financing can be used to purchase proposed or existing dwellings of 1 to 4 units, to rehabilitate existing properties, and to refinance debts owed on the property.

This program does not apply to urban renewal areas and can include farms of 5 or more acres which are adjacent to a highway and non-farm, rural single-family dwellings. It also applies to financing for proposed improvement, alteration, and repairs to existing structures.

Eligibility:

Persons eligible for the program can be both occupant or non-occupant mortgagors, but applications must be submitted by an F.H.A. approved lender.

Minimum requirements of location and construction are also prescribed by F.H.A., and the applicant must meet these standards. Elderly persons may qualify for these loans but may be subject to shorter repayment periods.

PROGRAM TITLE: F.H.A. MORTGAGE INSURANCE—FOR URBAN RENEWAL

General Nature and Purpose:

This is an urban renewal program designated to assist in removing the conditions of blight and of slums and in preventing deterioration of property. It provides assurance on mortgages made to investors, builders, individual home owners, and apartment owners. Financing may be used toward new or rehabilitated homes or multi-family structures, but such properties must be located in designated urban renewal areas.

Special sections of this program provide authority to insure financing for improvements that will enhance and preserve homes and apartments in designated areas.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

In general, the terms of this program are more advantageous than the F.H.A. regular home and multi-unit mortgage programs; both greater maximum loans are allowed and smaller equity investments are possible.

Eligibility:

This program is limited to properties located in designated urban renewal areas or an area in which a program of concentrated code enforcement activities is being undertaken. Any individual home owner, apartment owner, investor, builder, or developer whose property falls in these areas is eligible.

PROGRAM TITLE: DEMONSTRATION (OR MODEL) CITIES PROGRAM

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a new program, resulting from 1966 legislation, that provides grants and technical assistance to help localities of all sizes to undertake the necessary efforts to solve the pressing urban problems in neglected neighborhoods. This assistance is for developing broad plans and implementing them to rebuild and restore entire sections and neighborhoods in slums and blighted areas through concentrated and coordinated use of Federal, State, and local aids.

The program specifies that each demonstration project should include new or rehabilitated housing for low-income groups; and, also, the necessary health, education, welfare, recreation, and other social services needed to change the "total environment" of the neighborhood's residents.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Grants and technical assistance are provided at the planning stage up to 80% of the cost of planning, developing, and administering programs. At the execution stage, there are supplemental grants that could provide up to 80% of the non-Federal contribution to the Federal grants-in-aid programs in the demonstration.

The 1966 legislation approved the program for three years, with an initial appropriation of $1.3 billion of which $900 million will be granted to selected cities to assist them to undertake larger rehabilitation programs in one or more "demonstration" neighborhoods.

Eligibility:

All communities of all sizes are eligible to participate provided a locality shows that it has the resources to carry out the program.

PROGRAM TITLE: GRANTS FOR COMMUNITY HEALTH PRACTICE AND RESEARCH

General Nature and Purpose:

This program was established both to support basic health programs and to stimulate the development of new or improved programs. It provides financial and technical assistance to local governments, individuals, agencies, and organizations.

Financial assistance is administered in the form of two types of grants-formula grants: research and demonstration grants. The first are allotted to States to support health programs which treat problems not covered by the special purpose grants. Matching funds are required on an equal basis. Research and demonstration grants are available: to State and local government agencies, universities, nonprofit organizations, and individuals for research into the development of comprehensive health services and new or improved methods of providing out-of-hospital health services. There are no matching requirements for research and demonstration grants.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The average size of the research and demonstration grants negotiated under this program has approximated $20,000 for 1 year, but individual contracts have ranged from $5,000 to $60,000. Support is generally given for not more than 1 year, but additional support may be given on an annual but diminishing basis.

Eligibility:

Any State agency is eligible to apply for grants for basic health programs (or the formula grants). Local agencies cannot apply directly but may receive support through State programs.

Nonprofit agencies and organizations, educational institutions, and individuals may apply for the research and demonstration grants.

Technical assistance and training services are available to Federal, State, and local agencies and organizations.

PROGRAM TITLE: DEVELOPMENT AND EXPANSION OF COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH PROGRAMS

General Nature and Purpose:

This program was developed to assist States to improve the treatment of the mentally ill and mentally retarded. Grants are provided to States for facilities and services on matching basis: Federal 50% and State 50%.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

Funds are authorized for the following:

1. To aid in planning for the mental health needs of citizens.
2. To assist in constructing comprehensive community health services.
3. To help mental hospitals and institutions for the retarded improve their therapeutic services.
4. To provide in-service training for staff of State mental hospitals and institutions.
5. And to assist the expansion of services and research programs related to mental retardation.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Funds are allotted to States by a formula and require equal matching funds from the State or local agencies. The size of the grants have been steadily increasing since the inception of the program in 1948. By 1964 the minimum grant was $115,000 and the 1965 fiscal year appropriation for the total program was $5,740,000.

In addition to grants, professional and technical assistance is also available from the National Institute of Mental Health which plans and executes field studies and acts as a clearing house for legal and technical information relating to mental health.

Eligibility:

Mental Health authorities, as designated by the States, are eligible to receive formula grants upon submission and approval of a State plan for their use. Local agencies may participate through State programs.

PROGRAM TITLE: MENTAL HEALTH—RESEARCH AND TRAINING

General Nature and Purpose:

This research and training program was established to develop and improve methods of diagnosis, treatment, and rehabilitation of persons who are mentally ill or mentally retarded. Grants are provided to agencies, institutions, and individuals for research into these areas.

In addition, grants are also provided to institutions for fellowships and graduate and undergraduate traineeships to enable them to improve or expand educational instruction, and research training in areas pertaining to mental health.

Assistance is awarded on specific application or individual project application. Grants can be made both in advance of the project or by reimbursement. There are no requirements for the matching of funds.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Research grants and fellowships are regularly authorized for research in aging problems. The average grant for problems of aging has been higher than other program areas—such as alcoholism, drug addiction, juvenile delinquency, mental retardation, psycho-pharmacology, and schizophrenia. Preliminary research explorations are also supported by 1 year grants of $3,500 or less. Types of research include: small scale studies, preliminary testing of hypotheses, and development of new techniques.

Funds are not required to be matched, and the duration of support varies—depending upon project goals—and generally may be from 1 to 5 years.

Eligibility:

Individual project grants are available to State and local agencies, laboratories, public or nonprofit agencies and institutions, and individuals.

Training and fellowship grants are available to colleges, universities, and other institutions of higher learning. Individuals who wish to apply must do so through a participating institution.

All applications are given a technical review by a committee composed of consultants from outside the Federal Government and are assessed on their individual merits.

PROGRAM TITLE: CONSTRUCTION OF COMMUNITY MENTAL HEALTH CENTERS

General Nature and Purpose:

This program was enacted into law in 1963 to meet the need for the development and improvement of mental health facilities. It authorizes and provides formula grants to State and local governments and public and private nonprofit agencies for construction of public and other nonprofit community mental health centers. Projects may propose the construction of completely new facilities, expansion or remodeling of existing facilities, and initially equip and staff the centers.

Such centers should be oriented to the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of mental illness in both out-patient or in-patient facilities; and for rehabilitation and education of the mentally ill.

The administration of the project grants is made through a single State agency, which is responsible for the development of a comprehensive plan that sets standards for operation and maintenance of facilities. Projects must be part of an approved State plan.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The authorizing legislation provides for a minimum allotment of $100,000, but allotments above that figure are determined on a formula basis which considers population, financial need, and need for community mental health centers for each State.

The full authorization of $35 million was appropriated for the fiscal year 1965, but this has been substantially increased for 1966 through 1968.

Eligibility:

Private nonprofit organizations, State, and other local public agencies may apply to receive a grant for the construction of mental health centers, providing that the project meets a community need as determined by the State administering agency and is included in the State plan.

Applications must be submitted through the State agency.

Project grants are provided to States, local governments, and other public or nonprofit organizations that provide services to persons who are unable to pay. States are allocated grants upon the submission and approval of a plan to provide comprehensive services.

Form and Extent of Treatment:

The minimum grant for any State for each fiscal year is $100,000. Amounts above that minimum are determined by a formula based upon population, financial need, and the need for facilities in each State.

The Federal share of the cost of any project can vary from  $\frac{1}{3}$  to  $\frac{2}{3}$  of the construction costs.

Eligibility:

State governments must submit and receive approval of a State plan to provide services in order to receive grants. PROGRAM TITLE: COMMUNITY HEALTH PLANNING GRANTS FOR HEART DISEASE, CANCER AND STROKE

General Nature and Purpose:

As a result of the investigation of the President's Commission on Heart Disease, Cancer and Stroke in 1964, a special program of incentive grants to communities was established to stimulate the development of plans and programs to reduce mortality and morbidity resulting from heart disease, cancer, and stroke. These grants assist the development of community planning for coordination and provision of services within a three-year demonstration period to attack heart, cancer, stroke, and related diseases.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

Since the inception of the program, 26 project applications have been received; 22 were approved, but due to the limitation of funds only 16 were funded. The majority of applications submitted and funded were initiated by health departments and community councils. Half the funded applications served areas of less than 500,000 population. The largest area designated by an applicant was an area of over 2 million persons.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The appropriation for this program was $8,000,000 for 1965. And, due to these limited funds, $40,000 to $50,000 has been suggested for the annual support of such projects. Maximum amount for any project is $100,000. Matching is not required.

PROGRAM TITLE: HEALTH SERVICES FOR AGRICULTURAL MIGRATORY WORKERS

General Nature and Purpose:

Under the Migrant Health Act of 1962 authorization was given to permit funds to be made available—in the form of grants to agencies, institutions, and organizations—to establish and operate health services to improve the general health of domestic migratory farm workers and their families. This assistance may be used either to plan, develop, expand, or improve services.

As a result of 1965 legislation, this program was extended for an additional three years (through June 30, 1968) and expanded its services to include necessary hospital care.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

Grants may be used to pay the cost of setting up and operating health services, clinics, and hospitals and for the development of special programs to improve health services and conditions. Interpretation of the use of this program is generally very broad and can also be used to eliminate environmental hazards and improve general health conditions at the place of work.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Authorization was made under recent amendments for $7 million for 1966—increasing to $8 and $9 million in 1967 and 1968. The 1966 appropriation for the program was $3,500,000.

No fixed matching rate is required; applicants are expected to assume "a part" of the total cost of the project. This share may vary from project to project and may be paid in money, equipment, supplies, personal services, and other essential items.

Eligibility:

State and local health departments, other public and nonprofit organizations, growers' associations, medical societies, and educational institutions are eligible to apply for grants under this program.

PROGRAM TITLE: HEALTH SERVICES AND FACILITIES FOR AMERICAN INDIANS

General Nature and Purpose:

This program offers two types of assistance to American Indians to help them maintain health standards. In the first, the Federal Government directly constructs and operates hospitals and health facilities for Indians; and, in the second, it offers financial aid to assist States, local governments, and other organizations to provide needed services.

The total program provides child and maintenance care, dental care, school health clinics, field health clinics, tuberculosis sanitariums, hospitals, public health nursing, disease control, and health and nutritional education.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Grants may be provided to States and local public or nonprofit agencies for construction of community hospitals, after consultation with the Indians and when the need is determined. Hospitals and health facilities, built directly by the Federal government, may also be transferred to States when it is found that they can better serve the Indian under that arrangement.

Eligibility:

Applications for assistance can be made by any State, Territory, local government, and nonprofit agency or organization.

PROGRAM TITLE: EXPERIMENTAL AND DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS UNDER OMPER

General Nature and Purpose:

This program seeks to try out new ideas in manpower through actual experiments. Research is promoted through grants and contracts to academic institutions; Federal, State, and local agencies; and individuals. The program's aim is to determine manpower needs, resources, and requirements and to match groups in a community who are alienated from job markets to the local work environment. Most of the projects have sought to develop and improve techniques to "reach" and train disadvantaged workers who might not be able to participate in regular occupational training.

The program is closely allied to Community Action Programs (and other social service organizations) to provide special training opportunities.

Types of Projects Sponsored:

This program supports a wide range of research, developmental, and demonstration projects. These range from basic research to direct action programs that develop skills. Many of them assist the aging, the educationally handicapped, or disadvantaged young persons who have a history of delinquent behavior.

Eligibility:

Any Federal, State or local agency, Community Action Program, academic institutions or individuals with research capacities in manpower areas may apply for contracts or grants.

Eligibility requirements for individuals specify that persons must be unemployed or underemployed with problems that preclude using the regular OMPER programs. They may also be recipients of welfare, lack significant work history, and possess less than a 6th grade education.

PROGRAM TITLE: MANPOWER DEVELOPMENT AND TRAINING

General Nature and Purpose:

Under Title II of the Manpower and Training Act authorization is made to provide direct action in the form of training and basic education to upgrade the skills and adaptability of unemployed and underemployed persons who cannot obtain full-time employment without training.

Training under the program may include institutional, on-the-job training, and youth training. In addition, basic education may also be provided for persons needing it to enable them to profit from the regular occupational training.

The 1965 amendments to the Act also provide authorization to train or retrain unemployed or underemployed persons residing in areas designated for redevelopment and expand the program to include professional employees whose specialized work requires continuing education for continued employability in their field. This legislation also extended the program until June 30, 1969.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The Federal Government provides financing to 90% of the cost of training; the State must pay 10% of the costs. For redevelopment areas special funds were made available for full Federal financing.

There is no cost to a trainee under this program, and most costs for on-the-job training programs are met by the Federal Government.

Trainee allowances, covering up to 104 weeks, are also made to individuals undertaking the program. This includes both travel and subsistence allowances.

Eligibility:

State educational agencies and public or private local training agencies are eligible for institutional grants.

Individuals eligible to receive training must be:

1. Unemployed workers (including members of farm families with less than $1,200 annual net family income).
2. Persons working less than full time, or who will be unemployed because their skills have become or are becoming obsolete.
3. Persons working below their skill levels.
4. Disadvantaged youth, 16-22 years, who are out of school and/or in need of occupational training.
5. Persons unemployed or underemployed in redevelopment areas.

PROGRAM TITLE: EXPERIMENTAL AND DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS FOR RURAL PERSONS

General Nature and Purpose:

These projects provide assistance to Federal, State and local agencies, academic institutions, or individuals to develop or refine techniques of reaching and retraining unemployed or underemployed rural persons. They attempt to show that disadvantaged rural persons (occupationally and educationally) can be trained for employment either in agriculture or other areas through a comprehensive program of recruitment, evaluation, training, and placement. The general aim is to increase farm and marginal farm incomes in areas of declining economic activity.

The program may include both migratory workers and workers who live as rural persons in areas adjacent to large urban areas.

Training projects may provide both farm and non-farm employment skills and include on-the-job training and placement services upon completion of the training.

Eligibility:

Any Federal, State or local agency, Community Action Program, academic institution, or individuals with the capacity to carry out programs are eligible to apply for grants or contracts.

Individuals eligible for services must be persons who are unemployed or underemployed; with problems that preclude using regular training programs; receiving welfare assistance; with no significant work history; or those with less than a 6th grade education level.

PROGRAM TITLE: SOCIAL INSURANCE PROGRAM FOR RAILROAD WORKERS

General Nature and Purpose:

This is a broad social insurance program that provides protection against loss of income for railroad workers and their families. Under the provisions of the Railroad Retirement and Railroad Unemployment Insurance Acts, railroad workers who retire or become ill and disabled, or unemployed may receive partial protection of their loss of income.

Eligibility requirements for the retirement program specify a minimum of 10 years railroad service. Retirement benefits are payable to workers at age 65 years or over. A reduced scale of benefits may also be paid before that age when certain requirements are met. Wives of retired employees who are 65 years and over also may receive full benefits and reduced benefits at 62 years. Survivors of deceased railway employees may also received either lump-sum or monthly benefits.

PROGRAM TITLE: ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY LOANS TO SMALL BUSINESS

General Nature and Purpose:

Under the Economic Act of 1964, the Small Business Administration was authorized to relax traditional credit standards and place greater emphasis on character and ability of an individual, to allow persons with low incomes, who want to go into business, an opportunity to secure loans. Both loans and management assistance are provided.

Loans are available only in neighborhoods or areas designated as "target areas" by the Office of Economic Opportunity, in communities where small business development centers are operating. These centers are community organizations, most often part of Community Action Programs, that are professionally staffed. Part of their task is to screen, evaluate, and recommend loan applications—and to make certain that continuing management assistance is available to borrowers.

Form and Extend of Assistance:

Loans may be made to the maximum amount of $25,000 at an interest rate of 5½% (except in severely depressed areas, where it is 4%). Maximum maturity is generally 15 years, except when the loan's purpose is entirely for working capital; then it is 10 years.

Eligibility:

Applicants must live in or near a target area designated by the Office of Economic Opportunity, be of low income, and either be in business or be proposing a business.

By law economic aid can only be made to persons unable to obtain financing from banks, other private sources, or from other government lending programs.

PROGRAM TITLE: SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION—COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT LOANS

General Nature and Purpose:

Through this program the Small Business Administration assists communities to create new jobs and increase income and tax revenues. Loans are provided to State and local development companies to help them provide long-term loans and equity capital to small businesses in the local community.

Almost any type of new or existing small retail, service, or manufacturing business may receive loans. Financing may be used for construction, expansion, or modernization of buildings; purchase of equipment or acquisition of land.

Any size community may organize to form development companies that are chartered for the express purpose of promoting economic development within a particular community.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Local development companies may receive as much as $8 of every $10 in loans to small business on a long-term, low-interest basis. S.B.A. will loan a local development company as much as $350,000 for each small business concern for up to 25 years. The interest rate is 5½% but may be reduced in certain cases to 5%. For communities with substantial unemployment this rate is further reduced to 4%.

Eligibility:

S.B.A. requires that development companies must be largely controlled and owned by people who live in the local community, that each S.B.A. loan assist a specific firm, and that businesses receiving loans conform to criteria defining "small business." Usually a small business is one that is independently owned and operated and is not dominant in its sphere of activity.

State development companies must be incorporated under a special State law, and local development companies must be incorporated for the purpose of furthering economic growth to be eligible to apply for loans.

PROGRAM TITLE: COOPERATIVE RESEARCH PROGRAM

General Nature and Purpose:

These projects have included such topics as: development and demonstration in adult training and retraining and patterns of information-seeking in adult education.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The 1966 appropriation for this program was $70 million. The average size of the grants has been approximately $50,000 for a 2-year project, but ranges from $1,000 to $1 million.

No fixed amount of matching is required but the Federal contribution is usually between 25 and 30% of the total cost. No matching is required for educational laboratories.

Eligibility:

PROGRAM TITLE: LIBRARY SERVICES AND CONSTRUCTION—RURAL AND URBAN

General Nature and Purpose:

Under the Library Services and Construction Act of 1964, an amendment to the earlier Library Services Act of 1956, authorization was made to allow financial assistance for expanding the development of public library services in both urban and rural areas—where formerly it was for rural areas only. Title II of the Act also provided assistance for the construction of facilities for public libraries.

Grants are made by an allotted formula to States to enable them to implement an approved plan to extend Library services to areas that have inadequate or no service. The assistance may be used for a number of purposes, including the following: construction of new library buildings; expansion, remodeling, and alteration of existing buildings; purchasing land and initial equipment; and extending services by contributing to the cost of salaries, books, materials, and equipment.

Form and Extend of Assistance:

Appropriation for the 1965 fiscal year was $55 million. Allotments of $100,000 under Title I and $80,000 under Title II are made to all States, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia; and $25,000 (Title I) and $20,000 (Title II) for American Samoa, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

Grants are based upon a State evaluation of library services and a plan to initiate improvement of services in areas that have inadequate or no service.

Matching ratios vary from State to State. The Federal contribution is determined by the per capita income of the State. States with a lower per capita income contribute less than States with higher per capita income.

Eligibility:

Those eligible for application are States' library agencies that have an approved plan for library services.

PROGRAM TITLE: ASSISTANCE FOR MEDICAL LIBRARIES

General Nature and Purpose:

Under a broad program, administered by the National Library of Medicine, grants and support are given to construct, expand, and improve medical libraries; to train persons in medical library science; and to provide financial support to publish special studies in medical library science and related topics.

This program was expanded considerably by legislation enacted in 1965. It allows assistance to be used either to construct new—or expand, alter and remodel existing medical library facilities. This would also include cost of equipment. Limited funds are also available to existing public and nonprofit medical libraries to enable them to serve as regional medical libraries. In addition, grants and materials are provided to expand and improve basic resources.

Support for training is also available to institutions and individuals to train medical librarians and persons in other informational specialities in the health sciences.

Research projects in library science are assisted either by contract or grant. Investigations must be in the field of medical library science and in the development of new techniques, systems, and equipment for processing, storing, retrieving and distributing information.

Further support is available for special fellowships, to improve and expand basic resources, and to provide for publication of bio-medical, scientific materials.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

The Medical Library Assistance Act of 1965 established a 5 year program and authorized $11 million for 1966 and $21 million for subsequent years. The largest authorizations occur in the areas of construction, research, and resources.

Matching funds are required, and ratios vary within the different areas of the program.

Eligibility:

Public and nonprofit private agencies and institutions are eligible to apply for construction, research and development, regional medical library, and publication grants.

Traineeships are available to individuals studying medical library science and related fields and to librarians and specialists. Support for training programs is made to existing libraries and public and private nonprofit institutions.

The general aims of the program are to improve education by providing services not now available, to raise the quality of educational services now in existence, and to develop demonstration models for regular school programs.

Form and Extent of Assistance:

Appropriations for the fiscal year 1966 were $75 million. Allocation is made to each State on a formula basis. There are no matching requirements.

Eligibility:

Local school districts are the only eligible recipients of Federal aid under this program. Agencies or school authorities applying for grants must give assurance that all groups of the population to be served are involved in the plans and application of the program.

PROGRAM TITLE: OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL—PROTECTION OF VOTING RIGHTS AND EQUAL ACCESS TO PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS

General Nature and Purpose:

Civil Rights Legislation in recent years has sought to assure protection of the individual right to vote and to have equal access to public accommodations. More specifically this entitled suspension of literacy tests and other devices by States and counties which were discriminating and authorization of the appointment of Federal voting registration examiners and poll watchers in the case of voting rights. The Office of the Attorney General is authorized to protect these voting rights and may initiate action to assure these rights when evidence is provided that rights are being violated.

In the case of equal public access, the Civil Rights Act of 1964 gives all persons the right to public access to establishments providing lodging to transient guests, to facilities primarily engaged in selling food for consumption on the premises, and to places of entertainment and exhibition. Groups or individuals may sue to prevent such discrimination, and the Attorney General, upon his own discretion, may intervene and submit a public suit in cases that are certified to be of general public importance. Persons attempting to obstruct or interfere with the exercise of rights afforded by the law may also be proceeded against. In addition, the court may appoint counsel for the individual or group making the complaint and authorize the suit without payment of costs, fees, or security.

Eligibility:

All persons are eligible for protection of their voting rights and may lodge complaints of infringement of those rights with the Office of the Attorney General.

In the case of equal access to public accommodations, any group or individual may bring suit to prevent such discriminatory practices, and the Attorney General may intervene in cases that are certified to be of public importance.

PROGRAM TITLE: EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COMMISSION

General Nature and Purpose:

Under the Civil Rights Act of 1964, discrimination—because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin—is prohibited in employment by labor unions, employers, or employment agencies. The commission was established to implement this law; it receives and investigates charges by persons or groups of violations of this law. After an investigation discloses that a charge is true, the commission acts to eliminate the unlawful practice by persuasive or conciliatory means. If these methods are not successful the person making the charge may bring a civil action in Federal Court. Under special circumstances, the court may also appoint an attorney for him. Where there are patterns of practices of discrimination of general importance to the public the Attorney General may intervene and initiate suits of his own.

Eligibility:

Any person may file a charge with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. When States or localities have fair employment practice laws, the complaint must be filed first with the State or local agency.

This is a program of project grants to assist local public agencies and bodies to provide neighborhood facilities. Such facilities could include facilities to carry out programs of health, recreation, social, or similar necessary community services. Facilities must, however, provide new services or extend and improve existing services in the neighborhood.

Grants may be used to build new facilities or to purchase and rehabilitate an existing building.

Facilities in neighborhoods of low-income families are given priority so as to further the aims and objectives of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Plans and proposals should be discussed at length with local Community Action Agencies, and evidence of this discussion should be submitted to the administering department on the standard checkpoint form.

Further requirements of the administering agency are that:

2. The neighborhood facility is intended to bring its activities close to those whom it serves. Thus, the neighborhood or area served should be well defined in terms of area and population.

PROGRAM TITLE: F.H.A. MORTGAGE INSURANCE—CONDOMINIUMS

General Nature and Purpose:

This mortgage insurance program provides assurance for both blanket financing to sponsors of multi-family projects (in condominiums) and to individuals for purchase of individual units. The general purpose of the program is to enable persons or families to own residence in a multi-family project and to share common areas and facilities in the project with other owners.

This insurance assists blanket financing—for either new constructions or rehabilitation of an existing structure—for a sponsor who intends to sell individual units on a condominium basis. There are few limitations of types, and structures may be detached, semi-detached, row, walkup, or elevator type.

Financing for individual units of multi-family projects, organized under condominiums, is assured to allow long-term mortgages for individuals and families.
