PREFACE

This survey of "Policies and Practices in Various Evening Colleges and Divisions of Colleges and Universities in the United States" was made by the Research Committee of the Association of University Evening Colleges in the interest of evening divisions and colleges throughout the country.

Questionnaires were sent to colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada-including the entire membership of the Association of University Evening Colleges. A total of 107 institutions responded including the following:

State Universities.....	26	Private Colleges.....	64
State Colleges.....	8	Church-related....	22
Junior Colleges.....	9	Private Colleges..	20
		Private Univ's....	22

TOTAL 107

As Chairman of the AUEC Research Committee, I wish to thank each evening college dean or director that responded to the questionnaire-without your interest and cooperation this study would not have been possible. We trust that you will find the results interesting and that each of you will be able to use this survey to advantage.

I wish to thank the members of the AUEC Research Committee for their advice and assistance in completing this study. Finally, I wish to express my appreciation to Dr. Raymond P. Witte, Director of the Evening Division of Loyola University (New Orleans), and President-elect of AUEC for his advice and encouragement. He gave his wholehearted support to this study, and it was his decision to distribute the complete results of the study to the entire membership of AUEC.

CONCLUSIONS

This study included seven general areas: I. Admission Policies; II. Terminology; III. Fees; IV. Faculty and Faculty Recruitment; V. Scheduling; Research VI. General Policies; and VII. Student Recruitment (Or Publicity). A few important conclusions might be reached by examining the summary material as follows:

I. Admission Policies

The results show that most institutions have flexible admission policies for adults to allow them to take credit courses as part-time degree students or "special" or non-degree students.

a. 53 institutions (49%) have no deadline for applications or allow one week for applications to be completed.

b. 83 institutions (77%) allow adults to register for credit courses without submitting a transcript including 13% provisional registration. In some instances, they are tentatively classified as "special" or "non-degree" students who must be matriculated as free students after completing a certain number of hours with satisfactory grades.

c. Approximately 86% of the institutions will allow an adult to register as a "special" or non-degree student - and students may take from 8 hours to an indefinite number of hours before being required to matriculate as degree students.

d. 48% of the institutions allow students to register for credit courses by mail.

e. 75% of the institutions allow special students to take credit courses without taking a standard examination such as ACT or CEEB as degree and/or "special" students.

f. 24 institutions offer special degree programs for adults - 28 additional institutions are considering offering special degree programs.

II. TERMINOLOGY

28 titles are used to designate the division, school or college used to serve the academic needs of adults.

III. FEES

51 institutions charge lower fees for evening students; 53 institutions charge the same fees.

IV. FACULTY AND FACULTY RECRUITMENT

1. Most institutions have no fixed policies regarding the percentage of full-time faculty teaching evening classes. However, only 41 institutions (38%), have less than 50% full-time faculty teaching in the evening.

2. In 37 institutions (34%), the Director or Dean has the responsibility for hiring full-time faculty; in 41 institutions (38%), the department chairman has this responsibility.

V. SCHEDULING

1. The director or dean of the evening division, school or college is responsible for the evening class schedule in 85 institutions. In 43 institutions (40%) department heads submit evening class schedules for the Director's or Dean's approval. Consideration is given to student needs, faculty availability, space limitations, past class enrollments, and budget limitations.

RESEARCH

24 institutions reported research projects in adult education either completed or in progress. The Research Committee has received copies of research results from several institutions. The committee plans to recommend that some of the research results be made available to AUEC members as well as other evening colleges and universities.

VI. GENERAL POLICIES

1. Evening college administrators should be particularly interested in some of the innovative practices listed for 37 institutions including Headstart and Upward Bound programs, a tutorial project operating in 10 ghetto locations, a Model Cities Leadership Program, and other interesting projects.
2. Students are allowed to participate fully in discussions regarding the academic program in only 29 institutions (27%); in 42 institutions (39%), students do not participate in any discussions of the academic program.
3. 58% of the institutions reported that their Evening Division or College was receiving adequate support; 75% of the institutions stated that the administration in their institution recognized the need and importance of the adult education program.

VII. STUDENT RECRUITMENT

Most institutions make full use of the newspaper for publicity purposes. Only 18% of the institutions make use of television for publicity purposes.

VI. Some junior and senior colleges and universities are now registering students for credit courses by mail. Do you use mail registration at your institution? 52 If so, what procedure is used? (Limited examples listed below)

Yes

1. Materials are mailed at same time catalog is sent. Instructions are included. Mail registrations are accepted up to a date approximately one week prior to the opening of the semester. (Washington University, St. Louis)
2. All new and continuing students may register by mail. A period during the semester is designated as pre-programming for mail registration. During this period, all students wishing to take advantage of mail registration are programmed by their appropriate advisor and are billed later. (C.W. Post College)
3. Registrar mails registration material to all students in attendance but only those who have formal plan of studies made by a faculty advisor and filed in the University College Office may return the material by mail. Registration is checked in the office against this plan of studies (student has one copy of it for reference in filling out registration forms). These mail registrants may register in advance of other continuing students. (Hofstra University)
4. Course selection forms and schedules of classes are mailed to all students. These are filled out and mailed to the college. The Dean and Assistant Dean approve (or disapprove) every form. All cards are mailed to the student. The student fills them out and mails them back to the college along with the check for tuition. (Loyola Evening College, Baltimore)
5. Students request mail registration kit-completes and returns it and staff processes the registration in advance of regular registration date. (Texas Christian University)
6. New students see a counselor to assist them in completing a scheduling card (if eligible) and are given a mail packet for completion and return. Former students may telephone and designate course selection. Schedule card and mail packet are mailed for completion and returned. (Cleveland College of Case Western Reserve University)
7. Printed form in newspaper; in evening brochure; and separate form. Mail registrations are accepted three to four weeks prior to "in person" registration. (University College of the University of Richmond)
8. Currently, all former students registered during the previous quarter receive a packet of IBM forms and course information allowing them to register completely by mail. (Northeastern University)

9. Mail registration cards are sent to previous registrants and others upon request, full fee must accompany returned cards. Cards are returned to the University Registrar's Office. (University of British Columbia)
10. Students mail course selections to computer section. On registration day students pay their bills and are given schedule. First-time students cannot use this method. (St. Bonaventure University)

2. Associate in Arts Evening Degree Program for Adults and Associate in Applied Science (Business) Evening Degree Program for Adults: high school graduation or equivalency diploma, performance on adult admissions test equivalent to level required for admission to other undergraduate degree programs (it is hard to be more specific about this because some students are admitted to other degree programs in terms of performance on the same test and others on the basis of SAT scores, so that equivalent judgments must be made), intensive interview.

Associate in Applied Science in Early Childhood Education and Social Work: Daytime program with sections for adults and with sections for recent high school graduates-high school graduation or equivalency diploma (except that an adult may have provisional admission subject to the earning of an equivalency diploma within one calendar year), satisfactory performance on adult admissions test, intensive interview.

3. Dean of the Evening College (Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science)

XIII. To what extent may day and evening students enroll in the same class?

No restrictions 70; Special permission necessary 20; Limited 16

OTHER:

1. Availability of space (University of Kentucky-Pace College)
2. No problem-only about 300 of our students are day students (University of Cincinnati)
3. Certain classes may be entered by day students only by permission of the Dean of the Evening College-in other classes no restrictions (University of Chattanooga)
4. Day students may enroll in evening classes in the event of scheduling problems. Evening students may select day courses when full-time day students have registered (Community College of Baltimore)
5. 1/6 day vs. 5/6 evening students (Syracuse University-University College)
6. Day students enroll in evening classes for make-up to avoid scheduling conflicts and for enrichment. Evening students, transferred to night work may enroll in day classes for not more than two years (Rochester Institute of Technology).
7. At present time, half and half basis (Boston University-Metropolitan College).
8. Day students may transfer evening credit with "C" or better. Evening students normally not enrolled in day classes because basic colleges are structured for the Cooperative Plan of Education (Northeastern Univ.)
9. Of the special degree programs in our school, each is completely day or completely evening, so there are no day or evening students in the same class. In other schools of the University with evening credit students, a full-time day student can, if it is more convenient, take one or more of his courses in the evening, but part-time students are allowed only in the evening (New York University-School of Continuing Educ. & Extension Services)
10. To the extent there is room after respective registrations (University of Bridgeport).
11. No more than 1/3 of an evening class may be populated by day division students (DePaul University)
12. First year evening student may not normally take day courses (Suffolk University)
13. All evening classes open to day students-not vice versa (The New College)
14. None-because of the military character of the CITADEL.
15. This is primarily done in Library and Music classes (University of Minnesota)

- Advantages:
1. The diversity of views, attitudes, and backgrounds make for greater challenge and interest 5
  2. Serves to keep the "one school" concept-same standards 5
  3. Chief advantages are flexibility of scheduling and a bridging of the "generation gap"...While both young and old sometimes feel at a disadvantage in each other's presence, the feeling soon passes 3
  4. They gain greater respect for each other's role in learning that day students are not entirely theoretical in approach and that evening students are not totally dependent upon the practical approach 3
  5. Combined classes mean broader course offerings-classes will be larger and less classes cancelled due to low enrollment 8
  6. Teaching is more challenging 6
  7. Continuity with degree programs 4

- Disadvantages:
1. Possible dilution of adult level approach.
  2. Only disadvantage is that frequently older students are treated the same as younger students.
  3. Each group has its own regular program. They perhaps should be kept separate (except for make-up, time schedule, etc.) even though most courses are the same.
  4. Disadvantages lie in age and occupational differentials primarily.
  5. Disadvantage of age differences, different teaching methodology and variance in learning.
  6. Very infrequently a young "matron" feel ill-at-east at first being in the same class with students recently out of high school.
  7. Day students may block some evening students from taking the course because of maximum enrollment.
  8. Usually lack of experience in living on the part of the day students inhibits the use of a full potential of experience of evening students by the instructor.
  9. Day students slow down evening business instructor.
  10. Difficult to maintain standards in mixed classes (University of Southern California).
  11. The diversity of background and interests is good, although academic performance is sometimes disappointing to day students.
  12. Limits development of special adult programs.

XIV. Do you have an Orientation program for evening students? 33 YES 73 NO

When is it held?
 Before registration 11 During the Semester (qtr.) 4 First week of classes 2 Beginning of sem. (qtr.) 7

  2. One afternoon affair, Saturday or Sunday before fall and spring terms begin (St. Joseph's College)
  3. Wednesday evening before first day of classes (Boston College)
  4. Four evenings a week (Nassau Community College)
  5. Second week of each regular term (University of Akron) (Pace College)
  6. Candidates meet faculty and staff at general open house at registration (Boston University-Metropolitan College)

XV. Additional Comments on Admissions

1. High school graduation or the equivalent is required for students who have never attended college. Well-qualified persons who are not high school graduates will be admitted upon the basis of tests. (Washington University, St. Louis)
2. Too many members of the Admissions Committee think almost exclusively in terms of the regular day student. To some degree this results in inflexibility and lack of concern for the adult part-time student. (University of Chattanooga).
3. All students are on probationary status until successful completion of 16 credits. (Loyola Evening College, Baltimore)
4. Our policy (i.e., academic units plus certain grades for degree students); high school certificate for certificates and isolated credit-does result in admission of many "probationary" status students. We believe in this for adults; we go "slow on it" for just high school graduates. (St. Joseph's College)
5. We do everything within reason to maintain evening degree programs as an integral part of the total university. (East Tennessee State University)
6. Implementation of admission standards is a function of the Evening College administration. (Johns Hopkins University)
7. Our philosophy is - those who wish to "continue to learn" should have the opportunity to do so-student achievement is the main "screening" device. (Wayne State University)
8. "Open-door" admissions policy-but denied admission if required background is lacking. (Dutchess Community College)
9. Since the College's programs are new (2 years), the admissions procedures and requirements are being evaluated as to effectiveness. (Boston University - Metropolitan College)
10. We have a 16 s.h. probationary program. These students are permitted to take a maximum of 16 s.h. of prescribed liberal arts courses as a basis for reconsideration for admission. (Newark State College)
11. All part-time students work toward the general Bachelor of Science degree. System of high school grades together with matriculation after 35 q.h. of 2.00 or better is comparable to the California State policy. System is necessary as operation is in excess of 12,000 students (does not include 2500 summer students) - (Northeastern University). We have added 50 part-time academic counselors to assist students in course selection and program planning.
12. I would like to see greater flexibility extended to the mature and more stably motivated evening student by Admissions Officers. Some reliable indicators should be developed to reflect the attitudes and perseverance levels of the adults for higher education. (Manhattan College)
13. We do not have a separate faculty and curriculum. Our students attend regular university classes both during the day and in the evening. Our off-campus programs are somewhat separately defined. However, for these students permission is given for them to attend campus classes. (The American Univ.)

2. Schedule is based on the needs of the students and requirements of the curricula.
3. The registrar requests schedules-submits to evening division or University College for approval.
4. The evening class schedule is planned by the Director (s) or Dean or College and then it is submitted to departments for staffing and/or approval.
5. Courses are scheduled in cycles over the years to enable adults to meet degree requirements-schedule is revised only when necessary.
6. Past schedules are carefully checked to see what courses materialized and what courses are needed to meet the curricula requirements and student needs.

Remarks

1. An attempt is made to regularly cycle some offerings so as to permit the earning of a degree through evening classes (Marquette University).
2. Our program administrator or department head turns in "room cards" requesting space for his classes and sections of classes at the same time that he turns in bulletin copy. This "schedule" is subject to revision through negotiations between my office and the program administrator when space is not available either inside the university or in rented space outside. The availability of classrooms inside the university is a complex problem because of the number of schools using the same buildings. As a consequence, over the years, basically a "Quota" system has developed so that a school can expect to have for a semester the same number of rooms at the same time that it had one year before. (School of Continuing Education and Extension Services of New York University) It is prepared by the Director in March and submitted to the faculty and students for suggestions. (Loyola University, New Orleans)
3. The schedule is constructed with regard to previous experience, anticipated student demand, staffing considerations, course sequence, facility availability, etc. We make an effort to balance evenings and periods to facilitate student movement. (Johns Hopkins University)
5. Offerings come to the Director of the Evening Session through the Deans and Registrar. He makes up the final schedule. (St. Bonaventure University)
6. A matrix system is used to spread "core" and "required" courses over the evening. (University of Richmond)
7. The schedule is evolved over many years and is revised only insofar as necessary to make it possible for degree or diploma students to schedule their classes on the most convenient nights (Rochester Inst. of Tech.)
8. The Registrar requests schedule for the entire year, both day and evening. The evening schedule is then sent to University College. While the original schedule is compiled by the department chairmen, it is subject to approval by the Dean. (Hofstra University)
9. College catalog made up in February or March before coming academic year. The schedule for fall courses is made up then and printed with the catalog, distributed in April or May. Therefore, we need six months or more for a new course or a change of course-and a change in the schedule. (St. Joseph's College)
10. Area program administrators do initial work in consultation with other deans and department chairmen-schedule is assembled by Director of Evening Classes Division. (University College of Syracuse University).

IV. Do you as Dean or Director have the authority to revise or make additions to the evening class schedule?

62 _____ 38 _____ 7 _____
YES NO Limited

Does your administration recognize the need and the importance of your adult education program?

Comments

1. In a small liberal arts college, funds are limited.
2. Almost all of the emphasis is placed on the day program. I fear that I have not been able to impress certain top administrators with the importance of the program.
3. The Board of Trustees is especially interested in the program.
4. Higher salaries for part-time instructors will help, but college funds are inadequate.
5. There are some areas in which we could use more support. We need more administrative service offices open during evenings for students.
6. The administration recognizes - the faculty "no".
7. Our President advocates 1) Scholarship, 2) research, 3) community service, as major roles of the University. The latter, of course, is primarily our operation.

III. To whom are you as Director or Dean of the Evening Division, school or college, responsible?

IV. What audio-visual and other technical instructional aids are used in your division or college of Continuing Education?

Most all schools have the usual audio-visual aids available for evening instruction. A few schools have closed-circuit television, various projectors are used. Two schools had unusual facilities and programs:

1. New York University-Sch. of Continuing Education and Extension Services: Courses offered over commercial television, appearances on a series of programs over television and radio for public relations and information (about 200 a year), closed-circuit television for teacher training, television film and radio facilities for professional instruction, film projectors, slide projectors, opaque projectors, overhead projectors, our own course materials reproduced on Xerox, mimeo., etc., as well as traditional aids.
