Foreword

The philosophy of the Fort Worth Public Schools dictates that each pupil shall be provided an educational program which will help him to cope with problems as he develops to his full potential. This commitment to the children and youth of this community, then, demands that appropriate guidelines be developed so that this goal may be realized. To help all children become self-sustaining, responsible, and contributing citizens, many programs have been developed. One such program is for the mentally handicapped.

This publication represents level three of a seven-level series of curriculum guides in life experiences designed to meet the specific needs of children and youth who are diagnosed as moderately retarded. Its major goal, as a publication, is to assist the teacher in providing an appropriate educational program based on the needs, abilities, and disabilities of these pupils.

The practical aspect of the guide forecasts a realistic preparation for life adjustment. Proper implementation of the guide will more nearly insure for each mentally retarded pupil the development of adequate personal adjustment, appropriate work habits, and worthy social attitudes. Every effort has been made to design a format which presents each prescription for learning in a developmental sequence.

No program can be successful without creative teachers; therefore, teachers are urged to exercise their ingenuity in implementing the suggested activities and to explore freely the possibilities of additional activities. Hopefully, this guide with its suggested activities will foster unity rather than uniformity in the curriculum for the educable mentally retarded.

Production Record

This Level III guide follows the goals and general plans of the curriculum guide for the Educable Mentally Retarded provided by the Texas Education Agency. It was written as one in the series of curriculum guides for the total Fort Worth program for educating children with I. Q. 50-70, inclusive.

Teachers have been using the Level I and Level II guides and have made suggestions for additional activities for Level III. These suggestions were studied and were incorporated into the present guide. We wish to express our appreciation to the teachers listed below for assuming the major writing responsibilities.

INTRODUCTION

Introduction

A curriculum for all children and youth is based on a philosophy of providing for individual differences in pupil growth and development. For this reason a separate and distinct curriculum has been provided for the educable mentally retarded pupil. A pupil may enter this program when he becomes eligible for public school attendance or at any time thereafter that he might be diagnosed as mentally retarded. He follows this sequential curriculum until he completes seven levels or is terminated because he can no longer benefit from school experiences. When the pupil completes the seven levels of development he receives a diploma from the school.

The objectives are the attainment of physical competencies, personal and social competencies, and vocational proficiencies through a program of personal and functional experiences. The program design permits each pupil to progress at his own rate of development without undue pressure or comparison to other members of his group. The program is free from annual promotion or retention.

Areas of skill and developmental growth are interwoven into these three broad goals of the program. They are introduced sequentially as the pupil reaches his particular level of physical, emotional, and intellectual maturity. Repetition is needed, not in isolation, but in relation to the areas of competency and proficiency.

This guide, designed for Level III, provides sequential goals with suggested activities for pupils that have attained a mental age of six years and six months to nine years.

I. PHILOSOPHY OF EDUCATION FOR MENTALLY RETARDED CHILDREN

Special education for the mentally retarded is based on a philosophy that all children are entitled to an education with opportunity to develop to their highest potentials and capabilities at their own rate of progress without undue pressure from the teacher.

II. GOALS

The goals of the program are (1) Physical Competency, (2) Personal and Social Competency, and (3) Vocational Proficiency.

The scope and sequence of Level III is designed to assist the pupil in developing adequate physical skills, in acquiring basic academic skills, and in improving social skills. The ability to perform simple tasks at home and to develop a sense of responsibility is encouraged. Developing a realistic awareness of limitations and abilities can help the pupil function more effectively on the school campus and in the community. Acquiring knowledge about community services and job opportunities is important at this level.

Skills are taught, re-taught and over-taught, not in isolation but in relation to the areas of competency and proficiency.

III. THE EDUCABLE MENTALLY RETARDED PROGRAM

A. The Special Class

Education is the social instrument through which our culture is perpetuated, implemented, and refined. For this reason education must serve all school-age pupils; these pupils display a wide range of learning patterns. The mentally retarded succeed most efficiently when teachers with special training work with them in special settings with specialized materials. The special class has been initiated to give pupils handicapped by mental retardation educational opportunities consistent with their abilities.

A desirable facility for a special class should provide space for various work areas. It should be located near regular classrooms with pupils in the same age group. The room should provide areas to practice food preparation, a sewing center, a carpenter's work bench, an audio-visual center, and an academic center. Easy access to the nurse's office, restroom facilities, and running water is desirable.

The enrollment in special classes is dictated by a state formula. The Fort Worth Public Schools must provide an average of somewhat more than 13 pupils per class to receive state funds for classes in operation.

B. Identification of the Educable Mentally Retarded

A pupil with an intelligence quotient between 50 and 70, and who is incapable of being educated in a regular classroom, is considered educably mentally retarded. He may be expected to profit from a program with activities designed to develop physical, personal and social competencies, and vocational proficiencies.

Pupils who are mentally retarded are characterized by some of the following traits.

1. Delayed in acquiring early developmental skills such as walking, talking, interaction with peer groups, and sensorimotor development
2. Impaired learning ability in academic areas
3. Difficulty with solving problems or with reasoning in the abstract
4. Inability to follow instructions
5. Appear unable to work independently
6. May have difficulty making social adjustments

C. Eligibility for Special Class Placement

1. Be of legal school age
2. Function intellectually within a range of 50 to 70 I.Q. as measured by appropriate Wechsler, Binet, or other comparable scale
3. Be retested with appropriate intelligence scale no less than once every three years
4. Have a medical evaluation prior to placement
5. Have parent or guardian approval for placement
6. Have control of body functions
7. Have potential for acceptable adjustment in class
8. Reside in Fort Worth Independent School District

D. Referral Procedures by the Principal

1. Obtains psychological evaluation
  2. Counsels parents toward special class placement
  3. Provides Special Education forms for parent to complete or have completed, including Application Form (Form 878), Medical (Form 891), and Parent Permission (Form 886)
  4. Completes School Referral Form (Form 879) and directs all completed forms to the records clerk, Office of Psychological Services, or to the Department of Special Education
- E. Admittance to the Program

The Screening Committee for Special Education will determine eligibility of the pupil for special class placement. The Director of Special Education will notify the parent, by mail, of the decision of the Screening Committee (with a copy to the referring principal) and, when space in a classroom is available, the copy of the Enrollment Form (Form 890) shall be sent to the parent for presentation to the receiving principal; the duplicate copy shall be forwarded to the receiving special teacher.

When the pupil presents the enrollment form to the receiving principal, this principal shall, within three days, notify the Department of Special Education on Form ED-51 of the assignment of the pupil to a special class. In like manner, when a pupil withdraws, a report on Form ED-52 shall be sent to the Department of Special Education within three days after the withdrawal.

F. Intellectual Evaluation

1. Intelligence Quotient (I.Q.)

Intelligence is the capacity of the individual as a whole to act purposefully, to think rationally, and to deal effectively with his environment. This capacity is composed of abilities which are quantitatively different although not entirely independent. Intelligence tests attempt to measure these abilities.

The intelligence test results (I.Q.) represent the position of the individual with respect to other individuals of similar age. The I.Q. varies according to the specific instrument used and the particular abilities it was designed to measure. No test samples all abilities, therefore it does not represent all of the child's mental development.

2. Mental Age (M.A.)

Mental age is based on the technique of scoring tests in terms of age units and does not represent that children with similar mental ages but dissimilar chronological ages will function alike. The mental age represents the rate of mental growth and development and is one criterion for predicting academic potential. It is not sufficient to establish a diagnosis of mental retardation alone.

Converting of I.Q. to M.A. may be accomplished by the following formula:

$$\frac{\text{C.A. (in months)} \times \text{I.Q.}}{100} = \text{M.A. (in months)}$$

Caution: These conversions should be used only as a very gross estimate. Particular caution should be used in generalizing from I.Q. scores on tests two-to-three years old.

IV. FUNCTIONAL LEVEL

The curriculum content for Level III provides for development of increased physical competencies, improvement in social adjustment, acquisition of basic academic skills, and the development of an awareness of limitations and needed vocational abilities. A pupil with a mental age ranging from 6.5 to 9.0 years is expected to function in Level III. In this level, the pupil is ready for instruction in the basic academic subjects. These subjects are taught on a functional basis rather than in a traditional manner. Each pupil should progress at his level of ability. The material used to teach the academic skills should relate to the needs and experiences of the pupil. Opportunities to participate in the areas of home and family living, arts and crafts projects, musical activities, and school and community functions should be provided. As the pupil progresses through the functional level he should become aware of job opportunities in the local community that offer kinds of work corresponding with his abilities.

V. USE OF THE GUIDE

The Level III guide provides nine resource units which provide continuous and consistent growth for the pupil toward vocational proficiency in a complex society. The units attempt to give meaning and direction to the acquisition of basic knowledge and academic skills.

The successful use of the curriculum guide will depend on the teacher's ability to program learning experiences at the pupil's ability level. The guide will be valuable and realistic only to the extent that ideas and practices of the teacher are also incorporated. Each goal was chosen as a prerequisite for the development of the pupil toward prevocational experiences. The motivating activities were selected to develop one or more of the specific goals for each unit. The developmental goals lead to the attainment of physical, personal, and social competencies and vocational proficiencies.

Time, space, and funds dictate that the guide provide only suggestions for motivational and instructional activities. Each teacher will, through his own initiative and knowledge of cultural background and potential of the pupil, expand the list of suggestions which develop the specific goals. He will select those activities which meet the pupils' needs and add others which are appropriate and will enrich the program. The guide is developed in practical and functional detail, allowing flexibility of instructional material.

It is recommended that the teacher of Level III follow the sequence of units and time allotments provided by the guide. However, it would not be realistic for a teacher to work from the first activity to the last in each unit. Teacher initiated activities should be selected as the needs and interests of the class dictate.

Teachers with pupils in more than one level will need to adjust plans to meet the needs of the pupils. In most instances the units in a lower level will be more appropriate since each unit may be expanded in depth to meet the needs of pupils with greater mental abilities.

A suggested daily schedule is presented on the following page. This schedule provides an opportunity to cover all competencies and proficiencies each day. It provides general activities in blocks of time, so that each teacher may adjust the schedule to fit individual needs. This provides some permissiveness and less rigidity in scheduling activities. The alert teacher can capitalize on the interest shown in various activities in any particular block of time.

Physical Fitness and Recreation

Unit VIII

PHYSICAL FITNESS AND RECREATION

(Suggested Time: 4 Weeks)

I. INTRODUCTION

As the Level III pupil grows and develops, a good physical fitness program is valuable and necessary. He usually reaches adolescence during this level which results in rapid physical growth. Poor coordination is evident because of this rapid growth. A strong physical fitness program will help him develop coordination and other physical competencies.

As the pupil reaches adolescence, recreation becomes an important part of his social life. This unit suggests activities that will develop the personal and social competencies of the pupil. Desirable physical, social, and personal competencies should aid the pupil in increasing his vocational proficiencies.

A pupil's ability to use his body skillfully in work and in play requires coordination. Skills learned in rhythmic activities, games, and stunts will help relieve pressure and provide for constructive use of leisure time. To be able to follow instructions skillfully will help lead to a satisfactory future.

This unit is a continuation of Unit VIII, "Recreation and Leisure," Educable Mentally Retarded, Level II.

PARENTS' PERMISSION FOR FIELD TRIPS

Special Education Class
 _____ School
 _____, 19 _____

_____ has my permission to go on all field trips
 (Name of child)
 and/or short excursions at any time during the school year that the teacher may deem necessary for concrete experiences. These trips will be well-planned and all precautions will be taken to prevent any accident. I understand, however, that neither the _____ School nor the _____ School District can assume responsibility for any accident involving my child while on the excursion.

 (Parent's Signature)

It is wise to secure permission from the parents for such outings and field trips. The most feasible way is to ask the parent to grant a blanket permission for all such excursions to be made during the year. This suggested form may be used.
