ABSTRACT

This list of 66 sets of teaching materials for German language instruction contains only those available in Britain which have a recorded element on disc or tape and/or visual components. Those listed are designed primarily for teaching language skills. Some reading materials with accompanying discs or tapes are included; however, recordings of literary texts are excluded. Indication of the age and level of instruction for which materials have been designed is given; and printed, recorded, and visual components for each set of materials are noted. An author index is provided. (WB)

GERMAN RECORDED AND AUDIO-VISUAL MATERIALS

This list contains only teaching materials which have a recorded element on disc or tape and/or visual materials. The materials listed are designed primarily for teaching language skills; some reading material with accompanying discs or tapes which meets this criterion may be included. Recordings of literary texts (e.g. of poetry or plays) are excluded.

Where possible an indication of the age and level of instruction for which materials have been designed is given. Longer courses often span several years of work. These may, therefore, cover a wide age-range when the whole course is used. Potential users of courses should, whenever possible, examine material and listen to selected parts for themselves to decide whether they are suitable for particular classes. Selections and examples are available for examination in the audio-visual section of the Language-Teaching Library at the Centre for Information on Language Teaching. Teachers should also note that inspection and/or sample materials may be available from the publisher or distributor on request.

One criterion for inclusion in this list has been the availability of courses in Britain. Normally the descriptions given have been based on careful examination of the various parts of the courses; in a few cases this has not been possible and information has been repeated from the publishers' catalogues. Inevitably some descriptions are longer than others because of the complexity of the material. Materials published abroad have been included when agencies to supply them in Britain exist, but some can be obtained by special order only.

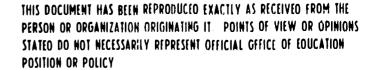

Details given were as far as possible correct at the time of compilation of this list, but some may change without previous notice. Before ordering courses it would be wise for purchasers to check the details and the availability of the materials with the publisher or distributor.

Notes of omissions or suggestions for improvement of this list, especially from teachers, will be welcomed and should be addressed to CILT.

For the convenience of teachers consulting this list, the materials have been described by a simple classification, which is set out overleaf. The letters appropriate to each course appear opposite its title (or the title of each separate part) in the Contents List. They indicate the level of student for whom teachers are likely to find the materials useful, and the type of material in question. This is not a rigid classification, but is intended to guide users of the list quickly to materials most likely to interest them.

Items that appear to be suitable for more than one age group or level of instruction are described by as many key letters as seem appropriate, and categories other than those for which the materials were specifically designed may well be mentioned. More detailed information may be found in the full description of the materials.

4. A-LM German

Prepared by the editorial and consulting staff of the Materials Development Center, NDEA. Harcourt, Brace and World Inc, New York, 1961. UK Office: Harcourt, Brace & World Ltd, 7 Rose Crescent, Cambridge.

This course introduces material in four levels, each one of which is roughly equivalent to a year's work, in a carefully graded progression. It introduces the skills of listening and understanding, speaking, reading and writing in that order; the emphasis on each of these skills changes progressively in each level. The final year's work will take students to a standard higher than that required by GCE 'O' level. The course is built round a series of dialogues, sentences and texts which form the basis of the exercises and drills which follow. The approach of the course is audio-lingual. The drills deal thoroughly with structures and pronunciation. Vocabulary is introduced in context, at a controlled pace and then reintroduced at later stages for reinforcement.

John S. Mulligan (Series I) and W. Wenniges (Series II). Electronic Teaching Laboratories, Washington DC, 1963. UK distributor: Modern Educational Aids, Monitor Language Laboratories, 43/45 Queens Road, Bristol B581QQ.

Each of these series contains fifty units of four-phase structure drills suitable for use in the early and intermediate stages of any German course. The vocabulary used is deliberately restricted, the emphasis being placed on practice of structures.

The books contain notes on the grammatical structures of each unit and the last part has (i) a cumulative list of the German vocabulary of each unit; (ii) an alphabetical, indexed German-English vocabulary list; (iii) an index of grammatical topics treated; and (iv) correlation charts.

FHX 10. Der arme Millionär Edith R. Baer and L. Lob. 1967. British Broadcasting Corporation. BBC Publications, 35 Marylebone High Street, London W.1.

A course for students already having a basic command of German who wish to extend their understanding of the everyday spoken language. The material has been adapted from Erich Kästner's novel "Drei Männer im Schnee" and was originally broadcast by BBC Radio 3 in Study Session in 1967 and again in 1968. The textbook contains the text of the broadcasts, simple grammatical explanations, exercises and puzzles, and the discs contain recordings of the broadcast scenes from which each work unit is developed. Primarily intended for the home student, but can be used for intermediate courses where the development of listening comprehension and reading skills are the objective.

11. Deutsch als Fremdspraché

K. Braun, L. Nieder and F. Schmöe. Grundkurs, Teil I, and Aufbaukurs, Tell II. 1967 and 1969. Strukturübungen und Tests, Teil 1, H.W. Blaasch. 1969. Ernst Klett Verlag, Stuttgart. Materials available from: Interbook Ltd, 52 Manchester Street, London W.1.

Part I is a 20-unit introductory course for adult or adolescent beginners, designed on modern audio-lingual lines, but with supplementary visual aids. It teaches the basic structures of the language; using a total vocabulary of 770 words drawn from H. Oehler, Grundwortschatz Deutsch (Klett, Stuttgart, 1966).

A normal lesson unit introduces new material through a short dialogue in an adult situational context. This is further developed through short structural pattern practices, aural-oral structural drills, variant dialogues, and comprehension exercises. The final section gives brief background information about aspects of post-war Germany. Each fifth lesson is a revision unit consisting of song and reading material without exercises. The recorded and visual materials to Part I are available to order.

The supplementary students' workbook (Strukturübungen und Tests) to the Grundkurs contains two sets of programmed test material. The first set is arranged for selfadministering and correction by the student, each basic test being followed by further remedial exercises for each of the structures dealt with, and indications of which sections of the textbook need to be revised. The second set consists of sixteen tear-out tests (in the final section of the book) intended to be checked by the teacher.

Part II is an 18-unit follow-up to the Grundkurs. The structure of each lesson unit is comparable to that of Part I with the addition of short prose and verse passages from contemporary German authors, from which further reading, repetition, comprehension and completion exercises are developed. Every third unit is a revision unit based purely on such tests. By the end of Part II, most of the grammar required for GCE 'O' level and examinations of similar standard has been touched upon.

A two-part audio-visual course in which the material is designed according to the globalstructural principles of the Zagreb-St. Cloud school. The basic dialogues of each lesson are presented in situational context, and like the fluency and grammatical drills that follow them, are visually illustrated frame by frame both on the filmstrips and in the students' textbook. The situations deal with the general recurrent themes of adult and family life. The Part I book contains a German-English vocabulary section at the end, together with a limited number of printed exercises for oral and written follow-up work to the last eight lessons. The Part II book has a fuller provision of written exercises for all twenty-five of its lessons, and a German-English vocabulary.

The Herder-Institut der Karl Marx Universität, Leipzig, VEB Verlag Enzyklopädie, Leipzig, 1968. UK agent: Collets (Publishing) Ltd, Denington Estate, Wellingborough, Northamptonshire.

The standard course in oral and written German for foreigners devised by the East German Herder-Institut, comparable in status and intention with the Schulz-Griesbach courses of the West German Goethe-Institut. Parts I and II cover the basic vocabulary and structures of the language, many of the drills and exercises being constructed in accordance with modern audio-lingual principles. The texts and dialogues reflect the social, political, economic and cultural attitudes of the D.D.R. Part IIA introduces students with a basic knowledge of general German to the specialised language of mathematics and the natural sciences. Part III is for advanced students and introduces the language and style of literary German.

The supplementary disc recordings can be used with Parts I and II; the five sets of slides are meant to be used in conjunction with lesson units 5,9,13, 17 and 21 of Part I of the course.

This course is available to special order only.

Deutsch für Ausländer

Hermann Kessler. Verlag für Sprachmethodik, Königswinter/Margaretenhöhe, Germany. UK agent: European Schoolbooks Ltd, 100 Great Russell Street, London W.C.1.

Level One introduces the basic structures of the language in twenty lesson units by exploiting twenty basic "Bestimmungsfragen". A strictly controlled vocabulary of about 1000 words is used; present, future and perfect tenses are all introduced together with the declension of articles and adjectives in all cases, and the word orders of main and subordinate clauses. All explanations are given in German.

The second stage is also in twenty lesson units, developed around twenty basic "Bestimmungs-fragen", as in the "Grundstufe". The vocabulary range is extended to about 2,500 words and there is some systematic exploration of the vocabulary of specific themes. More advanced sentence structures are introduced and the use of passive and subjunctive verb forms is given much attention.

The third stage follows the pattern of the previous two levels with twenty lesson units developed from twenty basic "Bestimmungfragen". The introduction of background information about life and culture in Germany and other German-speaking countries becomes even more emphasised and the language is of a standard suitable for 'O' level candidates. The reader contains unedited extracts from modern German authors, who are described in short biographical notes.

20. Ealing Course in German

EFGHX

U. MacNab and others. 1969. Longmans Green & Co. Ltd, Longman House, Burnt Mill, Harlow, Essex.

An audio-visual introductory course for adult beginners who require a knowledge of German for general commercial and professional purposes. In each normal lesson unit (called an "intensive unit"), new material is first presented in a situational dialogue and is then practised further in questionanswer exercises, structural exercises, language laboratory structure drills and role-playing drills. Approximately every fourth unit (called an "extensive" unit) is intended to develop fast listening and comprehension and contains conversations for aural comprehension, questions on them, variant dialogues for practice and a short reading passage about Germany.

22. Focus on German for Beginners EGX Leroy R. Shaw. New York, 1965. Harper and Row Ltd, 69 Great Russell Street, London W.C.1.

Audio-lingual beginners' course for adults and sixth formers which consists of thirty lessons, of which six are reviews. Each lesson is divided into four sections. New grammatical structures and vocabulary items are introduced in the 'dialogues' which form the first section; in the second section, 'words', these vocabulary items are listed in groups according to parts of speech; in the third section, 'structures', the grammatical principles underlying the structures are discussed in English and the last section, 'patterns', provides material for their oral and written practice. There are approximately twenty-five new vocabulary items in each lesson.

The basic dialogues are recorded on the accompanying tapes along with exercises which are designed for each lesson and, whilst differing from those in the book, utilise the same vocabulary.

23. Focus on German for Intermediates FHX
Leroy R. Shaw, Werner Winter and I. Rose-Marie
Shaw. New York, 1965. Harper and Row Ltd,
69 Great Russell Street, London W.C.1.

This intermediate audio-lingual course consists of fifteen lessons and is designed as a follow-up course to Focus on German for Beginners. It aims at leading the student from colloquial to literary expression and puts greater emphasis on the reading and writing skills. As in the course Focus on German for Beginners, each lesson has four parts; the dialogues, in which new grammatical structures and vocabulary are introduced; 'words', a list of new vocabulary items grouped by parts of speech; 'structures', in which grammatical rules are discussed and 'patterns', which consist of oral and written exercises.

The accompanying fifteen reels of tape contain recordings of the basic dialogue and exercises of various types for use in the classroom or language laboratory. A dramatic episode from the work of a well-known author sometimes replaces the dialogue.

24. Frisch Begonnen DEFGHX
Stephen Kanocz. 1968. British Broadcasting
Corporation. BBC Publications, 35 Marylebone High

Street, London W.1.

A Radiovision introductory German course in twenty lesson units providing audio-visual and printed material for three—five terms' work for beginners in middle or upper forms of a secondary school. The material could also be used for adult beginners.

The course is centred on the life of a German family living in Köln-Rodenkirchen and contains a great deal of factual information about life in the Federal Republic. A total vocabulary of about 1400 words of high frequency count is used; particular attention is given to the practice of the word order of main clauses and certain types of subordinate clause, the present, future and perfect tenses of most verbs and the past tense of auxiliaries. The full declension of articles and adjectives is taught, with the exception of genitive forms. No particular emphasis is given to the teaching of plural forms of nouns.

The first six units are concerned purely with developing listening/comprehension and speaking skills. By lesson 7 (where past tense forms first appear), simple reading material is introduced for pupils, and for lessons 11–20 suitable written work and further reading material is provided in a "lesebuch".

"Frisch Begonnen" was originally broadcast during the Autumn and Spring terms of 1968-69 and will be transmitted again in the corresponding terms of 1969-70.

26. German: a Structural Approach

K.J.H. Creese and P.S. Green. Oliver & Boyd Ltd, Tweeddale Court, 14 High Street, Edinburgh 1.

A three-part course covering the GCE 'O' level syllabus. An introductory pre-reading book provides cultural background material about Germany by means of text illustrations and pupils' assignments (in English). Text illustrations provide visual stimulus for phonological practice and the learning of basic vocabulary according to gender and meaning. The twelve lesson units of Part I and Part II follow a common pattern (basic texts and additional material for comprehension and oral practice, structural pattern drills, material for conversation practice and for guided composition).

EFGHX

Level 1: M.A.A. Tatham. 1965. Level 2: Lea Penny. 1969. Interlang Ltd, 2 Clements Inn, London W.C.2.

Intended for adults of 'average' intelligence, Level 1 of this course provides approximately 100 hours of instruction. It aims at aural-oral proficiency within common structures of German and covers approximately 1000 vocabulary items, about 4 per cent of which is high frequency business vocabulary.

Each of the thirty units in Level 1 consists of an introductory situational dialogue, followed by 4-phase structure drills to provide intensive practice of the structures contained in the dialogues. The Level 2 material consists of a further 30 units of dialogues and contextualised drills covering both business and social situations.

The taped material may be hired for duplication.

29. German in Review

EFGHX

Valentine C. Hubbs and Robert L. Kyes. New York, 1966. Collier-Macmillan Ltd, 10 South Audley Street, London W.1.

A fifteen lesson course designed to introduce students with basic oral and reading ability to the reading and appreciation of more sophisticated writing of classical and modern German authors.

Each lesson starts with a short literary extract with individual German-English vocabulary; this is followed by a set of comprehension questions in German, a multiple-choice comprehension check for key sentences from the passage and a series of further grammatical exercises of more conventional type. I here is a preliminary section of pronunciation practice exercises concentrating on those German sounds most likely to be incorrectly pronounced by English speakers.

The tapes contain recordings of the pronunciation exercises, the reading passages and the Mustersätze.

39. Holt, Rinehart and Winston Aural-Oral Series: German

Helmut Rehder and others. New York, 1962-1966. Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 120 Golden Lane, Barbican, London E.C.1.

DEGX (1.) Verstehen und Sprechen Helmut Rehder, Ursula Thomas, W. Freeman Twaddell and Patricia O'Connor.

The first part of this aural/oral series. Originally designed as a first year beginners' course for American junior high schools, it can provide 4-6 terms' material for British secondary schools or 2-3 terms for full time Further Education courses. It provides an initial stage of aural/oral practice of basic structures, followed by extensive reading practice. Writing skills can be introduced by means of the 'Übungsbuch' and written homework thereafter. Lexical content is about 1200 words. The student learns to manipulate the basic material of each lesson unit by questionanswer practice drills and pattern drills (largely of the substitution type) which are recorded in form suitable for use in the language laboratory. The course can be used as an ordinary book course independent of the recorded and visual material.

DZ

E. Konnecke. Bibliographisches Institut AG, Mannheim, 1959. British distributor: George G. Harrap & Co. Ltd, 182 High Holborn, London W.C.1.

This is a pictorial dictionary, originally designed for 6-12 year-old German children, with twentyseven colour full-page illustrations which depict scenes in the home, in town and in the country. All principal objects are numbered. On the page facing each illustration, there is a corresponding list of nouns followed by a brief description of activities depicted in language suitable for the native speaker primary pupil. The linguistic material is not graded according to the difficulty it might present to second language learners. The filmstrip visuals are a reproduction of the full page colour illustrations in the book. The final section of the book is an alphabetical index of the 5000 vocabulary items (nouns given in nominative and genitive singulars, and nominative plural; verbs give examples of the present, imperfect, perfect and imperative forms).

55. Spiegel-Gespräche: An English-German JSZ Interpreters' Course

Gerard Gilbertson and Charles Whiting. 1967. Longmans Green & Co. Ltd, Longman House, Burnt Mill, Harlow, Essex.

This material is intended for training student interpreters doing advanced courses at technical college or at university level. It has been adapted from twenty-five interviews (originally published in the weekly Der Spiegel) with prominent international figures on topics of general, social, economic or political significance. Each script has been modified so that interviewer and interviewee speak in German and English respectively, or vice versa. The material of each interview has been tape-recorded in exploded form, the length of text between pauses being progressively increased as the course proceeds. The short bilingual introduction briefly suggests a suitable pattern of instruction with which the material can be exploited.

59. Starting German — Reisebüro Atlas EGX E.R. Baer and R.M. Oldnall. British Broadcasting Corporation, 1968. BBC Publications Ltd, 35 Marylebone High Street, London W.1.

An adult beginners' course, the basic lesson material of which was originally broadcast in a series of thirty programmes in BBC Radio 3 Study Session in 1968-69. The basic dialogues of the series are due to be rebroadcast in December 1969/January 1970, and it is planned to rebroadcast the series in full later in 1970-71, starting in the Autumn Term.

The course is based on a story which revolves round a travel agency in a typical German town and the language is that most useful in general social and business or pleasure travel situations. There is close control of the amount of new vocabulary introduced in each lesson unit, so that it never exceeds twenty to twenty-five words. Verbs are used in the present (which also acts as a future tense for most of the course), perfect, and the past tense of modal auxiliaries, is also brought in. All cases are used except the genitive. Sentence utterances are kept short and the style is conversational.

Textbooks are obtainable from BBC Publications who also supply a supplementary kit of teaching notes, slides and drill tapes to give further help to the teacher with organised classes in exploiting the broadcast material.

Prepared by the Staff of the Nuffield Foreign Languages Teaching Materials Project, German Section. Stage 1A 1968, Stage 1B 1969. E.J. Arnold and Sons Ltd, Butterley Street, Leeds 10.

DX

An audio-visual course for beginners of German as a first or second foreign language which, when complete, will provide a full four to five year course for secondary schools. Two kits of materials, A and B, are provided for each stage; these constitute material for approximately one year's work. Stage 1A concentrates on developing the aural-oral skills of listening for understanding and of fluent speech. Stage 1B introduces the graphic skills of reading and simple writing. Thereafter all four language skills are given equal emphasis. The remaining stages are in an advanced state of development and include materials suitable not only for class teaching but also for individual and group work.
