Women are joining the work force in ever-increasing numbers. Today more than 31 million women work. Nearly 2 out of every 5 workers are women, while in 1920, after World War I, women made up only about one-fifth of all workers. The welfare of this expanding woman labor force and the best interests of our Nation require good labor standards.

All of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico have some legislation, rules, or regulations relating to the employment of women. The most common types of labor laws affecting women are:

- Minimum wage
- Overtime pay
- Equal pay for equal work
- Industrial homework
- Equal employment opportunity
- Hours, including maximum daily and weekly hours,
day of rest, meal and rest periods, and nightwork
- Plant facilities
- Hazardous and unhealthful employment
- Employment before and after childbirth

Every State has legislation in one or more of these fields, but the standards established vary widely from State to State. This summary includes State laws, regulations, and orders affecting employment of women in Ohio.

The Federal Government also has numerous labor laws of general application to men and women workers. The major ones include:

- Fair Labor Standards Act
- Equal Pay Act of 1963, amendment to FLSA
- Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act
- Social Security Act
- Labor Management Relations Act
- Title VII, Civil Rights Act of 1964
- Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967

OHIO LABOR LAWS AFFECTING WOMEN

(Ohio labor laws cover minimum wage, overtime pay, equal pay, industrial homework, hours of work, plant facilities, and hazardous or unhealthful employment. There are no laws prohibiting sex discrimination in employment, or regulating employment before and after childbirth.)

MINIMUM WAGE

Rate set by: Wage order.

Statutory coverage: Women and minors employed in any industry, trade, or business, or branch thereof. Except: Domestic workers and farm laborers.

Wage board provisions: Authorize the Ohio Director of Industrial Relations, on his own motion or on petition of 50 or more residents, to ascertain whether a substantial number of women or minors in an occupation are receiving oppressive and unreasonable wages. If convinced of need after investigation, the Director appoints a wage board to report on the establishment of fair wage rates in the occupation. Such board is composed of not more than three representatives each of employers and employees in the occupation, and not more than three (one to be chairman) disinterested persons representing the public. Within 60 days of its organization, the board submits a report with its recommendations. If accepted, the report is published by the Director with a notice of public hearing to be held within 30 days, but no sooner than 15 days. Within 10 days after the hearing, if the Director approves the recommendation, he issues a directory order. After the directory order is in effect 3 months or more, and following a public hearing, the order may be made mandatory. When an employer violates a mandatory wage order, an employee or the Director of Industrial Relations may bring suit for back wages, and the employer may be fined.

Current wage orders:

Occupations covered	Order number	Date effective	Highest basic rate
Cleaning and Dyeing Occupations in the Cleaning and Dyeing Trade	4	Jan. 2, 1963 (mandatory)	$0.90 hr.

OHIO

Occupations covered	Order number	Date effective	Highest basic rate
Laundry Industry	1	Oct. 1, 1962 (directory)	$1.00 hr.
Retail Trade Occupations	IRd-107	Sept. 6, 1966 (directory)	$1.25 hr.

OVERTIME PAY

Provisions: While the minimum wage law permits the inclusion of overtime pay in the administrative regulations contained in the wage orders, there are no overtime pay regulations in current orders.

EQUAL PAY

Provision: Prohibits discrimination between sexes in any way in the payment of wages, salaries, or other compensation in any occupation where males and females regularly perform identical work.

Coverage: Employers of 10 or more employees. Except: Domestic service in the home of the employer and labor on a farm.

INDUSTRIAL HOMEWORK

1. Use of any dwelling, building, room, or apartment, in or connected with a tenement, for homework limited to the immediate members of family living therein.
2. Working conditions regulated in any dwelling, building, room, or apartment, which is deemed a shop or factory if persons outside the family work therein.

Shop or factory regulations

a. Workroom must be separate from living quarters, have direct outside entrance, be sufficiently lighted and ventilated, be equipped with toilet facilities conforming to standards established by law (except where there are fewer than 10 employees or less than 3 of either sex), and be subject to inspection by the chief inspector of workshops and factories or a district inspector.

b. Employer must keep records of persons to whom work is given, or contracted for, or from whom goods or tobacco are purchased.

INDUSTRIAL HOMEWORK--Continued

Coverage: Any process of making wearing apparel or goods for wear, use, or adornment; and manufacture of cigars, cigarettes, or tobacco goods when such goods are to be exposed for sale or sold by a manufacturer, wholesaler, jobber, or retailer. Except: The making of garments or other goods for another by personal order, which will be received for wear or use direct from the worker's hands.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Although Ohio does not have a law which prohibits sex discrimination in employment, on September 4, 1969, the Director, Department of Industrial Relations, issued the following statement:

"On August 19, 1969, the United States Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, issued new guidelines on sex discrimination with respect to the employment of females.

"The Commission states, in effect, that State protection laws that limit the employment opportunities for women 'have ceased to be relevant to the expanding role of the female worker in our economy.'

"In the Commission's view, such laws do not take into account the capacities, preferences, and abilities of individual females and, 'tend to discriminate rather than protect.' The Commission concluded that State laws will 'not be considered a defense to an employer with respect to an otherwise established, unlawful practice.'

"In specific previous cases, the Commission has already ruled the Ohio female law pertaining to the lifting of weights, and limiting the hours that may be worked are discriminatory and, not a defense to an unlawful employment practice.

"Accordingly, the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations will not prosecute alleged violations of the Ohio laws that are in conflict with the August 19, 1969, guidelines of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, until the Ohio General Assembly has conformed the Ohio law with the Federal statutes and guidelines."

Therefore it would be advisable to check with the Department of Industrial Relations on the application of the following laws.
