The Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) 1971 Annual Credit and Financing Report describes the financing available for economic advancement of American Indians. The 3 main financing sources cited in this report are (1) customary leaders, both private and Government; (2) tribes and other Indian organizations with funds of their own; and (3) the revolving loan fund of the BIA. These financing sources are discussed in terms of such areas as housing, small business, agriculture, and education. Included is an appendix of 34 tables containing information on such items as loans made, amounts, sources, repayment records, and purposes. A related document is ED 050 849. (NQ)

CREDIT AND FINANCING REPORT
Financing Indian Development

1971

During Fiscal Year 1971, some progress was made in financing the development and utilization of Indian-owned resources. Total estimated financing from all sources to Indians and Indian organizations increased by $30.5 million in 1971. The total financing outstanding to Indians from all sources was $518.2 million as of June 30, 1971. The majority of Indian financing was furnished by customary lenders, such as other Government agencies, and by Indians own tribal funds. However, this financing was still far short of meeting even the most urgent needs of the Indian.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) credit program is administered with a revolving loan fund. The fund was funded with appropriations totaling $25.1 million over a period of several years. No additional funds have been appropriated for the fund since 1969. As of June 30, 1971, financing needs of Indians, for which we have documented in the form of commitments and applications authorized, and other estimated needs under consideration, totaled more than $999.3 million. On this date, the fund had a cash balance of $2.1 million, and there were outstanding commitments on approved loan contracts and authorized applications totaling $23.9 million or a cash shortage of $21.8 million.

The revolving fund consists of a general fund and special funds for Navajo-Hopi Indians and for State of Oklahoma Indians, for regular lending purposes, and a special fund for expert assistance loans.

The expert assistance fund is for the purpose of assisting tribes in obtaining expert assistance in the making and processing of claims against the United States Government before the Indian Claims Commission for adequate payment for lands taken by the Government during the early 1800's. At the end of 1971, there were unadvanced commitments totaling $872,048 and a cash balance of $730,310 in the fund, or a shortage of $141,738.

The Bureau's revolving fund supplies only a minor part of the total Indian financing; and then loans are made only if no other source of financing is available. The fund is currently being operated with payments of principal and interest on existing loans. As noted above, these funds are inadequate to meet even the minimum needs of Indians. Collections during the year totaled $2.2 million; and disbursements totaled $3.3 million leaving a cash balance of $2.1 million at the end of the fiscal year.

Most of the Indians financing needs could be met by private lenders. However, because Indians generally have little equity to offer as security, they are unable to obtain loans from this source. To encourage private lenders to make these much needed funds available to Indians, security must be provided by some other means, such as through loan guaranty and insurance and interest subsidies.

To meet some of these needs, legislation was introduced in the 88th through the 92nd Congresses requesting additional funds and certain other authorizations, but was not enacted. The main features of the pending bills, H. R. 18571, H. R. 18790, H. R. 2378, and S. 4116 and S. 2036, are:

1. Authorization for appropriation of an additional $50 million for the revolving loan fund.
2. Inauguration and establishment of a $200 million loan guaranty and insurance fund.
3. Authorization for interest subsidy payments on guaranteed and insured loans.
4. Authorization to sell loan instruments for loans made from the revolving fund, and to deposit the proceeds in the revolving fund. The proceeds would then be available for lending.

Pending enactment of the proposed legislation, the Bureau's credit program will continue to be directed towards increasing Indian financing from conventional sources including other Federal agencies such as Small Business Administration, Economic Development Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development and Farmers Home Administration.

Financing Sources

Indians receive financing from three main sources: (1) customary lenders, both private and government; (2) tribes and other Indian organizations with funds of their own available; and (3) the revolving loan fund of the Bureau. Under the Bureau's credit program, primary emphasis is given to assisting Indians to obtain financing from the same institutions that provide financing to other citizens. Also, tribes are encouraged to use their own funds, if available, for financing purposes.

Financing to Indians from these sources over the past five years is as

As shown in the table, the largest increase in financing was by Federal credit agencies; namely, the Economic Development Administration, Farmers Home Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Small Business Administration, and the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Fallon, Nevada

Lance Manufacturing Company is financed by SBA and a grant from the IBDF. A number of members of the Fallon Paiute and Shoshone Tribe have received training in plastic molding fabrication and equipment operations.

Home Financing. There were unpaid balances on 3,888 loans for new construction and home purchases carried over from the previous year. An additional 3,157 loans were made during the year making a total of 7,045 outstanding of $112.1 million, of which repayment of $10.4 million is either guaranteed or insured.

A total of 3,679 loans obtained for home rebuilding or repairs were carried over from the previous year. An additional 2,890 loans were made during the year, making a total of 6,569 outstanding of $7.1 million of which repayment of $1.4 million is either guaranteed or insured.

Sandia Pueblo, New Mexico

Office building constructed by private contractors on Sandia Pueblo property and purchased by the Sandia with a loan from the revolving fund. The building is leased to various concerns for office space.

Tribal Funds

The amount of tribal funds being used for financing economic development of tribes and their members has doubled during the past six years-- from $57.6 million in 1966 to $117.7 million in 1971. Credit and financing operations of some tribes are conducted entirely with tribal funds, i.e., their own funds are used to make loans to members and associations of members, and to finance tribal industrial, commercial, and agricultural enterprises. Other tribes with limited funds available use their funds to supplement revolving funds borrowed from the United States.

Revolving Fund for Loans

The revolving fund for loans was authorized by four main Acts: (1) The Indian Reorganization Act of June 18, 1934 (48 Stat. 986; 25 U.S.C. 470), as amended and supplemented; (2) the Oklahoma Welfare Act of June 26, 1936 (49 Stat. 1968; 25 U.S.C. 503); (3) the Navajo-Hopi Rehabilitation Act of April, 19, 1950 (64 Stat. 44; 25 U.S.C. 631); and the Act of November 4, 1963 (77 Stat. 301; 25 U.S.C. 70n-1), as amended, authorizing loans for expert assistance in connection with the preparation and trial of claims pending before the Indian Claims Commission. The Act of May 24, 1950 (64 Stat. 190; 25 U.S.C. 443), authorized the deposit into the revolving fund of moneys received in settlement of debts of livestock and from the sale of livestock. The livestock involved originated in drouth relief purchases by the Department of Agriculture in 1934 which were turned over to the Bureau to establish foundation herds for Indians. The livestock were loaned to Indians on a "repayment in kind" basis. A total of $2.8 million has been deposited in the revolving fund for livestock settlement.

Funds authorized by the Indian Reorganization Act, supplemented by livestock settlements, are the only moneys in the revolving fund generally available for loans to Indians and Indian organizations. Other revolving funds authorized by the Oklahoma Welfare Act are for loans only in the State of Oklahoma, exclusive of Osage County; and funds authorized by the Navajo-Hopi Rehabilitation Act are only for loans to the Navajo and Hopi Tribes and their members. Funds authorized for expert assistance loans may not be used for any other purpose.

White Mountain Apache Reservation, Arizona

At the time of enactment of the IRA, few Indians were able to obtain financing from conventional sources, either governmental or private. Indians were practically unknown to customary lenders, and the lenders were largely unknown to the Indians. Many started in productive enterprises with revolving fund loans, and gradually progressed to the point where conventional lenders could be interested in financing them. Information on conventional financing was obtained for the first time in 1951, and showed a total volume at that time of slightly over $20 million. The growth to an estimated $372.8 million in 1971 would not have been possible if the revolving fund had not been available to get them started. Loans from the revolving fund involve high risk-- more than the ordinary lender could tolerate. With appropriations of $21.5 million available for loans, the revolving feature has permitted total loans of $72.2 million to be made. Loans receivable at June 30, 1971, were $27.6 million.

Belcourt, North Dakota

The increase in the Juneau Area was mainly on loans to four village associations for the operation of salmon canneries and allied activities.

Use Made of Tribal and Revolving Funds

Loans are made by the United States to tribes and bands to enable them to make loans to their members and associations of members, and to finance tribal enterprises. Tribal funds may be used for the same purposes. Cooperative credit associations may receive loans of revolving funds from the United States if their members are not eligible for loans from tribes and bands. The funds may be reloaned to other members. Both revolving funds and tribal funds in the hands of organizations revolve, i.e., repayments on loans and interest earnings may be used for additional loans. Cooperative associations may receive loans from the United States if members of the associations are ineligible for loans from tribes and bands. Individual Indians of at least one-quarter degree of Indian blood are eligible for loans of revolving credit funds direct from the United States, if they are not eligible for loans from a credit association, or if the tribe or band in which they are members is not conducting credit operations.
