FOREWARD

The Minnesota Council on Family Relations first published Family Life: Literature and Films in 1951 as a service to the many people seeking information about marriage and family living. In years since three revisions have been prepared as interest and expertise have grown in the area of the family. Recent years have brought new attention and importance to the family field. Support for and opposition to family life programs have become both committed and vocal. This period of discussion and action has produced a vast reservoir of material for the use of the family practitioner. This bibliography is intended to introduce some of the many materials old but useful, and new and innovative.

Appreciation is extended to Nancy Dahl of the University of Minnesota Family Studies Center, to Virginia M. Juffer of the University of Minnesota, Psychology, Philosophy and Family Studies Division and to Ruth H. Jewson, Margaret Lee Robertson, Susan Freed and Sylvia R. Robertson of the National Council on Family Relations for their assistance in compiling and annotating this edition.

I. THE AMERICAN FAMILY: THEORETICAL, HISTORICAL, AND SUBCULTURAL PERSPECTIVES

For generations, it has been popular for laymen and many concerned professionals to talk about the disintegration of the American family in modern society. This section provides references dealing with the structure and functions of the family, the extent of change in the family, and subcultural variations in the American family.

A. General Information

1. Books

de Bie, Pierre, and Clio Presvelou (eds.), National Family Guiding Images and Policies, Centre de Recherches Sociologiques, 1967, $2.50.

Transactions of the first international seminar of the International Scientific Commission on the Family. Discusses family policy in Norway, Belgium, and the U. S. Includes a list of research proposals.

Feldman, Frances Lomas, and Frances H. Scherz, Family Social Welfare: Helping Troubled Families, Atherton, 1967, 386 pp., $8.50.

Comprehensive volume on family social work. Authors analyze the causes of dysfunction in troubled families and project treatment goals.

Glick, Paul C., American Families, Wiley, 1957, 240 pp., $6.00.

A volume in the census monograph series containing data related to various aspects of family life.

Jacobson, Paul H., American Marriage and Divorce, Rinehart, 1959.

Presents comprehensive data on marriage by age differentials, marital status, and race.

Myrdal, Alva, Nation and Family, Massachusetts Institute of Technology Press, 1968, $2.95.

A detailed and factual account of Sweden's population control program launched in the late 30's.

2. Pamphlets and Periodicals

"Government Programs and the Family," Journal of Marriage and the Family, vol. 29, no. 1 (February 1967)

Entire issue devoted to a review of existing governmental programs and their relationships to the structure and functions of the American family. Includes:

Cohen, Nathan E., and Maurice F. Comery, "Government Policy and the Family"

Glazer, Nathan, "Housing Policy and the Family"

Maris, Robert, "Governmental Health Programs Affecting the American Family: Some New Dimensions for Governmental Action"

Mencher, Samuel, "Social Authority and the Family"

Pollak, Otto, "The Outlook for the American Family"

Roemer, Milton F., "Governmental Health Programs Affecting the American Family"

Shostak, Arthur B., "Education and the Family"

Vincent, Clark, "Mental Health and the Family"

U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, 200 Million Americans: Who Are We?, U.S. Government Printing Office, 1967, 76 pp., $1.00.

Informative booklet supported by statistics concerning many phases of American life.

3. Audio-visual Materials

Films

Courtship and Marriage: A Comparison of Courting Customs around the World, National Film Board of Canada, 60 min.

Examines courtship customs in Sicily, Iran, Canada, and India. Contrasts arranged marriage with marriage based upon romantic love.

Four Families, National Film Board of Canada, 60 min.

An on-the-spot comparison of family life in four countries in which the internationally known author-anthropologist, Margaret Mead, discusses how the upbringing of a child contributes to a distinctive national character.

Roots of Happiness, Mental Health Film Board, 1953, 25 min.

In a Puerto Rican family, each member grows and accepts self ("I am what I am, and I find it good") with appreciation for the fineness of human relationships; contrasted with family where discord and hostility prevail; message for families everywhere.

Superfluous People, McGraw-Hill, 1964, 54 min.

A WCBS-TV documentary which depicts children waiting to be adopted, school dropouts, poor minority groups, the unemployed, older people in need of housing, derelicts; social workers and psychiatrists interpret meanings in interviews.

B. Theoretical Perspectives

1. Books

Anshen, Ruth N. (ed), The Family: Its Function and Destiny, Harper and Row, 1959.

A comprehensive symposium on the family, focusing upon the necessity for man to pursue moral ideals and spiritual and social strength through application of the perspective of science.

Bell, Norman W., and Ezra F. Vogel (eds.), A Modern Introduction to the Family (rev.), Free Press, 1968, $9.95.

A book of readings on the family from the structural-functional theoretical framework. Contains readings emphasizing advances in family research and study.

Bell, Robert R., Marriage and Family Interaction (rev.), Dorsey Press, 1967, 535 pp., $8.00.

Professes a "value-free" approach to marriage and family interaction via a heavy emphasis on objective findings of social research. A college-level functional text.

Bell, Robert R. (ed.), Studies in Marriage and the Family, Thomas Y. Crowell, 1968, 229 pp., (paperback $2.50).

Purpose is to familiarize students with a sampling of major current research in marriage and the family. Editor adds notes as to purpose of study, nature of methodology, and its contribution.

Boalt, Gunnar, Family and Marriage, David McKay, 1965, 171 pp., (paperback).

A Swedish social scientist looks at marriage. Includes some comparative data.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Bowman, Henry A., Marriage for Moderns (5th ed.), McGraw-Hill, 1965, 709 pp., $8.50. Teacher's manual, $1.50.

A revision of one of the standard college level texts for the functional course on marriage and the family.

Burgess, Ernest W., and Harvey J. Locke, The Family (2nd ed.), American Book Company, 1960, $7.50.

Classic analysis of the family's transition from an institution to a companionship.

Cavan, Ruth S., Marriage and Family in the Modern World (2nd ed.), Thomas Y. Crowell, 1965, (paperback $4.25).

Seventy-eight articles, many of which follow the family life cycle as a frame of reference. Included are readings on the significance of marriage and the family today, courtship and marriage in other countries, men as earners, and questions of heredity.

Cavan, Ruth S., The American Family (4th ed.), Thomas Y. Crowell, 1969, 556 pp., $8.00.

A sociological analysis of the contemporary family which takes into account recent research and changes in social conditions that affect families' attitudes and ways of life.

Christensen, Harold T. (ed.), Handbook of Marriage and the Family, Rand McNally, 1964, 1028 pp., $17.50.

Reports on the present state of knowledge, evaluates methods used in obtaining this knowledge, spotlights significant gaps, and synthesizes the material in terms of family theory. Suggests the most promising next steps for professional workers in the field.

Christensen, Harold T., Marriage Analysis: Foundations for Successful Family Life (2nd ed.), Ronald Press, 1958, 645 pp., $6.50.

Interdisciplinary approach with emphasis on personality. Functional text.

Coale, Ansley J., Lloyd A. Fallers, Marion J. Levy, Jr., David M. Schneider, and Silvan S. Tomkins, Aspects of the Analysis of Family Structure, Princeton University Press, 1965, $6.00.

An analysis of the relationship between kinship structure and the family unit from the perspective of sociology, anthropology, psychology, and demography. Among other things, the book emphasizes the neglect of biological factors in kinship analysis.

Coser, Rose L. (ed.), The Family: Its Structure and Functions, St. Martin's Press, 1964, 678 pp., (paperback $4.95).

Contains reprints of 33 articles on the family. The theoretical basis of the book is the view that the family is a mediator rather than a creator of social values.

Duvall, Evelyn M., Family Development (3rd ed.), Lippincott, 1967, 540 pp., $8.75.

A study of the family from the "developmental" approach.

Family Mobility in Our Dynamic Society, Iowa State University Press, 1965, 284 pp., $4.95.

Compilation of essays originally presented at a 1963 conference of the same title. Consideration is given to family problems and processes brought about by changing agricultural, economic, and social conditions. Essays are organized under headings of (1) societal setting, (2) changing family roles, (3) problems and adjustments of families who stay, and (4) those who move.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Farber, Bernard, Family: Organization and Interaction, Chandler Publishing Company, 1964, 536 pp., $7.00.

A solid sociological study of the contemporary American family. Concentrates on the explanation of change in the family. Centers around framework of orderly replacement of family culture from generation to generation.

Farber, Bernard (ed.), Kinship and Family Organization, John Wiley and Sons, 1966, 459 pp., $8.50 (paperback $4.50).

Emphasis on the relationships between the organization of the overall kinship structure and the characteristics of the nuclear family unit throughout the family life cycle. Includes discussion of the implications of the particular structure of the American family. Book of 36 readings.

Farber, Seymour, Piero Mustacchi, and Roger H. L. Wilson (eds.), Man and Civilization: The Family's Search for Survival, McGraw-Hill, 1965, 210 pp., $6.50 (paperback $3.25).

Twenty-four authorities from various disciplines weigh the impact of a modern industrial society on American family life. Reaffirms the indispensability of the family and provides a broad body of facts and interpretations concerning the society's and the family's future.

Goode, William J., The Family, Prentice-Hall, 1964, 120 pp., $4.50 (paperback $1.75).

Emphasizes complex relation between family systems and larger social structure.

Goode, William J. (ed.), Readings on the Family and Society, Prentice-Hall, 1964, (paperback $3.95).

Thirty-six readings designed for use as a supplementary text for college level courses on the sociology of the family. Deals with the biological foundations of familial elements, societal recognition of the family unit, the social and market processes in family formation, the determinants of fertility, marital adjustment, and parents and children.

Goslin, David A. (ed.), Handbook of Socialization Theory and Research, Rand-McNally, 1969, 1182 pp., $20.00.

A massive handbook bringing together relevant concepts and data concerning socialization, from a variety of theoretical positions and contextual viewpoints.

Handel, Gerald, The Psychosocial Interior of the Family, Aldine Publishing Company, 1967, 560 pp., $10.75.

Draws upon findings from many disciplines to provide a composite view of the whole family and the complex interplay between self and collectivity in family life.

Handel, Gerald, and Robert D. Hess, Family Worlds, University of Chicago Press, 1959.

Heiss, Jerold (ed.), Family Roles and Interactions: An Anthology, Rand-McNally, 1968, 569 pp., (paperback $5.95).

Thirty-six articles and excerpted writings on family roles and interaction, selected on the basis of "role theory."

Kenkel, William F., The Family in Perspective (2nd ed.), Appleton-Century-Crofts, 1966, $6.50.

Includes recent materials on the Russian family, the kibbutz, and the population explosion. Several historical family types are discussed in Part One. Part Two treats the family as an institution, analyzing such functions as childbearing and socialization. Chapters on the regulation of sexual behavior and divorce are also included in this section. One of the unique factors of this textbook is the use of the psychoanalytic approach to family analysis in Part Three, and a treatment of the family in a developmental perspective in Part Four. Purports to provide an overview of the "scientific" approach to the study of the family.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Kephart, William M., The Family, Society, and the Individual (2nd ed.), Houghton-Mifflin, 1966, 690 pp., $7.50.

Well written and organized presentation of the family as a system of interacting personalities and as a social institution sensitive to the structural expectations of society. Interweaves research findings and sociological analysis.

King, Raymond J. R. (ed.), Family Relations: Concepts and Theories, Glendessary Press, 1969, approx. 200 pp., $5.00 (paperback $2.50).

Kirkpatrick, Clifford, The Family: As Process and Institution (2nd ed.), Ronald Press, 1963, 651 pp., $7.50.

A comprehensive sociology of the family treating the nature and origins of the family in a social context and the family through its life cycle.

Landis, Paul H., Making the Most of Marriage (3rd ed.), Appleton-Century-Crofts, 1965, 778 pp., $7.95.

College level functional, nontechnical marriage text.

Lee, Alfred McClung, and Elizabeth Lee, Marriage and the Family, College Outline Series, Barnes and Noble, 1961, 367 pp., $2.25.

A summarization and interpretation of research findings on most aspects of family life.

Leslie, Gerald R., The Family in Social Context, Oxford University Press, 1967, 709 pp., $8.00.

A comprehensive up-to-date sociology of the family, incorporating cross-cultural, historical, sociological-institutional, and life cycle material. Includes a chapter on "Theories of Family Structure and Change."

Lidz, Theodore, The Person: His Development throughout the Life Cycle, Basic Books, 1968, 573 pp., $10.00.

The author, a psychiatrist, draws upon many disciplines and many interpreters of human behavior to track the development of man as a person from the earliest days of infancy through childhood, adolescence, and maturity, to the culmination of life in old age and death.

Nye, F. Ivan, and Felix M. Berardo, Emerging Conceptual Frameworks in Family Analysis, Macmillan, 1966, 384 pp., $7.95.

Considers eleven "conceptual frameworks" for family study.

Parsons, Talcott, and Robert E. Bales, Family, Socialization, and Interaction Process, Free Press, 1955, 422 pp., $6.00.

Parson's major theoretical work on the family. For serious students.

Peterson, James A., Education for Marriage (2nd ed.), Charles Scribner's Sons, 1964, 526 pp., $6.95.

Revision of a popular college text in preparation for marriage and family living.

Rodman, Hyman (ed.), Marriage, Family, and Society: A Reader, Random House, 1965, 302 pp., $2.95.

A book of readings designed for a college course in family sociology.

Simpson, George, People in Families, Meridian Books, 1966, $2.95.

Attempts to integrate the psychoanalytic and sociological approaches to the family. College level text.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Sirjamaki, John, The American Family in the Twentieth Century, Harvard University Press, 1953.

Stroup, Atlee L., Marriage and Family, A Developmental Approach, Appleton-Century-Crofts, 1966, $7.50.

A scholarly book which assembles and evaluates a great mass of research and shows how the parts dovetail. Functional marriage text based on developmental approach.

Sussman, Marvin B. (ed.), Sourcebook in Marriage and the Family (3rd ed.), Houghton-Mifflin, 1968, 594 pp., (paperback $5.50).

Only 24 of the 62 selections have been retained from 2nd edition. Special consideration is given to socialization, urban kinship systems, cross-cultural perspectives, and functional family problems.

Udry, J. Richard, The Social Context of Marriage, Lippincott, 1966, 580 pp., $6.95.

A sociology of marriage. In emphasizing the heterosexual relationship it delimits consideration of child-rearing, kinship structures and other institutional relationships. However, the use of sex-pairs as the central foci has been a productive enterprise. Udry's analysis of nonmarital and marital heterosexual interaction is systematic, comprehensive, lucid, even provocative.

Waller, Willard, and Reuben Hill, The Family: A Dynamic Interpretation, Dryden Press, 1961, 619 pp., $6.25.

Waller's classic social-psychological analysis of the American family is placed in the context of the family as a modern social institution. Dated but valuable analysis.

Williamson, Robert C., Marriage and Family Relations, John Wiley and Sons, 1966, $7.95.

Written within an interactionist framework and proceeds on the assumption that marriage and the family cannot be adequately understood apart from other institutions that shape personality. Emphasizes historical and scientific materials concerning marriage and family relations, socialization, role taking, and other processes. The focus is both psychological and sociological. The book is excellently written.

Winch, Robert F., The Modern Family (rev.), Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1963, 782 pp., $8.25.

Winch, Robert F., and Louis Wolf Goodman (eds.), Selected Studies in Marriage and the Family (3rd ed.) Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1968, 530 pp., (paperback $6.95).

A book of readings appropriate for the more advanced family student. Two-thirds of the 62 articles were published since 1960. The book is a comprehensive compilation of sociological research on marriage and the family.

Winter, William, David Antonio, and J. Ferreira (eds.), Research in Family Interaction: Readings and Commentary, Science and Behavior Books, 1969, $12.95.

A variety of studies of individual family members as well as studies of family interaction in four broad areas: decision-making; feelings, attitudes and power; behavior; and inter-family communication.

Womble, Dale L., Foundations for Marriage and Family Relations, Macmillan, 1966, $7.95.

The purpose of this textbook is to aid in the preparation of the student for marriage. The emphasis is upon the man-woman relationship in courtship and in marriage. Ten chapters are devoted to the premarriage period. The remaining chapters are concerned with the husband-wife relationship.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY

2. Pamphlets and Periodicals

Sirjamaki, John, "Culture Configurations in the American Family," American Journal of Sociology, vol. 53 (May 1948), pp. 450-456.

A classic formulation of the configurations of family behavior in American society.

Zelditch, Morris, Jr., "Family, Marriage, and Kinship," in Robert E. L. Faris (ed.), Handbook of Modern Sociology, Rand-McNally, 1964, pp. 680-733.

A comprehensive treatment.

3. Audio-visual Materials

Films

U.S.A.: Seeds for Change, NET Film Service, 30 min., black and white, 16mm, sound.

The population trend in the United States, the "baby boom" of WW II, the increasing number of senior citizens, and future problems which can result from increased population are discussed and analyzed.

C. Historical Perspectives: Past, Present, and Future Families

1. Books

Bardis, Panos D., The Family in Changing Civilizations, Selected Academic Readings, 1967, 288 pp., (paperback $6.95).

A collection of 33 of the author's papers dealing with ancient and modern family systems and the family and social change. Provides a valuable perspective on the historical-comparative antecedents of the modern-day family.

Bohannon, Paul, and John Middleton (eds.), Marriage, Family and Residence, Doubleday, 1968, 441 pp., $6.95 (paperback $2.50).

An anthology on primitive forms and regulations of marriage and family.

Calhoun, Arthur W., A Social History of the American Family, Barnes and Noble, 1945, 3 volumes, $1.95 each.

- Vol. I. Colonial Period
- Vol. II. From Independence through the Civil War
- Vol. III. From 1865 to 1919.

A comprehensive history of the development of the American family up through the second decade of the 20th century.

Edwards, John N., The Family and Change, Knopf, 1969, 512 pp., (paperback $4.95).

Collection of articles dealing with changes in family structure and function. Ventures some predictions on the future of the family.

Farson, Richard E., Philip M. Hauser, Herbert Stroup, and Anthony J. Wiener, The Future of the Family, Family Service Association of America, 1969, 131 pp., $3.95.

The authors predict the nature of family life in the year 2000 and in doing so, show the trends that are pushing and pulling families today. Offers much food for thought.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Goodsell, Willystine, A History of Marriage and the Family, Macmillan, 1939.

Traces the development of Western family organization from the time of the ancient Hebrews to the early 20th century.

McHugh, James T. (ed.), Marriage in the Light of Vatican II, Family Life Bureau, U. S. Catholic Conference, 144 pp., $1.25.

The Case for National Action: The Negro Family, Office of Policy Planning and Research, U.S. Department of Labor, U.S. Government Printing Office, 1965, (paperback $ .45)

THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Contrary to what most white Americans believe, this publication suggests that "the circumstances of the Negro American community in recent years has probably been getting worse, not better." Using census data of 1960, and other like source materials, evidence is presented that the Negro family in the urban ghetto is crumbling. In addition to the presentation of the problem, and a discussion of the underlying reasons for the present Negro situation, it is suggested that the Federal Government direct itself to the national goal of the establishment of a stable Negro family structure. The booklet is put together well and contains numerous illustrative graphs and tables.

3. Audio-Visual Materials

Comprehensive assessment of recent data on the existence of a kin network in American society. Good summary article.

II. HUMAN SEXUALITY AND SEX EDUCATION

Today there is considerable discussion of the "sexual revolution"; of premarital, marital, and extramarital sexual behavior; of the "new morality" and "situation ethics"; of "human sexual response"; and of the consequences of marital and non-marital sexual attitudes and behavior. Related to this pervasive cultural concern is an increasingly insistent demand that sex education become an integral part of the school curriculum.

This section of the Bibliography attempts to provide an up-to-date listing of available materials under three headings: "Human Sexuality"; "Population Problems and Family Planning"; and "Sex Education." Many of the references have relevance to two or more subsections. However, each reference has been listed only once; being placed (perhaps somewhat arbitrarily at times) into the subsection which seemed most appropriate. Thus the user of this Bibliography would be well-advised to peruse the entire section.

III. ADOLESCENCE

In our culture, the period of adolescence tends to become one of struggle between generations. Much information is available on this age; its usefulness depends, however, largely upon how well parents understand the total growing-up process as well as upon their own realistic perspective of themselves. This section includes references and audio-visual materials about adolescence and family life and human development materials for adolescence.

Thirty-one original contributions focussing on psychological and psychiatric aspects of adolescence. Oriented to child psychiatrists and allied clinicians, program planners and administrators, and biopsychosocial researchers. Includes a discussion of the healthy and unhealthy ways adolescents in our society develop under the influence of a complex of forces; a discussion of psychiatric conditions and their treatment; and a discussion of the problems of organizing mental health services for adolescents.

Caprio, F. S., and F. B. Caprio, Parents and Teenagers, Citadel Press, 1968, 251 pp., $5.00.

Section one deals with what parents need to know about themselves and their teenagers. The second section includes what teenagers need to know about themselves and their parents. A potpourri.

ADOLESCENCE

Cervantes, Lucius F., The Dropout: Causes and Cures, University of Michigan Press, 1965, 244 pp., $5.95.

The dropout speaks for himself in this book. His views are compared with high school graduates of similar intellect and background. The study provides a comparative analysis of the social backgrounds and relationships, personality characteristics, family, family friends, school experience, and youth culture of graduates and dropouts. The book concludes with proposed solutions.

Children's Bureau, The Nation's Youth, United States Government Printing Office, 1968, $1.00.

Gran, Joan M., Understand and Teach Teenagers, Denison, 1958, $3.95.

The purpose of this book is to be helpful to parents and teachers, to show as well as tell them how to understand and teach teenagers.

Grinder, Robert E. (ed.), Studies in Adolescence: A Book of Readings in Adolescent Psychology, Macmillan, 1963, 524 pp., $4.50.

A compilation of 45 selections. An interdisciplinary approach to adolescent development.

Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry, Normal Adolescence, Charles Scribner's Sons, 1968, 127 pp., (paperback $1.45).

A presentation of the psychodynamics of normal adolescence intended to illuminate the transition from childhood to adulthood and to increase the understanding and rapport between the adolescent and adult generations.

Havighurst, Robert J., Developmental Tasks and Education, Longmans, 1952 (2nd ed.), (paperback $1.25).

Discusses developmental tasks for the whole life cycle, tending to concentrate on adolescence. Each "task" is stated and described under the headings of biological, psychological and cultural bases; discussions especially useful because of emphasis on problem approach and brevity.

Havighurst, Robert J., and others, Growing Up in River City, Wiley, 1962, 189 pp., $4.50.

Reports the results of a longitudinal study of boys and girls in a "typical mid-western community" as they go through school from age 11 to 20. Assesses the relative influence of intelligence, social adjustment and family social background in determining "early adult competence."

Hechinger, Grace, and Fred M. Hechinger, Teen-age Tyranny, Crest Books, 1962, (paperback $.50).

A lively, thoughtful discussion of teen-age "culture," its effect on teen-agers and their parents, and its influence on American society. Profitable reading for teen-agers and especially parents of teen-agers.

Holmes, Donald J., The Adolescent in Psychotherapy, Little, Brown and Co., 1964, 337 pp., $9.50.

Insightful approach to disturbed youngsters in treatment, and also to any adolescent in his relationship to himself, to his peers, and to the adults, whether psycho-therapists, parents, teachers, or others, who are charged with his guidance in the process of growing up. Concerned with the adolescent in interaction; insists that adults must be authoritative in their dealings with adolescents.

ADOLESCENCE

Horrocks, John E., The Psychology of Adolescence, Houghton Mifflin, 1962 (2nd ed.), 771 pp., $7.25.

Revision of popular college text following developmental outline; presentation well supported with descriptions of research and references.

Jersild, Arthur, The Psychology of Adolescence, Macmillan, 1963 (2nd ed.), $7.25.

College textbook; in emotional, mental or social development, the author holds that self-understanding and self-realization must be the goals; only thus can the individual gain the inner freedom to feel and experience life, to make his own choices, to face issues and currents that influence his attitudes toward himself and others.

Keill, Norman, The Adolescent Through Fiction: A Psychological Approach, International Universities Press, Inc., 1964, 942 pp., $12.50.

A psychoanalytic approach to adolescence concerned with testing the thesis that the great internal turmoil and external disorder of adolescence are universal and only moderately affected by cultural determinants. A vast array of anthropological data and psychoanalytic documentation are cited as support.

Kelly, Earl C., In Defense of Youth, Spectrum Books, $1.95.

Discusses why we don't like youth very well.

Keniston, Kenneth, The Uncommitted: Alienated Youth in American Society, Harcourt, 1965, 500 pp., $8.50.

A psychologist explores the factors that lead some brilliant, privileged youth to reject the society that has given them so much. Each of the college boys studied rejected a world they believed demanded the sacrifice of ideals and integrity in favor of materialism and drudgery. The author suggests that this new alienation is crucial evidence of the human toll of a technological society.

Konopka, Gisela, The Adolescent Girl in Conflict, Prentice-Hall, 1966, 177 pp., cloth $4.95 (paperback $1.95).

A portrait of the delinquent girl and why she gets into trouble emerges in these tape recorded interviews with incarcerated adolescents. The author develops a set of proposals to help these girls, suggesting reforms in youth services and in treatment of unmarried mothers, as well as re-evaluation of the status of young women in the community. Views delinquent girls as young women who should be listened to instead of as "social problems."

Lorand, Rhoda L., Love, Sex, and the Teenager, Macmillan, 1965, $4.95.

Primarily for the teenager. Topics discussed include premarital sexual experience, promiscuity, masturbation, drinking, the psychology of dress, crushes, popularity, the nature of love, and getting along with "concerned" parents.

MacIver, Robert M. (ed.), Dilemmas of Youth: In America Today, Harper, 1961, 141 pp., $3.00.

Deals with current concerns of and about adolescence: leisure, conformity, military service, marriage, intellectual endeavors.

ADOLESCENCE

MacIver, Robert M., The Prevention and Control of Delinquency, Atherton Press, 1967, 215 pp., $6.50 (paperback $2.95).

A book aimed chiefly at the experts and academicians both in terms of orientation and vocabulary. Draws heavily on the author's experience in the New York Juvenile Delinquency Evaluation Project. Users of this volume will likely be most interested in the long and absorbing Part III, outlining MacIver's ideas for applied strategy, based on the premise that the prevention of delinquency is more feasible and less costly than later efforts at rehabilitation.

Mays, John Barron, The Young Pretenders: Teenage Culture in Contemporary Society, Schocken Books, Inc., 1968, $6.00 (paperback $1.95).

A reflective, wide ranging look at the situation of young people today. Its author views with concern but not alarm the alienation, hedonism, political indifference, and other-directedness of youth cultures, particularly in England and America.

McCabe, John (ed.), Dialogue on Youth, Campus Dialogue Series, The Bobbs-Merrill Company, 120 pp., 1967, (paperback $1.25).

Six articles are included covering a variety of topics such as: contemporary education, poverty programs and hippie culture.

Mohr, George J., M.D., and Marion Despres, The Stormy Decade: Adolescence, Random House, 1958, 272 pp., $3.95.

A treating of adolescent years for adults' understanding. Four major areas covered are: personality structure and growth, adolescent development, mental health problems, and mental hygiene for the adolescent.

Moore, Bernice M., and Wayne H. Holtzman, Tomorrow's Parents: A Study of Youth and Their Families, University of Texas Press, 1965, $7.50.

Descriptive study of 12,892 Texas High School students, their families, and their teachers. Data representative of youth in almost every economic and cultural situation.

Morse, Mary, The Unattached, Penguin Books, 1968, $.95.

A study of teenagers in Britain. Compiled from experiences of three young social workers who, under concealed identities, lived with and became the friends and confidantes of selected groups of youngsters.

Muuss, Rolf E., Theories of Adolescence, Random House, 1962, (paperback $1.95).

Effectively describes several theoretical approaches to the period of adolescence. Well written, easy to understand and fairly comprehensive. A particularly useful feature is the inclusion of the educational implications of each approach, from which the teacher, counselor, and parent may obtain insights into the dynamics of adolescent behavior.

Rubinfeld, Seymour, Family of Outcasts: A New Theory of Delinquency, Free Press, 1965, 328 pp., $5.95.

Begins with a scholarly critique of both sociological and psychoanalytic treatments of delinquency and then presents his own "new theory of delinquency," one destined to elicit a wide range of excited responses.

Rupert, Hoover, Enjoy Your Teen-Ager, Abingdon Press, 1962, 128 pp., $1.00.

Two paper backs directed toward the reader who has little background in family life reading and wants a quick guide to discussion and further study.

Sebald, Hans, Adolescence: A Sociological Analysis, Appleton-Century-Crofts, 1968, 537 pp., $4.95.

A "structural-functional" approach to adolescence. Broad scope. Focuses on principles drawn from several disciplines.

Seidman, Jerome M. (ed.), The Adolescent: A Book of Readings, Holt, 1960, 879 pp., $6.50.

Collection of articles presented in developmental sequence; gives insight into some research methods used in adolescent area; reviews facts; source book.

Sherif, Muzafer, and Carolyn Sherif, Problems of Youth: Transition to Adulthood in a Changing World, Aldine Publishing Company, 1964, 352 pp.

A collection of essays by leading American theorists and practitioners outlining current thought and research into the problems of youth today.

Stone, L. Joseph, and Joseph Church, Childhood and Adolescence, Random House, 1957, 656 pp., $8.50.

From birth through adolescence, authors describe possibilities and pitfalls of growth; recommended especially for parents wishing to understand their children.

Strang, Ruth, The Adolescent Views Himself, McGraw-Hill, 1957, $7.95.

A psychology of adolescence; realistic and helpful view as they see themselves and their world; actual statements reveal how they regard their problems, their reactions to them, their needs and wants.

The Teenage Parent: Early Marriage and Child Bearing, University Extension, University of California, Davis, 1964, $2.00.

Usdin, Gene L. (ed.), Adolescence: Race and Counseling, J. B. Lippincott Co., 1967, 238 pp., $7.00.

Collection of papers by 14 psychiatrists and M. D.'s, directed toward their own profession but also useful to those in related fields.

ADOLESCENCE

Waldhorn, Arthur, and Hilda Waldhorn, The Rite of Becoming, World Publishing, 1966.

A series of stories and studies of adolescence, this anthology aims at bridging the gap between the literary critic and the psychologist. Book contains 13 literary pieces about the adolescent, each one followed by a "psychological" interpretation. Should be of interest to high school English teachers.

Wattenberg, Wm., The Adolescent Years, Harcourt Brace, 1955, 510 pp., text ed. $6.75, instructor's manual $.75.

College text; presents growth patterns and valuable concepts of individual in his group, with significance for life he is now living and the one he is preparing to live; and adult guide to teenage behavior.

Wittenberg, Rudolph M., On Call for Youth: How to Understand and Help Young People, Association Press, 1955, 241 pp., $3.50.

Explains meaning of ups and downs of normal adolescent behavior and how grown ups and teenagers affect each other; indicates when and how adults can help youngsters and when they had best let them alone.

Wittenberg, Rudolph M., Adolescence and Discipline: A Mental Hygiene Primer, Association Press, 1959, $4.95.

Goal of this book is to guide those who would help normal teen boys and girls grow up normally and happily by achieving inner discipline, the ultimate mark of adulthood; a good source for friendly counseling.

3. Audio - Visual Materials

Films

Films should always be previewed before showing. Some of those listed below have received both favorable and unfavorable reviews.

Adolescence, National Educational Television Film Service, 1964, 30 min., black and white, 16 mm.

A group of young people, not juvenile delinquents, suddenly in conflict with the law, points out the large responsibilities of the adult in the development of a teen-ager.

Act Your Age, Coronet, 1949, 14 min.

Emotional and social behavior of the teenager.

Age of Turmoil, McGraw-Hill, 1953, 20 min.

Presents various adolescent "types," focusing on behavior that mirrors emotional turmoil of person involved. Young people will enjoy seeing that all teenagers have problems and that parents are not always right.

Being Different, National Film Board of Canada, 1957, 10 min., black and white.

Departing from the norm, from accepted patterns of dress or behavior, can bring down on the head of a teen-ager the unqualified disapproval of his gang. Is this attitude valid? The film cites the case of a thirteen-year-old boy who has developed an interest in collecting butterflies — a hobby that his friends laugh at. Should he pursue his genuine interest, or should he conform to the opinion of his friends?

ADOLESCENCE

The End of Summer, Contemporary Films, 1964, 27 min., black and white.

Filmed at a summer cottage in the Laurentians, this film penetrates briefly the charmed world of the adolescent, at once serious and gay — when hours are long, when no thought of tomorrow intrudes upon the pleasure of the moment and there is time for confidences about life and religion and sex. Watching and listening you sense the bittersweet mood of childhood's end, the poignant awareness that for them nothing will ever be the same after this summer at the lake. The film has French dialogue, with English subtitles.

A Family Affair, Mental Health Film Board, 1955, 31 min.

Family ties in an apparently comfortable group are strained when an adolescent son defies his parents; then other areas of conflict come to the surface; professional counseling is sought through a family service agency; interesting study of the entire family.

Farewell to Childhood, Mental Health Film Board, 1952, 23 min.

Problems of Susan, a normal teenager, both at home and at school, are shown; emphasizes importance of parental understanding.

Getting Along With Parents, Encyclopedia Britannica Films, 1954, 14 min.

Six teenagers and their parents discuss going to "The Blue Room" after a school dance.

Howard, International Film Bureau, 1957, 30 min., black and white.

This film presents the problems of the teenager caught in the crossfire of adult opinions and youthful enthusiasms. Howard, just out of high school, was slated for college and a career as a chemist. But he wanted first to make a foot-loose tour of Canada with a school pal, during his summer vacation. This suggestion, however, is strongly resisted by his socially conforming parents. Howard's resultant confusion, to which the film gives shape, illustrates some of the inner conflicts that arise in teen-agers when every fresh impulse is rationalized out of existence.

Joe and Roxy, International Film Bureau, 1957, 30 min., black and white.

This film deals with teen-agers in love. Joe and Roxy, at fifteen and sixteen respectively, face more than the usual number of teen-age problems. Roxy, the product of a broken home, tries to keep her romantic illusions alive against her mother's worry and disappointment in life. Joe turns unsuccessfully to his father, a man of narrow mind and dulled sensibilities, to help him decide his future. In their story the film contrasts the teen-agers' need for absolute rules with the confusion of adult standards.

The Losers, Carousel Films, 31 min., sound, black and white.

Aimed at making young people more aware of the damage caused by the use of drugs. Examines use of pep pills, goof balls, heroin, marijuana, and glue sniffing by 12 to 21 year olds. Shows harmful effects of such practices and recounts actual experiences.

Losers Weepers, Brigham Young University, 28 min.

Message for high school students in the discovery of the importance of graduating demonstrated by a high school dropout.

ADOLESCENCE

Making a Decision in the Family, National Film Board of Canada, 1957, 8 min.

There is a clash of wills when a teenager declares her preference for going to a gathering of her friends rather than to a family party, as her friends insist. The question of how the parents might have handled the situation is left to the audience.

Meaning of Adolescence, McGraw-Hill, 1953, 16 min.

Film begins with a definition of "adolescence" and then contrasts the adolescent in a preliterate culture with one in our Western 20th century culture. Points to the unsure status of the adolescent. Revolves around a boy and girl in the 14-16 years age group and shows how they must adjust to five major aspects of modern life.

Measure of a Man, Brigham Young University, 1962, 23 min.

Dramatizes the problem of conformance to the group. Shows how young people may be led to act in a manner contrary to their own instincts and training without realizing that others in the group feel as they do but hesitate to express themselves.

Meeting the Needs of Adolescents, McGraw-Hill, 1953, 19 min.

Indicates some things parents may do to prepare young people for the future; shows constructive aspects of school, church, and organized activities and stresses good family life as important to growing up; for both parents and adolescents.

Mirror, Mirror, Brigham Young University, 23 min., color.

A movie dealing with the self-image of adolescents. Viewing his image in a mirror encourages a high school student to work on the positive aspects of his life and to improve those qualities.

Over-Dependency, National Film Board of Canada, 1949, 30 min.

Shows behavior consequences of affectionate but over-protective child rearing practices.

Parents Are People Too, McGraw-Hill, 1955, 15 min.

Normal adolescent feeling of resentment against authority and ways of working together as parents, teachers, youth.

Physical Aspects of Puberty, McGraw-Hill, 1953, 19 min.

Animated presentation of biological details of growing up.

The Shattered Silence, National Film Board of Canada, 1966, 28 min., black and white.

A film about noisy adolescents, motorcycles, and the tendency of some adults to make blanket judgments without troubling to know the facts. Designed to prompt discussion of what youngsters and their elders have a right to expect of each other. Touches on some basic principles of democracy and raises questions about relations between the generation.

Social-Sex Attitudes in Adolescence, McGraw-Hill, 1953, 22 min.

This is one you will want to preview with special care and thoughtfulness.

ADOLESCENCE

The Teens, National Film Board of Canada, distributed by McGraw-Hill, 1957, 26 min., color or black and white.

Urban middle income family with teenagers, 13, 14, 15 years old; basic similarities together with individual differences shown. Depicts adolescence as a time of adjustment during which buoyancy of youth is molded into more mature forms of adulthood.

Walters, James, "Recent Films About Adolescence," Journal of Marriage and the Family, 27: 288-290, May, 1965.

Annotated list of 45 films on adolescence released since 1957.

See film listings in "Philosophy and Methodology" section of the bibliography. See also films listed with other areas of this bibliography.

When I'm Old Enough, Goodbye, State Employment Service (everywhere in U. S.), 1962, 25 min. (free).

A film "classic" portraying some of the reasons for the results of dropping out of school. Portrays, with sensitivity and depth, some of the behavioral dynamics associated with the needs of some adolescents to leave school and find work. Many consider this the best film on the subject.

Who Is Sylvia?, International Film Bureau, 1957, 30 min., black and white.

This film probes into the "impasse of understanding" that often arises between teenagers and their parents. Sylvia in this film has arrived at the age where old rules no longer apply, where resentments run high against parental authority, and where the "gang" comes first. Bewildered, yet intensely aware of the new sort of world into which she is heading, Sylvia provides an insight into the inner motivations and conflicts of girls of her age.

The Young Americans, National Educational Television Film Service, 1964, 60 min., black and white.

A study of the youth of America — who they are, what they want, where they fit in, how they affect society, what they believe in and why. Useful as a stimulus for discussion.

Your Body During Adolescence, McGraw-Hill, 1955, 20 min.

Glands regulating life and growth shown by animation; boy into man and girl into woman, with description of reproductive organs and detailed explanation of their functions.

Filmstrips

Getting Along with the Opposite Sex, Popular Science Publishing Company, Inc., $6.00.

The filmstrip presents various situations and problems in the lives of boys and girls of high school age. It discusses dating etiquette, going steady, sensitivity in human relationships, and communication with parents.

Getting to Know Me, Eye-Gate Films.

This filmstrip provides the adolescent with an insight into himself that will enable him to cope with his daily living. The set is designed to provoke discussion and to help in such areas as physical, mental, emotional and social development.

ADOLESCENCE

The Tuned-Out Generation, Guidance Associates, 30 min., $29.95.

Takes aim at the lack of communication between teens and their parents by focusing on the ways they are alike rather than on the ways the generations differ. Teens are confronted, through live, on-the-spot recording and candid photography, with many parental attitudes and opinions.

Values for Teenagers: The Choice is Yours, Guidance Associates, 32 min., $29.95.

Talks directly to teenagers in their own language about sex, cheating, drinking, what kind of person to become, what kind of values to embrace, conformity. Live interviews show the reaction of teens to "the bomb," civil rights, Viet Nam, etc. Takes strong position that the individual still has freedom of choice, still has the responsibility for his own decisions and actions.

Records and Tapes

Heller, Melvin, M. D., What We Know About Today's Teenagers, Orsonic Recording Services, $5.00 per tape.

Recording of a keynote speech at the 56th Annual Meeting of the American Home Economics Association, June, 1965.

Lippitt, Ronald, The World of Troubled Youth, Addison-Wesley Publishing Co.

Six community action training units dealing with adult-youth problems. "The Vicious Circle" focuses on communication between youth and adults. "The In-Betweeners" unit teaches a problem-solving process relating to socially handicapped children who are disruptive in school and other structured situations but are too young to be put out of school or into the Court. "The Latchkey Child" uses the applied social sciences to effect changes in behavior of the 12 to 16 year old who is consistently in real trouble.

"The Community" unit analyzes the situation of the young person who cannot sort out the forces in the community who are competing for his time. "Teenagers Bridge the Generations" helps adult leaders improve their skills in working with teenagers, and to help teenagers take the initiative in their work with other teenagers and with adults. "The Deciders" trains adults to help adolescents with teenage dilemmas. Phonograph records and printed materials.

Belonging to Groups." Other bibliographies with their sources are also cited.

Sutton, Charles H., (ed.), Octet-70, An Anthology of Readings in Marriage and Family Living, Cans Conference of Chicago, 1969, 143 pp., (paperback $1.25).

Geared for the high school student, the readings emphasize the consideration of love and marriage.

IV. LOOKING TOWARD MARRIAGE

A favorite observation of family specialists is that much of the failure in marriage is due to failure before marriage. The logical follow-up to this contention is that more must be done in a positive way to guide youth in making choices; there must be more careful preparation for marriage and parenthood.

This section and the next, "Married Living," can best be viewed as a unit as there is great overlap in potential inclusions. This section provides listings of texts for courses in marriage and family life and references primarily concerned with the premarital topics of love, mate selection, engagement, and marriage preparation. For information on premarital sexual attitudes and behavior, see Section II, "Human Sexuality."

A. General Information on Courtship, Love, and Mate Selection

1. Books

Burgess, Ernest W., and Paul Wallin, Engagement and Marriage, Lippincott, 1953, 819 pp.

LOOKING TOWARD MARRIAGE

Choosing for Happiness, McGraw-Hill, 14 min.

"Is he right for me?" asks Eve each time she meets a new boy. Somehow each one fails to measure up. Eve finds a flaw in each, and when she tries to change them "for their own good," they drift away. A cousin suggests that for Eve, as for everyone, self-analysis must come first; that she must accept the possibility of making certain changes in herself and make fewer demands on other people.

Choosing Your Marriage Partner, Coronet, 13 min.

Young man tries to decide which of two girls to marry. Considers such factors as emotional maturity, family background, philosophy of life, and harmony of personalities.

Do They Marry Too Young?, CBS News, 1959, 60 min.

Discusses problems faced by teenagers and students. Case histories of young people who go steady, marry with or without parental consent, often precipitated by premarital pregnancy. Joel Moss and Lee Burchinal present studies of teenage marriage. Chicago PTA meeting, Lutheran and Catholic conferences shown in discussions.

Early Marriage, E. C. Brown, 1960, 25 min.

Begins with cartoon review of marriage customs; shows run-away justice of the peace wedding; reviews Protestant, Catholic and Jewish ceremonies; class room discussion of early marriage shown.

The Engagement Ring, available from Planned Parenthood Federation, 25 min., color.

The romantic dreams of a young engaged couple come up against some of the harsh realities of modern urban life. The Planned Parenthood message is skillfully woven into this moving human story set in New York's Puerto Rican neighborhood. Spanish language. English subtitles available.

Engagement: Romance and Reality, McGraw-Hill, 1965, 15 min., color.

Presents a step by step portrayal of a couple who plan to marry, beginning with the realization that they do not really know one another to the time when they begin to see themselves and each other realistically in terms of marriage.

For Better, For Worse, Television, Radio, and Film Commission (TRAFCCO), Methodist Church, 1967, 28 min., black and white.

Depicts struggle to establish an adequate early marriage. Designed to help teenagers think about the meaning and dimensions of marriage before rushing into it.

Going Steady?, Popular Science Publishing Company, Inc.

A personal and critical examination of the prevalent practice of "going steady." Its advantages and its dangers are presented.

How Do You Know It's Love?, Coronet, 1951, 15 min.

How does love grow and develop? How can you tell when it's mature love? Mother shares family album with daughter; daughter and date double with older couple and think through tests of mature love.

LOOKING TOWARD MARRIAGE

Is This Love?, McGraw-Hill, 14 min.

Contrasts the romances of two college roommates. One girl, impulsive and emotional, is resentful of any persuasion to delay her marriage. The other hesitates to consider marriage until she has solid proof of her love through successive stages of dating, courtship, going steady, and engagement.

It Takes All Kinds, McGraw-Hill, 1950, 20 min.

Shows various types of personalities, all under identical stress situation—car trouble—and their approaches to problem solving.

The Lovers, Paulist Fathers, 26 min.

The story of a couple who postpone marriage because the fellow feels he has obligations making postponement necessary. He convinces his fiancé premarital sexual relations are proper in their case. Complications of this involvement are portrayed.

The Meaning of Engagement, Coronet, 1952, 12 min.

Engagement period is important step in marriage preparation: to develop psychological unity, to know each other better, to plan for the future; members of each family appear and offer suggestions; couple work at problem solving.

V. MARRIED LIVING

The preceding section dealt with courtship, mate selection, and engagement. This section provides listings of references primarily concerned with the adjustment of persons to married life, with the roles of husband and wife, with divorce, with marriage counseling, and with family financial management.

The user of the Bibliography is reminded that much of the material written about married living appears in the marriage and family textbooks which have been listed in the preceding section (pages 82 - 88). The references in this section should be useful to both the professional and the layman. Some are research monographs, some are academic treatises, some are popularly written. Each is included because of its merits.

Why Budget?, McGraw Hill.

Explains the importance of the budget, what it is, and how to set it up in relation to family needs and income.

VI. PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Faced with the complex task of child rearing, all parents fall back on procedures, ideas and traditions by which they themselves were reared. If these attitudes and methods are basically sound and still appropriate to the "times," the child and society profit; if not, personal and social waste are perpetuated.

The materials listed here are submitted as an aid to parents who wish to evaluate their own practices and attitudes. In preparation of the list we have been less concerned with particular techniques in training children and more concerned with exploring the "why." Parents must be thoughtful in weighing the significance of various alternative methods of control and qualities of parent-child relationships. Decisions in specific instances will be more constructive and consistent when the goals and purposes of the training are well defined and clearly understood. The readings include illustrations of how basic goals may be implemented through the handling of specific problems.

Some of the readings are suggested because they are challenging and thought-provoking, not because they are the "last word." We believe the "last word" in this area will never be said since the "word" must change as the social situation changes.

A. General Information

1. Books

Abrahamsen, David, The Emotional Care of Your Child, Trident Press, 1969, 267 pp., $6.95.

Easy to read, practical guide for parents. Discusses the handling of children, and the "why" behind their behavior.

Alder, James B., (ed.), In Praise of Babies, Doubleday and Company, 1968, 39 pp., $2.95.

A witty book of brief verses by Ogden Nash, among others, on marriage and family life. The accompanying sketches are very attractive.

Alderfer, Helen, and Edwin Alderfer, Helping Your Child to Grow, Herald Press, 1968, 29 pp., (paperback $0.35.).

Simply written discussion of the various ways a child grows.

Arnstein, Helene S., What to Tell Your Child, Bobbs-Merrill, 1962, 202 pp., $3.50.

The author offers guidelines to parents in answering questions about birth, illness, community dangers, mental illness, mothers working, divorce and remarriage, death, financial crises, and family moves.

Association for Childhood Education International, Bibliography of Books for Children, 1969, $1.50.

Contains over 1500 listings, annotated, giving price, age level, publisher, author, illustrator.

Baker, Helen Read, and Xenia F. Fane, Understanding and Guiding Young Children, Prentice-Hall, 1967, $7.32.

Stresses child understanding rather than child care.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Deutsch, Martin, and Associates, The Disadvantaged Child: Studies of Social Environment and the Learning Process, Basic Books, 1967, 400 pp., $10.00.

Examines the problems of the disadvantaged child and the social environment from which he comes.

Dingmeyer, Don C., Child Development: The Emerging Self, $5.95.

Dittmann, Laura L., (ed.), Early Child Care: The New Perspectives, Atherton Press, 385 pp., $8.95.

Proceedings of four conferences, in which particular attention is given to what is known about today's pre-school children -- advantaged, disadvantaged; normal, handicapped, disturbed.

Dreikurs, Rudolf, and Loren Grey, Logical Consequences: A New Approach to Discipline, Meridith Press, 1968, 216 pp., $4.95.

Contains useful examples of specific situations illustrating Dreikurs' approach to raising children.

Dreikurs, Rudolf, and Vicki Stolz, Children: The Challenge, Duell, 1964, $5.95.

Abundance of material covering the myriad situations and challenges parents face with their children. Each situation is followed by an appropriate tested solution and the principles behind it.

Eakin, Mary K., (ed.), Good Books for Children, (3rd ed.), University of Chicago Press, 407 pp., (paperback $7.95).

For parents, teachers, and librarians, this annotated bibliography lists children's books reviewed and recommended in the Bulletin of the Center for Children's Books from 1950 through 1966.

Ellis, Albert, with Sandra Moseley and Janet L. Wolfe, How To Prevent Your Child from Becoming a Neurotic Adult, Crown Publishing Company, 1967, 247 pp., $4.95.

Authors believe children "are born with very definite physiological tendencies which often predispose them to react in certain psychological ways." They here offer ways in which they can be changed by training and re-education.

English, O. Spurgeon, and Constance J. Foster, Fathers Are Parents Too, Putnam, 1951.

Father's role laid out from getting ready to become a father to becoming a grandfather.

Fox, Lorena K., and others, All Children Want to Learn: A Guide for Parents, Grolier Society, 1954, 233 pp., $3.50.

A simple and attractively illustrated book about children and their play; offers many valuable suggestions for play activities and easy-to-make equipment; focuses on the child under nine.

Frank, Lawrence K., On the Importance of Infancy, Random House, 1966, $1.95.

An excellent discussion of infancy drawing upon research from many disciplines. Extensive bibliography.

Freiberg, Selma, The Magic Years, Scribners, 1964, 305 pp., $3.95.

A lucid account of the mental and emotional development of the child from infancy to school age.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Benson, Leonard, Fatherhood: A Sociological Perspective, Random House, 1968, 452 pp., $7.95.

Valuable discussion of the importance and role of the father. Deals mainly with the middle class father.

Bergler, Edmund, M.D., Parents Not Guilty! of Their Children's Neuroses, Liveright, 1964, 283 pp., $6.95.

Main thesis is that neurosis is the outcome of the clash of inner forces, above and beyond the educational process, and not a creation of the parent. Makes biological endowment the chief determinant of emotional health or pathology and contends that it is not environment per se but the child's reaction to it that is decisive in the development of neurosis.

Bettelheim, B., Dialogues with Mothers, Free Press, 1962, 284 pp., $4.95.

Twenty-three of the author's discussions with parents of normal children about the ordinary but inescapable difficulties that face every parent are produced verbatim.

Brenneman, Helen Good, Meditations for the Expectant Mother, Herald Press, 1968, 80 pp., (paperback $1.50).

A book of verses for the lady-in-waiting.

Bro, Margueritte H., When Children Ask, Harper and Brothers, 1956, $3.50.

Various points of view are offered to help parents answer children's questions about many subjects, including the atomic bomb, death, religion.

Bruch, Hilde, Don't Be Afraid of Your Child, Farrar, Strauss and Young, 1952.

Dr. Bruch, a psychiatrist, feels parents have become confused by the demands of educators and psychologists who have heavily underscored the responsibility of parents in molding children's lives. She feels some of the parents' confusion must be ascribed to changes in family relations over the years and pin points the problems growing out of changing times. She wants to "give the child back to his parents." Good sense, but must be read with perspective.

Carrier, Blanch, Integrity for Tomorrow's Adults, Crowell, 1959, 182 pp., $3.00.

A religious but nonsectarian book dealing with the parent's role in guidance of young people as they attempt to resist the crowd, stand for the right, and develop responsibility.

Chess, Stella, Your Child Is a Person, Viking Press, 1965, 213 pp., $4.75.

A view of child rearing principles and practices based on the author's longitudinal studies of the individual behavior patterns of infants and young children. Emphasizes the unique ways each child reacts and the responses his reactions generate as crucial elements in personality development. Includes many implications for professionals and parents.

Day, Beth, and Margaret Liley, M.D., The Secret World of the Baby, Random House, 1968, 113 pp., $3.95.

This book describes the world of the unborn and newborn baby, including how a baby behaves before birth, what birth is like from a baby's point of view, and his development during the first few months in the world of air and people.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Fromme, Allan, ABC of Childcare, Pocketbooks, 1969, (paperback $ .95).

Accumulated knowledge of emotional problems of infancy and childhood is contained in this cross-referenced, alphabetized encyclopedia. Information is freshly put with the aim of helping people build "a sense of certainty" about themselves as parents.

Gersh, Marvin J., M.D., How to Raise Children at Home in Your Spare Time, Stein and Day, 1967, $4.95.

A light, nonserious discussion of medical, physical, and emotional aspects of child development. Dr. Gersh's philosophy is that "child rearing is so serious that no parent can afford to take it seriously."

Ginott, Haim G., Between Parent and Child, Macmillan, 1965, 223 pp., $4.95.

Dr. Ginott invites parents to communicate with their children more effectively in a helpful book that examines the feelings that lie behind what children say and do. Offers concrete suggestions for everyday situations parents face, including discipline, sex education, fears, etc.

Glazer, Nona, and Carol F. Creedon (eds.), Children and poverty: Some Sociological and Psychological Perspectives, Rand McNally, 1968, 328 pp., $3.95.

Thirty contributions explore interconnections between social institutions and the social and psychological characteristics of poor American children. Considers the problems faced by families and children living in poverty.

Glover, Leland E., How to Guide Your School-age Child, Macmillan, 1965, 275 pp., (paperback $ .95).

Goodman, David, A Parents' Guide to the Emotional Needs of Children, Hawthorne, 1959, $6.95.

Points out to parents ways that they can meet children's basic emotional needs. Stressed is the parents' relationship to each other in establishing the climate for wholesome growth.

Gottlieb, David, and Charles E. Ramsey, Understanding Children of Poverty, Science Research Associates, 1967, 76 pp.

A summary and analysis of the contribution sociologists have made toward understanding the culturally deprived child in the context of the family, the social life of the community, the employment market, the school as a social institution, and the classroom within the school. A recurrent theme is the goals of deprived youth.

Grams, Armin, Children and Their Parents, T. S. Denison and Company, 1963, 176 pp., $4.50.

For interested parents, pastors and laymen. Central theme is relationship between concepts of faith, hope and love for preschool child, middle childhood and adolescence and growth to manhood.

Gruenberg, Sidonie, The New Encyclopedia of Child Care and Guidance, (2nd ed.), Doubleday, 1968, 1016 pp., $10.00.

Practical information on all aspects of a child's growth; thumb-indexed.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Gruenberg, Sidonie M., Parent's Guide to Everyday Problems of Boys and Girls, Random House, 1958, 363 pp., $4.95.

Deals with the often overlooked school-age child. Offers useful suggestions for bettering daily life and family relationships. The author is continuously aware of how social changes are profoundly influencing the lives and behavior of today's children.

Hadfield, J. A., Childhood and Adolescence, Penguin Books, 1962, (paperback $1.25).

Interesting and enjoyable reading. Written by an English medical psychologist, primarily for parents, although it is worthwhile reading for anyone interested in child development. The general nature of maturation, early development, the organization of the child's personality, adolescence, and various abnormalities are discussed with an abundance of illustrative materials. The final chapter discusses what Hadfield views as three principles of parenthood: love, freedom, and discipline.

Hartley, Ruth E., and Robert M. Goldenson, The Complete Book of Children's Play, Crowell, 1957, 462 pp., $5.00.

An encyclopedic volume of help to parents and others who work with children; follows a chronological sequence.

Hein, Lucille E., Enjoy Your Children, Abingdon, 1959, $3.50.

The author, a free-lance writer for radio, TV and popular magazines, suggests many games suitable for family car trips, amusements for convalescent children, creative activities, hobbies, etc., concentrating on children 7-12.

Hess, Robert D., and Judith V. Torney, The Development of Political Attitudes in Children, Doubleday, 1968, 331 pp., (paperback $1.95).

Studying more than 17,000 elementary school children, the authors conclude that the school stands out as the dominant force in the political socialization of the young child -- much more important than family, peer group, or church.

Holt, John, How Children Learn, Pitman Publishing Corporation, 1967, 189 pp., $4.95.

Provides insight into ways of leading children through learning experiences.

Holt, John C., Why Children Fail, Pitman Publishing Corporation, 1964.

Hymes, James L., Jr., Effective Home-School Relations, Prentice-Hall, 1953.

A good aid to coordinating two major influences for the child's benefit.

Ilg, Frances L., and Louise Bates Ames, Parents Ask, Harper and Brothers, 1962.

Using parents' letters, the authors discuss causes and answer questions dealing with problems of feeding, toilet training, discipline, school behavior, etc.

Isaacs, Susan, The Nursery Years: The Mind of the Child from Birth to Six Years, Schocken Books, Inc., 1968, 140 pp., $4.50 (paperback $1.95).

New edition of a work first published in 1929 by a noted child psychiatrist. A discussion emphasizing the child's point of view.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Jones, Eve, The Intelligent Parent's Guide to Raising Children, Free Press, 1959.

The author explains how to meet the child's emotional and physiological needs as he develops naturally from birth through adolescence.

Kanner, Leo, M.D., A Word to Parents About Mental Hygiene, University of Wisconsin Press, 1959, 94 pp., $1.00.

Kawin, Ethel, "Parenthood in a Free Nation"; Volume I, Basic Concepts for Parents; Volume II, Early and Middle Childhood; Volume III, Later Childhood and Adolescence; Macmillan, 1963, Vol. I, 207 pp., $2.00; Vol. II, 303 pp., $2.75; Vol. III, 338 pp., $3.00.

The volumes in this series were developed as content for a study-discussion program designed to help parents acquire knowledge of children at various stages of development and to help parents to understand themselves, both as persons and as parents. Volume I deals with the characteristics of a mature, responsible citizen in a democratic society and the ways in which parents contribute to their development. Volumes II and III, based on the assumption that parents need to know what children are like at various stages, contain descriptions of the physical, mental, and social-emotional characteristics of boys and girls during successive periods of childhood.

The format of the volumes is excellent with discussion questions, case histories, and suggested reading provided. The author has avoided talking down to parents, yet the reading level is geared for parents with relatively limited reading skills. The volumes are well-written and illustrated.

Kehm, Freda, and Joe L. Mini, Let Children be Children: Questions and Answers about Raising Children from Infancy through the Pre-Teen Years, Association Press, 1968, 60 pp., $4.95.

Answers questions most often asked by parents and teachers, simply and directly. Emphasis on importance of family unit.

Klein, Ted, The Father's Book, William Morrow and Company, 1968, 392 pp., $7.95.

Helpful in providing detailed information as to where help of many sorts can be found.

Langdon, Grace, and Irving W. Stout, Bringing Up Children, John Day, 1960, $4.50.

The authors studied more than 4,000 families with well-adjusted children and organized the experiences of these successful parents into a comprehensive guide to rearing children from infancy through the teens.

Langdon, Grace, and Irving W. Stout, Teaching Moral and Spiritual Values, John Day, 1962, 124 pp., $3.50.

A guide to help parents in the character development of their children.

LeShan, Eda J., The Conspiracy Against Childhood, Atheneum, 1968, 368 pp., $6.50.

A hard-hitting insightful book. Her major thesis is that this is a terrible time in which to be a child, in a mechanized and dehumanized society. Written to encourage discussion among thoughtful parents and family life educators of a number of vital questions.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

LeShan, Eda J., How to Survive Parenthood, Random House, 1965, 239 pp.

Analyzes the dilemma of parents caught between the demands of permissive child-rearing norms and today's highly competitive society. Stresses the needs of parents as individuals and as married couples, rather than the demands of the children.

Liley, H. M. I., Modern Motherhood, Random House, Inc., 1967, 239 pp., $4.95.

Physician discusses pregnancy, childbirth and the first six months of life. She includes instructions on care of the baby and of the mother.

Maternity Center Association, Prelude to Action: The Next Twenty Years in Maternity Care, 1969, 170 pp., (paperback $3.00).

McNeill, Elton B., Human Socialization, Brooks Cole Publishing Company, A Division of Wadsworth Publishing Company, Inc., 1969, $7.50.

A comprehensive discussion which incorporates the theoretical and practical aspects of human socialization. It covers the nature, agents and components of socialization, the influence of education as well as informal influences in childhood, youth and the adult years. It is designed for use as an under-graduate text for courses which focus on socialization.

Miller, D. R., and G. E. Swanson, The Changing American Parent, John Wiley and Sons, 1958.

A classic study of the American parent in the context of American society.

Muller, Philippe, The Tasks of Childhood, World University Library, McGraw-Hill, 1969, 254 pp., (paperback $2.45).

Author treats the stages of growth as "tasks" in the increasingly demanding relationship which each individual contracts with society.

Neill, A. S., Summerhill: A Radical Approach to Child Rearing, Hart Publishing Co., 1960.

An unusual book about a most unusual school and an even more unusual man. A. S. Neill is the headmaster of Summerhill and this book reports his experiment in bestowing unstinted love and approval on children.

Neisser, Edith G., Mothers and Daughters: A Lifelong Relationship, Harper and Row, 1967, $7.95.

Explores an important aspect of family life in a broad context, yet relates each finding to everyday American life in such a way that mothers (and fathers too) will gain new understanding of their roles.

Niblett, W. R., (ed.), Moral Education in a Changing Society, Humanities Press, 1963, $4.00.

Series of addresses given in 1962 at the University of London Institute of Education by Christians and agnostics, including an atomic scientist, a theologian, a psychiatrist, two educators, a sociologist, a philosopher, a social-science researcher, and an Oxford woman don.

Offen, J. Allan, Adventure to Motherhood, Simon and Schuster, 1965, 65 pp., $2.95.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Ostrovoley, Everett S., Father to the Child, Putnam, 1959, $3.75.

The author, a student of Piaget, attempts to trace the consequences of father absence in individual cases — the widow's family, the divorcee's family, the family whose father's business keeps him long-absent, etc.

Parfit, Jessie, (ed.), The Community's Children, Humanities Press, 1968, 108 pp., (paperback $2.75).

Contributors discuss the work that is being done (through state organizations) in England for deprived children.

Powledge, Fred, To Change A Child: A Report on the Institute for Developmental Studies, Quadrangle Books, Inc., 1967, 110 pp., $2.25.

A portrait of the Institute's program for education of the young disadvantaged child — the "intervention: classroom.

Richardson, Stephen A., and Allan F. Guttmacher, Childbearing: Its Social and Psychological Aspects, Williams and Wilkins, 1967, 334 pp., $8.50.

Offers a valuable inter-disciplinary approach to the subject. Includes the papers of 6 professionals, and much supportive data.

Richette, Lisa Aversa, The Throwaway Children, Lippincott, 1969, 342 pp., $6.95.

"Throwaway" refers to the children the author has encountered in juvenile court. These are the children of families in all of the socio-economic classes of America whose parents, community and society have failed to help them develop their potential. Through case studies the realities of subsequent events in the lives of youth in the courtroom posits the need for more rehabilitative and less punitive legislation for "throwaways."

Riesmann, Frank, The Culturally Deprived Child, Harper and Row, 1962, 140 pp., $3.95.

An examination of the subculture and family background of disadvantaged children and a challenge to the middle-class oriented public schools to adapt their programs to better serve the needs of these youngsters.

Schramm, Wilbur, J. Lyle, and E. B. Parker, Television in the Lives of Our Children, Stanford University Press, 1961, 324 pp., $7.50 (paperback $2.95).

How does television affect children's health, schoolwork, reading, behavior, fears and values? Members of the Stanford University Institute for Communication Research provide some thoughtful answers in this lively report of their study of the viewing habits and attitudes of some 6,000 youngsters. The authors' abundant data on television's immediate impact lends impressive weight to their discussion of possible long-term effects, values, and dangers.

Senn, Milton J. E., and Clair Hartford, The Firstborn: Experiences of Eight American Families, Harvard University Press, 1968, 533 pp., $10.00.

Describes and interprets the experiences of eight representative families with their firstborn children, concentrating on parental expectations, sociocultural factors, and the family pattern which emerges. Captures the texture of day-to-day family living from the mother's early pregnancy through the first two years of the child's life.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Senn, Milton J. E., and Albert J. Solnit, Problems in Child Behavior and Development, Lea & Febiger, 1968, 268 pp., $7.50.

Two doctors who specialize in child psychiatry and pediatrics deal with the management of life situation and the prevention of behavior problems in children. Geared to the medical practitioner.

Simons, Joseph, and Jeanne Reidy, Wisdom's Child: Exploring Adult Immaturity, Herder and Herder, 1969, 144 pp., $4.50.

A small boy tells the story of his life, providing a commentary on adult living. "Some people will read this book and hear a small boy talking as no small boy has ever talked. Others will read this book and hear themselves talking as they have always wanted to talk."

Smith, Charles P., (ed.), Achievement-Related Motives in Children, Russell Sage Foundation, 1969, 362 pp., $8.75.

Papers included reflect the major traditions of research on a topic which has been given a relatively small amount of attention.

Smith, Leona J., Guiding the Character Development of the Preschool Child, Association Press, 1968, 127 pp., $3.95.

A psychologist offers this practical guide for parents and teachers.

Spock, Benjamin, Problems of Parents, Houghton-Mifflin, 1962, 308 pp., $5.00 (paperback $.60).

In his well-known popular style, Dr. Spock deals with parent's daily problems (tensions, everyday management, anxieties, answering questions), periodic crises (divorce, desertions, the step child), and critical problems presented by mass media, prejudice, war.

Stolz, Lois Meek, Influences on Parent Behavior, Stanford University Press, 1967, 355 pp., $8.95.

A unique study in that parent behavior is treated as the dependent variable -- the behavior which is to be explained. Her findings provide much food for reflection.

Talbot, Toby, (ed.), The World of the Child: Birth to Adolescence from the Child's Viewpoint, Doubleday and Company, 1967, 468 pp., $6.95.

Essays and excerpts from writings of psychologists, educators, anthropologists, and others concerning the integration of the individuality of the child with the external world. Considers the adult's ability to recollect his own childhood; discusses the infant's abrupt arrival in the world, his tentative exploration and growing sense of self and sexuality, and the private world of children's play, art, and language; explores the child's reaction to certain realities of adult life -- death, war, bigotry; considers how one generation can best prepare the next to contribute to society.

Thomas, Alexander, Stella Chess, and Herbert G. Birch, Temperament and Behavior Disorders in Children, New York University Press, 1968, 309 pp., $8.50.

Based on a longitudinal study of 136 children during the first 10 years of life, the authors hold that innate temperament makes as fundamental a contribution to personality as does environment. An earlier volume established the theoretical framework, while this work deals with actual behavior problems that developed in shortened treatment method emphasizing parent guidance.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

What To Do When "There's Nothing to Do": A Mother's Handbook - 601 Tested Play Ideas for Young Children, by members of the staff of the Boston Children's Medical Center. Delacorte Press, 1967, 158 pp., $3.95.

Collection of creative play ideas sorted into age groups, and written with an understanding of what a child is able to do and is interested in doing at each age.

Wright, Ruth Stout, Report to the Nation on Children and Youth, National Committee for Children and Youth, 1968, 135 pp., (paperback).

Report on the problems, needs and assets of the nation's children and youth, with the information coming from people in varied areas working with youth.

3. Audio - Visual Materials

Films

Angry Boy, International Film Bureau, 1951, 33 min., black and white.

Dramatization of the story of a boy taken to child guidance clinic after being caught stealing; the psychiatric team reveals source of the difficulty in the boy's home situation. An experienced leader should be present for adequate interpretation.

The Bad Strangers, Guidance Films, 1964, 6 min., color.

Designed to teach young children to avoid certain situations and to impress them with the dangers involved without frightening them.

Children of Change, International Film Bureau, 1960, 31 min., black and white.

Problems of working mothers and children left alone during the day; reviews good child care center activities and challenges community for responsibility for the children; technical unevenness.

Children's Bureau Publication No. 376, Selected Films on Child Life, 1965, $.40.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Families First, New York State Department of Commerce, 20 min.

By a series of everyday episodes in the lives of two contrasting families this film demonstrates the sources of tension, frustrations, and anti-social attitudes as well as the opposite results of affection, achievement and harmonious personality adjustment.

Family Teamwork and You, Charles Cahill and Associates, 1966, color, 11 min.

Two homes contrasted as to cooperative spirit with rapid camera shifts. Introductory narration only so children have ample opportunity to observe and develop ideas for discussion.

Feeling of Hostility, National Film Board of Canada, 1948, 27 min., black and white.

Early childhood adolescence and mature life of child with feelings of resentment and frustration.

Feeling of Rejection, National Film Board of Canada, 1947, 20 min.

Case history of a 23-year old girl who learned in childhood not to risk social disapproval by taking independent action. Symptoms of her trouble are illustrated by incidents in which she submits to other people while inwardly protesting. Under psychiatric help she became more able to understand her feelings and assert herself. Should be shown only with able discussion leader.

Their First Teachers, 10 min., City College Institute of Film Technique, available from Pennsylvania State University, rental $1.75.

Characteristic aspects of the home in terms of parent-child relationships; should contribute to better understanding of needs of children and of responsibilities of parents as their first teacher.

Jamie--The Story of a Sibling, National Film Board of Canada, distributed by McGraw-Hill, 1964, 28 min., black and white.

Designed to promote discussion of rivalry between children in the same family. Shows how the emotional development of children is affected by parental attitudes and by competition for parental attention. Jamie in this film is a ten-year old, an age when it hurts if you fail to win a parent's approval, or if you must give way because you are smaller. Parents who want to know what goes on inside a child's mind will find Jamie and the family of which he is part, a provocative, revealing study.

Kindergarten, McGraw-Hill, 1962, 22 min. black and white, $120.00.

A candid camera study of children being very much themselves in the special world of the kindergarten classroom. This film shows children as they are--uninhibited, spontaneous in every word and gesture. Herein are the assertions of individuality, the beginnings of rivalry and cooperation within the group. How the children adjust to one another and to the situations in which they find themselves makes this film an interesting study for the adult.

The Parents: Changing Problems of American Families, National Educational Television Film Service, 1964, 60 min.

Part of "America's Crisis" series. Depicts the confusions and opportunities facing parents in a time of rapid social change. Since the film suggests few solutions but effectively outlines problems, it can best serve as a basis for group discussions.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Sibling Rivalries and Parents, McGraw-Hill, 1956, 11 min., black and white.

Reasons for a certain amount of rivalry among brothers and sisters, its varied manifestations, and ways of holding friction to a minimum are described in this film.

Television and Children, Pennsylvania State University, 1961, 28 min., black and white.

A talk on television and its effect on children by a university faculty member.

Who Cares About Jamie?, Smart Family Foundation, 16 min., black and white or color. Available for purchase for $10.00.

A day in the life of a first grader, the difficulties in growing up, how parents handle a difficult situation, raising the question of how much punishment parents should use.

Filmstrips

You and the Other Generation, Popular Science Publishing Company, Inc., $6.00.

This filmstrip provides an analysis of some typical causes of conflict between teenagers and parents with indications of possible solutions.

1. Books

Alexander, Theron, Children and Adolescents: A Bio-Cultural Approach to Psychological Development, Atherton, 1969, 500 pp., $8.00.

A combined emphasis on the biological and cultural factors that determine the course of the child's psychological development.

Aries, Philippe, Centuries of Childhood, Vintage Books, 1965, 447 pp., (paperback $2.45).

Deals with the historical development of childhood (not children) by analyzing dress, games, art, sex behavior, educational policy, social and economic activities. Well written with a clear presentation and massive documentation.

Bettelheim, Bruno, The Children of the Dream, Macmillan, 1969, 363 pp., $6.95.

An analysis of the children reared from birth through adolescence in the Israeli Kibbutz and consideration of the implications for our methods of child-rearing both in the slums and in middle class homes.

Bossard, J. H. S., Parent and Child, University of Pennsylvania Press, 1953.

The basic family situations which call out certain kinds of behavior in family members are presented with full and complete discussion: description of the sociological factors to which the child and his parents respond; the "spatial index for family interactions"; interesting comparison of small and large family "systems"; the effect of size of family patterns and the effect on the child as he moves out into the world.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Bossard, J. H. S., and Eleanor S. Boll, The Sociology of Child Development, Harper and Row, 1966 (4th ed.), 560 pp., $8.75.

A thorough revision of the well-known informative and highly readable text. The authors consider the role of family life in society as the basis for child development. Includes many references to recent research and an excellent bibliography.

Bowlby, John, Maternal Care, Schocken, 1966, 357 pp., (paperback $2.45).

Two of the classics — Maternal Care and Mental Health and Deprivation of Maternal Care — in one volume. Discusses the effects of maternal deprivation in early life and appropriate methods to prevent such deprivations.

Clausen, John A., (ed.), Socialization and Society, Little, Brown, and Company, 1968, 400 pp., $5.50.

Examines conceptual usage, approaches, and issues in the field of socialization research, especially emphasizing the effects of social structure upon the socialization process.

Coles, R., Children of Crisis: A Study of Courage and Fear, Little, Brown, and Company, 1967, 401 pp., $8.50.

A child psychiatrist examines the lives of modern Negro children in the South — and describes the way those lives have come to terms with current political and social changes.

Erikson, Erik H., Childhood and Society, W. W. Norton & Co., 1963 (2nd ed.), 445 pp., $6.50 (paperback $2.95).

Devoted to explaining the relation of the individual ego to society. Emphasizes that understanding this relationship depends on grasping three processes — the somatic process (biology), the ego process (psychology), and the societal process (the social sciences).

Faegre, Marion L., John E. Anderson, and Dale B. Harris, Child Care and Training, 1958 (8th ed.), University of Minnesota Press, 300 pp., $3.00.

A basic handbook of child development and growth; useful to teachers, students, physicians, parents and nurses.

Gardner, Riley W., and Alice Moriarty, Personality Development at Preadolescence: Explorations of Structure Formation, University of Washington Press, $9.50.

Presents the results of a research project intended to assess a number of major aspects of preadolescent individuality and personality organization. An ego-psychological point of view drawing heavily on psychoanalytic theory. A scholarly and thorough work, including a comprehensive review of the literature.

Garrison, Karl C., Albert J. Kingston, and Harold W. Bernard, The Psychology of Childhood: A Survey of Development and Socialization, Charles Scribner's Sons, 1967, 457 pp., $7.25.

This college text takes the biosocial approach to child development. The two major divisions of the book cover the course of development and the socialization process. Particular attention is given to the early foundations of development in the pre-school and earliest school years.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Hoffman, Martin L., and Lois W. Hoffman, Review of Child Development Research, Russell Sage Foundation; Volume I., 1964, 547 pp., $8.00; Volume II., 1966, $8.00.

These two volumes represent a treasury of information and interpretation of the social, psychological, genetic, and neuro-psychological aspects of child development. The chapters, written by prominent specialists, are much more than mere summaries of research. Each includes a synthesis and an evaluation of the best studies available as well as extensive bibliography. A most significant contribution to the child development practitioner.

Lomas, Peters, (ed.), The Predicament of the Family, International University Press, 1967, 219 pp., $5.50.

Nine papers from the Institute of Psychoanalysis, emphasizing the importance of family influences on the child, primarily for the professional.

Lynn, David B., Parental and Sex Role Identification: A Theoretical Formulation, McCutchan Publishing Corporation, 1969, 134 pp., (paperback $3.30).

Author offers hypotheses in this area, and deals with research evidence either supporting or refuting his hypotheses.

Maier, Henry W., Three Theories of Child Development, Harper and Row, 1969 (rev.), 336 pp., $7.95.

Presents and compares the research and theoretical formulations of Erikson, Piaget, and Sears. Shows how concepts drawn from the theories can be employed by those engaged in the helping professions. Extensive bibliography.

McCandless, Boyd R., Children and Adolescents, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1961.

Medinnus, Gene, (ed.), Readings in the Psychology of Parent-Child Relations, John Wiley, 1967, $4.50.

A paperback of relevant research reports on the parent-child relationship. Topics include parental antecedents of child behavior, children's perception of parents, identification, and social class and cultural factors in child rearing.

Miller, D. R., and G. E. Swanson, The Changing American Parent, Wiley, 1958.

A readable and illuminating report of research in the Detroit area.

Mishler, Elliot A., and Nancy E. Walker, Interaction on Families: An Experimental Study of Family Processes and Schizophrenia, John Wiley and Sons, 1968, 436 pp., $11.95.

This is a report of a 5-year study of the inter-relationship of family processes and schizophrenia. Almost one-fourth of the volume is devoted to explaining the method of investigation. Three types of families were compared in terms of their expressiveness, power, strategies of attention and person control, communication and responsiveness.

Pavenstedt, Eleanor, M.D., (ed.), The Drifters: Children of Disorganized Lower-class Families, Little and Brown, 1967, 345 pp., $10.50.

Study of nursery-school-aged children and their lower-class disorganized families, from a multi-disciplinary point of view.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Pearson, Gerald, (ed.), A Handbook of Child Psychoanalysis, Basic Books, 1968, 384 pp., $12.50.

Guide to the psychoanalytic treatment of children and adolescents. A major portion of the book is devoted to the description of the treatment of two specific children.

Peck, Robert F., and Robert F. Havighurst, The Psychology of Character Development, Wiley, 1960, (paperback $1.45).

A study of character development and its personality correlates during adolescence.

Piaget, Jean, and Barbel Inhelder, The Psychology of the Child, Basic Books Inc., 1969, 173 pp., $5.95.

The book is a concise synthesis of Piaget's cognitive development of the child from infancy to adolescence. Piaget employs a genetic theoretical approach to analyze the child's mental development.

Rabin, A. I., Growing Up in the Kibbutz, Springer, 1965, 230 pp., $5.00 (paperback $2.95).

Examines the effect of kibbutz child-rearing practices on ego functioning and personality development. Compares child-rearing in the kibbutz to child-rearing in Israeli settlements similar in most ways to kibbutzim but characterized by "normal" family life.

Ritchie, Oscar W., and Marvin R. Koller, Sociology of Childhood, Appleton-Century-Crofts, 1964, 333 pp., $5.00.

It is the authors' contention that students are relatively knowledgeable regarding the developmental, psychological, and educational approaches to childhood, but have not been sufficiently sensitized to the social and cultural contexts in which children grow and develop. The book is a sociological analysis of childhood dealing primarily with socialization: settings, approaches, and obstacles. College textbook.

Sears, R. R., Eleanor Maccoby, and Harry Levin, Patterns of Child Rearing, Row Peterson, 1957.

A report of the child rearing practices of 379 mothers of five-year-old children; deals with feeding, weaning, toilet training, aggression and other parent-child interactivities. A research report interestingly written; illustrated with appropriate live sketches, and comprehensible to the intelligent parent.

Shapiro, Sam, Edward R. Schiesinger, and Robert E. L. Nesbitt, Jr., Infant, Perinatal, Maternal, and Childhood Mortality in the United States, Harvard University Press, 1968, 388 pp., $7.95.

A technical volume prepared by the American Public Health Association. Documents the notoriously bad record of the U. S. in infant mortality. Discusses reasons for the situation, and means to remedy it.

Smart, Mollie S., and Russell C. Smart, Children, Development and Relationships, Macmillan Co., 1967, 582 pp., $7.50.

Introductory text book for college students. The first to integrate the views of Erik Erikson and Jean Piaget. Furnishes comprehensive material on the physical and psychological growth of the child, relating both to the familial and cultural environment.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIP

Stone, L. Joseph, and Joseph Church, Childhood and Adolescence: A Psychology of the Growing Person, (2nd ed.) Random House, 1968, 616 pp., $11.25.

Descriptions of how children grow, learn, feel, think, and react give a living picture of the dynamic process of growth toward maturity -- including a fine statement of what maturity really is. Revisions take into account the newest research dealing with pre-natal and infancy periods and later cognitive development.

Stott, Leland H., Child Development: An Individual Longitudinal Approach, Holt-Rinehart-Winston, 1967, 513 pp., $8.50.

Developmental story of one of a series of longitudinal research families to illustrate the author's theme that development in both physical structure and in the functioning of that structure comes about as the result of the interaction or interchange between the individual as he is and his unique environment.

Whipple, Dorothy V., M.D., Dynamics of Development: Euthenic Pediatrics, McGraw-Hill, 1966, 648 pp., $14.00.

Discussion by a pediatrician of the dynamics of the developmental process. Written primarily for the pediatrician, it is also of interest to parents and all students of child development.

Wolff, Sula, Children Under Stress, Penguin Press, 1969, 249 pp., $6.95.

A clear account of how normal children deal with the stresses of growing up. Includes an outline of personality development, examination of specific stressful situations, and suggested treatment approaches.

Zietz, Dorothy, Child Welfare: Services and Perspectives, Wiley, 1969 (2nd ed.).

Deals with child welfare as a social movement from its beginnings up to contemporary services.

2. Pamphlets and Periodicals

Dager, Edward Z., "Socialization and Personality Development in the Child" in H. T. Christensen (ed.), Handbook of Marriage and the Family, Rand-McNally, 1964, pp. 740-781.

A comprehensive summary of studies on socialization and the presentation of a theory of socialization.

3. Audio - Visual Materials

Films

Beginnings of Conscience, McGraw-Hill, 1957, 16 min.

The social conscience of an adult is traced back to his socialization as a child, through the experiencing of such social sanctions as force, exclusion, and ridicule.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

The Conscience of a Little Child (no information available).

Shows some of the ways in which psychologists are studying the growth and development of personality and emotional behavior in children.

C. Special Kinds of Parent - Child Relationships

1. Books

Blatt, Burton, and Fred Kaplan, Christmas in Purgatory: A Photographic Essay on Mental Retardation, Allyn and Bacon, Inc., 1966, $5.95.

A numbing recital in words and pictures of conditions in institutions for the mentally retarded. The text is written with great compassion and the pictures are stark evidence of this hidden scandal of our society.

Carlson, Bernice Wells, and David R. Ginglend, Play Activities for the Retarded Child, Abingdon Press, 1961, $4.00.

Designed to help parents and teachers of retarded children plan play activities that will develop skills as well as entertain. Games, crafts, and activities are keyed to five areas of development — mental, social, physical, language, intellectual.

Cutts, Norma E., and Nicholas Moseley, Bright Children: A Guide for Parents, Putnam, 1953, 238 pp., $3.95.

Cutts, Norma E., and Nicholas Moseley, The Only Child, Putnam, 1954.

de Hartog, Jan, The Children: A Personal Record for the Use of Adoptive Parents, Atheneum, 1969, 265 pp., $6.50.

The Dutch author writes a "handbook for adoptive parents," based on his own adoption of two slightly older (ages 3 and 5) Korean children. Practical, entertaining style.

Despert, Louise, Children of Divorce, Doubleday, 1953, (paperback, 1962).

Describes the effect of marriage failure on the child both before and after divorce; suggests ways of safeguarding the child and explores such questions as "When children experience divorce, are they bound to experience failure in their own marriage?" Presents a "child's eye view" of failing marriage.

Egg, Maria, Educating the Child Who Is Different, The John Day Company, 1968, 192 pp., $4.50.

Simply and warmly written, Dr. Egg's book emphasizes the development of specific skills, such as music, crafts and painting. The leitmotif throughout is the development to the fullest of the limited capacities of retarded children.

Ellingson, Careth, The Shadow Children: A Book About Children's Learning Disorders, Topaz Publishers, 1967, $6.50.

Papers relating to learning disorders. Directory of private and public agencies in U. S. who offer service to children in this area.

Papers included concern the topics of neurological foundations, psychological diagnosis, and approaches to treatment.

Heiser, Karl F., Our Backward Children, Norton, 1955, 240 pp., $3.75.

A guide to the recognition and care of the mentally disabled child; the importance of expert diagnosis in cases of mental retardation and the need for further scientific research is stressed. There is a helpful discussion of the distinction between emotional disturbance and mental retardation.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Helfer, Ray E., M.D., and Kampe, C. Henry, M.D. (eds.), The Battered Child, University of Chicago, 1968, 268 pp., $12.50.

Comprehensive collection of articles from many fields, including the history of child abuse, extent of the problem today, medical, legal and psychological aspects. Treatment rather than punishment of the parents is emphasized.

Isaac, Rael J., Adopting a Child Today, Harper and Row, 1965, 300 pp., $5.95.

Jones, Eve, Raising Your Child in a Fatherless Home, Free Press, 1962, 340 pp., $4.95.

A discussion of the problems that confront the single woman -- separated, divorced, widowed, or never wed -- and her children.

Kirk, Samuel A., Merle B. Karnes, and Winifred D. Kirk, You and Your Retarded Child: A Manual for Parents of Retarded Children, Pacific Books, (2nd ed.), 1968, 164 pp., $1.50.

Practical guide for parents and interested others. Specific suggestions are given for handling and guiding the retarded child.

Koch, Helen L., Twins and Twin Relations, University of Chicago Press, 1966, $6.95.

Exploratory study of first-born five- and six-year-old twins, exploring their behavior comparatively, their attitudes in relation to each other, to family, and to playmates. Attempts to show the effects of the unique aspects of being a twin.

Kvaraceus, William C., and E. Nelson Hayes, (eds.), If Your Child Is Handicapped, Sargent, 1969, 412 pp., $7.95.

The personal stories of 46 families are presented to tell of their adjustments to the limitations of a handicapped child.

Neisser, Edith G., The Eldest Child, Harper, 1957.

Raymond, Louise, Adoption and After, Harper, 1955, 238 pp., $3.00.

A thorough, thoughtful and sympathetic treatment of the emotional experiences of the adopted child and his parents; discusses the need for the parent's emotional preparation before adopting a child, the ways whereby the usual parent-child tensions may become accentuated by the fact of adoption, and what to do about them; procedures for adopting a child also explained.

Rochford, Elbrun, Mothers on Their Own, Harper, 1953.

A mother who is raising her own children alone shares her experience with others in similar plight. The book offers concrete help and exudes realistic courage, but must be read evaluatively; controversial in spots.

Rondell, and Michaels, The Family That Grew, Crown, 1951.

A story to be read to the adopted child: "Mommy turned to Daddy and Daddy to Mommy and said, 'This is the child for us'."

Rowe, Jane, Parents, Children, and Adoption, Humanities Press, 1966, $6.00.

Geared to the needs of social workers. Constitutes a rather comprehensive handbook for practice.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

Schlesinger, Benjamin, The One-Parent Family, University of Toronto Press, 1969, 132 pp., $5.00.

Valuable reference source in a rather neglected field. Includes annotated bibliography.

Simon, Anne W., Stepchild in the Family, Odyssey Press, 1964, 256 pp., $5.00.

A pioneering work in an unexplored area of family relations. Case histories of the step-child's world.

Smith, William C., The Step-Child, University of Chicago Press, 1953.

The author surveys the literature from folk-lore, professional writings and popular magazines on this special relationship; good presentation, but the author tends to use the literature to prove his point; does, however, show the importance of the question.

Spock, Benjamin, and Marion O. Lerrigo, Caring for Your Disabled Child, Fawcett Crest Books, 1965, 383 pp., (paperback $.95).

Practical information for understanding and helping the mentally, physically or emotionally handicapped child, directed mainly toward parents. Covers a wide range of subjects.

Steinzor, Bernard, When Parents Divorce: A New Approach to New Relationships, Pantheon Books, 1969, 243 pp., $5.95.

Help for the parent and child during the period of adjustment during and immediately after the separation. An unhealthy marriage is far more damaging than a healthy divorce, the author holds. He further defends the concept that "for the sake of the children and for the sake of the growth of your possibilities of loving another, you should keep as clear of your ex-partner as is humanly possible."

Szurek, S. A., and I. N. Berlin (eds.), Psychosomatic Disorders and Mental Retardation in Children, Science and Behavior Books, Inc., 1968, 306 pp., $6.95.

A group of primarily psychiatrists offers articles in four areas: genetic considerations and diagnosis and treatment of psychomatic disorders, mental retardation of various etiology, and case studies.

Torrance, E. Paul, Gifted Children in the Classroom, Macmillan, 1965, 102 pp., $1.25.

2. Pamphlets and Periodicals

American Humane Association, Neglecting Parents, 1969, $.35.

Bernard, Viola W., Adoption, Child Welfare League of America, 1964, $.35.

Focuses on the mental health aspects of adoption. Answers questions that are constantly posed by adoptive couple applicants, physicians, lawyers, judges, legislators, board members and the average citizen who contributes financially to adoption agencies.

PARENT-CHILD RELATIONSHIPS

3. Audio - Visual Materials

Films

The Chosen Child, McGraw-Hill, 1964, 54 min., black and white.

Study of the tragedies and happiness surrounding child adoption as the camera follows a childless couple to a New York adoption agency where interviews are shown with case workers.

The Gifted Ones, International Film Bureau, 1959, 22 min., black and white.

The gifted child, whose advanced mind distinguishes him from others of his age, is being recognized as a most valuable asset to society. Opinions differ about his education. This film presents the views of two prominent Canadian educators who discuss the challenge that such children present to society. It takes the audience right into the classroom to observe gifted children in their regular school activities.

The Summer We Moved to Elm Street, McGraw-Hill, 1966, 28 min., color.

Tries to show what goes on in the mind of a 9-year-old girl when she moves to a new street.

VII. MIDDLE AND LATER YEARS

Now that more and more individuals are living out their full span of years, we will continue to have large numbers of aging and aged family members. The increasing incidence of aging persons has raised a number of practical concerns — the problems of their retirement, support, health, housing, and leisure. The increase in life span has also extended the duration of the family life cycle raising the issue of intergenerational relations. A considerable body of knowledge about the social, physical, and psychological aspects of aging has been developed and much of it has been published. This section provides a listing of some of this material. The reader is also referred to the earlier section dealing with the "kin-family network."

Films

Adventure in Maturity, International Film Bureau, 1955, 25 min., color.

Convincingly depicts transformation of a sixtyish woman from empty, almost useless existence to active enjoyable, fruitful living.

Date of Birth, National Film Board of Canada, 1960, 16 mm, black and white.

A tribute to the older worker's high standard of dependability and productivity, and a plea to employers to remove age barriers in hiring new staff. The bitter disappointment felt by an able man denied work because he is over forty-five is expressed in a brief dramatic sequence, and then the film presents the actual record of employees in this age group, reminding us that there is less absenteeism, a lower turnover rate and an equal standard of production among older workers. Produced for Canadian Department of Labour.

Golden Age, National Film Board of Canada, 1958, 30 min. available through McGraw-Hill.

Must retirement at 65 mean the end of the road or can it become "the last of life for which the first was made"? Three men, each with a different approach to "the golden age" are shown. Attempts to present a cross-section of what the future holds for senior citizens.

Homespun, University of Minnesota Instructional Films, Encyclopedia Britannica, 1952, 20 min.

Minnesota farm wife whose children are grown enjoys shearing, carding, spinning wool, dyeing and waving yarn into beautiful homespun in traditional Scandinavian patterns.

MIDDLE AND LATER YEARS

Old Age—Out of Sight Out of Mind, National Educational Television Film Service, 16 mm, 60 min., black and white.

Hospitals, nursing homes, and other institutions are observed in terms of the treatment and rehabilitation facilities available to the aged and in terms of the concerns of medical experts and government officials.

Old Age—The Wasted Years, National Educational Television Film Service, 16 mm, 60 min., black and white.

In this study of the aged, the individual who has retired and the worker who loses his job due to advancing years are seen in terms of the limited social opportunities that await them and the living situations available to them.

Rest of Your Life, 1966, 28 min., color.

This film discusses the problem of what to do after retirement, a new problem facing the American people. The film points out that one must plan for this time in the future. Plans for financial security and use of leisure time must be made before entering this part of man's life.

Retire to Life, International Film Bureau, 1953, 20 min.

Portrays disillusionment of retired worker who finds himself alone and unappreciated; subsequent successful adjustment comes when he discovers that he must put something into life in order to get something out of it.

The Rights of Age, Mental Health Film Board (or State Depts. of Public Welfare), 1967, 28 min., black and white.

A survey of old age benefits — legal, medical, psychological — now available in many communities. A pleasant, warm treatment.

Steps of Age, International Film Bureau, 1951, 25 min.

Shows the emotional unpreparedness of an elderly couple — and later of the surviving widow — to meet the changes that come with old age and retirement. The film suggests in dramatic terms the importance of preparing early in life for the later years.

Three Grandmothers, National Film Board of Canada, 28 min., available through McGraw-Hill.

A glimpse into the lives of three grandmothers in widely different parts of the world, showing the very core of life in three countries and how universal is the role of the grandmothers.

To Live Till You Die, National Educational Television Film Service, 16 mm, 60 min., black and white.

Two contemporary and contrasting western points of view concerning the aged (in Sweden and Italy) reveal old age as a social problem in one case and as a traditional family problem in the other.

3. Audio - Visual Materials

Films

Aging, National Educational Television Film Service, 16 mm, 30 min., black and white.

Questioning the prevalent notion that an old person is functionless, this film suggests that by reestablishing the natural roles of grandparents as useful participants in family situations, the child, parent, and grandparent may benefit.

Life With Grandpa, March of Time, 1947, 17 min.

Graphically presents longer life span, degenerative diseases, insecurity of aged, employment and financial adjustments.

The Proud Years, Columbia University Educational Films, 1956, 28 min.

A film for adults whose parents are reaching their 70th to 80th birthdays. It suggests ways in which older people may be helped to live active and useful lives, even with illness or handicaps.

MIDDLE AND LATER YEARS

Where Mrs. Whalley Lives, National Film Board of Canada, 1966, 28 min., black and white.

A study of the conflict between generations that can arise despite best efforts of all to avoid it. Mrs. Whalley is an aging grandmother who lives with her son's family. To observe life from the sidelines is a painful reminder that the best of her own life is in the past. Sometimes it becomes a strain to hide hurt and loneliness for the sake of harmony in her son's home. The film is as much character study as social observation.

The Yellow Leaf, McGraw-Hill, 29 min., National Film Board of Canada, 1956, black and white.

Sympathetic study of the problem of an elderly widow who is forced to leave her daughter's household to live in a home for the aged. Shocked and disappointed at first, she overcomes her dejection when she finds that her new home offers congenial friends, new interests and a measure of independence she had not had before.

VIII. FAMILY LIFE EDUCATION: PHILOSOPHY AND METHODOLOGY

The preceding sections provide annotations of references in various substantive areas of family life. This section, by contrast, lists a number of items dealing with the philosophical and methodological aspects of family life education. The revisions committee felt that the increasing demand for family life education in schools and communities often coupled with an inadequate supply of well-trained family life educators, warranted the inclusion of a list of references dealing with "what it is" and "how to do it." Unfortunately, there has been little systematization of the literature. Thus this section, unlike others in the Bibliography, consists largely of pamphlets and articles from journals and other periodicals. Subsections include: philosophical perspectives, methodological considerations, program reports, curriculum guides, reference lists, subscriptions, and audio-visual materials.

A. Philosophical Perspectives and Current Status of Family Life Education

1. Books

Brim, Orville G., Jr., Education for Child Rearing, Russell Sage Foundation, 1959, 362 pp., $5.00 (paperback $2.45).

A major study of parent education theory and practice in which the author analyzes the assumptions and methods of parent education programs and approaches, reviews pertinent research, and points out areas that need critical evaluation.

Brim, Orville G., Jr., and Stanton Wheeler, Socialization After Childhood: Two Essays, John Wiley and Sons, Inc., 1966, 116 pp., $4.95 (Paperback $2.25).

Considers socialization through the life cycle, and the organizational context of socialization. Speculative and exploratory.

Foote, Nelson N., and Leonard S. Cottrell, Identity and Interpersonal Competence, University of Chicago Press, 1955.

Proposes a "new direction in family research" with implications for family life education.

Bruch, H., "Parent Education or the Illusion of Omnipotence," American Journal of Orthopsychiatry, vol. 24, (October 1954), pp. 723-732.

A critical attack on parent education questioning the assumptions on which it is based and the attitudes of the "experts." Concludes with suggestions for improving parent education.

Buchmueller, A.D., "The Place of Values in Parent Education," Child Study, vol. 37, (Spring 1960), pp. 16-20.

Discusses the dilemma of the parent educator: "Can or should parents' long-held values be attacked; can or should the parent educator improve his own values?" The author suggests guidelines for answering these questions.

Chilman, Catherine S., "The Crisis and Challenge of Low-Income Families in the 1960's: Implications for Parent Education," Journal of Marriage and the Family, vol. 26, no. 1 (February 1964), pp. 39-44.

Duvall, Evelyn M., "How Effective Are Marriage Courses?" Journal of Marriage and the Family, vol. 27, no. 2 (May 1965), pp. 176-184.

A review of over 50 reports of the effectiveness of marriage courses. Concludes that generally marriage courses are effective, but provides suggestions for upgrading marriage and family life education.

Duvall, Evelyn M., "Implications for Education Through the Family Life Cycle," Marriage and Family Living, vol. 20, no. 4 (November 1958), pp. 334-343.

Gives a brief summary of the developmental approach to family life. Provides a list of the challenges and hazards of each stage of the family life cycle and their implications for education. Closes with a discussion of some family life education challenges.

Folkman, Jerome D., "A New Approach to Family Life Education," Marriage and Family Living, vol. 17, no. 1 (February 1955), pp. 20-25.

Discusses the disadvantages of a "problem-oriented" approach to family life education and describes his own "simplified theoretical" approach based on the "cultural lag theory", essentially a situational approach.

Force, Elizabeth, "A Critical Look at Family Life Courses," PTA Magazine, April 1964.

A forthright estimate of three decades of attempts to implement education for family life at all age levels.

FAMILY LIFE EDUCATION

Frank, Lawrence K., "The Beginnings of Child Development and Family Life Education in the Twentieth Century," Merrill-Palmer Quarterly, vol. 8, (October 1962), pp. 207-227.

A historical analysis of child development and parent and family life education.

Frank, Lawrence K., "Challenge of Family Life Education," Merrill-Palmer Quarterly, vol. 5, (Winter 1959), pp. 67-80.

Discusses the implications of changes in the family institution for family life education: unspoken assumptions, expectations and inclinations affecting teachers and "students."

Frasier, Roberta C., "Beware the Elephants," Journal of Marriage and the Family, vol. 29, no. 2 (May 1967), pp. 380-383.

A discussion of the meaning and nature of family life and sex education.

Frick, Willard B., "Child Psychology: The Challenge to Parent Education," Merrill-Palmer Quarterly, vol. 5, (Summer 1959), pp. 180-184.

Discusses the often misleading or inaccurate nature of "popular" articles for parents. Stresses the responsibility of parent education agencies to give parents adequate knowledge of the basic principles of child growth and adjustment.

Grams, Armin, Parent Education and the Behavioral Sciences, Children's Bureau Publication No. 379, 1960, 52 pp., (paperback $ .25).

The edited proceedings of a 1958 conference concerned with the relationship between parent education and behavioral science research. Deals with the definition of parental roles; determinants of parental behavior; modification of parental behavior; parent education and personality change; and research and the future of parent education.

Gruenberg, Sidonie M., "Do Parents Need the Experts?," Parents Magazine (October 1956).

A popular consideration of such questions as: "Who are the experts?," "What can they tell parents?," "How can their advice be put to best use?"

Hobbs, Daniel F., Jr., "Transition to Parenthood: A Replication and an Extension," Journal of Marriage and the Family, vol. 30, no. 3, (August 1968), pp. 413-417.

An attempt to replicate an earlier study and to determine whether variability among published findings on adjusting to the first child may be due in part to the use of different measuring instruments. Confirms that parenthood is not as severely stressful as earlier studies had suggested.

Hofstein, Sol, "Planning for Family Life Education," Mental Hygiene, vol. 41, (October 1958), pp. 525-529.

Develops the theme that family life education is a product of our change-oriented, future-oriented culture and should be treated not as a panacea but as a contribution in the society's effort to assuage the effects of its own changing.

Huff, Patricia, "Does Family Life Education Help?," The Family Coordinator, vol. 17, no. 3 (July 1968), pp. 185-187.

A study of the effects on attitudes toward child-rearing of a college course in marriage and the family. The results appear to indicate that an education program in family living may be effective in changing attitudes.
