ABSTRACT

written primarily for the non-Russian speaking student, this course is designed to demonstrate how simple and interesting Russian studies can be. Performance objectives are presented in two categories: language and culture. After the statement of each language objective, letters indicate the language skills to which the objective is directed. The lettering code for these skills is: listening (L), speaking (S), reading (R), and writing (W). Topics for independent study include: (1) geography, (2) history, (3) the Communist Party, (4) literatures, (5) music, (6) sports, (7) education, (8) youth, (9) family, (10) delinquency, (11) religion, (12) humor, (13) arts, (14) voting, (15) secret police, (16) labor camps, and (17) military and science. This course may be taken for credit in language or social studies. Sample evaluation materials are included. (RL)

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is designed to show the non-Russian speaking student how easy and interesting Russian studies can be. The student will survey the basic skills of the Russian language and the major topics of Russian area studies before doing an independent study of the topic which most interests him.

These topics include geography, history, Communist Party, literature, music recreation, sports, education, youth, family, delinquency, religion, humor, arts, voting, secret police, labor camps, military and science. Furthermore, the student will have the opportunity to learn to read, write and speak simple Russian. This course may be taken for credit in language or social studies. The Russian speaking student may also take this course.

PREFACE

This course is written primarily with the non-Russian speaking student in mind. The Russian speaking student taking this course will have to meet the performance objectives of the most advanced course in the Russian language he has completed as related to the content of the course described herein.

The performance objectives of this course are divided into two categories: language and culture. After the statement of each language objective the reader will find letters in parentheses to indicate the language skills to which the objective is dedicated. The lettering code for these language skills are listening (L), speaking (S), reading (R) and writing (W).

In the Sample Evaluation section of this course the evaluation samples have been numbered so as to correspond to the numbers of the performance objectives. Thus L-1 and C-1 are the evaluation samples respectively for the first language (L) objective and first cultural (C) objective in the Performance Objectives section. Included in some of the sample evaluations are suggested lesson outlines from which the evaluations can be made. Sometimes two sample evaluations refer to the same lesson content and therefore may be out of numerical order. The sample evaluations for a few performance objectives have been left to the discretion of the individual teacher.

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

The learner at the end of this course, according to his level of maturity and achievement, will be able to at least:

Language

EXPANSION OF MATERIALS

This course is designed to stimulate the interest of the non - Russian speaking student in the Russian culture and language with the goal of having the student enroll in a Russian language course. The student's satisfaction and success with this inquiry into the bread range of not too difficult cultural topics and the related language concepts and skills included in the course will best insure his continuation in Russian language studies. The teacher should endeavor to make the learning activities of this course enjoyable ones.

The initial activity should be the study of the Russian alphabet, the sound - letter correspondence. The procedure used may be borrowed from any of several first year Russian language courses in combination with the learning activities package, Russian Alphabet, developed by the Foreign Language Department of the Dade County Public Schools (see reference). Perhaps a week should be devoted to the learning of the sounds of the Russian alphabet. Some students may not master it and this is not essential for them to get credit for the course. Be careful not to linger too long on this activity as you may lose the spontaneity of the student looking forward to the related activities.

To reenforce the sound - letter correspondence begin as soon as possible the study of cultural topics using the Russian cognates and proper nouns connected with each topic. Give each patronymic and surname). Introduce basic Russian expressions useful in the conduct of class and those useful to the presenting the materials of each new topic as it is introduced for study. Encourage the students to use the Russian whenever known and appropriate. The teacher should require good pronunciation, but don't be so severe as to stifle the student's enthusiasm for experimenting with the language.

While formal language instruction (spelling, grammar, structure drills, etc.) may not be appropriate for all members of the class, individual and group interests in these areas should be encouraged and satisfied. Games may be utilized to encourage the class as a whole to concentrate on perfecting language skills. Spelling can be taught through "Geography." (1) the recognition of printed Russian geographical names placed on the blackboard by the students or (2) the sequential listing by the students of a new geographical name with the initial letter the same as the final letter of the preceding entry. Games patterned after "Who am I", "Twenty Questions", Bingo, Tic-tac-toe, Hangman and others may be employed to improve such skills as using familiar expressions, case declensions, verb conjugation and usage, numbers, dictation, etc. Experience has been such that students will work overtime to prepare a challenging game to present to their classmates.

To satisfy the Social Studies requirements of this course ample topic have been suggested in the course content outline, perhaps more than can be accomplished in the nine weeks duration of this course. In achieving the Social Studies objectives it will be necessary to do much of the instruction and discussion of this material in the native language. Remember that not all the students in this class have the desire or ability to master the language skills and will be awarded credit on the basis of their mastery of the cultural content of this course in the native language. When teaching this content in the native language the teacher should endeavor to use the inquiry method of instruction, 1.e., formulating an hypothesis, gathering data, testing the hypothesis and reaching a conclusion. The teacher should be careful not to present a selected list of facts (as may be done in many of the language related cultural topics such as the historical outline) or impress his own interpretations and convictions on the students. Instead the teacher should introduce material in a manner that will elicit from the student critical thinking and questioning. Pupil questions should be answered with other questions or with multiple solutions so as to encourage the student to reach his own conclu-(For further information and examples of the inquiry method see Edwin Fenton and Byron Massialis in the reference section of this course.)

After the student has surveyed the topics of Russian culture and the sources of information available to research the Russian culture the student should be encouraged to do an independent project in the area of his interest thereby giving him an opportunity to use the language and social studies skills encountered in this course. The product of this activity should also give the teacher the answer to a prime objective of this course - "demonstrate an interest in the Russian language and culture" - with the hope that he will continue in the Russian language.

C-11. Instead of sample evaluative instruments the following outlines suggest sample lessons from which activities may be initiated and evaluative instruments drawn to satisfy the objective C-11 and others.

Russian Reading Habits

The Pussians are more avid readers than Americans.

They publish more but cheaper editions than the Americans.

Why do they read so much?

- The Party encourages reading for - indoctrination [all printed matter is censored and carries the official (glavlit) approval al number] advancement (through education)

- The Russian is curious about the world that is censored for him by his government.
- Its a form of recreation and escape from the sometimes drab routine.

Probable order of reading preferences

- Russian classical literature (see Literature and Music)
- Translations of western literature

Shakespeare - WAKCTINP
Hemingway - TAMUHTBEN
Mark Twain - MAPK TBAHL

- Modern Russian literature

The Russain is unimpressed with political and doctrinal themes such as a worker abandoning his sweetheart to return to meet the factory quota and become an unselfish hero of the Soviet state.

- Spy stories and science fiction (they have some good ones)

Periodical literature

Newspapers - TASETA (on many topics)

Pravda - TPABAA (official organ of the Party)

Izvestiya -NSBE(TMA (official organ of the government)

Soviet Sports - COBET(KMM CMOPT

Literary Gazette - ANTEPATYPHAA FASETA

Labor - TPYA

Magazines - XYPHAA (on most topics)

Sport - (MOPT

Badio - PAANO

APMUS - APMUS

Chemistry - XUMUA

Crocodile - KPOKOAUA (satirical humor magazine)

America - AMEPUKA (U.S. government publication in Russian sold in the USSR in exchange for the Soviet publication Soviet Life in English sold in the U.S. - price of both 50%)

Women's Lib - A Russian Discovery
There is equality in the labor force.

Women work as bricklayers, doctors, painters, truck and bus drivers, farmers, streetsweepers, construction workers, road repairwomen, etc.

Soviet justification - "The democratic nature of the Soviet society has eliminated discrimination based on sex."

Practical justification -

- the forced pace of the Soviet economy requires their supplementing the numbers in the labor market.
- the second income of the wife or daughter is essential to the well-being of most Soviet families.

Soviet women's complaints -

- they are still responsible for the housework.
- nurseries are not always available to the children.
- too much time spent in lines to make purchases.
- lack of conveniences; private kitchens, washing machines, refrigerators, etc.

A Vacation With Your "Comrades" - OR - A Family Vacation?
The Soviet vacation:

- as an incentive of the state to party officials and to the outstanding workers (Stakhanovites (TAXAHOBUH).
- Black Sea beach resorts most desirable and usually reserved for the elite. (health spas (AHATOPЫ)
- excursion boats down the Volga River are popular.
- working husband and wife cannot usually arrange vacations for the same time.
- the factory or place of work is given an allotment of resort accommodations. The worker must make arrangements for his family, if possible, to be located nearby and this at his own expense.

- if during the school term, children cannot usually accompany the parents. Children have their allotted vacations at pioneer camp -
- is organized to include lectures, calisthenics and guided tours.

Practical results:

- the husband or wife individually takes advantage of his or hers earned vacation in the company of comrade workers.
- the husband or wife spends his vacation at home using local recreational facilities.

What does the Russian do for recreation?

- Spectator sports

Soccer - PYTEON (not AMEPUKAHCKUЙ РУТЕОЛ major teams (Moscow) Dinamo - AUHAMO Spartak - CTAPTAK

Hockey - XOKKEN

Basketball - BACKET BOA

- Participating sports

Gymnastics - TUMHACTUKA

- many organized clubs
- merit badges awarded for skills
- highest award: "Ready for Labor and Defense"

Volleyball - BONNENTON

Tennis - TEHHUC

local sport camps - CMOPTUBHLIU NATEPL

Chess: the national game - ШАУМАТЫ

Check and Mate - WAX / W MAT

Dining: infrequently because it is expensive

In Moscow -

- PECTOPAH - maybe 50 good restaurants -
- in hotels
- some with bands for dancing (compare with our bands of the 1940s)
- CTONOBAS - 130,000 dining rooms -
 - on the order of a army mess hall
 - no "drinking only"
 - no smoking
- After 12AM only a few bars and restaurants stay open. Plays (TEATP), Movies (KNHO), Concerts (KOHLEPT) and Ballet (BANNET)
 - inexpensive
 - much propaganda
 - ballet is world famous
