FOREWORD

In recent years, numerous statutes have been passed, executive orders, attorney general opinions, and court decisions issued governing state and local government labor relations within the 50 states. Keeping track of these legal developments is a major task in itself.

The following chart represents a compilation of the salient features of each state's legal provisions for the regulation of public sector labor relations. Interpretation of what may actually be occurring outside the legal frame. work in the states is beyond the scope of this summary. For a more detailed report on public sector labor relations in the states, the reader should consult the Division's publication, State Profiles: Current Status of Public Sector Labor Relations. For greater information concerning the administrative machinery for the conduct of public sector labor relations within the states, one should consult the Division's Directory of Public Employment Relations Boards and Agencies.

The chart is organized in a manner which facilitates summary comparisons between jurisdictions. Five main classes of employees are listed for each state jurisdiction. These are by no means the only employee groups that could have been included. These five employee groups have been selected because we have identified them as the most significant actor relations. Legal authorit employee-management relations these various groups where If there is no specific legroup of employees, this idashes. the most significant actors in public sector labor relations. Legal authority governing the public employee-management relationship is cited for these various groups where such authority exists. If there is no specific legal authority for a group of employees, this is indicated by three dashes. When coverage of one group of employees comes under the same authority as that of another group of employees, this is indicated by three asterisks. "A" indicates coverage by Attorney General Opinion; "E.O." indicates coverage by Executive Order.

We have attempted to be as comprehensive as possible in terms of major categories. However, no attempt has been made to provide exhaustive substantive information. Our purpose is to provide a capsule view of legal authority, types of employees covered, and functional activities provided for in each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. For greater information and detail, one should consult the authority cited.

Where special clarifications were necessary, footnotes have been utilized. The footnotes are listed at the end of the chart.

This summary was prepared by Marc Schieber and Thomas J. Colucci, under the supervision of Jerome T. Barrett, Chief, Division of Public Employee Labor Relations, Office of Labor-Management Relations Services.

- 1. The term "mediation" as used in the Alaska teachers statute (ch. 18 Laws of 1970, as amended by ch. 43 Laws of 1971) is the same procedure as most other jurisdictions refer to as "fact-finding". The mediation board under the Alaska statute hears evidence and issues findings and recommendations.
- 2. The California firefighters law (secs. 1960-63 ch. 723 1951 L. of The Labor Code) applies to all firefighters. In addition, firefighters employed in local government are covered by The Meyers-Milias-Brown Act (secs. 3500-3510 ch. 1964, 1961 L. as last amended by ch. 64 Laws of 1970).
- 3. There seems to be a conflict of authority as to whether public employees have a right to bargain collectively in Florida as Executive Order 71-20 (1971) forbids the state to bargain collectively with state employees, while The Dade County Classroom Teachers Ass'n v. Ryan case (225 So. 2d 903 (1969) clearly indicates that all public employees in Florida possess the same rights as private sector employees with the exception of the right to strike.
- 4. The Florida Act covering firemen (ch. 67-900, 1967 L. as amended by ch. 69-791, 1969 L.) applies only to counties of not less than 390,000 population. (Dade, Duvall, and Hillsboro counties)
- 5. The Florida Act covering teachers (ch. 69-665 Laws of 1969) applies only to counties of not less than 390,000 nor more than 470,000 population. (Dade, Duvall, and Hillsboro counties)

- 9. For a complete examination of the status of public employee strikes in Illinois see County of Peoria v. Benedict, 265 N. E. 2d llul (1970). The Benedict case held that the Illinois antiinjunction act was applicable to county hospital workers, thereby rendering a strike by such workers unenjoinable.
- 10. The Maine Law (ch. 63, 1968 L. as amended by ch. 550 1970 L.) merely establishes grievance procedures for state employees.
- 11. The term "mediation" as used in the Maryland Teachers Law (sec. 160 ch. 405, 1969 L.) is the same procedure as most other jurisdictions refer to as "fact-finding". The mediation board under the Maryland statute hears evidence and issues findings and recommendations.
- 12. The Massachusetts Law covering state employees (ch. 149, 1965 L. as amended by 340 and 445, 1970 L. sec.178 D-F) specifically excludes state police.
- 13. The Court of Industrial Felations in Nebraska does not enter into teacher disputes until all the provisions of the Nebraska Teachers Law (H.B. 485, 1967 L.) have been exhausted.
