ABSTRACT

The plight of the approximately 500,000 Metis, people of Indian and mixed blood, and Non-Status Indians, people of Indian ancestry who have lost their status for one reason or another, has been ignored both by the Federal Government and the Provincial Governments of Canada. The Metis and Non-Status Indians have won group recognition by organizing themselves in the different provincial areas of Canada. The Native Council of Canada, organized by the Metis and Non-Status Indians to serve them at the Federal level by working with the Federal government agencies and departments, parliamentarians, the National Indian Brotherhood, Inuit Tapirisat of Canada, and other organizations, is working to achieve the goal for the Metis and Non-Status Indians of full native participation in the mainstream of Canada's social, cultural, and economic life. Photographs of "The Forgotten People" and maps of Canada's provincial areas are included. (FF)

METIS AND NON-STATUS INDIAN ASSOCIATIONS

The two Riel Rebellions (Red River 1870; Saskatchewan 1885) are the explosions which forcibly brought the Metis people to the national attention in Canada. But Metis had been here for a long time – some say they were born nine months after the arrival of the white man. They were the voyageurs, the explorers, the hunters who together with their Indian brothers made possible the opening of the North American continent. The Manitoba Act of 1870 admitted their existence by granting them 1,200,000 acres of land, and other Land Scrip and Land Grants Acts further recognized them as a separate, identifiable legal entity. The Riel Rebellions were fought over the land question and the basic conflict between the Metis culture and that of the white man. Neither problem has been settled to this day.

WHO ARE THEY?

They are people of Indian ancestry. Many of them to this day speak only the Native language, live the Native culture and identify with their Indian relatives. The Federal Government states that it has no responsibility for Metis and the Provincial Governments largely ignore them. They are Canada's most deprived people in terms health, education, housing, income and civil rights. The Non-Status Indians are those who have lost their Indian status for one reason or another. The Federal Government states it has no responsibility for them either and the Provincial Governments largely ignore them.

They are Canada's forgotten people.

WHAT OF TOMORROW?

There are about 500,000 Metis and Non-Status Indians scattered throughout Canada. They could well remain a drain on the Canadian economy, a vast waste of human dignity and human resources and a blight on Canada's claim to world leadership. They are Canada's living denial of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

But they have awakened to begin the long climb to the recovery of pride in their culture and in their heritage. They intend to become contributors to the social and economic life of Canada — for it was theirs before it belonged to anyone else! The Metis and Non-Status Indian Associations have come into being to achieve these objectives.

DEFINITIONS:

- Person: (Indian Act 1876-1951) an individual other than an Indian
- Indian: (Indian Act: 1951—) a person registered under the terms of the Indian Act.
- Metis: Spanish/French definition indicating mixed blood between Indian and other; also "half-breed", "breed". In the Prairie provinces and N.W. Ontario anyone of Indian ancestry, who is not under the Indian Act.
- Non-Status Indian: Person of Indian ancestry who has lost "Indian" status through enfranchisement, marriage, or who was not registered as an Indian or who was refused Indian status by the federal agency.

NATIVE COUNCIL OF CANADA

(Metis and Non-Status Indians)

On November 16, 1970 (the 85th anniversary of the hanging of Louis Riel) the leaders of the Metis associations of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta met with the President of the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians at Victoria, British Columbia. Their purpose was to bring to reality an idea that had been thought about for many years: the formation of a national body to represent all those native people known as the Metis and non-status Indians. Subsequent meetings were held, and in April 1971, the Native Council of Canada came into formal existence with a head office in Ottawa, the national capital.

Three executive officers were elected at that time.

President: A.E. (Tony) Belcourt (Alberta)
Vice-President: Jim Sinclair (Saskatchewan)
Secretary-Treasurer: Angus Spence (Manitoba)

A board of directors was established to act as the governing body for the Council, composed of the Presidents and Vice-Presidents (or alternates) from each provincial organization in existence or coming into existence. Since that modest beginning, less than a year ago, the board has been expanded to include two new directors from each of the following associations: Ontario, Quebec and the Yukon. Initial groundwork has been completed in the Northwest Territories and in the Maritime provinces.

The main purpose of the Native Council of Canada is to serve its member associations by acting as their group agent at the federal level in Ottawa. Its further purpose is to present a united front in securing for individual provincial or territorial organizations programs and policies that can meet needs at the local level. In carrying out these functions, the Council works with federal government agencies and departments, parliamentarians, the National Indian Brotherhood, Inuit Tapirisat of Canada and all other organizations to achieve the goal of full native participation in the mainstream of Canada's social, cultural and economic life.

During the first year of the Council's operation, its policies were set by its board of directors, until the first Annual General Assembly could be held. This meeting is now taking place and it is this assembly that must guide the future direction of the Council.

The national office is located at: 77 Metcalfe Street, Suite 1010, Ottawa, Ontario.
Telephone: 613 - 238-3511.
