REVIEW
In the word arrangement ;
the root is	arrange
the ending is	ment
The root ends in the letter e which is a:
consonant vowel	vowel
The ending begins with the letter $\underline{\mathbf{m}}$ which is a:
consonant vowel	consonant
10.
Root word + ending = New word аптапде + ment = arrangement believe + able = believable
LOOK AT the root words above. Both root words end in which letter?	e
The ending ment begins with a:
☐ consonant ☐ vowel	consonant
The ending able begins with a:
☐ consonant ☐ vowel	vowel

☐ it was dropped ☐ it was kept	it was dropped 12.
READ this list of words:
arrange + ment = arrangement care + ful = careful care + less = careless definite + ly = definitely
With what kind of letter do all the endings above begin?
☐ consonants ☐ vowels	consonants
What happened to the e in all the words listed above?
the e was dropped the e was kept	the e was kept 13.

READ this list of words:
admire + ing = admiring
believe + able = believable
come + ing = comig
love + able = lovab!e
With what kind of letter do the endings above begin?
consonants vowels	vowels
What happened to the $\underline{e}$ in all the words listed above?
☐ the e was dropped ☐ the e was kept	the e was dropped

14.
Before endings can be correctly added to a root word, you must first keep your eye on the final e of the root word to see whether you keep the e or drop the e.
Next you LOOK at the ending which is to be added to the root to decide whether it begins with a vowel or consonant.
In the case of the word: arrange + ment you first notice that the root ends in $\underline{e}$ .
The ending begins with a:
consonant vowel	Consonant
The Rule is: when an ending which begins with a consonant is added to a root which has a final $\underline{e}$ you:
drop the $\underline{e}$ before adding the ending keep the $\underline{e}$ before adding the ending	keep the $\underline{e}$ before 15.
Using the rule, add endings to the words below:
RULE: KEEP the final e before endings beginning with a consonant.
manage + ment =	management
positive + ly =	positively
replace + ment =	replacement

16.
In the case of the word: admire + able you notice that the root ends in the letter	е
The ending begins with a:
consonant vowel	vowel
The new word is admirable.
The Rule is: When an ending which begins with a vowel is added to a word ending in final e , you:
drop the e before adding the ending keep the e before adding the ending	drop the e before 17.
Use the rule and add endings to the words below:
RULE: DROP the final e before endings beginning with a vowel.
hinge + ing =	hinging
make + ing =	making
live + able =	livable

PREVIEW FRAME You have just learned two rules which will help you remember whether to keep the final  $\underline{e}$  or drop the final  $\underline{e}$  of the root word when you add endings to words. These rules will work for you most of the time, but unfortunately there are some words for which the rules do not fit. The next few frames will acquaint you with some of the exceptions to the rule. ## PREVIEW FRAME

As anyone knows who has ever read a sentence in English, every letter in the alphabet may be written as a CAPITAL LETTER, or as a small letter.

Although you are probably so accustomed to capitalization that you barely notice it when you read, proper capitalization is of great use to you in helping you understand the written word. Capital letters are signs of the beginning of sentences, of names of people and places, of days of the week, and of many other types of words which you, as a reader, must take note of. The capital letter alerts you to what is taking place or to what is being said.

In this lesson you will learn when capitalization is required and how it is used.

NO RESPONSE REQUIRED

Get out! Please leave the room. Why don't you forget about it and go? It would be better if you left.
Above are four instances of the most common type of capitalization. We say a word is capitalized if it begins with a capital letter as do the underlined words above.	·
Which one of the following best sums up the rule of capitalization exemplified by all four of the illustrations above?
Capitalize the first word of every command. Capitalize the first word of every question. Capitalize the first word of every sentence.	every sentence.
UNDERLINE the words below that should be capitalized.
they spent the day on the beach.	they
she explained that they spent the day on the beach.	she
did they spend the day on the beach?	did 3.
CIRCLE the letters in the following selection that should be capitalized.
we asked her if she would like to help us. she was angry that we could have thought her capable of refusing. who could have imagined that? incredible! we were amazed that she, the only daughter of a rich and doting father, pampered and spoiled all her life, should be so eager.	we asked her if she would like to help us. She was angry that we could have thought her capable of refusing. Who could have imagined that? Ancredible! We were amazed that she, the only daughter of a rich and doting father, pampered and spoiled all her life, should be so eager.

	Another major use of capitalization is to designate the names of people and places.
Jane Fields, my brother Harry, Professor Peterson, Aunt Lucy, Mrs. Harris, and three doctors gathered for the meeting on Elm Street. There they elected a president for their new organization. One of my cousins was supposed to be there, but she was ill and went to see Dr. Stone instead.		Lucy, Mrs. Harris, and three doctors gathered e meeting on Elm Street. There they elected a lent for their new organization. One of my ns was supposed to be there, but she was ill
	On the	kamples given below are all in small letters.  basis of the above selection, CHECK the types  ds that should be capitalized.
		first names	first names
		family n ames	famil y n ames family relations (e.g., sister, uncle, niece)
		titles of people when they accompany their names (e.g., uncle Tom, mayor Leonards, judge Harkness)	titles of people titles not accompanying names (e.g., an uncle, a mayor, a judge)
		names of streets	names of streets
		types of groups (e.g., club, committee, company)

All names of people, places, organizations, and the like, are capitalized. In addition, all titles accompanying names are capitalized, while those which do not are not.

Consider the following example:

Last year three new judges were elected. Judge Coleman was among them.

CIRCLE the letters in the sentences below that should be capitalized.

My aunt sue went to see a doctor about her cold.

My brother was elected chairman of a new club called the greybeards.

Yesterday I saw mrs. smith and her daughter.

I think mayor richards is the youngest mayor we have ever  $\mbox{had}_{\:\raisebox{1pt}{\text{\circle*{1.5}}}}$

My aunt sue went to see . . .

. . . Othe Oreybeards.

Yesterday I saw mrs. Smith . . .

I think mayor chards . . .

Remember that only words referring to people, places, or things by name should be capitalized.

DRAW an X over every letter that is incorrectly capitalized in the sentences below.

Tomorrow my Brother and my Cousin are visiting a new Lawyer on Elm Street. The Lawyer, whose name is John P. Riley, is a member of the Bar Association. His partner is another Lawyer who was once a Professor at State University. His name is Mr. Green and he is the Uncle of one of the richest Bank Presidents in town.

Tomorrow my Arother and my Cousin are visiting a new Kawyer on Elm Street. The Kawyer, whose name is John P. Riley, is a member of the Bar Association. WHEN TO USE CAPITALIZATION

Capital letters are signs of the beginnings of sentences, of names of people, places, days of the week, and of many other types of words. By alerting you to these things, capital letters help you follow what is going on in what you read.

BEGINNING OF A SENTENCE

Capitalize the first word of every sentence.

Examples: Get out!

Please leave the room.
Why don't you leave already?
It would be better that way.

NAMES OF PEOPLE AND PLACES

Capitalize the full names of people.

Example: Judith Gail Murphy

Capitalize titles of people but only when they accompany names.

Examples: Judge Jones, Uncle Mack,

Mayor Bradley, Mrs. Townsend but, a judge, an uncle, a mayor.

Capitalize the full names of streets, cities, states, countries, buildings, parks, and the like.

Examples: the Chase Manhattan Bank

Yosemite National Park Grayson Boulevard

Capitalize the words, north, south, east, and west when they designate a section of the country, but not when they indicate direction.

Examples: California is in the West.

but, California lies west of Texas.

NAMES OF PEOPLE AND PLACES (cont'd)

Capitalize the names of languages, but not other subjects.

Example: The Latin professor teaches

French and German. but, The Latin professor teaches French, mathematics and geography.

Capitalize names of nationalities.

Examples: He is Portuguese.

Tom is an Englishman.

NAMES OF LITERARY WORKS

Capitalize the full names of all literary works or compositions, such as titles of books, songs, and poems.

Examples: And Then There Was You

The Sea Around Us

Exception: Do not capitalize small connecting words in a title such as, on, a, of, in, and, the, unless they occur at the beginning of the title.

Examples: In the Still of the Night

Of Mice and Men

Capitalize the names of days of the week and months of the year.

Examples: The last day I remember is Saturday, February 21.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
MANPOWER ADMINISTRATION, JOB CORPS
NOVEMBER 1969-

When someone is telling you a story, he pauses after each sentence, or after certain groups of words, to let you know that he has just completed a separate statement. If he did not do this, you would not be able to follow him; and, what's more, he would soon run out of breath.

Readers, too, can "run out of breath." If we did not have a way of pausing when we read, we would soon be lost in a tangle of words and ideas that seem to have no meaning.

In order to tell readers when to pause, we use punctuation. We use periods, commas, and other marks to tell our readers that we have come to the end of a single phrase or sentence. Without these marks, it would be very difficult to make any sense out of Written English.

Look at this paragraph written without any punctuation at all:

During the Middle Ages due as much to politics as to problems of supply transportation and mobilization it was impossible to attain strategic surprise in military campaigns it took weeks even months to assemble an army and even when the force was collected it could move only a few miles a day even the massing of ships though more secretive was difficult to conceal

As you can see, we need "breathing stops" in Written English, too. In this progression you will learn what punctuation marks are, and when and how they should be used.

You are about to begin several lessons that will teach you how to punctuate. These are punctuation marks used in the English language. Many of them may be familiar to you.
. period . comma ; semi-colon : colon — dash ' apostrophe ? question mark ! exclamation mark () parenthesis " " quotation marks  In an earlier lesson you learned how to use an apostrophe. When you form possessives, you add an apostrophe and an s; it looks like this 's.
For example:
John owns that car. That is John 's car.
Which of the following require an apostrophe?
☐ Where is my coat☐ Is that coat yours☐ No, that is Roachs coat	No, that is Apostrophes are used another way. Which of the following sentences has an apostrophe?
☐ It is cold here!☐ It's cold here!	It's cold here!

Knowing what a period is presents no problem. It's a dot. But, some other marks might be confused. For example, you might confuse a comma with an apostrophe because they almost look alike. However, they are always placed differently.
LOOK AT this example:
Geoffrey, where is that man's bicycle?
Which mark is placed above the letters?
the apostrophe the comma	the apostrophe
MATCH the following marks with their names:
A. Jack . 1comma	1. B
B. Jack, 2apostrophe	2. C
C. Jack 's 3period	3. A
Two other marks that might be confused are colons and semi-colons. However, these punctuation marks are easy to tell apart. Notice that a colon has two dots and a semi-colon has a dot and a comma.  MAKE the correct punctuation mark beside its name:  semi-colon  colon  comma

EXCLAMATION MARKS

A sentence that shows strong emotional feeling ends in an exclamation mark (!).

Most sentences which do not ask a question can end with either a period or an exclamation mark. Exclamation marks should only be used when there is strong emotional feeling.

Examples: I never saw such a beautiful sky!

but, The sky is as grey as it was yesterday.

The nurse said she would have to give me another injection if I felt sick. I yelled, "Listen, I'm fine!"

but, John asked me how I felt.

I said, "I'm fine."

POSITION OF EXCLAMATION MARKS

Like question marks, exclamation marks always belong at the end of the sentence.

Examples: Wow, that was a great trip!

That was a great trip, Jack!

but not, Wow! that was a great trip.
and not, That was a great trip! Jack.

USES OF A COMMA IN AN EXCLAMATION

A comma is used to set off the name of a person being directly addressed from the rest of the exclamation.

Examples: Joe, what a lovely surprise!

What a lovely surprise, Joe!

A comma is also used to set off introductory words such as, wow, gee, well, oh, and the like from the rest of the exclamation.

Example: Gosh, this is delicious!

PREVIEW FRAME
This lesson, like the previous one, deals with a form of punctuation with which you are already very familiar, both from your own reading, and from earlier lessons in this program.
As you have already learned, quotation marks ("") are used to indicate that someone is speaking. The quotation marks surround the words being spoken. You may remember from the lessons on literature how quotation marks are commonly used to distinguish a character's speech from description or narrative.
Quotation marks are a powerful device to help the reader understand what is going on in the selection he is reading. In this lesson you will learn to use them correctly.
NO RESPONSE REQUIRED	GO ON TO THE NEXT FRAME
There are two ways of writing what someone said: you can quote the exact words used, or you can restate what was said.
For example: Suppose your friend says:
"I am going home."
You can use his exact words:
My friend said, "I am going home."
or you can use other words:
My friend said that he was going home.
In which case do you use QUOTATION MARKS?

To QUOTE someone, is to use the words that he used.
A direct quote uses the exact words; an indirect quote uses other words.
CHECK the sentence which is an INDIRECT QUOTE:
He said, "I am your friend." He said he was my friend.	He said he was my friend.

Which sentence is an INDIRECT QUOTE?
☐ He told me he was sick. ☐ "I am sick," he told me.	He told me he was sick.

UNDERLINE the words in the sentences below that are enclosed in quotation marks.
His lawyer warned him, "Don't lose your head!" His lawyer warned him not to lose his head.	" Don't lose your head !"
From the above examples you can see that an indirect quote is:
<ul><li>enclosed in quotation marks</li><li>not enclosed in quotation marks</li></ul>	not enclosed in quotation marks
When quotation marks are used, they:
appear only before the first word quoted appear only after the last word quoted enclose only the words that are quoted enclose the entire sentence containing the quote	enclose only the words that 7.
Quotation marks are used to mark off words that were actually spoken by someone. They surround the words that were actually spoken, so that the reader can easily distinguish between description or narrative, and speech or dialogue.
Since quotation marks surround only words that were actually spoken, they are used only for:

So far, you have learned about quotation marks used for direct quotes.

Another use of quotation marks is to enclose titles of songs, poems, stories and essays.

Book titles, however, are not placed in quotes; they are underlined.

Use quotes or underlines for the titles in these sentences:

His story How I Caught the Fish was the best story I had read.

The book Farewell to Arms is not on our list.

The reading of the essay Why I am Glad to be an American was the best part of the evening.

"How I Caught the Fish"

Farewell to Arms

"Why I . . . American"

20.
FILL IN the missing quotation marks or underlines in the sentences below.
The poem Daffodills was recited at the eighth- grade assembly.	"Daffodills"
Where did you learn that new song called Peanuts?	"Peanuts"?
The song Transfixed , an old-time favorite, is enjoying a revival.	"Transfixed"
Did you read Son of Tarzan or any other book?	Son of Tarzan 21.
PREVIEW FRAME
Earlier in this program you learned a little about the use of commas in relation to quotation marks. Like all other punctuation, commas that are relevant to the words inside the quotation marks belong inside the quotation; marks and commas that have nothing to do with the contents of the quotation marks belong outside of them.
Now you will learn a few rules that specifically govern the use of commas in and around quotation marks.
NO RESPONSE REQUIRED	GO ON TO THE NEXT FRAME
	ļ

Sometimes punctuation belongs to the sentence quoted. When that is so, the punctuation should be placed
For example:
He said, "Are you ready yet?"  Since the question mark belongs to that sentence, it comes before the final quotation mark:
"John, are you ready yet?" he asked.  Which of these sentences is NOT punctuated correctly?
<ul><li>"Are you there"? he asked.</li><li>"Are you there?" he asked.</li><li>"You're right!" I replied.</li></ul>	there"? (not correct)
"You're right"? I replied.	right"? (not correct)
Punctuate this sentence where it is underlined:
"How are you I asked.	you?" (Be sure the question mark comes before the quotation mark.)
24.
When a direct quote does NOT end a sentence, it can have which of the following before the final quotation mark:
a question mark an exclamation mark a period	a question mark an exclamation mark
□ a comma	a comma

25.
Which sentence has correct punctuation marks under- lined:
☐ "Do not close the door ." I said. ☐ "Do not close the door ." I said.	door," I said.
26.
When a direct quote does not begin a sentence, there is a comma before the first quotation mark:
For example:
We said, "Do not close the door."
Which of the following is correct:
Fred cried, "Aren't you ready yet?"  Fred cried "Aren't you ready yet?"	cried , " 27.
Whenever a quotation does NOT end a sentence, there MUST be a question mark, exclamation point or a comma just before the last quotation (you cannot use a period).
For example:
"Jump in the lake," he said, "or I'll push you."
(NOTICE that there are TWO commas, one before a quotation mark and one after.)

GENERAL USE OF QUOTATION MARKS

Quotation marks ("...") are used to mark off a direct quote, that is, to enclose the exact words that were spoken. They are not used to mark off indirect quotes, that is, they do not enclose a quote that uses words other than the exact words spoken.

Examples:

DIRECT OUOTE - They asked, "Are you going?"

INDIRECT QUOTE - They asked if we were going.

Direct quotes end in periods ONLY when they  $\underline{\text{end}}$  a sentence.

Examples: He said, "I am leaving." but, "I am leaving," he said.

When a sentence which gets a period at the end does NOT end a sentence, it is given a comma.

Examples: "We are at home."

but, "We are at home," they said.

Sentences which do NOT have direct quotes do not have any special punctuation.

Examples:

DIRECT QUOTE - I asked him, "Will you be finished soon?"

INDIRECT QUOTE - I asked him if he would

NDIRECT QUOTE - I asked him if he would be finished soon.

The comma, period, exclamation mark or question mark that are part of the direct quote come inside the quotation marks. Those that are not part of the direct quote go outside the quotation marks.

Examples: "Why did you leave so early?"
but, She asked, "Why?" (Note position of comma)

PERIOD AT END OF QUOTE

COMMA AT END OF QUOTE

INDIRECT QUOTE

PUNCTUATION INSIDE QUOTATION MARKS

COMMA BEFORE FIRST QUOTATION MARKS

When a direct quote does not begin a sentence, there is a comma before the first quotation mark.

Example: "Jump in the lake," he said "or I'll push you."

(Notice in this example that there are TWO commas, one before a quotation mark and one after.)

SPECIAL USE OF QUOTATION MARKS IN TITLES

Quotation marks are used to enclose titles of songs, poems, stories and essays.

Book titles, however, are not placed in quotes; they are underlined.

Examples: His story "How I caught the Fish" was the best story I read.

but, The book Farewell to Arms is not on our list.

PREVIEW FRAME
You have been learning, in the last few lessons, about punctuation marks question marks, exclamation marks and quotation marks.
In this lesson you will learn about the colon(:) and the dash (-).
NO RESPONSE REQUIRED	GO ON TO THE NEXT FRAME
The colon is often found in formal writing, such as official reports and textbooks, to introduce a list. For example,
The member nations are: Great Britain, France, Belgium, and the Netherlands.
Which of the following is a colon ?

3.
STUDY these examples:
A The furniture to be sold includes: a sofa, two uphoistered chairs, two lamp tables, and a carpet.
B Please ship the following items; one gross demi-tasse cups, one gross demi-tasse saucers, three dozen dinner plates.
Example B is not punctuated correctly because a list of things follows the beginning statement.
A beginning statement that is followed by a list should be punctuated by:
a colon (;) a semi-colon (;)	a colon (:)
The items in the list are separated by:
commas (,) semi-colons (;)	commas (,)

Sometimes a dash can be used to introduce a list, instead of a colon. When a list is introduced informally, we substitute a dash (-) for a colon.  LOOK at these examples:  The following people were there: Bob, Tom, and Will.  They were all there - Bob, Tom, and Will.  CHECK the sentence that incorrectly uses a dash.  All right tell me everything and be quick about it.  He saw them The mayor, the priest, and the butcher's son.  I need you here helping me, watching me, and cleaning up.  The countries that signed the treaty were the following Japan, the United States and Canada.	6.

The answer was simple find the owner of the house.
The dash () is also used to join a group of words to a sentence, or to join another sentence to the first, when the second explains, illustrates, or restates the first.
CHECK the pair of sentences below that could be joined by a dash.
Everyone knows about George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Other famous presidents are Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin Delano Roosevelt.
The students in our class are intelligent. I like our teacher, Mrs. Jones, too.

Often the dash is used to join to a sentence a few words that explain, illustrate or re-state its meaning.
LOOK at this example.
His greatest pleasure was playing the violin - a hobby he had had since childhood.
In this case "a hobby" furthur explains the violin playing, so it is joined to the sentence by a dash.
CHECK the sentences that require dashes.

Now show me_ where did this take place?	- 10.
Another correct use of the dash is illustrated below. Here it sets off a final explanatory or summarizing word.
To abolish slavery, John Brown committed another crimemurder.
A group of words, even long clauses, may be set off by the dash:
We practice what we preachor so we believe.

PUNCTUATION HOW TO USE comma (,) Example: Jack, who is pitching, has a sprained ankle. RULE: Use a comma before and after modifiers. Modifiers are extra words or phrases that are not essential to the meaning of a sentence. HINT: Long modifiers are often introduced by such words as who, although, because, which, whose, etc. Example: NECESSARY The boy who is throwing the ball sprained his ankle. UNNECESSARY Farmers, who are very dependent on the weather, read the Almanac. Do NOT use a comma when these words introduce phrases that are necessary to the meaning of a sentence. RULE: Use a comma after words or phrases at the beginning of a sentence that come before the subject. Example: Usually_ grease is hard to get out of clothes. When the watchman arrived home, he was very tired. Colon (:) Example: The member nations are: Great Britain, France, Belgium, and the Netherlands. RULE: Use a colon to introduce a list of items in formal writing (such as a textbook or a report). Dash (-) Example They were all there - Bob, Ted, and in infor-Dick. mal style: Example The following people were there: Bob, in formal Ted, and Dick. style:

A series of adjectives preceding a noun should be separated from each other by commas - but only if each adjective is of equal importance, as in the above sentence.
Sometimes the adjectives in a series are not equally important, so commas are omitted:
He wore a bright red hunting coat.
A simple test reveals where to use commas: try saying "and" between each pair of adjectives; if the result sounds ridiculous, omit commas; otherwise, insert them.
For example "Charles is a tall and skinny and quiet boy" sounds clumsy but not ridiculous. On the other hand, "He wore a bright and red and hunting coat," is nonsense.

Like people, there are certain pairs of words which look very much alike, although they have different or even completely unrelated meanings. They can be a source of great confusion to people who do not know them well. In order to use them correctly, you must be able to tell these words apart and know the meaning of each. In the following lesson you will get to know some of these "word-pairs."
e migrate – i mmigrate
You are already familiar with part of the word pair above from previous lessons. The portions that are different in the two words are underlined.
To migrate is to leave one country to settle in another. "E" means "out" and "im" means "in."
An e migrant is a person:
entering a country leaving a country	leaving a country 3.
emigrate: to leave one's native country to settle elsewhere immigrate:to enter a foreign country for the purpose of settling there

1.
A comma (,) shows you where to pause when you're reading a sentence. A pause is a short stop in thinking or speaking.
When you see a comma in a sentence, you should pause before reading the next word. READ this sentence aloud, pausing for a second at each comma:
Jack, bright and alive, jumped out of bed.
Now READ this sentence aloud, and notice that it has no pauses (and no commas); you read it all in one breath:
Jack jumped out of bed.
FILL IN THE BLANK:
Commas are used in a sentence to show
•	pauses

A simple sentence, such as "Jack jumped out of bed," needs no pauses and thus doesn't have any commas. However, when you start adding modifiers you need commas to make your sentences easier to read, and clearer in meaning. For example, if you want to describe Jack as tired and hungry, you would say:

Jack, tired and hungry, jumped out of bed.

The modifying words are not absolutely necessary in this sentence. The main idea of the sentence is that Jack jumped out of bed, NOT that he was tired and hungry.

Commas are put before and after "extra" or modifying words, to show that they are extra, and you don't really need them.

UNDERLINE the "extra" or modifying words below:

Billy, sick and tired, lay down on the grass to sleep.

Billy lay down on the grass to sleep.

The board, falling, scared Allan out of his wits.

The children brightened up the schoolyard.

The children, laughing and playing, brightened up the schoolyard.

Sometimes, long groups of words, or clauses, are used in the middle of a sentence. These long groups of words modify the sentence. Such long modifiers usually need commas before and after them. An example of this is:

Abraham Lincoln, because he freed the slaves, is known as the great emancipator.

Lyndon Johnson, who is our president, will talk on TV.

Long modifiers are often hard to find in a sentence. An easy way to find them is to look for the key word that starts the modifying phrase. Some of the key words are: who, even though, because, which, whose, and in spite of.

CIRCLE the key words in the sentences below:

Washington, D.C., which is located on the east coast, is the capital of our country.

The doctor managed, in spite of the snow, to get through to the dying man.

He fixed the flat, even though the spare was in terrible shape, because it was a ten-mile walk home.

Commas are used before and after groups of extra words in sentences. Sometimes, however, you may see groups of words such as you've been studying that are not extra they're so necessary that the meaning of the sentence would be unclear without them. Since these words are so closely related to other words in the sentence, you DON'T pause or put commas before or after them.
When extra words or clauses are used in a sentence, you:
do use commas do not use commas	do use commas
When necessary wo rd s or clauses are used in a sentence, you:
do use commas do not use commas	do not use commas
When a modifying clause is needed to make the meaning of the sentence clear, you:
do use commas do not use commas	do not use commas

11. Here's a sentence with a necessary clause describing the subject. The key word telling you there is a clause is who. The girl who is crossing the street is Pat's sister. No commas are needed around this clause. Who is crossing the street is necessary because it tells you WHICH girl is Pat's sister. Suppose the clause was left out, like this: The girl is Pat's sister. If there were many girls around you, could you tell just from that sentence which girl was Pat's sister? yes no There were no commas in the sentence containing the clause because the clause told you: which girl was being talked about which girl was being talked about  $\square$  something extra about the girl that you didn't need to know

17.
You've worked hard at putting commas in the right places and taking them out of the wrong places. As you know, the right place for commas in a sentence is before and after extra words. When words are needed for the meaning of the sentence, you don't use commas.
Since you've worked so hard at placing commas in the right places, it would be a shame to mix them up with other punctuation marks such as colons (;) or semicolons (;).
REMEMBER the correct uses of commas that you've studied, and CH_CK the sentences below that are WRONG because they use a colon or semicolon INSTEAD of a comma:
☐ We left the house; it was time to go to work.
The fireman; who was wearing a hard hat, grabbed the hose.	The fireman; who was

PREVIEW FRAME
So far, you have learned about putting commas around groups of words that appear in the middle of sentences.
In the following frames, you will learn about groups of words that appear at the beginning of a sentence.

19. Extra words and needed words, when they come at the beginning of a sentence, are always followed by a comma. CIRCLE the key word and UNDERLINE the modifying clause in the sentence below: When the night watchman arrived home, it was When the night watchman arrived too early to eat breakfast. home 20. Extra words and needed words at the beginning of a sentence usually come immediately before the subject of the sentence. For example, grease is the subject of the sentence below. Usually hard to wash out, grease sometimes gets on work clothes. CIRCLE the comma in this sentence. Usually hard to wash out, UNDERLINE the long modifier.

Many sentences need commas for more than one reason. Sometimes, there may be extra words at the beginning AND in the middle of a sentence, to show two or three or more pauses. For example, READ this sentence:

Before turning off the radio, Peter, who was 1 2 eager to get to work, left to catch the bus.

Comma 1 is there to show the pause after the beginning clause Before turning off the radio. Commas 2 and 3 are there to show pauses before and after the group of extra words who was eager to get to work.

WRITE IN commas in this sentence:

After eating his lunch the mechanic who was tired decided to go home.

After eating his lunch, the mechanic, who was tired, decided to go home.

WRITE IN commas in the proper places below:

As soon as we sat in the bus a girl who was wearing a bathing suit sat down beside us.

Baloney! thought Gregory who didn't like the teacher.

Even though we worked late Mickey who was a nice guy brought us some sandwiches.

1.
READ these two sentences:
The man is tall.
His wife is short.
Which of the following sentences was made by joining together these two sentences?
☐ The man is tall, but his wife is short.	The man is
☐ The tall man has a short wife.
☐ His wife is short; the man is tall.	His wife is 2.
Here are two ways of combining the two sentences:
A. The man is tall, and his wife is short.
B. The man is tall; his wife is short.
In A, the two sentences are connected by a comma and a connecting word (, and).
In B, they are connected by a semi-colon (;).
In other words, when you use a word like and or but to connect two different sentences, you need a:
semi-colon comma	comma

3.
Sometimes, when two sentences are joined into one, a connecting word is used.
Find the connecting word which connects the following sentences:
The cupboard was bare, and so the poor dog had none.	and
We walked home, but we were early.	but 4.
Sometimes the connecting word comes at the beginning of the sentence.
UNDERLINE the connecting words in each of these sentences:
Although we sat quietly, we were scolded.	although
After Sonny ran home, he cried.	after

CHANGE this sentence by adding the connecting word BUT and correcting the punctuation:
Fred saw the boat; he didn't tell me.
	boat, but he didn't (be sure you put in a comma.)
7.
In each blank, ADD either a comma (if there is a connecting word) or a semi-colon (if there is no connecting word):
Howard is sick of eating his brother is hungry.	eating; his
We heard the lecture we didn't like it.	lecture;

When there is no connecting word you should use:
a comma a semi-colon	a semi-colon
11.
Remember that the rules just mentioned apply ONLY when two complete sentences are joined. Which of the following sentences are NOT made up of two complete sentences?
☐ John and Floyd played cards.	John and Floyd
☐ John played cards; Floy did not.
☐ John played cards and won.	John played cards
Henry played cards, while we laughed.

12.
When you do not have two complete sentences, you reed not punctuate with a comma or semi-colon (even if there is a connecting word.)
In the sentences below, WRITE in a comma or semi- colon wherever it is needed. If no punctuation is needed, just WRITE none in the blank after the sentence.
Phil rang the be ll while we ran.	bell, while
Phil rang the bell and ran.	none
The crowd cheered and shouted.	none
The crowd cheered but it started to rain.	cheered, but 13.
Some connecting words are used in pairs. For example, "neithernor" is a pair of words which is used as ONE connecting word:
EITHER John has the book, OR I still have it.
In the sentence above, the comma comes before the word	or 14.
ADD a comma before the connecting word which begins the second part of each sentence:
Either I go home or you stay.	home, or

CHECK the sentences which are correctly punctuated:
☐ I whistled loudly enough, and the bird sang.	loudly enough,
$\square$ I whistled loudly enough; the bird sang.	loudly enough;
☐ Either I whistled or the bird sang.
☐ Wher I whistled the bird sang.

17.
Sometimes parts of a sentence already have commas.
For example, suppose we want to combine:
Fred, Arthur, and Tony are here.
with
George is in Texas.
It would not be clear to write:
Fred, Arthur, and Tony are here, but George is not.
To make it easier to read, we use a semi-colon instead of a comma before the connecting word:
Fred, Arthur, and Tony are here; but George is in Texas.
CHECK any sentence that is correctly punctuated:
Martha; Dorothy; and Nancy; played in the yard; while we ate lunch.
Martha, Dorothy, and Nancy played in the yard, while we ate lunch.
