ABSTRACT

The third edition of the annual report by the North Carolina State Advisory Committee on Services to Migrants has the same purpose as previous reports--to improve state services to migrant families. Grouping responsible governmental and non-governmental programs by agency, the descriptions include eligibility requirements and names of contact persons. Services cover education, community action, human resources, employment, and health. Members of the Advisory Committee and local chairman are included. The index of available services, which ends the document, also explains program limitations. (KM)

FOREWORD

The State Advisory Committee on Services to Migrants is composed of individuals representing agencies that are actively involved in providing services to migrants. One of the goals of this committee is to provide a free flow of information among the agencies represented so that programs can be coordinated and duplication of efforts can be minimized in order that maximum service benefits will be provided to each recipient. Committee meetings present an opportunity for the agency to give a current status report of trends and services available to migrant farm workers. Other important goals of the State Advisory Committee are to assist local communities in their efforts to establish advisory committees and to help strengthen existing committees.

The 1970 edition "Serving Migrant Families," represented the first attempt to bring together under one cover a brief description of the services provided to migratory agricultural workers and their families through the governmental and non-governmental agencies interested in and responsible for their well-being. The publication proved to be a valuable instrument in assisting the committee and its member agencies in serving the migrant families. This is the third printing of this booklet, but the purpose remains the same - to use this information to help improve the services to migrant families in North Carolina.

Farmers Home Administration

The Farmers Home Administration in North Carolina actively participates in the Rural Development Program, a coordinated effort by all agencies of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and non-government local representatives to help rural people help themselves through group action. It is concerned with building family farms, strengthening rural communities and strengthening the rural economy.

The Farmers Home Administration has a broad range of supervised credit services, providing the following:

Help to young farmers in acquiring capital and skill needed to take over the farms of their retiring elders.

Help to established family farmers in making needed adjustments in their farming operations.

Help to farmers who are limited because of age, education or physical handicap in making a better living on the land.

Help to farmers who are low economically to improve.

Help to low-income farm families in developing non-farm enterprises that will enable them to raise their level of living.

Help to hard-pressed family farmers to aid them in tapping new sources of income in the development of farm-based recreation facilities.

Help to rural communities in obtaining such facilities as water and waste disposal systems.

Help to low and moderate income families, (including migrant farm laborers) in obtaining decent, safe and sanitary housing.

HIGH SCHOOL EQUIVALENCY PROGRAM PREPARATORY OF NORTH CAROLINA

The High School Equivalency Program Preparatory of North Carolina, H-E-P Prep, is a program sponsored by the Behavioral Institute of Maryland for high school dropouts from migrant or seasonal farm backgrounds. H-E-P Prep is funded by the Migrant Division of the Office of Economic Opportunity and is designed to aid young adults in obtaining the G.E.D. Diploma or high school equivalency.

Eligible for the program are youths between the ages of 17 and 22 whose family income falls within the poverty index guidelines as set by the federal government. The major source of income for the previous year must have been derived from seasonal or migrant farm work. Participants may be either single or married. Accommodations for children are not available so that other arrangements for their care must be made. All living expenses, including room, board, and study materials are provided for participants. Each student will be helped to find placement in advanced education, vocational education, or on-the-job training after completion of the G.E.D.

Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers
Association, Incorporated

The Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association, Inc. administers grants received under Title III-B of the Economic Opportunity Act, Section 312. Program activities are geared toward serving low-income migrants and seasonal farmworkers and their families. Raising the target group out of poverty through education, job training, placements and job follow-up along with providing supportive services available through MSFA and other agencies is the Association's principal objective.

Even though funds are received from other sources, the Office of Economic Opportunity is the major funding source and has been since the program's inception in 1965. Revenues are also received from the Department of Labor, Rural Housing Alliance, and Health, Education and Welfare. The Governing Board of MSFA determines the types of programs to be implemented and sets the program's priorities. The Board is composed of low-income farmworkers representing the target population, local area people in each of the communities in which the program is being carried out, and agency representatives. Low-income farmworkers make up the majority of the Board.

The statewide Association has regionalized its operations and has divided the state into six regions composed of from nine to thirty counties. Each region has established the Regional Council with representatives on the Governing Board. The representatives express the needs of program participants in accordance with program priorities.

The programs operated by MSFA include:

1. Economic, Human and Community Development

- a. Job training and placement follow-up.
- b. Cooperative ventures: production of items for sale, canneries, buying clubs, garden clubs, etc.
- c. Skill training: upholstery, ceramics, sewing classes, etc.
- d. Training of local boards, committees and councils.
- e. Referrals to other agencies.
- f. Revolving loans, interest-free loans.

2. Vocational Training

In order to make the participant more employable and able to earn a higher income, the Association is involved in various types of vocational training. One of its most successful programs has been Job Readiness. The program is designed to provide extensive orientation to the world of work. In addition to this program, referrals are made to various training programs already in existence such as MDTA, OJT and technical institutes.

3. Educational Training

In support of job placement, but not limited to it, programs of Adult Basic Education and General Education Diploma (G.E.D.). Through cooperation with the technical institutes which provide instructors, the Association offers in its center classes in A.B.E. and G.E.D.

4. Training Center

The Association is operating a vocational training and development center at Rich Square, N. C. The center offers various courses of vocational training, including auto mechanics, welding, wiring and plumbing, electronic assembly, retail sales and office practice. In addition to vocational training, the center offers classes in A.B.E. and G.E.D., training in home economics, community life, budgeting, etc. Services are available in day care, medical assistance and hospitalization. The center is residential in nature.

5. Day Care Services

- a. Purchase of slots of day care for children while parents are in training or employed.
- b. School-age child care is available to provide after-school care for school-age children of migrant and seasonal farmworker parentage.

6. Family Planning

Program participants are assisted in securing family planning services additional to those available in regular family planning clinics. Services include funds for medical expenses incurred for delivery purposes. Pre- and post-natal care are provided in addition to supplemental feeding.

7. Rural Housing Services

- a. Self-help houses for low-income people who borrow money at a low interest rate and construct their own homes under supervision.
- b. Low interest loans for home improvements and repairs to dwellings and farm buildings.

8. Emergency Food and Medical Services

- a. Funds for these services are administered in all the states east of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers through various contracting agencies.
- b. In North Carolina these funds are administered through the Raleigh Office, local area offices and through some Community Action Agencies.

9. National Migrant Workers Program

The Association is the recipient of a grant from the Department of Labor to implement statewide the National Migrant Workers Program. The MSFA was made the prime sponsor of this grant with the N. C. Employment Security Commission (Rural Manpower Services) and the N. C. Department of Community Colleges receiving contracted areas of responsibility.

For the purposes of MSFA, a migrant worker is defined as a seasonal worker in agriculture or agriculturally related seasonal industry who finds jobs by moving each year to one or more work locations beyond normal commuting distances from a place he calls "home"; who is employed on a seasonal basis, and whose family is at, or below, the poverty levels set by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Customarily, the migrant returns to his "home" community at the end of the crop season, but because of his seasonal migration to other parts of the country, he may be qualified for certain community benefits and other services which are afforded other citizens.

The central office of MSFA is responsible for the implementation and the administration of the program.

North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service

The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, an educational arm of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, conducts educational programs in four broad areas: agricultural production and marketing; family living; youth; and community resource development.

Through its agents in each of the state's 100 counties, the Extension Service provides out-of-school educational assistance locally. Each county's agents in agriculture and home economics can also call upon a state staff of specialists at N. C. State University.

Many of the Extension programs should provide direct benefits to migrants. Work in agricultural production and marketing focuses on agricultural commodities which may provide a base for farm employment. Information is available to farm workers and employers on proper crop production and harvesting practices, as well as labor relations. In some cases, Extension workers have assisted in training crew leaders and workers.

Various phases of Extension education in family living may help migrant families improve their level of living. These include: nutrition, housing, clothing, crafts, family relations and family financial management.

Of particular interest are the 266 nutrition aides in 95 counties that work directly with low-income families to devise means of improving the diet. These aides are trained and supervised by the county home economics agents.

North Carolina Community Association

The North Carolina Community Action Association is a non-profit corporation concerned with the problems of poverty. Its purpose is to represent local community action agencies, other groups and organizations, and individual members (and needy people themselves) involved in the war on poverty in North Carolina. The Association encourages, promotes and stimulates the community development of human resources, with particular emphasis upon the development of expertise in the operation of community action programs which seek to eliminate poverty and the causes of it.

The N.C.C.A.A does not operate programs itself, but rather serves as mainly a coordinating agency which offers information and assistance to the local community action agencies (which offer direct services) and to individuals.

For specific information on direct services contact the individual agencies listed below. For general information contact person is:

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
FOOD DISTRIBUTION DIVISION

The Food Distribution Division is a part of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and has been designated by law as the State Distributing Agency for North Carolina. Under the Food Distribution Program, the U. S. Department of Agriculture makes available to eligible groups in the State food acquired under various food programs, including the Agricultural Price Support and Surplus Removal Program. Foods are also purchased under various authorities to supply the needs of certain groups, such as school lunchroom programs and needy families. Migrant families are included in several of these eligible groups and they are also eligible to participate in the distribution of USDA donated foods in cases of emergency.

A brief description of each of the eligible groups including the terms of their eligibility is listed below:

School Food Service Programs and Food Service Programs For Children;

Charitable Institutions serving meals to patients and residents who are unable to pay the full cost for services provided;

Child Care and Child Development Centers serving children of low-income families and working mothers;

Summer Camps providing meals on a non-profit basis for boys and girls of high school grade or under;

Needy Families, including those receiving public assistance payments and other persons with low incomes or no income;

High Risk Groups, special allocations of high protein foods to infants and expectant and nursing mothers who are certified by the county health departments as having a health or medical need for additional foods;

Special Food Service For Children in Summer Schools, Enrichment, and Playground Programs.

North Carolina Department of Community Colleges

The North Carolina Community College System is made up of fifty-six institutions which are located geographically so that they are capable of serving 95 percent of the adult population in North Carolina. Many of the adults who come to the community colleges for educational opportunities are migrant workers.

The Community College System is equipped to provide, through its "open-door" policy, many educational opportunities to these workers. The schools have offered numerous adult basic education programs in the migrant camps. This is a program in literacy training, which now includes training through the twelfth grade level. Coupled with this, there are courses in occupational education, skill training, and some courses available in leadership for the crew leaders who direct the work of other migrant workers.

The System of Community Colleges and Technical Institutes recognizes the particular need for education that exists among this segment of our population and realizes that the educational programs must be flexible and easily accessible. It also recognizes that life is severe to the migrant workers and that an extra measure of understanding is needed in working with them. These elements are built into the comprehensive educational program that is provided through the schools. The learning laboratories are open and accessible, counseling service is available to these workers, and, as funds and staff will allow, the Community College System will continue to reach out to the migrant workers, to take programs into the migrant camps, and to bring the migrants themselves into the classrooms and laboratories on our campuses.

North Carolina Department of Human Resources
Department of Mental Health

The North Carolina Department of Human Resources, Department of Mental Health, is concerned with maximizing human potential through prevention and treatment programs organized in 41 mental health areas, covering all 100 counties in North Carolina. In each of the 41 areas, there is a local community mental health center serving a designated geographical area in which communities may tailor or develop mental health programs that address themselves to the needs of that locality. Thus, those localities which have special problems related to migrant workers can design programs suited to their particular needs. Migrant workers, like others, are entitled to utilize the services normally available at each of the 41 local community mental health centers. These services include evaluation, diagnosis, treatment, education and consultation.

In addition to the 41 local community mental health centers, there are several specialized mental health facilities prepared for more intensive and long-term care of individuals. Among these facilities are four retardation centers geared especially for treatment of the severely or profoundly retarded; three alcoholic rehabilitation centers for treatment of alcoholics; four mental hospitals for the treatment of the mentally ill; and the Wright School for the re-education of elementary age children experiencing learning and behavior problems.

Assistance is available to any person within the State who seeks it. For initial short-term services provided by local community mental health centers, there are no residency requirements. Any person seeking intensive care or for whom confinement or intensive care is being sought in one of our long-term institutions is to be treated as a bonafide resident until some other determination is made. If legal residency is established in some other state, the individual may then be transferred to his home state for continued long-term treatment.

North Carolina Department of Human Resources
Department of Social Services

The Department of Social Services, North Carolina Department of Human Resources, is the official State agency for public welfare programs, having field service representatives serving all 100 counties in North Carolina. Its services include:

Food assistance - available to migrants in all counties through either food stamps or surplus commodities, depending on which program the individual county has.

Casework and counseling - assisting the migrant with personal problems.

Because North Carolina has a county administered program of social services, the following services are made available to migrants at the discretion of the local county officials:

General assistance - emergency financial assistance, depending upon the funds the county has appropriated.

Homemaker services - including home care instruction and emergency home assistance such as caring for a child when the mother is ill or caring for a disabled or elderly person in the home.

The following services are also available to seasonal farm workers and intrastate migrants who make their home in one county:

Financial assistance - for dependent children, the disabled or elderly.

Medical services - hospitalization, physician's treatment, prescription drugs, dental services, hospital outpatient services, eye-glasses.

Child welfare services - adoption, foster care, child care institutes, group care, day care.

North Carolina Department of Human Resources
Division of Economic Opportunity

The Department of Human Resources, Division of Economic Opportunity, offers an Emergency Food and Medical Service Program. The division has been funded by the United States Office of Economic Opportunity for a three-year program to provide assistance to local communities, individuals and groups in supplementing and improving their existing food programs, and in providing medical assistance where the needs are the result of nutritional deficiencies. This grant was for $1,251,500 of which $1,076,500 has been subcontracted to thirty-nine (39) grantees serving eighty-seven (87) counties in North Carolina and having a potential of serving 400,000 low-income people.

In addition to receiving the regular emergency food vouchers, migrants in need are also eligible for a small cash allowance, if they are returning to their home states from North Carolina without funds. This allowance is to be used for food or to supplement the travel money provided by the Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Assoc.

However, as a result of the failure to receive appropriations from the National Office of Economic Opportunity for fiscal years 1972-73 and 1973-74, the Emergency Food and Medical Service Program is presently in a phase-out period ending June 30, 1973.

The Technical Assistance Staff of the Division of Economic Opportunity acts as a referral agency and resource mobilizer to the local community action agencies and groups when there is a problem situation concerning migrants. The staff or interested citizens contact the local community action personnel who in turn contact the proper agencies on the state level who are designated with the responsibilities directly related to solving that particular problem.

Division of Vocational Rehabilitation

Any man or woman of working age with a physical or mental disability who is in need of assistance in returning to gainful employment is eligible for vocational rehabilitation services.

According to need and ability, one or more of the following services may be provided:

1. A general physical and specialist examination to determine the extent of disability, work capacity and possibility for improvement.
2. Individual guidance and counseling to help in the selection and realization of a suitable job objective.
3. Medical, surgical and hospital services to reduce the disability, if the handicapped person is unable to pay.
4. Artificial appliances such as limbs, hearing aides, and braces, when the handicapped person is unable to pay, and such appliances as will increase work capacity.
5. Vocational evaluation and training to provide necessary skills for suitable employment.
6. Maintenance and transportation if necessary, if the handicapped person is unable to pay, while he is undergoing training.
7. Tools and equipment necessary to get the handicapped worker started in employment, if he is unable to provide them for himself.
8. Placement on a job in keeping with the person's handicap.
9. Follow-up after placement to make sure that the worker and the job are suited to each other.

A handicapped person may apply for vocational rehabilitation services by contacting the nearest vocational rehabilitation office. After application a Rehabilitation Counselor makes a thorough study to determine eligibility for services. If the person is eligible, guidance and planning begin, an appropriate job objective is agreed upon, and plans are made for services that will assist the individual in reaching that objective.

North Carolina Department of Public Instruction

Division of Compensatory Education
Migrant Education Section

The Migrant Education Section of the Division of Compensatory Education, North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, is responsible for providing educational and supplementary services to children of migrant agricultural workers. Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Public Law 89-10, provides payment to state educational agencies for assistance in educating children of migratory agricultural workers. Funds provided by the United States Office of Education are used to meet special educational needs of migratory children and to coordinate these services with similar programs and projects in other states.

Public Law 89-750 defines a migratory child as follows: "A migratory child of a migratory agricultural worker is a child who has moved from one school district to another during the past year with a parent or guardian who was seeking or acquiring employment in agriculture including related food processing activities such as canning."

A migratory child of a migratory agricultural worker may continue to be considered such a child for up to five years, with a concurrence of his parents, and therefore, may remain eligible for participation in migrant projects for that period. The purpose for extending the eligibility period for five years is to admit formerly migratory children into the program and to provide children already in the programs with continued services after they have ceased to migrate.

Migratory children may be enrolled in educational programs from kindergarten through grade 12, but not exceeding 21 years of age.

The local educational agency, with the help of local farm placement representatives, determines the number of migrant children in the educational unit. The local educational agency and representatives from the State Migrant Education Section jointly plan a program to meet the needs of the children and seek to cooperate with other agencies in providing services to migrants so that efforts are not duplicated and maximum services can be provided.

The priorities of the State Migrant Education Program are listed in order as follows:

1. Summer Programs for Interstate and Intrastate Migrant Children

These programs attempt to utilize an experience-based, non-textbook approach to learning. Special attention is given to language arts, cultural arts, and vocational training and counseling. Most of these programs are operated as separate projects with migrant education funds but may be integrated with some other summer school program (ESEA Title I or local district programs) in the school.

Summer projects for preschool and elementary migrant children operate on a weekday basis, providing instruction as well as food and health services. Some evening and weekend activities are designed to involve the parents. Since the secondary school age youth work in the fields during the day, evening and weekend projects offer counseling and instructional services so as not to interfere with their work schedules.

2. Regular School Term Programs for Interstate and Intrastate Migrant Children

These programs are designed to supplement and extend services which are not provided to migrant children through other sources of funding. During the regular school term, migrant children should benefit from all appropriate activities available, regardless of the source of financial support. Extended services provided by a migrant project may include additional personnel--classroom aides, reading, counseling, speech or other specialists--who work directly with the migrant children or free the teacher to work with them.

3. Staff Development Activities

The Migrant Education Section sponsors statewide and regional staff development sessions for professional and non-professional personnel involved in migrant education projects.

4. Migrant Student Record Transfer System

This communication system enables schools to obtain school related information on migrant children as they travel from school to school. The aim of the system is to make background information on migrant children available to local educational agencies as soon as possible after receipt of a request for the information so that programs can be planned for the child and efforts will not be duplicated. Schools in North Carolina enrolling migrant children are connected to the Data Bank in Little Rock, Arkansas, through a telephone and teletype communication system.

5. The Migrant Education Center in Grifton, North Carolina

The MEC has an excellent collection of films and filmstrips for use by school units with migrant children. The Center also houses facilities for staff development activities, the mobile vocational educational units, and the teletype terminals of the Record Transfer System.

6. Mobile Instructional Units

Two mobile classroom units designed for teaching automotive tune-up fundamentals are available to schools with migrant children. Requests for scheduling are routed through the Center at Grifton.

7. Program Activities for Formerly Migratory Children

Children who have ceased to migrate within the last five years and who settle in areas with migrant education projects are eligible to participate in these projects. Since funds may not be used to initiate projects for formerly migratory children, the State Educational Agency will determine the extent to which children in the five-year eligibility category may participate in migrant education projects.

North Carolina Employment Security Commission
Rural Manpower Service

The Rural Manpower Service is a unit of the Employment Service, having the responsibility of providing comprehensive manpower services to rural workers and employers, including migrants. Services include placement in jobs and job development, improving employability and skills for rural workers; determining the need for training and establishing training programs by working with other agencies such as Vocational Rehabilitation, Community Colleges, and Technical Institutes; providing information and services to rural people who are veterans (benefits they are eligible for such as training programs, educational opportunities, and the type of skills that are in demand on the job market), and the development of youth opportunity programs.

The Rural Manpower Service provides the full range of Manpower Services to migrants in addition to these general programs:

Preparing agriculture worker schedules on all North Carolina workers referred to other areas or other states. These schedules give the names of the crewleaders, number of workers in each crew, number under age of 16, home address, name of employer, and type and location of employment.

Preparing a "manifest list" on all workers in each crew, entering or leaving the State, describing the number of migrants and children, their ages, sex, and where they are from.

Inspecting migrant housing to determine if it meets OSHA Law.

Attempting to schedule all crews on an annual worker plan to insure year round employment.

Developing jobs in other States for crews to prevent underemployment or crop loss caused by weather, market or crop conditions.

Providing employment counseling and training for migrants and non-agricultural placements.

Assisting in organizing work crews and helping them to secure loans to purchase buses and trucks.

North Carolina Migrant Health Project
State Board of Health

The project aims at providing primary health care to migrants and their families while in North Carolina. Medical care is provided through a mixed system of family health clinics usually held in the evening, and fee-for-service in private physicians' offices. Emergency dental care is provided by referring the patient to a private dentist. Other public health services such as pre-natal care, family planning, well child care, venereal disease control, etc., are also provided by the evening clinics and the local health departments. The primary health care program includes the whole gamut of case-finding, referral, diagnosis, treatment and follow up in project area and, when needed, in another state. The project area is the State of North Carolina. However, organized services are offered in the areas listed below. The corresponding contact persons work from the local health departments.

Counties Served

Dorothy Hudson, Beaufort
(919) 728-4557

Duplin and Wayne Counties:

Mary Bowden, PHN, Kenansville
(919) 296-4241

All health services are seasonal except in Duplin and Wayne where the medical mobile clinic of the project is providing year-round services and extending them to a segment of seasonal farm workers around Faison.

The state project services are supplemented by the services of four local projects offering medical care to about 4,000 interstate migrants. The state project also provides consultative services to these local projects.

Local Migrant Health Projects:

1. Sampson County Migrant Health Project
Project Director: Dr. Caroline Callison
(919) 592-6177
2. Johnston County Migrant Health Project
Project Director: Mrs. Helen Ray
(919) 934-4168

3. Wilson-Greene Migrant Health Project - Also serves migrants in Nash County
Project Director: Dr. Joseph Campbell
(919) 237-3141
4. Henderson County Migrant Health Project:
Project Director: Mrs. Claire Burson
(704) 693-3986

According to federal policies no project funds are available this year for in-patient hospital care.

As for out-patient care the project pays for physicians' services, laboratory work and diagnostic services, drugs and medications. The project staff try to provide needed transportation of patients to medical clinics.

The project works closely with other agencies involved in services to migrants. Recently the project has been re-organized to meet the growing needs of migrants.

The project staff in the central office in Raleigh are:

Dr. Ronald H. Levine, Project Director - (919) 829-3131

Amin A. Khalil, Project Administrator - (919) 829-3031, 3032 or 3033

Doris Jones, Project Nurse Consultant - (919) 829-3031, 3032 or 3033

Beth Wells, Project Health Education Consultant - (919) 829-3031, 3032 or 3033

North Carolina State Board of Health
Sanitary Engineering Division

The responsibility for enforcement of the Act Regulating the sanitation of Agricultural Labor Camps (Article 13A, Chapter 130 of the General Statutes of North Carolina) rests with the Sanitary Engineering Division. Sanitarians in the local health departments, as Deputy Agents of the State Board of Health, make inspections and work with the growers and crew leaders. District Sanitarians assist the local sanitarians and provide technical advice in carrying out the provisions of this Act. The responsibility for providing a camp meeting the sanitary standards set forth in the Act is placed on the grower. The responsibility for maintaining these standards rests on the crew leader.

The general areas of sanitation covered by this Act are cleanliness of camp area, water supply, sewerage and bathing facilities, shelter, lighting, food facilities, and garbage disposal.

Ten Sanitarian Aides assigned to local health departments provide regular and frequent supervision of camps and other migrant housing, teaching the migrants good food handling techniques, proper methods of handling garbage, insect and rodent control and general camp sanitation and cleanliness.

The State Board of Health cooperates with the Employment Security Commission which enforces the Department of Labor's regulation on Agricultural Labor Camps.

INDEX OF SERVICES AVAILABLE TO MIGRANTS

NOTE: It should be stressed that though these services appear all-encompassing, most of them have limitations based on such factors as definition of migrants (there are 25), jurisdiction of serving agency, funding requirements and limitations, availability of staff, overlapping of services and limitations to indigenous population, among others. Therefore, users of this book should understand that the services listed here may not necessarily be applicable to a specific case at hand and should refer to the individual agency's section in this book and the agency itself, for specific information.
