ABSTRACT

The long range goal of the Rhode Island Adult Education program is to encourage the establishment of programs to enable all adults sixteen years and older to continue their education through secondary school and to secure training to make them more employable, productive, and responsible citizens. The State Adult Education Staff Development Plan provides pre-service and in-service training for teachers and teacher aids. Priorities and objectives are outlined. A survey of adult learning needs indicates that in fiscal year 1973 two percent of the 308,215 undereducated adults in the State are presently being served by the public schools of Rhode Island. Available resources (facilities, personnel, fiscal, advisory councils) are analyzed. A set of thirteen specific objectives has been drawn up. An evaluation of program practices and needs assessment was performed in 1973 through separate surveys of directors, teachers, students, and dropouts; the surveys themselves and findings resulting from them are described in terms of implications for redirection of the Rhode Island Adult Basic Education program in 1974. A final section of the report covers procedures and forms for application to the State Board for grants and contracts. (MS)

1.0 Program Goals

1.1 a. Long Range

1.11 The Goal of the Rhode Island Department of Education Adult Education program, funded 90% by the Adult Education Act of 1970 (P.L. 91-230) as amended, is to expand the educational opportunity and encourage the establishment of programs of adult education that will enable all adults 16 years and older to continue their education to the level of completion of secondary school and make available to them the means to secure training that will enable them to become more employable, productive, and responsible citizens.

1.12 The Rhode Island Adult Education Staff Development Plan is designed to provide pre-service and in-service career training for teachers and teacher aides (associate professionals) who are or will be employed to conduct classes for adults eligible under P.L. 91-230, The Adult Education Act. This training will also be open to adult education personnel from the other New England States, as will programs in other states be open to adult education personnel of this state.

A major component of the plan is the establishing and/or expanding a cadre of committed higher education faculty capable of planning and executing a training program for teachers of adults, teacher aides, counselors and administrators throughout the region.

1.2 Instructional Priorities

- 1.21 1) The initial objective to which first priority will be given is to raise the educational level of those 30,230 persons in the state who have not completed five (5) years of schooling to an eight grade level.
- 1.22 2) The second priority is to raise the educational level of those 65,422 people who have not completed five (5) to seven (7) years education to an eight grade level.
- 1.23 3) Third priority is to raise the educational level of those 308,215 people who have not completed twelve (12) years of education to the completion of the High School or its equivalency.

1.24 Staff Development Priorities

A three credit graduate course "Adult Basic Education" will be offered at the University of Rhode Island (EDC 504), the Extension Division of the University of Rhode Island (EDC 504) and Rhode Island College (ED 433). This course will be a regular 3 credit course which will be offered each semester and during the summer session.

Three graduate courses will be offered at the University of Rhode Island for teachers in ABE programs who are working for a Master's Degree.

Titles of these courses are:

- "The Adult and the Learning Process"
- "Principles and Practices of Leadership Development for Adult Programs"
- "Theory and Methods in Adult Education"

A series of In-Service workshops of approximately (20) hours duration will be developed and offered at the University of Rhode Island and Rhode Island College for the continuing improvement of the adult education teachers and administrators.

Non-credit workshops of one week duration will be conducted during the summer months at the University of Rhode Island and/or Rhode Island College for training of associate professionals.

1.3 Appropriate programs of instruction in Adult Basic Education shall be offered by local educational agencies, state agencies and private non-profit agencies in schools, community agencies buildings, and other facilities, to include both public and private, which are designed to achieve the following general objectives:

- To eliminate the inability of adults, in need of basic education, to read and write English.
- To raise the educational level of such adults substantially that they will be less likely to become dependent on others.
- To improve their ability to benefit from occupational training.
- To improve their ability to benefit from homemaker training.
- To increase their opportunities for more productive and profitable employment.
- To make them better able to meet their adult responsibilities.
- To keep records of progress of adults.
- To evaluate the progress of adults.
- To counsel and guide adults along the most desirable path to such basic educational goals of attainment as an eighth grade level and attainment of completion of secondary school.

1.4 The curriculum will be adult-organized in adult terms, taught in adult language, illustrated in adult situations and be important to adult life. The teaching will include the basic skills of speaking, reading, writing, and computation. The curriculum will emphasize teaching which will help students increase their capabilities as parents, workers, citizens and consumers. Opportunities will be provided to the students to explore other interests of adult importance by helping them to use their new reading abilities to learn more about American History, government, politics, current events.

2.0 Adult Learning Needs Survey

2.1 In Fiscal year 1973, of the 308,215 undereducated adults over the age of 16 (and not currently enrolled in school or college) in the State of Rhode Island, 2,335 were enrolled in Adult Basic Education (ABE) classes, 633 in the State funded and operated. Americanization classes and 2,948 in the State/local funded and operated, High School Equivalency programs. Thus, a total of 5,916 adults or approximately 2% of those in need of adult education are presently being served by the public schools of Rhode Island.

2.11 Survey of Needs, Grades 0-4.

Population (identified by sex, age, ethnicity, and administrative agency) functioning at the fourth grade level or below.

7. TOTAL			426	299									100	141	13,654	15,610	30,230

There are 30,230 persons over the age of 16 (and not currently enrolled in school) who have less than a fifth grade education. However, of this number 16,121 or 53.3% are over the age of 65 and 20,451 or 67.7% are over the age of 55. Since the experience of the last several years indicates that only 5% to 8% of the students recruited were over the age of 55 years, the practical target population is the 9,779 who are within the age group 16-54.

2.12 Survey of Needs, Grades 5-7.

Population (identified by sex, age, ethnicity, and administrative agency) functioning at the fifth through the seventh grade level.

Administrative agency: State of Rhode Island
specify by name (county, community college, LEA, etc.)

7. TOTAL			727	808								173	213	30,682	23,819	65,422

A similar situation exists in the less than 8th grade and this is broken down into 5-7 and 0-7 groups as follows:

In the 5-7 years of schooling completed category, there is a total of 65,422 people. Of this number 23,925 or 36.6% are over the age of 65 and 41,180 or 62.9% are over the age of 55. Thus there are 24,242 in the age group 16-54, who are the practical target population for recruitment.

The combined 0-7 years of schooling category has a total of 95,652 persons over the age of 16. Of this total 40,046 or 41.9% are over the age of 65 and 61,631 or 64.4% are over the age of 55. Since the experience of the last several years indicates that only 5-8% of the adults recruited were over the age of 55, the practical target population is the 34,021 people in the State with less than eight grade of education.

2.13 Survey of Needs, Grades 8-11.

Population (identified by sex, age, ethnicity, and administrative agency) functioning at the eighth through eleventh grade level or its equivalency.

Administrative agency: State of Rhode Island

7. TOTAL			2,908	3,131									623	511	97,126	108,264	212,563

The combined 0-11 years of schooling category has a total of 308,215 adults over the age of 16. Of this total 78,538 are over the age of 65 and 179,872 or 58% are age 55 and over. Thus, the realistic target population is 128,343 people in the State of Rhode Island with less than a high school education. Again based on the experience factor of the last several years, that only 5-8% of the students recruited will be 55 years of age or over.

2.2 Staff Development Needs

2.21 Due to the turnover of teachers and the projected expansion of programs during FY 74, there is a need for continuous pre-service and in-service training for ABE staff personnel. During FY 1973, of the 156 staff members employed in the ABE program, 79 participated in staff development in-service training activities. All 156 have had a minimum of 36 hours pre-service training. It is anticipated that 60 new staff members will be trained during FY 74.

2.22 An evaluation conducted by the Curriculum Research and Development Center, University of Rhode Island in 1972 concluded that:

1. Teacher training, both pre-service and in-service requires additional emphasis on teaching of reading skills both to native born and foreign born disadvantaged.
2. Pre-service and in-service training for teacher aides is needed in order to efficiently utilize them in a multi-level classroom and in order to permit the individualizing of instruction to ethnic and racial minority background undereducated adults.
3. Guidance counselors need training in relating to adults and meeting the special need of racial and ethnic minorities.
4. Administrators and teachers of adult programs need training in recruiting students, administrative record keeping, public relations and retention of adult students.

5. Curriculum specialists are needed to assist teachers in preparing relevant programs for adults that will utilize all types of technological equipment and programmed instruction that will meet the needs of the undereducated adults.

3.21 Selection of Teachers

Teachers selected for these programs shall be those who are trained and experienced in teaching reading or the improvement of reading and the fundamental skills in arithmetic. For day classes, retired teachers and teachers who, due to family commitments, are not presently employed as teachers will be recruited.

Each class for illiterate and undereducated adults must be taught by a person holding a valid Rhode Island teaching certificate and who has completed a minimum of one 3 hour graduate course in adult education.

Teachers will be given pre-service and in-service training to accommodate their service to adults, to the curriculum, and to adult teaching materials. Pre-service courses in the techniques of teaching adults will be conducted by colleges and universities under a contract basis with the Rhode Island Department of Education. Such contracts will be made under the Staff Development Project for Adult Education.

The Adult Education Staff Development Advisory Committee
The Task Force on Continuing and Adult Education
State Advisory Council for Vocational and Technical Education
University of Rhode Island Curriculum Research and Development Center
Local Advisory Councils

3.42 During fiscal year 1974, a plan for the formulation of a State Advisory Council for Adult Education will be prepared. Such council will include a comprehensive cross section of the community.

3.43 Local educational agencies are encouraged to form and utilize similar advisory councils.

COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT

BETWEEN

THE RHODE ISLAND DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

AND

THE RHODE ISLAND DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

The Adult Education Act of 1970 (Title III, PL 91-230) has as its main purpose the operation of an adult basic education program for individuals over 16 years of age whose lack of basic education constitutes a substantial impairment of their ability to adapt to and function successfully within contemporary society. An essential prerequisite to such an educational program is the provision of health services and information to the extent that eligible persons may benefit from the instruction provided under the State Plan for Adult Education. To insure the provision of health information and services for adults, the Rhode Island State Departments of Health and Education do hereby provide for the following cooperative arrangements to be carried on in the execution of the Rhode Island State Plan for Adult Education.

PROVISIONS FOR COOPERATIVE SERVICES

a. Provide or arrange for the provision of health information and services, without cost, to adults in need of basic education to the extent that such information and services are available and may be reasonably necessary to enable such persons to benefit from the instruction provided by adult basic education programs under the State Plan. The services which are now available to these adults include the services provided by the following divisions which are now available to the general public.

Division of Child Health
Division of Chronic Diseases
Division of Dental Public Health
Division of Drug Control
Division of Epidemiology
Division of Food Protection and Sanitation
Division of Health Education

5. The State Departments of Health and Education will assist each other to the maximum extent possible for mutually promoting the objectives of the Adult Education Act of 1970. Written working agreements will be developed between the State Departments of Health and Education to assign more specific responsibilities, when and if needed, in carrying out the cooperative activities listed above. This Cooperative Agreement is intended to formalize and recognize existing, effective and harmonious working relationships between the Rhode Island Department of Education and the Rhode Island Department of Health. ## 6.0 Evaluation

6.1 During Fiscal 73, the Curriculum Research and Development Center was contracted to perform an evaluation of the program practices and a needs assessment of R.I.'s Adult Basic Education programs. The data was collected by a series of Center-developed surveys.

These surveys were:

- A Directors Survey;
- A Teachers Survey;
- A Students Survey;
- A Dropouts Survey.

All surveys were developed to assess individual perceptions of ABE, and characteristics of program operations. The results reported herein are considered in separate sections -- Input (the people in the program), Throughput (what the program does to the student) and Output (the change that the student has undergone).

Input

The study noted several characteristics of ABE enrollees. These are:

- the majority of ABE students are young (age 16-34) and enter ABE with hopes of getting a better education and working toward high school equivalency;
- ESL classes dominate the course offerings in most programs indicating that ABE is catering to the non-english speaking adult;
- most students realize that to complete ABE requirements they will have to remain in the program for at least one year.

In surveying the recruitment practices of the local programs and comparing them to how students indicated they were recruited the study showed that:

- the majority of students were recruited by all involved in ABE (teachers, staff, or students).
- local agencies are used by individual programs for different services and to different degrees;
- non-public agencies and groups such as churches, families, friends and employers played the largest role in the recruitment/referral process;
- there is much duplication of publicity between local programs;
- Director Surveys indicate that the recruitment processes have been modified in only a few programs during the last year.

Throughput

Characteristics of the R.I. ABE programs include:

- low student-teacher ratio with teacher aides used extensively to facilitate individualized instruction;
- the lack of adequate or non-existence of counseling services in some programs.
- recruiters are used only in two programs (no significant difference in recruitment was noted in these programs).
- the majority of teachers have been teaching ABE for more than three years;

- most teachers learned of ABE by means of the ABE workshop sponsored by the State Department of Education;
- teachers state that they remain in ABE because they enjoy the change of pace from teaching kids and they feel ABE teaching is self-fulfilling.

It was also found that:

- of seven opportunities on which local directors and teachers could meet at a state-held function not one had close to 100% attendance by directors or teachers;
- students were more motivated toward increasing their knowledge or getting a high school diploma as opposed to finding skills to get a job or advance in employment;
- there was much disagreement between directors and teachers as to teachers' inservice training needs -- teachers tended to indicate training needs in more areas than directors thought they needed.

Another very important aspect of the Throughput process is a system of directing student's energies or setting feasible goals. This year's study found that some programs offer counseling services by a counselor, others depend on the director or teachers for this service. There is an indication that these services are not considered as important as they should be. Results in the study found that:

Rhode Island

- many students who cannot read, write, speak or comprehend English have college as a goal after spending two or three years in ABE;
- many students who are in ABE have no ideas as to what they want to do or will do once they leave ABE;
- the majority of teachers teach elementary or secondary school during the day and often more than one subject in ABE during the evening. This load may make it difficult if not impossible to find time to counsel students.

Academics and cognitive growth have not been considered as part of this evaluation. Hopefully, evaluation of achievement in specific cognitive area objectives will be required of each program. A workshop on cognitive evaluation was held in May 1973 to help movement in this direction.

Output

Program output was considered in terms of staff development, student success and student failure. The staff surveys recorded several areas of need in which programs could use improvement or development.

The findings noted that:

- ABE directors felt they could use assistance in terms of curriculum development and inter-program communication. Their suggested solutions to problems often looked to state intervention or funding as an answer instead of the utilization of community and program resources;
- many teachers desire training in the knowledge/use of hard and soft materials, teaching disadvantaged people, using community resources and individualizing instruction;
- the areas cited most often as problems were the non-availability of materials, community support, material procurement, salary, student motivation and non-availability of A.V. equipment;
- the area most disliked by students was the furniture in the classrooms;
- the areas to which most students had no opinion or no response, possibly indicating the non-existence of such services or positions, are guidance counselor and field trips;

- dropouts most often stated they were displeased with the diagnostic/placement procedures, not having enough class time and not getting enough individual attention in the classroom.

No significantly different characteristics were found between students who had dropped out and students who continued in the program. The goals and aspirations of dropouts were similar to those of the ABE students. Dropouts, however, withdrew before one semester was over. More often than not they remained for only two or three weeks. The most common responses given as a reason for withdrawing from ABE were:

- they did not have interest to attend classes as a result of being tired, bored or not motivated strongly enough;
- they had personal reasons such as sickness, family matters or undiscussed problems with the program.

Most dropouts noted a desire to come back to ABE at some time but many more stated that they did not wish to go any further with their schooling. Those not wishing to continue in school indicated a desire to pursue vocational training.

The long-range goals of ABE students changed while in the program. In several cases students indicated an extended commitment to furthering their education when compared with the original reason for enrolling. But, other students appear to become less certain and indicated no post-ABE goals.

6.2 Implication of Evaluation for Program Redirection in FY 1974

6.21 During the course of this year's evaluation, the evaluator surveyed the administration/management of all Rhode Island ABE programs. Although many recommendations are implicit in the previous text of this report, there are several which warrant repeating and additional points which should be addressed.

- All programs can benefit from each other in terms of recruitment practices and publicity devices. Locals sharing in publicity costs could facilitate economizing and reaching a larger segment of the target population.
- There could be more utilization of local resources. Possibly the state could become involved by offering training in this area.
- Local programs need to specify their program objectives. This will aid in self-evaluation and program assessment.
- Careful entry diagnosis of the student will aid in the placement of students in appropriate instructional levels.
- Intensified follow-up procedures may reduce the dropout rate, strengthen retention or increase enrollment.

- Teacher training should be updated on a regular basis. Inservice/pre-service training could be alternated each year or semester to fulfill the needs of ABE personnel. Training could be handled on a community basis, focusing on the local needs of directors, teachers and students or on a state-wide basis with a more general focus of ABE personnel needs.
- The strength of ABE instruction probably lies in the hands of the individual teachers. Holding teachers accountable in terms of student progress and student retention could be an indicator of teacher training needs and/or whether weak teachers should be replaced.
- The assessment of change in a student who has completed ABE is more difficult and not as reliable as the assessment of matriculating students. The reason for this is the after-the-fact nature of data collection. Little can be inferred as to comparisons of program practices and program improvements over the years for this reason. It is important, therefore, that we consider next year's evaluation as a starting point and speak of "from this point on" in terms of program effectiveness.

- Directors complain of the lack of a structured communications network among the ABE programs. However, when offered the opportunity to meet and discuss ABE programs, innovations, and common problems, not all directors participate. Perhaps representative attendance at specific meetings could be included as a requisite to funding of the local program.

6.22 With the goal of redirecting the Rhode Island Adult Basic Education program in Fiscal Year 1974 to correct the deficiencies and to improve the strengths as disclosed by the 1973 Evaluation, the following specific actions will be taken:

1. A one-day workshop briefing will be given on October 16, 1973 at the University of Rhode Island for all local program directors and local federal program coordinators. The objectives of this workshop will be first, to brief all participants on the 1973 Evaluation Report and second, to study in detail the State Program Plan for 1974 with particular emphasis on the objectives listed in Section 5.0.

2. A full time Professor of Adult Education will be employed at the University of Rhode Island and Rhode Island College. One-half the cost of these positions will be funded by the State Department of Education using available funds of the Region I Adult Education Staff Development Projects. These two professors will have the following duties:
  - Advise graduate students in the Adult Education Master's Program.
  - Teach graduate courses that relate to adult education.
  - Conduct in-service training sessions in adult basic education for teachers, administrators, para-professionals, and counselors.
  - Develop and implement courses in adult basic education.

3. A two day workshop will be conducted on November 5-6 at the University of Rhode Island Conference Center, the W. Alton Jones Campus of the University of Rhode Island, for local program directors, local federal program coordinators, and other selected personnel. This workshop of approximately 15 hours, will have as its purpose the development of the FY 75 program using the operational planning system technique. Also to be included will be reports from the local agency program directors as to the progress being made on the implementation of the objectives.

6.3 Evaluation FY 74

An evaluation design will be prepared and a contract awarded to the Curriculum Research and Development Center, University of Rhode Island by October 15, 1973, for the evaluation of the FY 74 program based on the objectives listed in Section 5.0 .

7.0 Application Procedures

7.1 Applications to the State Board for grants and contracts under the Adult Education Act will describe the nature, duration, purpose, objectives and plan of the project, the use to be made of the results in regular or pilot programs of adult education, the qualifications of the personnel staff who will be responsible for the program or project, a justification of the amount of grant or contract funds requested, the portion of the cost to be borne by the applicant, and such other pertinent information as the State Board may require.

7.11 Submittal of Applications

Applications shall be submitted consistent with the standard application procedures for funding to the Bureau of Grants Regulations by individuals authorized to act for the applicant.
(See Section 7.2)

7.12 Review of Applications

Applications for grants or contracts under the Act will be reviewed by professional staff of the Bureau of Technical Assistance and the Bureau of Grants and Regulations. After review by these professional staff members, the application is referred to the Division of Development and Operations Review Committee and then forwarded to the Commissioner for his approval.

7.13 Criteria for Funding Programs.

Applications will be reviewed in terms of such pertinent factors as:

1. Whether and to what extent a program will serve adults in

- centrations of adults in need of basic education.
2. Whether and to what extent a program will serve adults with the greatest basic education deficiencies which are impairing their ability to obtain employment and become more productive and responsible citizens.
  3. Whether and to what extent a program has been planned and/or will be conducted in cooperation with Community Action programs, Work Experience programs (WIN), VISTA, Work-Study programs, Manpower Development and Training programs, Vocational and Career Education programs, Model Cities and other programs relating to the anti-poverty effort.
  4. Whether and to what extent a program will provide health information and services to the extent available through cooperative arrangements with State health authorities.
  5. Whether and to what extent a program will provide for the use of personnel in college work-study programs, VISTA, and other anti-poverty programs.
  6. Whether and to what extent a program incorporates the results of research or techniques which have been proven effective.
  7. Whether and to what extent a program incorporates innovative or imaginative instructional methods; and
  8. Whether and to what extent consideration is given to the findings and recommendations of recent independent evaluation reports available to and/or sponsored by the State agency.

9. Whether and to what extent the program will provide for effective recruitment and retention of adults.
10. Whether and to what extent the program will provide for effective administration and supervision to assure efficient and economical operation in providing an adequate learning environment.
