ABSTRACT

Educational costs to undergraduates attending many state colleges and universities generally have continued to increase. An annual tuition, room, and board survey of member institutions conducted by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities for the academic year 1973-74, reveals that tuition and fees charged to in-state students have risen an average of 3.6 percent since 1973. Out-of-state tuition and fees rose more sharply, up 10.43 percent from 1973. Room and board charges not yet fully reflecting food price increases were 4.72 percent. The marked increase in nonresident fees is in part explained by the readjustment of fee structures by several state college and university systems. Statistical data for member institutions of the AASCU are indicated by state. (Author/MJM)

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Educational costs to undergraduates attending many state colleges and universities generally have continued to increase this year.

An annual tuition, room, and board survey of member institutions conducted by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities for the academic year 1973-74, reveals that tuition and fees charged to in-state students have risen an average of 3.6 per cent since last year. Out-of-state tuition and fees rose more sharply, up 10.43 per cent from last year. Room and board charges, not yet fully reflecting food price increases, were up 4.72 per cent. The marked increase in non-resident fees is in part explained by the readjustment of fee structures by several state college and university systems.

Of the 310 state colleges and universities polled by AASCU, 267 returned questionnaires. The average tuition and fees charged to in-state students is $489, up from last year's $472. A wide range in the fees charged exists because of the diversity of AASCU institutions. Schools charging the lowest and highest tuition and fees for the academic year 1973-74 are as follows:

LOWEST IN-STATE TUITION AND FEES

District of Columbia Teachers College	$ 70
California State College-Bakersfield	117
