ABSTRACT

This Quinmester world studies elective course for grades 7, 8, and 9, focuses on the comparative study of three far eastern nations: China, India, and Japan. The study examines the successes and failures of each nation in dealing with the common problems of over-population, industrialization, and literacy education, leading to speculation as to which nation is emerging as the leader of the Far East. Through comparison, the student more accurately perceives each culture and analyzes the different means used to solve problems in these cultures which comprise a large portion of the world's population. Following a statement of rationale, a list of course goals, a course outline, and a list of activities, each goal is coordinated with objectives and learning activities. A list of materials contains basic texts, alternate student and class materials, supplemental information for students and teachers, and periodical and journal articles. (KSM)

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF THREE FAR EASTERN NATIONS: CHINA, INDIA, AND JAPAN, WHO ARE FACING AND SOLVING SIMILAR PROBLEMS (OVER-POPULATION, INDUSTRIALIZATION, EDUCATION OF THE MASSES, ETC). THE STUDY WILL EXAMINE THE SUCCESSES AND FAILURES OF EACH NATION AND LEAD TO SPECULATION AS TO WHICH NATION IS EMERGING AS THE LEADER OF THE FAR EAST.

CLUSTER:

World Studies

GRADE LEVEL:

7-9

COURSE STATUS:

Elective

INDICATORS OF SUCCESS:

None

COURSE RATIONALE:

Comparison, not judgment of cultures is essential for today's student. By gaining knowledge and understanding of these cultures, the student can then more accurately perceive each culture in its proper perspective.

Each culture uses different means to achieve the goals of its society. It is important that the student examine the different means used by India, China, and Japan to solve their problems in order that he may better understand these cultures which comprise a large portion of the world's population.

COURSE GOALS:

1. THE STUDENT WILL IDENTIFY SOME OF THE PERTINENT PROBLEMS CURRENTLY FACING CHINA, INDIA, AND JAPAN; AND GENERALIZE REASONS FOR THE PROBLEMS.
- 2 THE STUDENT WILL EXAMINE THE CULTURE OF THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA AND BRING INTO FOCUS THE PROBLEMS FACING THE NATION.
3. THE STUDENT WILL EXAMINE THE CULTURE OF JAPAN AND BRING INTO FOCUS THE PROBLEMS FACING THE NATION.
4. THE STUDENT WILL EXAMINE THE CULTURE OF INDIA AND BRING INTO FOCUS THE PROBLEMS FACING THE NATION.
5. THE STUDENT WILL COMPARE AND CONTRAST THE PROGRESS BEING MADE IN THE SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEMS FACING THE THREE ASIAN NATIONS.
6. BASED ON HIS FINDINGS, THE STUDENT WILL HYPOTHESIZE AS TO THE PROGRESS AND PROSPECTS OF THESE THREE ASIAN NATIONS.

1. The student can bring into focus the problems they identified in the three nations. (Class consensus)
 2. The student can compare and contrast the problems each of the nations face. The student will be asked to think as an Economist, a Political Scientist and a Sociologist:
As an economist, the student will consider the following questions
 - a. How have India, China, and Japan organized their economy (capitalism, socialism, mixed economy, etc.)
 - b. How has the economic system of each nation affected the distribution of wealth? Is there a large middle class? Are many people living on a subsistence basis? Have big land holdings been broken up? (land reform)
 - c. How vital is trade to each of these nations?
 3. As a political scientist, the student can consider the following:
 - a. What type of government is there?
 - b. Who makes the decisions?
 - c. How are decisions accepted?
 - d. How democratic are the mechanics of government?
 - e. What type of individuals reach a position of

BASIC ELEMENTS OF CHINESE CULTURE:

- A. INSTITUTIONS
- B. THE ARTS
- C. LANGUAGE
- D. TECHNOLOGY

OBJECTIVE

B. The student will compare and contrast several aspects of Chinese life before and after the revolution.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

1. Have the student compare and contrast family life in China before and after the Revolution (1949)
(for example: female role in family, role of the sons, binding of feet, divorce, marriage, respect of elders, etc.)
2. Have the student compare and contrast the health conditions of the people before and after the revolution.
3. Have the student compare and contrast the educational system before and after the revolution.
(for example: who was educated before the revolution? what was the purpose of education? what is the purpose of education now?)
4. Have the student compare and contrast the governments of China, past and present. (Dynasties, Sun Yat Sen, Chiang Kai Shek and Mao tse Tung)
5. The student may analyze the rate of population growth.. during the past ten years.
6. Have the student compare and contrast the rate of industrialization, before and after revolution.
7. General discussion: Based on her history (exploitation, land-grabbing, war, poverty, hunger, illiteracy, forced trade, and continual interference in all areas by outside governments) was China justified in being "suspicious" of other nations?

8. The Miami Herald of October 5, 1970 published an article by Robert Crabbe entitled: "Communist China: Economic Paradox" In the article Mr. Crabbe states: "Men ride bicycles to jobs in computer factories.."

"China orbited a satellite that broadcast music from outer space-the work of craftsman who do not own T.V. or telephones.."

"...men hack out irrigation canals..the size of Panama... with pick and shovels.."

Discuss the paradoxes of China's progress.

Have the student read and discuss quotes from the Red Book. The student might consider the following questions in his discussion:

"Has Mao been able to take hold as a spiritual leader of the Chinese people?" If so, why?

"Did the prior acceptance of Confucianism open the door for Maoism?"

"How do the thoughts of each compare?"

OBJECTIVE

D. The student will speculate as to the future relations of the United States and China.

E. Teacher will elicit from students some of the problems facing China today.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

1. The President of the United States has recently announced he will visit the People's Republic of China before May, 1972. The student will speculate as to the subsequent relations between the United States and China in the following areas:

- a. trade
- b. tourism
- c. exchanges-culturally, educationally, scientific
- d. admission into the United Nations
- e. war in Southeast Asia
- f. diplomatic relations (formal recognition)

2. The student may research the lives and times of the following leaders of China:

Sun-Yat-Sen
Chiang-kai-Shek
Soong Sisters

Chou-En-lai
Mao-tse-Tung

3. Have the student take an inventory of the products and manufactured items that come in from Formosa.

The United States recently lifted the embargo to trade with the People's Republic of China. What items are coming in and what is the projected rate of trade?

Are there any American products going to the People's Republic?

- f. Acceptance of her products in more markets of the world
- g. Clashes over borders and ideology with the USSR
- h. Fear of Japanese militarism (Samurai-military spirit of Bushido)
- i. Future relationship of China with Taiwan.
- j. Border clash with India.

2. The teacher may encourage independent research and actions projects re: Chinese foods, music, theatre, literature, art and customs (for example: why is RED, the Chinese color for JOY?)

3. Student can investigate via library research which nations of the world wanted the People's Republic to be seated in the U.N. and why?

The teacher may send for a class set of China Policy for the '70's and distribute to class for background and discussion.

Note: If possible a class set of Japan, AEP publications can be utilized for much of the background information. Also students can be referring to their scrapbooks which contain news clippings about Japan. Teacher can arrange to have Miami Herald delivered free to class for books.

4. The teacher may show the filmstrip series:

Japan: A Study in Depth (Warren Schloatz)

Japan: Emergence of a Modern Nation (Guidance Assoc.)
Modern Japan (SVE)

General discussion about filmstrip contents might follow.

B. The student will compare and contrast several aspects of Japanese culture after World War II.

1. Have the student compare and contrast family life in Japan before and after World War II.
2. Have the student compare and contrast the educational system before and after World War II.
3. Have the student analyze the rate of population growth in Japan during the past 10 years.

4. Have the student compare and contrast the rate of Industrialization before and after World War II, after he has seen the filmstrip: The New Japan: Asia's Industrial Giant.
New York Times.

C. The student will generalize as to the factors that contributed to Japan's economic growth.

1. Questions for research and discussion:

- a. Trace the events that led Japan from economic isolation to industrial leadership.
- b. What made possible Japan's economic boom after World War II?

FOCUS

OBJECTIVE

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

- c. How is Japan's economic growth affecting other nations?
- d. Explain: "At the heart of Japan's growth has been its protectionist trade policy."
- e. How will Japan's economic power affect its military role in Asia?
- f. How will Japan's economic growth affect the trade picture in regards to the United States?

2. Newsweek, March 9, 1970 devotes much of its space to Japan. In an article entitled: "Japan-Salesman to the World," Edwin Reischauer, the former U.S. ambassador to Japan states:

"...it is ironic that through our aid and through peaceful means, Japan has achieved what she could not through war. . . Japan is a global economy."

What does the article tell us about Japan?

Will, according to Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, "Japan's power carry unprecedented weight in world affairs?" Do you believe the Japanese have a sense of Manifest Destiny?

3. A student committee could research EXPO 70, held in Japan and present visual materials of the Fair.

4. Debate or discussion: "How do you explain the simplicity and gentleness of family life to the aggressiveness and thrust of business life in Japan?"

VILLAGE LIFE IS INDIA.

OBJECTIVE

B. The student will compare and contrast different aspects of Indian culture before and after Independence.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

1. Have the student compare and contrast family life in India before and after Independence from Britain.
2. Have the student compare and contrast the educational system before and after Independence.
3. Have the student analyze the rate of population growth in India during the past 10 years.
4. Have the student compare and contrast the rate of industrialization before and after Independence.
5. In the villages of India live more than 10 per cent of the world's people and 35 per cent of the Indian population. The teacher will read portions of an article in Social Education, November 1969, dealing with life in an Indian village.
6. Discussion of the concept: rural villages, and not a handful of big cities, represent the true or real India.
7. The students will research the Hindu religion. Why has Hinduism been called a way of life? Does this religion appeal to the younger generation? What is reincarnation?
8. Discuss briefly Gandhi's philosophy of non-violence. Tracing the history of the struggle for independence, the students will make a judgment as to the success of the philosophy as it refers to India.
9. India has been described as the "world's largest democracy" What is meant by that statement? Part of India's economic system is planned and government owned and directed (socialism) but most of India's economy is still in private hands (capitalism).

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

1. Here is a nation with political freedom and the economic opportunity to own businesses and to make profit, but burdened by many problems.

Based on their previous research and by further utilizing current magazine and newspaper articles, the student will examine some of the current problems facing India:

- a. population growth
- b. problems relating to technology and industrialization
- c. universal education and literacy
- d. relations with China and Pakistan (and other nations)
- e. poverty, hunger and disease
- f. role of religion in daily life and progress (sacred cow, etc)
- g. language (180 languages and about 700 dialects)
(from first through fourth grades, the state language is used-Bengali in Bengal, Punjabi in Punjab and etc. In grades five through 11, if the state language is not Hindi, this is studied for four years beginning in fifth grade. This means that between fifth grade and high school graduation, a student may spend up half his time studying languages.)
- h. refugees from East Pakistan

2. The teacher may show the filmstrip: India and Pakistan, The New York Times. Students will discuss the history of the conflict between these two nations and the present situation. (Civil war in Pakistan has led to millions of refugees fleeing East Pakistan into India)

FOCUS	OBJECTIVE	LEARNING ACTIVITIES
TROUBLED TIMES DEMAND GREAT LEADERS.	D. The student will examine the lives of Great Leaders of India. E. The student will engage in enrichment activities	1. The students might research the problems facing the government of India under the leadership of a woman, Indira Gandhi. The student could research the times and lives of other leaders such as: Nehru, Gandhi 2. FOCUS

OBJECTIVE

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

Tradition and Change in India by Holt, Rinehart and Winston
(An inquiry approach)
India and Southeast Asia (Culture Area Studies) Silver
Burdett.

THE STUDENT WILL COMPARE AND CONTRAST THE PROGRESS BEING MADE IN THE SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEMS FACING THE THREE ASIAN NATIONS.

FOCUS

7. THE ECONOMIC, SOCIAL AND POLITICAL CLIMATE OF A NATION SETS THE PACE FOR PROGRESS.

OBJECTIVE

A. The student will compare and contrast the progress made by the three Asian nations.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

1. Have the student devise a chart comparing and contrasting the progress made in the area of education of the three Asian countries:

Statistics on Education for one given year
other columns to include:

Country
China
Japan
India

- a. Compulsory education to what age?
- b. Percentage of illiteracy
- c. Percentage of budget or GNP allocated for education
- d. Number of Elementary Schools
- e. Number of Secondary Schools
- f. Number of Universities
- g. Number of graduates from High School
- h. Number of graduates from College and Universities
- i. Curriculum priorities
- j. Others

Teacher should have statistical yearbook from UNESCO, United Nations for a period of 10 years (1960-1970)

2. The students can devise a chart or graph showing the rate of industrial growth of the three nations.

- a. Generation of Electric Energy
- b. Index of industrial production
- c. Output of Staple Foods
- d. Heavy machine production (types)
- e. Amount of products exported
- f. Amount of products imported
- g. Others

Pages 53-55 of Communist China, AEP booklet has some good examples of charts and graphs showing development of these nations.

OBJECTIVE

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

B. Based on research, the students will cite evidence of each nation's progress.

3. Using atlases and other research materials, the student can compare and contrast the rate of population growth in the three Asian nations.

The student should make a demographic study of the area and make some judgments as to the rate of growth.

1. Based on their research and readings, the students can cite the evidence that indicates what each nation is doing to solve their particular problems.

2. Have the student list the problems of the three nations that are quite different in scope and nature:

- a. Japan doesn't have the language problem that India has
- b. Japan has few natural resources but has developed trade; where as India has great potential natural wealth, but has not developed her industries.
- c. China is concerned with defense and protection against her "unfriendly" neighbors; where as Japan has not worried about defense, since the U.S. is committed to her protection. (Seventh Fleet protection)
- d. Japan has a pollution problem, where as India has a hunger and health problem.
- e. India has an economic-social class problem, along with religious taboos; where as China has an economic system based on state ownership and cooperatives with no religious taboos.

OBJECTIVE

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

f. The religious Indian is concerned about "spiritual values" whereas the Japanese and Chinese are more concerned with "materialist values."

g. All nations have different problems of geography and natural calamities. (Monsoon, earthquake, floods, typhoons, etc.)

3. Have the student compare the efforts being made by the three nations to secure foreign capital and investments and to develop new trade markets.

4. Have the student research the amount of help (capital and technical know-how) given to each nation by the United States:

- Japan
- India
- China

5. Having gained an insight into the factors responsible for the problems facing each of the three nations, the student is ready for an in-depth investigation of each nation. For example, India would be a good example of a nation who has tremendous problems of economic development. She is a perfect example of a nation that relies on natural features such as monsoons (tragic consequences if monsoon is delayed or interrupted) for food to feed her people. The problems of India can now become concrete rather than abstract. To understand the paradox of famine in India, the students can consider these facts:

- a. India is one of the largest nations in the world.
- b. India has much land suitable for grazing and farming.
- c. There are more cattle in India than in any other nation.

OBJECTIVE

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

- d. India is an important producer of wheat, tea, cotton, sugar cane and tobacco.
- e. India is well situated for ocean trade
- f. India has a potential treasure chest of iron, coal and other minerals.
- g. India has enormous human resources.

The student then should carefully consider this question:

"Given such concrete facts, how do you account for the famine, the bare subsistence level at which the masses of Indians still live?" Does the religion (Hinduism) and the culture of the people (beliefs-total way they live) impede progress as we know it?

The teacher may then show three short films which will give the student a chance to compare the three Asian nations and their rate of development.

1. India: A Better Tomorrow or India-Asia's New Voice
2. Japan: Miracle in Asia
3. China: The Awakening Giant

all available from Dade County School Film Library

The student may now be ready to do an in-depth investigation of the People's Republic of China and Japan also. Using the same technique of listing concrete facts, the question of why progress or lack of progress for each nation should be discussed in depth.

OBJECTIVE

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

6. Have the student compare and contrast the methods used by each nation to forge ahead economically, politically and socially.

FOCUS	OBJECTIVE	LEARNING ACTIVITIES
VI. PROGRESS IS A RELATIVE TERM.	A. The student will hypothesize as to the prospects of each society.	1. Three Societies in Perspective: The student has compared and analyzed societies of Japan, India and the People's Republic of China. As a sociologist, he has compared the institutions of the society; as an economist, he has compared the economic systems; as a political scientist he has compared government systems; and as a geographer, he has compared natural resources and topography and other features. Discuss: What is progress? How measured? Does the term mean the same to all nations? (Progress for some might mean regression for others.) The student is now ready to hypothesize as to the prospects of each society. 2. The People's Republic of China. Questions for consideration: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. How has the doctrines and "thoughts" of Mao Tse-tung affected the progress of the Chinese people? b. Has the "compulsory" nature of the society helped or hindered progress in China (for example: health rules, education rules, cooperative land projects, work vacations, etc.) c. Is China now ready for more trade and diplomatic relations with all nations of the world? d. Has China controlled her physical surroundings to the point where she need not fear terrible floods, etc? e. Are the youth of China part of the planning of the "new society?" Has the cult of the 3 C's paid off: Children, Culture and Communism? To what extent has military control over the life of the nation. been extended since the Cultural Revolution by the children in China?

- f. In view of the fact that many of China's problems are being solved, can the Chinese people now expect more political freedoms?
- g. Now that China is a nuclear power, will she be more respected by the nations of the world? What will China's role be in the U.N.? What effect will this have upon the United States and our relationship to the U.N.?
- i. Since the U.S. Table Tennis Players were so warmly received in China and the President has announced his trip to China before May, 1972, does this indicate that the U.S. has now accepted the philosophy of co-existence as it applies to all so-called "Communist" nations?
- j. Is China, generally speaking, headed for more democracy, a higher standard of living for all her people and good relations with her world neighbors?

3. India

- a. How has the religion of Hinduism hindered (or helped) the Indian people?
- b. Does the Economic system of India hinder or help her development?
- c. Does the political system of India hinder or help her development?
- d. Should India have taken the same road China took after the Revolution? (Politically, socially, economically?)-Could she have taken the same road?)
- e. If India had the same climate Japan has, is it possible that the economic development of India would have been different?

- f. Has the United States given enough aid to India? In comparison to Japan?
- g. Generally speaking, is India headed for a better standard of living for all her people or is she headed for greater over-population and hunger and poverty?
- h. What must India do if she is to remain a democracy and still become a Great Nation of the world?
- i. To what extent will the India-Pakistan question impede India's position?
4. Japan
- a. How has the "rugged individualism spirit" contributed to Japanese material progress?
- b. Did the second World War help or hinder Japan's future development?
- c. Did the Constitution developed by the U.S. and Japan which stated that Japan should never again be prepared militarily help or hinder her progress? What effect did General Douglas MacArthur have upon Post-war Japan?
- d. Should the U.S. have retained Okinawa?
- e. How powerful are big business people in government in Japan?
- f. Has the idea of militarism become fashionable again?
- g. Would limitation of Japanese imports into the U.S. hinder Japan's economy? To what extent?
- h. Have the young people of Japan become completely Westernized?
- i. Why has there been discontent (and riots) by some young people against the government?

FOCUS

OPINIONS CAN BE CHANGED
BY KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDING

OBJECTIVE

B. The student will compare the ideas he presently holds about each nation to the ideas he previously held.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES

j. Is Japan still a threat to China (as China sees it)
k. Generally speaking, is Japan headed for a still higher standard of living for all her people-outstripping the United States-or is she headed for great headaches due to her technology and industrial advancement?

5. After polling some of the opinions of neighbors and friends, the student will compare his ideas with theirs regarding the future prospects of the three Asian nations.

6. Ask the student: "If you had to move to one of these three nations, which one would you move to and why?"

The student will compare the ideas they held about these three nations at the beginning of the unit with those ideas and opinions they now have. (Teacher will return the comments students handed in the first week of the unit for comparison)
