ABSTRACT

Franchising continues to be one of the rapidly growing forms of business because it offers a means through which an individual with limited capital and experience can own or operate his own business. The publication, in its eighth edition, identifies franchisors who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, or national origin in the availability, terms, or conditions of their franchises. The listing of equal opportunity franchisors provides a brief summary of the terms, requirements, and conditions under which the franchises are available. The introductory section includes general information on franchising, suggestions, and checklists to assist and protect the potential investor, leads to other sources of information, and an identification of both governmental and private organizations which can assist minority group entrepreneurs. The sole purpose of the listing is to identify nondiscriminatory franchisors, and the information included in each listing is provided by the franchisor. The Department of Commerce does not represent the list as complete and does not guarantee, or assume responsibility for, transactions resulting from use of the information. (Author)

FOREWORD

This is the eighth edition of the Franchise Opportunity Handbook prepared by the Bureau of Competitive Assessment and Business Policy. It is published in support of the Department's overall program to assist in establishing minority group business, an effort which is spearheaded by the Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

This publication identifies franchisors who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, or national origin in the availability, terms, or conditions of their franchises. The listing of equal opportunity franchisors provides a brief summary of the terms, requirements, and conditions under which the franchises are available. The decision of the listed franchisors to participate in this effort to make equal business opportunity meaningful is a positive commitment to help minority groups who are the most common victims of discrimination.

The introductory section includes general information on franchising, suggestions and checklists to assist and protect the potential investor, leads to other sources of information, and an identification of both governmental and private organizations which can assist minority group entrepreneurs.

The listing of these franchisors does not constitute an endorsement or recommendation by the Department of Commerce; the sole purpose of the listing is to identify nondiscriminatory franchisors. The information included in each listing is primarily that provided by the franchisor. The Department does not represent this as a complete list of nondiscriminatory franchisors. Although the information in this publication is believed to be reliable, the Department of Commerce does not guarantee it, nor does it assume any responsibility for transactions that might result from the use of the information.

The Department makes a special effort to disseminate this publication to minority groups. More than 155,000 copies of the first seven editions were so distributed. Other means of informing minority groups about the opportunities in franchising are seminars and conferences arranged in cooperation with local and national organizations. Information on franchising is also provided through consultations or correspondence. Requests for such assistance should be directed to the Office of Minority Business Enterprise. Copies of this publication are available from Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

This listing was compiled in the Consumer Goods and Services Division, Office of Business Research and Analysis under the supervision of Norris A. Lynch, Director. The listing was prepared by Andrew Kostecka with the assistance of Dorothy Miller. Typing was provided by Irene F. Freeman and Edith Burno. The Bureau extends its appreciation to all of the respondents who have helped to make this listing possible.

INTRODUCTION

Franchising is both an old and new concept. The term from the French originally meant to be free from servitude. Its meaning in the context of present-day promotions is the opportunity for one to own his own business even if inexperienced and lacking adequate capital. During recent years, franchising, as a type of business operation, has been expanding rapidly and entering into new areas of application. There are no precise figures to measure the magnitude of franchising today. There are, however, many estimates which indicate both significant size and rapid growth. The most recent statistics compiled by the Bureau of Domestic Commerce appear in a publication entitled Franchising in the Economy 1971 - 1973. They revealed that franchised businesses accounted for over $156 billion in annual sales in 1973 equal to 30% of retail sales.

What is Franchising

Franchising is a form of licensing by which the owner (the franchisor) of a product, service or method obtains distribution at the retail level through affiliated dealers (the franchisees). The holder of the right is often given exclusive access to a defined geographical area.

The product, method or service being marketed is identified by a brand name and the franchisor maintains control over the marketing methods employed.

In many cases the operation resembles that of a large chain with trademarks, uniform symbols, equipment, storefronts, and standardized services or products, and maintains uniform practices as outlined in the franchise agreement.

The International Franchise Association, the major trade association in the field, defines franchising as "a continuing relationship in which the franchisor provides a licensed privilege to do business, plus assistance in organizing, training, merchandising, and management in return for a consideration from the franchisee."

A former president of the International Franchise Association described franchising as "a convenient and economic means for the filling of a drive or desire (for independence) with a minimum of risk and investment and maximum opportunities for success through the utilization of a proven product or service and marketing method." However, the owner of a franchised business must give up some options and freedom of action in business decisions that would be open to the owner of a non-franchised business.

In a way, the franchisee is not his own boss because in order to maintain the distinctiveness and uniformity of the service and to insure that the operations of each outlet will reflect favorably on the organization as a whole—to protect and build its good will—the franchisor usually exercises some degree of continuing control over the operations of franchisees, and requires them to meet stipulated standards of quality. The extent of such control varies. In some cases franchisees are required to conduct every step of their operation in strict conformity with a manual furnished by the franchisor—and this may be desirable.

In return the individual franchisee can share in the good will built up by all other outlets which bear the same name.

A company which depends upon the successful operation of franchise outlets needs men who are willing to learn the business and have the energy for a considerable amount of effort; it can supply the other essentials for successful operation of the outlet. Among the services franchisors may provide to the franchise operators are the following: 1) location analysis and counsel; 2) store development aid, including lease negotiation; 3) store design and equipment purchasing; 4) initial employee and management training, and continuing management counseling; 5) advertising and merchandising counsel and assistance; 6) standardized procedures and operations; 7) centralized purchasing with consequent savings; and 8) financial assistance in the establishment of the business.

Investigate Before You Invest

Any person contemplating an investment in a franchise business should first make a thorough investigation. This should include an evaluation of his own aptitude and attitude toward the type of activity under consideration. It should include a careful review of the terms and conditions of the contract. Clearly, no one should enter a contract without a thorough understanding of the terms of the agreement, and the obligations which it places on both parties. The normal precaution of having a proposed contract or franchise agreement reviewed by a competent attorney is essential to your protection as a franchisee.

Also important is an investigation of the franchisor, the firm that may accept you after investigation. You should also investigate him. Visits to current outlets in other areas and discussions with the owner may reveal information or facts not otherwise available. In this, assistance may be obtained from commercial firms such as Dun and Bradstreet, from local bankers or other local businessmen, and from the Council of Better Business Bureau, Inc., whose services are described in this book.

In addition, you should investigate the territory you are considering and the market potential for the product or service you will handle.

For each of these factors there are questions to be asked, and many facts to be secured. Dr. Wilford L. White, Director of the Howard University Small Business Guidance and Development Center, has devised a list of 24 questions which should be helpful in evaluating a franchise opportunity. These questions are incorporated in this booklet under the heading "Evaluating a Franchise."

To assist you in acquiring the necessary background we have included with this publication an annotated bibliography of current franchise reading material which should be reviewed prior to investing. In addition, the prospective franchisee should consult the Readers Guide to Periodical Literature at the local library. The local librarians can be of assistance to those unfamiliar with library procedures.

There also are many local special business career counseling services which can help an individual determine his own qualifications by organizing the facts about himself and by surveying franchise opportunities in depth. Such counseling usually increases a franchisee's chances for success. A list of university centers which can be of assistance is included on page xx.

The obligations of a franchisor to the franchisee are embodied in the Code of Ethics adopted by the International Franchise Association. A study of this code will assist the franchisee in evaluating the franchisor under consideration before making his final commitment.

Code of Ethics

(International Franchise Association)

Each member company pledges:

1. To properly and effectively serve the needs of the ultimate user or consumer of the company's products or services.

2. To provide a professional competitive and successful program that will establish and maintain a franchising enterprise to distribute the company's products or services.

3. To establish terms of franchise, license contract, or similar agreement completely and clearly set down in print. All terms of said agreement are to be fair to the franchisee and fully understood by him prior to signing. The franchisee shall in all cases be furnished with a complete and accurate signed copy of the agreement. The company shall abide by its franchise agreement in letter and in spirit.

4. To always provide complete information to prospective franchisees concerning the cost of entering into such business. No company shall minimize, diminish or in any way disguise or withhold the amount of necessary capital, work, or qualifications necessary to commence and maintain ordinary operations as a franchisee.

5. To advertise or communicate to any person or company, by conversation, correspondence, newspapers, magazines, radio, television or any other means of communication:

a. Factual information only concerned with the growth of the company or its number of operating outlets at the time of communication.

b. Realistic or average yearly net profit projections that can be reasonably expected by franchisees. Reasonable net profit figures are to be ascertained by using known average figures for comparable cities and/or operations. Overstated or exaggerated figures are to be eliminated.

c. True and proper representation of all policies, products and any other important information which have influence on the enterprise.

d. Ethical consumer advertising, to avoid any misleading claims such as, but not limited to, false comparisons, untrue, unproved or exaggerated statements, trick photography or omission of pertinent facts.

6. That all products furnished and sold to franchisees through, by, or upon the recommendation of the company shall be as represented, and manufactured with ingredients or materials of acceptable standards approved by the applicable trade, profession, or industry.

7. That distribution of the company's exclusive franchise products, services or equipment under more than one name in order to obtain business through more than one outlet in a franchised area, without disclosure to the franchisee, shall be a violation of the spirit and/or letter of the franchising agreement and shall be prohibited.

8. That it shall completely avoid by demonstration and action, and shall encourage its franchisees to avoid illegal practices of any sort.

9. That it shall respect all contracts, pay all obligations, maintain good credit rating, and in other respects follow the highest standards of business conduct.

10. That it shall not, in any way, copy or represent the trademark, or other distinguishing marks of other companies with intent to mislead the public.

11. That it shall assume the moral obligation to conduct continuing research in its field to increase the knowledge of its franchisees with respect to all phases of their business operation to assist them in maintaining competitive position, achieving better performance and obtaining maximum profits.

Checklist for Evaluating a Franchise

The Franchise

1. Did your lawyer approve the franchise contract you are considering after he studied it paragraph by paragraph?

2. Does the franchise call upon you to take any steps which are, according to your lawyer, unwise or illegal in your state, county or city?

3. Does the franchise give you an exclusive territory for the length of the franchise or can the franchisor sell a second or third franchise in your territory?

4. Is the franchisor connected in any way with any other franchise company handling similar merchandise or services?

5. If the answer to the last question is "yes" what is your protection against this second franchisor organization?

6. Under what circumstances can you terminate the franchise contract and at what cost to you, if you decide for any reason at all that you wish to cancel it?

7. If you sell your franchise, will you be compensated for your good will or will the good will you have built into the business be lost by you?

The Franchisor

8. For how many years has the firm offering you a franchise been in operation?

9. Has it a reputation for honesty and fair dealing among the local firms holding its franchise?

10. Has the franchisor shown you any certified figures indicating exact net profits of one or more going firms which you personally checked yourself with the franchisee?

11. Will the firm assist you with:

- (a) A management training program?
- (b) An employee training program?
- (c) A public relations program?
- (d) Capital?
- (e) Credit?
- (f) Merchandising ideas?

12. Will the firm assist you in finding a good location for your new business?

13. Is the franchising firm adequately financed so that it can carry out its stated plan of financial assistance and expansion?

14. Is the franchisor a one man company or a corporation with an experienced management trained in depth (so that there would always be an experienced man at its head)?

15. Exactly what can the franchisor do for you which you cannot do for yourself?

16. Has the franchisor investigated you carefully enough to assure itself that you can successfully operate one of their franchises at a profit both to them and to you?

You—the Franchisee

17. How much equity capital will you have to have to purchase the franchise and operate it until your income equals your expenses? Where are you going to get it?

18. Are you prepared to give up some independence of action to secure the advantages offered by the franchise?

19. Do YOU really believe you have the innate ability, training, and experience to work smoothly and profitably with the franchisor, your employees, and your customers?

20. Are you ready to spend much or all of the remainder of your business life with this franchisor, offering his product or service to your public?

Your Market

21. Have you made any study to determine whether the product or service which you propose to sell under franchise has a market in your territory at the prices you will have to charge?

22. Will the population in the territory given you increase, remain static, or decrease over the next 5 years?

23. Will the product or service you are considering be in greater demand, about the same, or less demand 5 years from now than today?

24. What competition exists in your territory already for the product or service you contemplate selling?

- (a) Nonfranchise firms?
- (b) Franchise firms?

GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Office of Minority Business Enterprise

The Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) was established within the Department of Commerce to be the focal point of the Federal Government's efforts to assist the establishment of new minority enterprises and the expansion of existing ones.

OMBE is responsible for coordinating operations of the Federal Government which may contribute to establishing and strengthening minority enterprise. It promotes and mobilizes the activities and resources of state and local governments, businesses, and other private groups and organizations to further minority business growth; and coordinates such programs of the Federal agencies. The Office also maintains a center for the collection, analysis, and dissemination of information to assist the establishment and operation of minority businesses.

To provide local assistance to prospective and existing minority businessmen, OMBE has affiliated with local business development organizations in cities with substantial minority populations. These organizations serve as a central information source on business opportunities in addition to providing assistance to minority businessmen. A list of these organizations follows:

Small Business Administration

The Small Business Administration renders assistance in various ways to those planning to enter business as well as to those in business. This assistance includes counseling and possible financial aid.

Counseling may be by SBA specialists or retired executives under the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) program, and could include various seminars or courses, or a combination of services including reference publications.

Financial assistance may take the form of loans or the participation in, or guaranty of, loans made by financial institutions. Such assistance can be given only to those eligible applicants who are unable to provide the money from their own resources and cannot obtain it on reasonable terms from banks, franchisors, or other usual business sources.

The Small Business Administration financial support under its own legislation can provide up to $350,000 with the usual maximum maturity of six years for working capital and up to ten years for fixtures and equipment. Under some circumstances, portions of a loan involving construction can qualify for longer terms up to fifteen years. For those who qualify, loans made under Title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act can be up to $25,000 and the maturity can be up to ten years for working capital and fifteen years for fixed assets.

A list follows of Small Business Administration field offices (and the names and telephone numbers of SBA franchise representatives as of September 1, 1973) where more detailed information regarding the various services available can be obtained.

Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury

The Internal Revenue Service offers a number of services designed to assist new businessmen in understanding and meeting their Federal tax obligations. For example, a Mr. Businessman's Kit (Publication 454) which contains informational publications, forms, instructions, and samples of notices which the IRS issues to business concerns is available free.

The kit is a convenient place for storing retained copies of tax returns and employee information. It also contains a checklist of tax returns and a tax calendar of due dates for filing returns and paying taxes identified on the folder. Copies of the kit may be obtained from local offices of the Internal Revenue Service. Employees of the IRS are available to explain items in the kit and answer questions about the tax forms, how to complete them, requirements for withholding, depositing, reporting Federal income and social security taxes, and the Federal unemployment tax. Copies of the kit may also be obtained by writing to the District Director who will have it delivered and explained at a mutually convenient time.

The Tax Guide for Small Business (Publication 334) may also be obtained at local offices of the IRS, the District Director, or the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Price 75¢.

NON-GOVERNMENTAL ASSISTANCE AND INFORMATION

Council of Better Business Bureaus, Inc.

The Council of Better Business Bureaus, Inc., conducts a continuing program in the field of franchising and maintains files on many firms which distribute through the franchise method. Summaries of the information in these files are released and available to inquiries upon request for specifically named firms. Inquiries on franchising should be sent to the Trade Practicers Department Council of Better Business Bureaus Inc., 1150 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

and federal legislative bodies in helping to foster sound law.

It maintains both Washington counsel and general legal counsel, publishes legal bulletins on court decisions and legislation, publishes a newsletter, and acts as a "friend of the court" in landmark cases affecting franchising.

The Association has developed an IFA Code of Ethics to which all member companies must subscribe. In addition to serving as a standard for operating franchise companies the Code can be used as a check list for the prospective franchisee in evaluating a franchise offering.

International Franchise Association

The International Franchise Association is a non-profit organization representing franchisors. Its membership consists of more than 200 companies. The Association provides information on franchising to individuals, businesses and the general public. It conducts educational programs, legal symposia, and works with state

The Association publishes a booklet entitled "Investigate Before Investing" which sets forth suggested procedures interested parties should follow before entering a franchised business. The booklet is available from IFA for $1.00.

Further details on the services of the Association or membership may be obtained from its executive offices at 1025 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

Equity Capital Needed: $6,000 for inventory. No fees or royalties.

Financial Assistance Available: Company is prepared to establish a thirty-day open account for the distributor, amount to be determined by financial standing of distributor. Company is also prepared to grant longer term financing for equipment through conditional sales contracts. This requires a 10% down payment with payouts ranging up to twenty-four (24) months. Company has granted credit to individual distributors in amounts ranging up to $25,000.

Training Provided: Company gives a five-day intensive training course at company's expense at headquarters in Hialeah, Florida. Follow-up training will be given from time to time by company personnel in the home territory of the distributor. Furthermore, distributors are requested to study detailed manuals published by company for each of the products and each of the systems.

Managerial Assistance Available: Mailings are made by the company for each distributor to all beauty salons in distributor's area. This is done at the company's expense. The company stays in touch with its distributors by phone at least once a month. Also, news letters are published once a month where sales ideas are expounded and technical problems are discussed. Company also advertises extensively on a national basis through full page ads in the major trade magazines such as American Hairdresser, Modern Beauty Shop, and others. Company also participates in co-op local advertising. Company furthermore assists by supplying booth decorations and advertising material for local cosmetology shows or conventions.
