ABSTRACT

This report presents data gathered in a survey of educational programs and practices used in Connecticut public schools during the 1974-75 school year. School principals were asked to indicate which of a selected list of programs were in operation in their school. Responses do not indicate the extent of program involvement, merely whether a particular program was operating to some degree within the schools. Data is listed alphabetically by city name and, within each city, by school name. A separate index lists the cities in which each particular program may be found. All listings are divided into two major sections, one for elementary schools and one for middle schools and junior and senior high schools. The survey for elementary schools listed 18 items, including the use of teacher aides or tutors, individually guided instruction, and differentiated staffing. For postelementary schools, the survey examined 21 topics, including career education, follow-up of former students, modular scheduling, and student involvement in school administration and curriculum development. INTRODUCTION

This report was compiled in response to numerous requests from educators and citizens for information about educational programs and practices in Connecticut's public schools.

The information contained in this report is based upon data furnished by school principals who responded to a questionnaire prior to the publication deadline. The main purpose of this summary is to provide a preliminary reference as to where given programs and practices are to be found during the 1974-75 school year.

A check in a given column merely indicates that the program or practice is in operation to some degree in that school. For more comprehensive information about given programs than it is possible to indicate in a listing such as this, it is suggested that the reader contact the school system or school where the program is in operation. Some schools have various modifications of the general category headings, as indicated. Also, all grades or subjects in a listed school may not implement the program that is checked.

The report is organized in three sections, with schools listed alphabetically, by towns:

- I. Elementary Schools
- II. Middle, Junior and Senior High Schools
- III. Other Programs and Practices

The editors wish to acknowledge the assistance of the Area Cooperative Educational Services (A.C.E.S.) in the preparation of this report. Mr. Peter C. Young, Executive Director; Dr. Diane D. Thompson, Director, Evaluation Services Division; and Mrs. Carolyn Binkoski, Editorial Assistant.
