Part of the "Comprehensive National Survey of Migrant Programs" series, this directory lists services and resources available to migrant and seasonal farmworkers during their stay in the Northwestern states of Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Oregon, Washington, and Wyoming. Prepared for use by agencies working with these farmworkers, the directory gives information and data obtained from Federal, State, and local agencies in the various states. Special emphasis was placed on data current as of summer 1974. Information is given for each state: (1) programs; (2) crops and work periods; (3) migrant population and wages by county; (4) labor camps; and (5) supplementary data such as information sources and exhibits which depict county distribution and State relation to the national migratory patterns. Programs listed provide educational, health, legal, and job placement services to migrant workers. Some of the listings of organizations, programs, or agencies may contain some obsolete information due to their: instability; being subject to change as new needs, priorities, and objectives appear; or as operating funds expire. Dear Sir(s):

This directory of programs and services available to migrant and seasonal farmworkers in the Northwestern States is one of several in the Comprehensive National Survey of Migrant Programs series. The entire series will cover all the States in the mainland, including Puerto Rico.

These directories are compiled for use by agencies working with migrant and seasonal farmworkers. It is our objective that in the utilization of this directory, the awareness of programmatic needs and services of the farmworker will be increased.

Our goal has been and continues to be the creation of a greater sense of community among agencies seeking to serve the migrant and seasonal farmworker.

Sincerely,

INTRODUCTION

MIGRANT PROGRAMS IN IDAHO, MONTANA, NEBRASKA, NORTH DAKOTA, SOUTH DAKOTA, OREGON, WASHINGTON AND WYOMING

The purpose of this book is to consolidate under one cover a listing of all services and resources available to migrant farmworkers during their stay in the states herein included. The staff of the National Migrant Information Clearinghouse has endeavored to make this directory as complete and as accurate as possible. However, some of the listings of organizations, programs or agencies may contain some obsolete information after the printing date. Although many programs have the stability of long term and established services, others are often short-lived or constantly subject to change as new needs, priorities and objectives appear or as operating funds expire.

Information for this directory was obtained entirely from Federal, state and local agencies in the various states. Only programs actually in existence at the time the information was collected have been included, but due to the lag time between gathering information and then publishing it, an effort was made to keep astride of all farm labor developments in these states during this time. Special emphasis was placed in obtaining only information and data current as of summer 1974. There are several reasons why this was not always possible. Many organizations, particularly state agencies, do not normally summarize their service activities until the end of each calendar year. Still others provided less than full cooperation to Clearinghouse staff, or did not cooperate at all. As a result, some of the information had to be obtained from secondary sources.

This directory is therefore only as accurate as the information which was provided by the sources contacted. A sincere effort has been made to authenticate as much of the information that appears in this book as possible. However, the limited time and resources available for this project virtually rendered impossible the verification of every item of information.

The Idaho State Department of Employment (IDE) assists farmworkers both directly and indirectly with manpower services.

In a joint effort, the IDE and the Idaho Migrant Council (IMC) provide direct assistance to migrant farmworkers through the National Migrant Worker Program (NMWP).

The purpose for this joint venture is to provide the opportunity for vocational training, under the Manpower Development and Training Act, to farmworkers who wish to leave the migrant stream and develop non-agricultural skills. This program is officially authorized at the Federal level in recognition of the growing nationwide problem of rapidly diminishing agricultural seasonal hand labor jobs.

The IDE entered into a subcontract with the IMC giving them responsibility for outreach and recruitment of candidates for training, preliminary screening for eligibility, assisting in final selection and employability planning, providing labor market information to trainees and other members of the target population, providing coaching to trainees and their families during training and after placement on a job, job development for trainees and other family members.

In addition, the IDI provides counseling and testing and pays subsistence allowances to trainees. The Department of Vocational Education finds suitable class openings in vocational schools and pays tuition and other training costs.

Indirectly, the IDI assists migrants through the Volunteer Rural Manpower Information Center Program (VRMIC) and Operation Hitchhike. The VRMIC features a community bulletin board displaying manpower and training information, special new job openings, job examinations, and other publications of interest to rural residents.

Under Operation Hitchhike, all the services available to urban residents are also made available to rural residents. Such services include screening, referrals, testing, counseling, training and placement.

The State Farm Labor Service has jurisdiction over the inspections of labor camps only if and when orders for out-of-state recruitment of employees occurs.

The IDI services are available year-round, Monday through Friday, from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. through any of the following offices:

The migrant programs in Montana are not directly administered by the State. Local School District No. 2 plans, sponsors and carries out the migrant programs in the Yellowstone River area whereas Big Fork Elementary School administers the program in the Flathead-Lake County area. The State agency reviews the local program, makes recommendations, visits the programs while in progress, acts as a central clearing-house for dissemination and collecting information and is the liaison agency between the U.S. Office of Education and the local agencies concerned with Title I, Migrant Education Programs for migrant and seasonal farmworker children.

The goals of MCEP are to provide remedial educational programs in order to increase the migrant and seasonal farmworker child's capabilities in areas where he may be deficient; and also provide a curriculum directed to meet individual needs in academics and pre-vocational skills.

The program's supportive services include medical, dental and nutritional care, as well as transportation and Day Care services.

Services are available from June through mid-July, Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the following service sites:

Dear Mr. Martinez:

In answer to your questions in your letter of March 3, 1974, we have the following answers.

The main crop in Montana worked by migrants is the sugar beet crop. About 2,000 Mexican Americans are recruited each season from Texas by beet growers to thin and hoe sugar beets. The wages are set by the USDA each season. All workers are on a piece rate basis.

→ The counties involved are Yellowstone, Big Horn, Custer, Rosebud, Prairie, Dawson, Richland, and Blaine. There are no labor camps in the state. Each family group or crew is housed by the growers on their own acreages. Our agency is not engaged in the inspection of the housing as growers no longer recruit through us but handle this themselves. We would inspect housing as per government regulations as we did in previous seasons some years ago should growers submit interstate recruitment orders through our agency.

Sincerely,

Jess C. Fletcher, Deputy Administrator
for Employment Services

The program is designed to give students from farmworking families a chance to complete their high school education and to prepare them for the GED examinations. Participants, age 17 to 21, in the program are recruited from poverty-level families enrolled in the colleges receiving HEP funds. All thirteen institutions that take part in the program in the U.S. are situated in States with migrant populations. The maximum duration of instruction for an HEP student is five months.

Each student lives on a college campus and has access to student facilities, academic, health and medical services. In addition to instruction, HEP students receive room and board, intensive counseling and tutorial help plus a weekly stipend of $100.00.

Those successful in the GED examinations are then assisted by the staff recruiter and placement officer in either entering college, vocational training programs or locating a permanent job. Once placed, they will continue to receive regular follow-up services.

The High School Equivalency Program (HEP) was established in 1966 as part of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), later transferred to the Department of Labor in 1973.

Migrant Population served: 2,000 (June Peak Month)

The Nebraska Migrant Health Project provides medical, dental and family planning services to farmworking families through the Family Health Clinic and direct referrals to doctors and dentists.

The Migrant Health Clinic renders the following medical services: immunizations, general physical examinations, health and dental screenings, well-child, pre-natal care and dental hygiene instructions. Dental referrals are sent to local dentists on a fee-for-service basis.

Nurses implement health and medical care to farmworkers and dependents and assist with patients at the clinic, home and hospital. Visitation and medical follow-ups in addition to referrals and counseling are performed.

Family health clinics are held at the Migrant Health Project on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 p.m. through 11:30 p.m. during the peak farmworking season (May through July). Workers are treated by a physician and nurses at the clinic.

Drugs are available only during clinic hours and prescribed by a physician.

Family Planning services consist of pregnancy, pap-smear and venereal disease tests, post-natal care (six weeks after delivery) for check-ups and follow-ups. Contraceptive paraphernalia is accessible at no costs. Film strips and pamphlets aid the education/counseling of interested participants on family planning. Two similar Family Planning Clinics are located in Alliance (Box Butte County) and North Platte (Lincoln County).

Health Education materials in both Spanish and English are available in the Migrant Health Office and are distributed as visual aids in Family Health Clinics, at home visitations and individual counseling.

The Migrant Health Project nurses visit migrant schools around the area, screening children and bringing the children to the clinic for medical attention.

The patient must be registered with the Migrant Health Project Office and must qualify according to the Project's definition of a migrant and seasonal farmworker.

All hospital referrals are made by the clinic physicians.

The Migrant Health Project received funds for a relocation program in early 1974, for migrant families who desire to settle out in western Nebraska. A family will be accommodated with adequate housing and assisted with rent until a family member finds employment. Assistance is rendered with groceries and car repair to cover the period of settling out.

The Migrant Health Project office is open Monday through Friday, 8:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m., year round.

The Panhandle Community Action Agency is located in an area where a large concentration of farmworkers find employment in Western Nebraska. Even though their target clients are local poor residents, the CAP agency assists migrant families with free clothing and other needed aid.

An EIMS grant was awarded to the CAP agency to serve migrant and Indian families. Under EIMS assistance, farmworker families may receive emergency purchases of food and dietary and nutritional supplements for expectant mothers. The program is also responsible for the establishment of Meals-On-Wheels for Senior Citizens.

The employment training program involves recruitment, assessment and placement of trainees with private business and industry.

A community organization component encourages local residents to form groups to promote community action in improving living conditions and is intended to develop better homes for low-income people in the area.

The Headstart program operates from September through May, creating a stimulating environment for pre-school children. Each Day Care Center is designed to meet the needs of approximately twenty children. The children are at the Centers on Monday through Friday where they receive a snack and lunch. Visual, dental and medical screening is conducted and follow-up care is given when needed. Creative play, music, art, language development and field trips are a part of their learning experience.

Headstart and Day Care Centers are located in the following communities in Scotts Bluff County: Gering, Lyman, Minatare, Mitchell and Morrill. Sidney, in Cheyenne County and Kimball in Kimball County also are locations of Headstart and Day Care centers.

The CAP agency is open from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Monday through Friday and operates year-round.

The High School Equivalency Program (HEP) is a resident program at Washington State University and serves farmworker youths (ages 17-24) directly by offering educational opportunities. HEP students study for a General Educational Development (GED) certificate.

The HEP accepts students whose families earn at least fifty percent of their income from farm work and fall below the poverty level established by the U.S.D.O.L.

Students are given an opportunity to learn a vocational trade or continue their education through college.

HEP classes usually have eight students per class allowing for individual attention. No traditional grading system is utilized except for progress reports issued periodically.

The HEP program provides room and board, books and supplies, medical and transportation costs at the beginning and end of the term including Christmas holidays. Additionally, each student is given $10.00 per week for personal spending.

The program lasts from September through August. Classes are held thirty hours a week, five days each week.

Migrant Population Served: 2,000 (May-July)

NOWCAP, a community action agency, serves farmworkers in the Big Horn Basin area during the months of May, June and July when they harvest sugar beets.

A health program, a family planning program, Day Care/Headstart programs plus additional supportive services are also available.

All medical and dental care is referred to local physicians on a fee-for-service basis. Some of the medical services include immunizations, physical examinations, pre-natal and child care education with an entire array of comprehensive medical and dental treatment.

An outreach aide refers migrants to public health service sites and assists with transportation, acts as a translator and makes a follow-up on the initial delivery of medical treatment.

The Day Care components of NOWCAP are located at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Lovell, Big Horn County and at Westside Worland School in Worland, Washakie County.

Eligible children are aged from infancy to five years old.

Medical and dental care is provided by nurses who visit the Center periodically. Children are fed breakfast, lunch and snacks. In addition, transportation on school buses to and from the Day Care Centers is provided.

The daily routine includes bathing, changing of clothes, napping and play periods. The older children in the group are put in a Headstart program for orientation and development. The following cities in Big Horn County have Headstart programs: Basin, Treynell and Lovell. In Washakie County, Worland has a service site.

The Family Planning Service component assists migrant and seasonal farmworker adults in planning their family. The service makes family planning paraphernalia accessible, as well as bilingual educational material.

The Center also offers physical examinations, pelvic and breast examinations and pap smear cancer-detection tests.

Outreach aides inform farmworkers of all services available and referrals are made to the appropriate staff or agency to provide assistance, as food stamp regulations.

NOWCAP is open from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, year-round.

Funding Sources: U.S.D.H.E.W. Office of Child Development, RSPA Title I, Migrant Education
Service Area: Goshen and Platte Counties
Migrant Population Served: 150

Tri-County Development Corporation, a Headstart granteo, is responsible for the operation of two Summer Headstart Programs which exclusively serve migrant children from the ages of two weeks to five years old. The two programs are located in Torrington and Wheatland, Wyoming.

The Tri-County Migrant Program works in cooperation with the public schools offering services to children from five to seventeen years old. The Tri-County Program is funded through the Office of Child Development, while the Migrant Program in the public school is funded by Title I funds.

The services provided to the preschool children in Torrington and Wheatland are numerous and varied, with the majority of the services being provided in the health and education area.

The major emphasis in the Health Program is a physical examination by local physicians. Two visiting physicians at the center complete all the physicals and include urinalysis and hemoglobins in the checkup. The necessary medical follow-up is taken on those children needing such care. Cooperation with the Public Health Service and Children's Health Services provide the best care available. In addition to the physicals and the necessary medical follow-up, hearing and vision screenings are provided to every child. Immunizations are given upon the parent's request. Dental screenings are also given to those children aged three to five years old. Unfortunately, only those children needing the most critical dental work can receive care.

The Education Component emphasizes informal evaluations and observations by the teaching staff. Each child's individualized program is structured from this informal evaluation. The program includes such things as infant stimulation, gross and fine motor activities, Peabody Levels I and II, English as a Second Language, and an emphasis on self-concept.

Special attention is focused on how to identify these needs in a preservice concerned with the Spanish Culture and special health needs of the migrant child.

Recruiting methods include job banks, radio and news media. These methods are used to locate employment for one-hundred-and-fifty days or more. The employment service provides bi-lingual job lists and runs bi-lingual (English-Spanish) radio programs from May through September. Worland, in Washakie County and Thermopolis in Hot Springs County, have daily radio recruiting programs.

Health Services and facilities are available in these Counties rendering medical care to migrants and seasonal farmworkers when the occasion arises. The degree of comprehensive health care varies with each clinic depending on their involvement with the farmworker population.

Although the Public Nurse's functions are not specifically geared for farmworkers, they assist all patients by referrals, outreach and actual delivery of medical care and dental screening.

Medical services include home health service, immunization, audio-visual screening, tuberculosis testing, outreach contact and family planning services.

The Public Health Nurses work jointly with the County Health Officers.

C. MIGRANT POPULATION AND WAGES BY COUNTY IN WYOMING

No breakdown on a per county basis of migrant and seasonal farmworkers is available to NMIC. The following is abstracted from "Farm Labor Report, 1973" published by the Employment Security Commission of Wyoming:

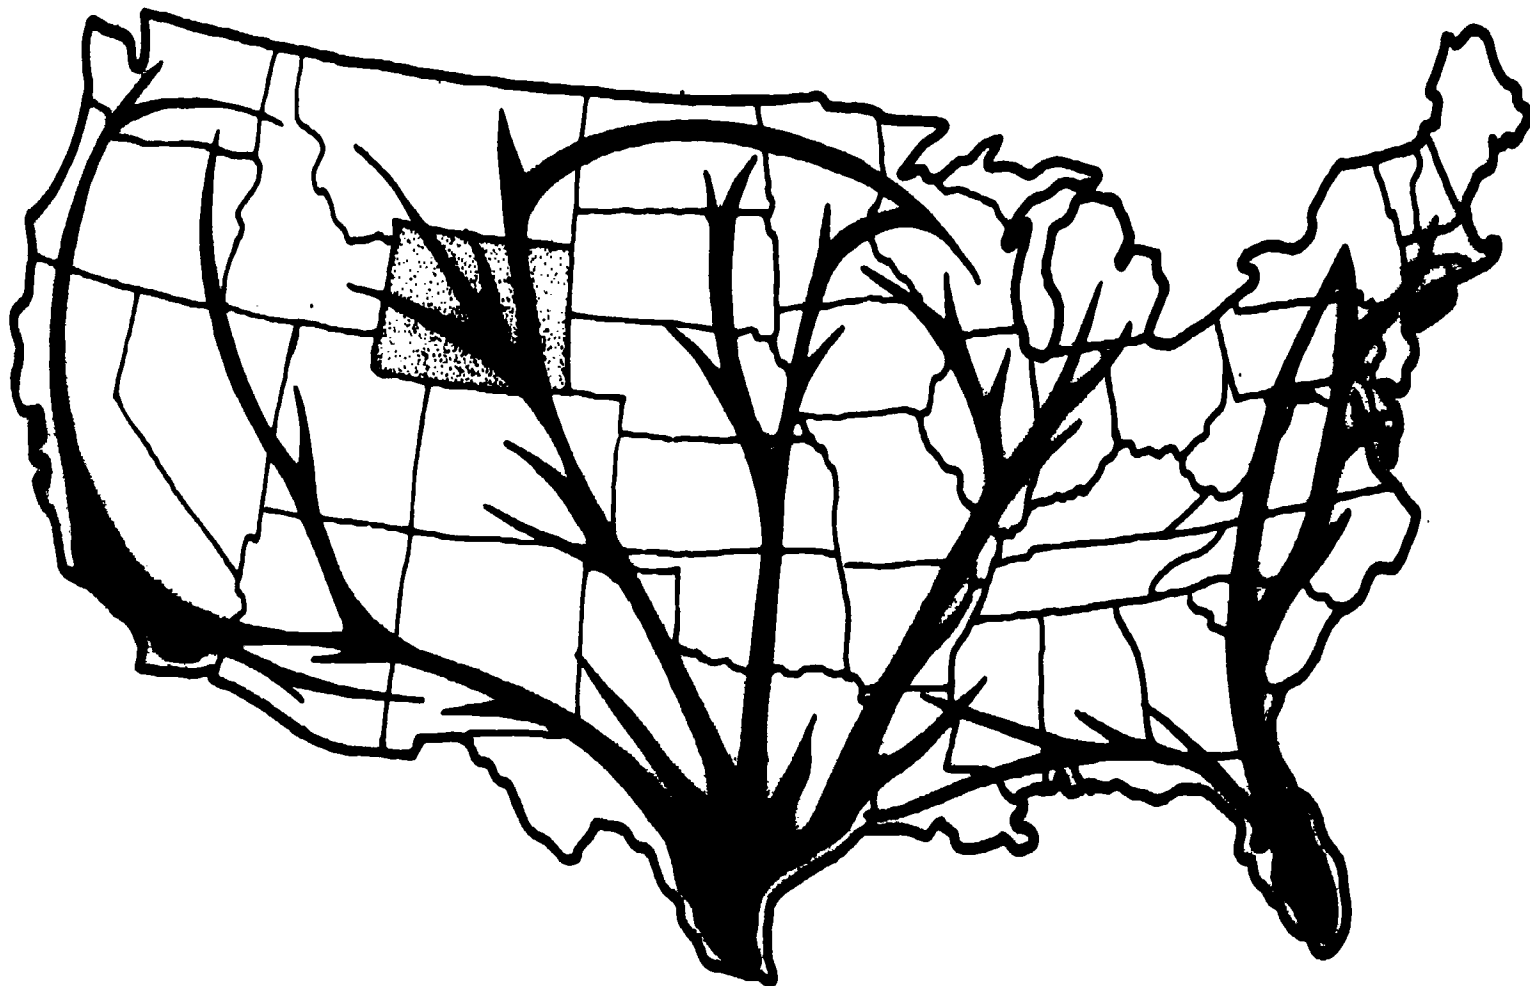

"The biggest area of employment for seasonal work is in the thinning, weeding, etc., for sugar beets. Some 2,200 workers and families come from Texas and approximately 300 from California, are in Wyoming from May 1st to July 10th. The workers consist of men and women of all ages and of children, too, above the age of 14. During the harvest season, housewives (from both farm and town) drive the beet trucks from the fields to the dumps. The other groups of seasonal workers are lambing hands and irrigators. These are generally all male, single; sometimes transient. In the case of irrigators, they are generally older, since it is an art of sorts, but the lambing hands may range through all ages."

D. LABOR CAMPS IN WYOMING

The following is the only information gleaned with regard to the existence of Labor Camps in Wyoming. This information was abstracted from the Wyoming Farm Labor Report/ Employment Security Service, 1973:

"There were no interstate orders received by Wyoming, and only twenty-four openings cleared through the year for lambers and/or herders to New Mexico. There were no housing inspections made because the Employment Service is not used to recruit migrant workers. The main factor relating to the breakdown of interstate recruitment of agricultural workers is the insistence that the Secretary's housing regulations be followed to the letter. There had been much progress in improving the housing, but when the letter of the Regulations had to be observed, all progress was stopped when employers began to completely by-pass the Employment Service."

APPENDIX

METHODOLOGY

The information which appears on this report was compiled, analyzed and processed according to a standard research design which was developed by Clearinghouse staff members. This included preliminary research from central information sources, on-site visits, identification of data base and final documentation of information.

PRELIMINARY RESEARCH. Preliminary information on these states was obtained by first utilizing the library resources of the National Migrant Information Clearinghouse. Numerous mailing lists, annual reports and funding proposals were consulted. After the identification of major migrant programs, a verification process was implemented in which these programs were contacted by phone in order to verify any items of information that may have been in doubt. The telephone contacts were also very useful in that we were often referred to other agencies or projects of which we had no prior knowledge. This particular process allowed us to make initial contact with many central sources of information for follow-up at a later date.

ON-SITE VISITS. On-site visits were made to numerous agencies in an effort to obtain detailed first hand information on the nature and types of services available to migrant farmworkers in each state. The most current farm labor statistics and data on wages, migrant population, crops, legislation, etc. were also sought. Such visits were limited by time, and generally speaking, were made only to those Federal, State, and local agencies considered central or headquarters offices for other projects or programs.

IDENTIFICATION OF DATA BASE. After all preliminary information had been accumulated and verified, and after all on-site visits had been conducted, counties to be included in the book were established according to the following criteria:

1. Existence of a migrant program, or
2. Inclusion in the service area of a migrant program, or
3. Significant (over 100) migrant population during any season.

For purposes of determining what constitutes a "migrant program", considerable discussion on the subject was necessary among staff members. This resulted in the following classifications of assistance programs which appear in the book:

1. "Migrant Programs in County" include any project whose service components are geared solely towards the needs of migrant or seasonal farmworkers.
2. "Other Programs that Provide Services to Migrants" covers agencies which have at least one service component for migrants as part of a much larger program.
3. "Agencies Which May Assist Migrants" are service agencies, projects or organizations whose target populations are the poor, the disadvantaged, and the minorities. Such agencies generally have no special provisions for providing services to migrant families, but often render services if the eligibility requirements are met.

The purpose for resorting to the above classifications of programs was not to subjectively brand programs according to what they do or do not do, but rather to provide the basis for an orderly presentation of the information to the reader and to avoid a confused random arrangement of the material. As is evident, migrant services are the basis for priority in the presentation.

FINAL DOCUMENTATION OF INFORMATION. All information gathered from field visits, correspondence, and research was documented on agency and county profile forms designed and developed specifically for this project. From these profile forms, data was edited and compiled into the resulting report.
