ABSTRACT

The phases of daily living which are covered in this selected bibliography are alcohol and drug education, life styles, leisure activities, marriage and family relationships, politics, race relations, sex education, statistics/social indicators, and value concepts. Because the subject is so encompassing, no attempt has been made to be exhaustive. While the role of the schools and the education community is stressed, some of the other institutions and influences which mold character and life style are suggested. Additionally, career education is covered in the one on "Education for Citizenship." (Author)

EDUCATION TO MAKE A LIFE

The phases of daily living which are covered in this selected bibliography on "Education to Make a Life" are alcohol and drug education, consumer education, decision making, desegregated education, international education, life styles, leisure activities, marriage and family relationships, politics, race relations, sex education, statistics/social indicators and value concepts. Because the subject is so encompassing, no attempt has been made to be exhaustive. While the role of the schools and the education community is stressed, some of the other institutions and influences which mold character and life style are suggested. Additionally, career education is covered in the bibliography on "Education to Make a Living," and citizenship education is covered in the one on "Education for Citizenship."
