ABSTRACT

An outgrowth of State-sponsored institutes conducted by Auburn University, Alabama, to produce career education teaching modules for adults, the community resources module is one of five field-tested curriculum guides adopted from findings of the nationally oriented Adult Performance Level Study conducted at the University of Texas. (Basic to the Texas study was the defining of general areas of need for effective livelihood in American society.) The primary instructional objective of the community resources module is "to understand that community resources are utilized by individuals in society in order to obtain a satisfactory mode of living, and that community resources are maintained so that society as a whole may be preserved; and to understand transportation systems and their relation to public problems." A designator coding system identifies performance objectives with a corresponding series of learning tasks or enabling objectives; separate columns list related instructor activity, learner activity, and resources. Basic skill areas emphasized are communication skills, problem solving techniques, and interpersonal relationships. Topic coverage includes: familiarity with Federal/State/local services and agencies; transportation signs, symbols, and schedules; map use; transportation fares and overnight accommodations; and transportation and public problems. (A 3-page bibliography lists additional resources.) (EA)

FOREWORD

Auburn University conducted the first Institute in Alabama devoted to career education for adults. This Institute was held during the weeks of August 6 through 17, 1973, and sixty participants from all areas of the State were involved. It was recognized at the outset that adults are often confronted with many problems requiring the application of knowledge and skills for adequate solutions. It was further recognized that basic educational offerings must be oriented strongly toward helping adult learners to acquire the needed knowledge and skills for adequacy in problem solution if such offerings were to be made relevant to needs. For these reasons, the Institute was designed in keeping with the findings of the Adult Performance Level Study conducted at the University of Texas, and the major purpose of the Institute was that of producing teaching approaches in a modular form utilizing the findings of the study. Thus, the tasks identified as being important to adults in the Texas study became the basis for the instructional modules developed by the Institute participants.

The nationally oriented Adult Performance Level Study defined a general areas of needs for effective livelihood in American society. In the structure, an instructional goal was stated for each general knowledge area, a set of performance objectives was stated that would allow for the attainment of the instructional goal, and each performance objective was followed by a series of learning tasks (enabling objectives) designed to help the learner attain the competencies required. Each task was presented in terms of teacher activities, learner activities, and resources required so that an adult education instructor might employ the task modules in the most efficient and meaningful process .

The book was made available to many adult educators throughout the State of Alabama and across the nation . Evaluative and other feedback materials were provided , reciprocally , in order to determine any necessary changes . Therefore , a thorough "field testing" was carried out during the period of September , 1973 through May , 1974 to check out and determine the feasibility and applicability of each major task at the varying adult performance levels .

During the same period , the performance level study conducted by Dr . Norrell Northcutt of Texas and associates revised the original tasks . The final outcome of that study reduced the general knowledge areas to five and revised the performance objectives and tasks accordingly . The information from this facet of the study provided a new impetus for further development of the approach employed in the first book , and as a result , the Adult Education Department of Auburn University received a grant from the Alabama State Department of Education , Adult Basic Education and U.S.O.E . to fund an Institute and follow-up with the purpose being that of a major revision in terms of the newly defined knowledge areas , performance objectives , and tasks and implementation of adult education curriculum based upon the revised modules .

The Summer Institute , made possible by this grant , was held at Auburn University on August 12-16 , 1974 . The Institute participants , most of whom were experienced in using the modules , were divided into five groups, with each group being responsible for one of the general knowledge areas defined. The purpose of each group was to revise the book in keeping with the new structure in terms of knowledge areas, performance objectives, and tasks. In many instances, it was possible to place task modules from the earlier publication under the new performance objectives, while in others, the participants had to create new modules as required by the new structure. Additionally, it was decided that five books would be produced, each one representing a specific knowledge area as shown in the diagram below.

GENERAL KNOWLEDGE AREAS

The performance objectives for each knowledge area were adopted from the new data of the Adult Performance Level Study, and the tasks (enabling objectives) were adaptations of the ones produced by the new data. Finally, it should be noted that some tasks were considered to be above that which would be acceptable to some adult groups; therefore, such tasks were included as a separate section entitled "Advanced Tasks" so that instructors might choose from them if appropriate for particular groups.

COMMUNITY RESOURCES

INSTRUCTIONAL GOAL: To understand that community resources are utilized by individuals in society in order to obtain a satisfactory mode of living, and that community resources are maintained so that society as a whole may be preserved; and to understand transportation systems and their relation to public problems.

DESIGNATOR SYSTEM: Those performance objectives related directly to community resources are designated CR followed by a number. The tasks (enabling objectives) follow the objectives with the letter "T" used as the Task designator, and then followed by the number of the Task for that objective. Thus, the designator code CR-1, T-1 means community resources performance objective one, task one. The subset transportation, as a part of community resources, employs the designator code CR ST- , T- . Thus, the designator code CR ST-1, T-1, means community resources subset transportation performance objective one, task one.
