ABSTRACT

The document presents tabulations of data obtained by means of a 14-page questionnaire mailed to a random sample of 1960, 1965, and 1970 Memorial University of Newfoundland graduates, in 1972. Five hundred usable returns were obtained out of a potential 950, and information on biographic and demographic characteristics, career development, professional attitudes, and evaluation of the university and education was obtained. By using comparisons between the three cohort groups, answers to specific practical questions can be obtained regarding relevance of education to occupation, areas of educational irrelevance, difficulty of obtaining jobs upon graduation, financial support for degree training, job seeking patterns, and attitudes and values regarding educational, political, and social issues. Future use of the data in terms of analysis is planned and will include multivariate model building efforts to identify sociological and social psychological processes of the questionnaire population. Sampling design, research procedure, and findings are discussed and a reference list is provided. The questionnaire, followup letters sent, and 36 tables of data without verbal commentary are appended and make up the bulk of the document.

I. INTRODUCTION¹

In May 1972 the Office of the Vice-President (Academic), Memorial University of Newfoundland, financed a survey of three cohorts of graduates - for the years 1960, 1965, and 1970. The project was carried out under the auspices of the Department of Educational Foundations at Memorial University. An omnibus questionnaire was designed by the research team to meet the need for a variety of information which could be used for research purposes. The sampling design used provides normative data for the M.U.N. graduates in the 1960, 1965, 1970 graduating classes. This report deals with the first of a series of projected studies: namely, the basic tabulations for the three subsamples.

Descriptive studies of University alumni are neither new, nor uncommon. A number of studies in this area have had the virtue of being both large in size and comprehensive in scope. For example, Davis (1964, 1965) has studied the career decisions and graduate school plans of a large sample (N = 33,982) of the 1961 graduating class from 135 U.S. colleges and universities. Spaeth and Greeley (1970) have recently completed a study based upon a 30 per cent subsample of the fourth wave

¹ This report is published by the Faculty of Education, Memorial University. The research was conducted under the auspices of the Department of Educational Foundations. Funds were provided by a research grant from the Office of the Vice-President (Academic) and a supplementary grant from the Faculty of Education. The co-operation of the Vice-President (Academic) and the M.U.N. Alumni Association is gratefully acknowledged. Co-ordination of the entire project was handled by Jeffrey W. Bulcock, Assistant Professor, Department of Educational Foundations. Wayne Mercer and Mary Sullivan, Research Assistants in the Department of Educational Foundations, were largely responsible for gathering the data. Bernadette Quinlan, Research Assistant in the later phases of the research, coded the questionnaires, assisted in the programming and data analysis, and with Helen Mean did most of the statistical tabulations for this report. The assistance and support of the following persons is acknowledged: Mr. M.O. Morgan, Vice-President (Academic); Mr. Robert J. Kelly, President Alumni Association, Memorial University; Mr. D.J. Corbett, Public Relations and Alumni Affairs; Dr. G.A. Hickman, Dean, Faculty of Education; Professor W.G. Rowe, Associate Dean, Faculty of Education; Dr. W.J. Gushue, Chairman, Department of Educational Foundations; Dr. G. Murphy, Chairman, Department of Curriculum and Instruction; Dr. G.A. Cooper, Associate Professor, Department of Educational Foundations; Mr. Michael Haire, Director, Motor Vehicle Division, Department of Highways; Mr. C. Roebathan, Deputy Minister of Education; Mr. Frank Furey, Registrar of Teachers; and Mr. Maurice Burke, Department of Education. of respondents to the Davis sample of 1961. The National Science Foundation has sponsored longitudinal studies of U.S. university graduates (Sharp 1970; Bureau of Social Science Research 1963). In Canada, Harvey (1971) has conducted enquiries into the employment of arts and science graduates in Ontario for the Commission on Post-Secondary Education. The importance of Harvey's research is that it goes beyond the merely statistical description characteristic of the government reports on the supply and demand for graduates (Canada Department of Manpower and Immigration 1970; Ahamad 1969; Meltz and Penz 1968; Watson and Butorac 1968) through attempts to analyze the social factors accounting for differential occupational opportunities for graduates and through efforts to examine the mechanisms of resource distribution that intervene between university graduation and labour market entrance.

Though Harvey's research is the first of its kind in Canada there are several parallel U.S. studies. (Berg 1970; Folger, et. al. 1970; Sharp 1970; Harris 1949; Spaeth and Miller, 1965; Spaeth 1970). We would claim that the present study is a continuation and extension of the Harvey research, though the present report is only a description of the basic findings. It is intended that the data on which this normative report is based will be used for a series of analytical research reports. Thus, it is anticipated that later studies will include multivariate model building efforts to identify the sociological and social psychological processes underlying such outcomes as the perceived relevance of a M.U.N. degree, occupational achievement status of M.U.N. graduates, university satisfaction, and the out-of-Province migration of M.U.N. graduates.

Research of this kind also has a more practical aspect which is partially met by the uninterpreted data presented in this report. For example, in the late 60's in some parts of Canada it became apparent that an increased supply of university graduates faced a saturated job market. Media messages - especially newspaper and magazine reports - seem to have confirmed these trends in the early 70's. In certain fields such as education, engineering, earth science, biology, and university teaching, the supply of qualified manpower seems to be excessive in relation to available openings.

Obvious questions arise. To what extent is the job market for university graduates in Newfoundland saturated? Are recent graduates finding it more difficult to find preferred employment than the graduates of five or ten years ago? If there is growing discontinuity between educational outcomes and labour market inputs, will it affect traditional utopian images of the University? Will lack of congruence between university graduation and labour market linkages affect confidence in the value of a university education? What effect will discontinuity have on such university fields as arts and "pure" science which lack labour market analogues? Is there a tendency for arts and science departments to become the sifting and sorting mechanisms for the more applied, professions-related university faculties and schools? Are the universities creating a university educated proletariat?

The advantage of a synthetic cohort design is that comparisons can be made between the cohorts. Thus, answers to specific practical questions can be obtained. The data in this report go some way to answering such questions as:

1. Do recent graduates find their education less relevant to their occupation than their earlier counterparts?
2. In which fields do recent graduates find their education less relevant?
3. Do recent graduates experience more difficulty in obtaining jobs after graduation?
4. Are there differences in the patterns of financial support for degree training?
5. Are there differences in the job seeking patterns of M.U.N. graduates?
6. Which job seeking methods are preferred?
7. Are there significant differences in the attitudes and values of recent M.U.N. graduates compared to those of five or ten years ago on a wide range of educationally relevant questions? For example: educational opportunity, academic freedom, student participation in university government, student protest, grading practices, liberal versus professional education, academic standards, university size, Canadianization of the university, admissions criteria, student rules, the M.U.N. intellectual climate, and respect for the academic profession.
8. Are there denotable differences in political attitudes and values between the cohorts; especially on such matters as: unionization, drug usage, the monarchy, an independent Canada, social change, violence, and political involvement?

A final report on the education and labour market linkages in the Province of Newfoundland will incorporate the major analytical components of subsequent research reports.

The data were collected by means of a fourteen page questionnaire mailed to a random sample of 1960, 1965, and 1970 M.U.N. graduates. The survey instrument (see Appendix A) was designed to elicit a wide range of information on biographic and demographic characteristics, career development, and professional attitudes. An attempt was made to obtain an ex-post-facto evaluation of M.U.N. by its graduates, as well as an effort to gauge the attitudes of graduates toward a wide range of university related matters. The returns as far as we know are representative of the three cohorts of graduates but for reasons presented below caution has to be exercised in interpreting the percentage distributions.

II. SAMPLING DESIGN

In May 1972 the senior author and two assistants - coauthors, Mary Sullivan and Wayne Mercer - began the task of designing a questionnaire, identifying the respondents and tracing their whereabouts. We decided to select a three in four random sample of 1960, 1965 and 1970 M.U.N. graduates. The universe consisted of all M.U.N. graduates; the population, all the 1960, 1965 and 1970 graduates. These graduates were distributed as follows:

| A. Population | |
|----------------------------------|---------------------|
| Year of M.U.N. graduation | Total |
| 1960 graduates | 105 |
| 1965 graduates | 220 |
| 1970 graduates | 995 |
| Total population | 1,320 |

(Data source: Office of Registrar, M.U.N.)

The invited sample was selected through the use of a random number table. Each subsample or cohort was separately selected. Thus the total sample consisted of three 75 per cent probability samples, each independently selected, distributed as follows:

| B. Invited Sample | |
|--------------------------|-------------------|
| Sample | Total |
| 1960 graduates | 79 |
| 1965 graduates | 165 |
| 1970 graduates | 746 |
| Total invited sample | 990 |

In July 1972 a letter was mailed to each of the invited sample members soliciting their co-operation in the study.² Fourteen letters could not be mailed because after the tracing procedures were concluded recent or past addresses were not available. In these instances alternates were randomly selected from the respective cohorts. Forty invited respondents returned an enclosed post card indicating a refusal to participate.³ This reduced the sample to 950, prior to the mailing of the questionnaires.

Questionnaires were mailed to 950 respondents in August 1972. Approximately three weeks later a follow-up reminder postcard was sent to those who did not respond on the first wave.⁴ Some two weeks later a follow-up letter from the Vice-President (Academic) was mailed to the outstanding respondents along with an additional copy of the questionnaire.⁵ A second post card reminder - the third follow-up - was forwarded as a last ditch effort to solicit responses. Usable returns were obtained from 500 respondents (53 per cent).

III. RESEARCH PROCEDURES

The first problem encountered was that of tracing the 990 members of the invited sample. Permission was obtained to use the records of the M.U.N. Alumni office, but two difficulties were encountered using the Alumni address file. First, not all the Alumni addresses were listed; secondly, not all addresses listed were recent.

The second step in the trace procedure was to obtain access to the files in the Registrar's Office. Oaths of secrecy were administered to the research team members. These records were of some assistance in the further refinement of our address list but, again, not all records were accurate. This was especially the case for students who had come to M.U.N. from the "outports". In the absence of a respondent's recent address the decision was made to forward questionnaires to his old "home" address.

The third step in the trace procedure was to obtain access to the records of the Motor Vehicle Registration Division, Department of Highways, Government of Newfoundland and Labrador. Those graduates, still in Newfoundland, with driver's licenses, would have their current addresses listed in these Government records. Since there are many Newfoundlanders with the same common and proper names the precaution was taken of obtaining the year and date of birth of the outstanding graduates in order that the most accurate match could be made with motor vehicle registration records.

The third procedure was the most successful and contributed significantly in updating old addresses and filling-in address blanks. The graduates still outstanding by this time were non-automobile owners or out-of-Province graduates. There was also a tendency for married women graduates to be underrepresented. The fourth stage in the tracing procedure assisted in offsetting the underrepresentation of women graduates. Permission was obtained to gain access to the "alpha-listing" of the Department of Education. These records contained the names of every teacher who had been teaching in Newfoundland in the 1971-72 school year. Since the names of the education graduates were known the alpha listing enabled us to obtain the current mailing addresses of most education graduates.

The outstanding graduates at the completion of stage four were likely to have one or more of the following attributes: female, married subsequent to graduation, out of the Province, and a 1960 graduate. If male they were likely to be 1960 graduates living out of the Province. Since we were most short of the current addresses of 1960 graduates an intensive on-campus search was conducted. The names of the 34 outstanding 1960 graduates were listed and a special request made (see Appendix B) of the 1972 Summer School students to assist us in tracing them. In this way a further 27 current addresses were obtained. By mailing to "old" addresses if necessary, it was possible to "trace" all but fourteen of the 990 respondents. Alternates from the respective cohorts were used to bring the sample up to the 3 in 4 level of 990.

C. Summary of Trace Results

| Year of Graduation | Total # Addresses | % of Sample | Attrition |
|---------------------------|--------------------------|--------------------|------------------|
| 1960 | 75 | 95 | 4 |
| 1965 | 161 | 98 | 4 |
| 1970 | 740 | 99 | 6 |
| Totals | 976 | 97.3 | 14 |

The second problem encountered by the research group was related to the erroneous mailing address. All together, fifty-five questionnaires were returned "address unknown" as follows:

D. Erroneous Mailing Address

| Year of Graduation | No. Address Unknown |
|---------------------------|----------------------------|
| 1960 | 3 |
| 1965 | 13 |
| 1970 | 39 |
| Total | 55 |

This meant that of the 990 respondents, forty refused to participate and 55 had unknown addresses. Though the intensive trace procedure for the 1960 graduates had "paid-off" it was too time consuming to consider repeating the procedure for the 1965 and 1970 graduates. We had to settle instead for the 895 respondents that could be legitimately contacted. Of this number 500 forwarded useable questionnaires (56 per cent).

E. Data Producing Sample

| 1 Year of Graduation | 2 Invited Sample | 3 Data Producing Sample | 4 Total Attrition(2-3) |
|---|---|--|---|
| 1960 | 79 | 43 | 36 (46%) |
| 1965 | 165 | 94 | 71 (43%) |
| 1970 | 746 | 363 | 383 (51%) |
| Totals | 990 | 500 | 490 (49%) |

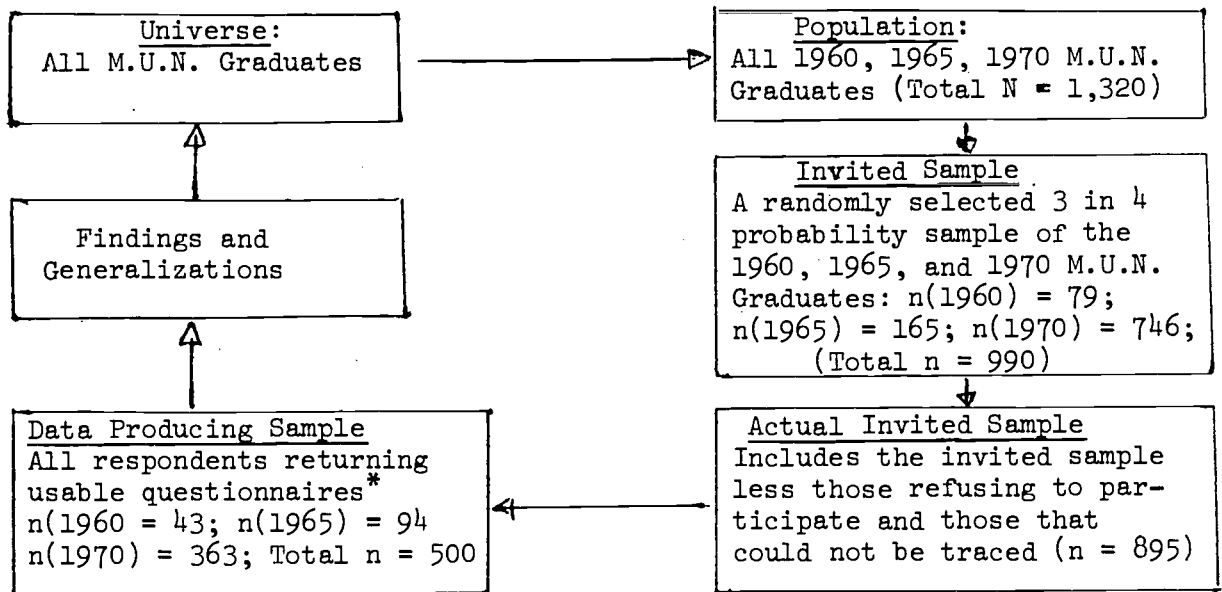

Given the attrition in terms of the data-producing sample, the important question become: How representative is the data producing sample? The usual way of answering this question is through an intensive follow-up of a special sub-sample of the nonrespondents. The follow-up procedures are usually by telephone or personal visit.⁵ From such returns the differences, if any, between the survey respondents and the special "nonrespondent" sample can be observed and response bias gauged. If differences at each cohort level between survey respondents and the nonrespondent sample are noted, within cohort weights adjusting for the 3 in 4 sampling of graduates and for the differential response rates in each cohort can be calculated to offset the bias. These weights can then be used in all subsequent processing of subject data records on file.

Because our resources were not adequate for this purpose we are unable to estimate what the extent of the response bias is in the study. The data, therefore, are unweighted. Sampling experts have not agreed upon a set of rules concerning the relative seriousness of the attrition rates which occur from the accepting to the data-producing sample stage. There is some evidence demonstrating that nonrespondents in general hold different opinions than respondents. For example, those initially responding to mailed questionnaires generally hold different opinions than those who do not respond until later follow-ups. What this means is that if the response rate is low - say, below 70 per cent - that if the response to a particular item is fairly evenly split (e.g. 55 per cent "for" to 45 per cent "against") we can have little confidence in the datum because if a majority of the nonrespondents held to either point of view they could alter the result. Even so, we have no reason to believe that the findings presented in this report are so fragile as to render them unacceptable.

F. The Sampling Cycle

* Only 2 returned questionnaires were unusable.

IV. THE FINDINGS

The findings are presented in a series of percentage distributions in Tables 1 through 36. These are classified into the following areas:

- A. Demographic and Background Characteristics (Table 1).
- B. University Backgrounds of Respondents (Tables 2 through 4).
- C. Patterns of University Experience (Tables 5 and 6).
- D. Institutional Evaluation (Table 7).
- E. Assessments of Aspects of the M.U.N. Environment (Tables 8 through 12).
- F. Miscellaneous Attitudes Toward the University, the Curriculum, the Faculty, and Institutional Change (Tables 13 and 14).
- G. Satisfaction with Selected University Outcomes (Table 15).
- H. Importance of Selected M.U.N. Academic Pursuits (Table 16).
- I. Academic Freedom (Table 17).
- J. Participation of Students in University Decision-Making (Table 18).
- K. Attitudes Toward Student Demonstrations (Table 19).
- L. Sanctions for Violation of Selected Student Regulations (Table 20).
- M. Political Orientations (Table 21).
- N. Costs of University Attendance (Table 22).
- O. Preferences in Student Housing (Table 23).
- P. Work Attitudes and Orientations (Tables 24 through 27).
- Q. Careers and Employment Patterns (Tables 28 through 30).
- R. Methods of Obtaining Employment (Table 31).
- S. Incomes (Table 32).
- T. Unemployment Experiences (Table 33).
- U. Selected Professional Attitudes: Strikes, Professional Organizations etc. (Table 34).
- V. Selected Post-University Experiences (Table 35).
- W. Attitudes Toward Selected Current Issue (Table 36).

The tables are presented in this preliminary report without verbal commentary on the assumption that the reader will bring to bear his own interpretative framework. For this reason the report is likely to be of little interest to lay readers.

The percentage distributions have been stratified by year of graduation, sex; and faculty. These are major dimensions accounting for differences in attitudes and orientations of graduates. The dimensions also have some practical justification in that faculties are the major structural units of the university. They have different selectivity and retentivity patterns which partially accounts for their differential environmental impact.

In each table the first set of three columns lists the percentage distributions on the items for the entire sample stratified by sex. The other sets of columns present distributions for the 1960, 1965 and 1970 graduates respectively. The distribution for all the 1960 graduates was left unstratified. The 1965 graduates were subdivided into two sub groups; namely, the arts and science faculty graduates and the education faculty graduates. The 1970 graduates were divided into three groups - (i) Arts and social science, (ii) pure and applied sciences, and (iii) education and other applied fields.

For each item a number of respondents either skipped the question or gave an unreadable response. These "no answer" responses were not reported so that the computations of the percentage distribution are based only on those responding to the item. Each item is percentaged down such that, if there are no "no answer" responses, the sum of all the percentages in each column for each questionnaire item will be 100 per cent. The difference from 100 in each case represents the proportion of "no answer" responses.

G. The Base "n's" of the Stratification Classes

1. All Graduates
 Males = 379
 Females = 121
 Total = 500
2. 1960 Graduates
 Total = 43
3. 1965 Graduates
 Arts and Science = 50
 Education = 41
 Total = 94
4. 1970 Graduates
 Arts and Social Science = 83
 Pure and Applied Sciences = 82
 Education and Applied Fields = 191
 Total = 363

Since the items in the following tables are ordered differently than the items on the questionnaire (Appendix A), the questionnaire item number is shown in parentheses after each tabulated variable. Most tabulations are shown in the same response category breakout as was provided on the original questionnaire form; in a few cases, however, the original categories were collapsed into a smaller number. To save space the questionnaire wording has been contracted for many items on the tables. The complete wording of the item, and all the response options, can be determined by referring to the original questionnaire (Appendix A).

APPENDIX A

QUESTIONNAIRE

MEMORIAL UNIVERSITY OF NEWFOUNDLAND
St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada

Dear Alumnus:

Canadian universities are currently undergoing the greatest changes in this century. The extent and rapidity of these changes are causing severe strains and grave problems in the faculties and departments concerned. While the broad outlines of these problems is overcrowded classrooms, rising costs, student discontent, and tightening job markets for graduates there is actually very little detailed information on the form these problems take in particular institutions. Nor do we have firm knowledge of how those most directly interested and involved in some of these problems and issues feel about them.

It is to meet this need for more and better knowledge about how the graduates from Memorial University fare in the labour market that we are supporting this research study. Over the past ten years, educational and employment opportunities in the Province of Newfoundland have been changing. If today's students are to be able to plan ahead with any degree of confidence; if we are to be successful in anticipating future educational needs, it is necessary to keep abreast of what is happening to our University graduates.

The information we are gathering will be of help to the University authorities and other bodies concerned with public policies in this area as well as to research workers who are studying current problems and developments in Canadian higher education. The findings will be presented in reports and research papers. The data we will collect will be available in anonymous form on magnetic tape to bona fide students of higher education.

Though we know the limits of questionnaires and, therefore, have no illusion that even a broad survey of this kind will answer all our questions; nevertheless, the mailed questionnaire survey does provide information that can be obtained in no other way. We know how busy professional people are. We also know that other surveys have made similar demands on your time. But the present survey is unique in its scope and purpose: it is the first to ask similar questions of graduates, students, and faculty in the same institution, and it is the first in Canada to explore a variety of issues in depth which affect one institution. The accuracy of the survey and the worth of its findings are dependent on your willingness to answer our questions. We believe the importance of the study will justify the time you give it.

Two other matters. First, it is necessary to ask detailed questions dealing with educational and occupational experiences, attitudes towards education, and some general background information. We can assure you that your answers will be held in strictest confidence and that procedures have been taken to guarantee this.

Secondly, it is impossible to frame questions all of which are equally relevant to graduates, faculty, and students in many different fields; you may find some which seem inappropriate. We make a special request, therefore, for you to answer all the questions as well as you can. In our analysis we will be able to take into account special circumstances that affect replies to some questions.

We hope you find the questionnaire interesting to answer, and that you will complete and return it to us while you have it at hand.

Thank you for your co-operation.

M.O. Morgan,
Vice-President (Academic)

Robert J. Kelly,
President, Alumni Association

MARKING INSTRUCTIONS

This questionnaire will be read by an automatic scanning device. Certain marking requirements are essential to this process. Your careful observance of these few simple rules will be most appreciated.

Use a black lead pencil.

Make heavy black marks that completely fill the square. Erase completely any answers you wish to change.

Avoid making any stray marks in this booklet.

MEMORIAL UNIVERSITY OF NEWFOUNDLAND
St. John's, Newfoundland. Canada

Office of the Vice-President (Academic)

Phone: 753-1200 Area Code 709

June 22, 1972

Dear Alumnus:

The Memorial University of Newfoundland is conducting several surveys of students, former students, and faculty members. The information gathered will be used to reveal the views of these constituencies on aspects of university education so that the quality and relevance of an education at MUN may be assessed and, hopefully, improved.

You are one of a small randomly selected sample of graduates to receive the questionnaire, which will be mailed to your present address in two weeks time. Your participation in the study is therefore of great value because it will permit a valid assessment of the opinions and attitudes of MUN graduates. We recognize however, that there are graduates who object in principle to answering mailed questionnaires, or who have no wish to assist the University in this kind of research. If you do not wish to participate in the study please mail back the enclosed card within the next ten days and we will not solicit your co-operation.

All the information provided on the anonymous questionnaire will be coded and used in group comparisons for research purposes only. Under no circumstances will individual responses be reported. Only University research personnel sworn to secrecy will have direct access to the questionnaires. On the creation of the work tapes, all the questionnaires will be destroyed.

We hope that you will agree to support us in this research which is the first of its kind in Canada. I thank you on behalf of the University for your continuing interest and active support.

Sincerely,

49

NO NEWS IS BAD NEWS
for Survey Research Workers

Remember the "ELM" Study questionnaire concerning university graduation and labour market opportunities that was sent to you several days ago by the Memorial University of Newfoundland.

If you have already returned it to us, please accept our thanks. Your help is much appreciated as it helps us to evaluate how university graduates fare after leaving university.

If it is not yet done, we would like to hear from you. WILL YOU PLEASE SEND BACK THE COMPLETED QUESTIONNAIRE SOON?

Your contribution to the study is important and does matter.

THANK YOU.

MEMORIAL UNIVERSITY OF NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada

October 23, 1972.

Dear Alumnus:

Four weeks ago we sent you a questionnaire requesting your participation in a research project designed to gather information on a variety of matters pertaining to University graduation and labour market linkages.

We need your help in finding some answers. This is an omnibus questionnaire designed to solicit answers to a wide range of problems. The study has been designed in such a way that the responses from only a small fraction of MUN graduates will be used to represent all graduates in the province. So, if we do not obtain your response our research will not be successful.

We know how busy professional people are and that this questionnaire takes about fifty minutes to complete, but we believe that the study will justify the time you give it.

Yours sincerely,

M.O. Morgan,
VICE-PRESIDENT (ACADEMIC).

MEMORIAL UNIVERSITY OF NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, Newfoundland, Canada

Department of Educational Foundations

May 8, 1972.

Dear Alumnus:

Canadian universities are currently undergoing the greatest changes in this century. The extent and rapidity of these changes are causing severe strains and grave problems in the faculties and departments concerned. While the broad outlines of these problems is overcrowded classrooms, rising costs, student discontent, and tightening job markets for graduates there is actually very little detailed information on the form these problems take in particular institutions. Nor do we have firm knowledge of how those most directly interested and involved in some of these problems and issues feel about them.

It is to meet this need for more and better knowledge about how the graduates from Memorial University fare in the labour market that we are supporting this research study. Over the past ten years, educational and employment opportunities in the Province of Newfoundland have been changing. If today's students are to be able to plan ahead with any degree of confidence; if we are to be successful in anticipating future educational needs, it is necessary to keep abreast of what is happening to our University graduates.

The information we are gathering will be of help to the University authorities and other bodies concerned with public policies in this area as well as to research workers who are studying current problems and developments in Canadian higher education. The findings will be presented in reports and research papers. The data we will collect will be available in anonymous form on magnetic tape to bona fide students of higher education.

Though we know the limits of questionnaires and, therefore, have no illusion that even a broad survey of this kind will answer all our questions; nevertheless, the mailed questionnaire survey does provide information that can be obtained in no other way. We know how busy professional people are. We also know that other surveys have made similar demands on your time. But the present survey is unique in its scope and purpose: it is the first to ask similar questions of graduates, students, and faculty in the same institution, and it is the first in Canada to explore a variety of issues in depth which affect one institution. The accuracy of the survey and the worth of its findings are dependent on your willingness to answer our questions. We believe the importance of the study will justify the time you give it.

Two other matters. First, it is necessary to ask detailed questions dealing with educational and occupational experiences, attitudes towards education, and some general background information. We can assure you that your answers will be held in strictest confidence and that procedures have been taken to guarantee this.

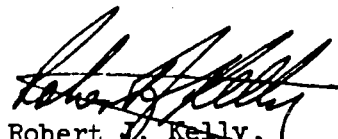

Secondly, it is impossible to frame questions all of which are equally relevant to graduates, faculty, and students in many different fields; you may find some which seem inappropriate. We make a special request, therefore, for you to answer all the questions as well as you can. In our analysis we will be able to take into account special circumstances that affect replies to some questions.

We hope you find the questionnaire interesting to answer, and that you will complete and return it to us while you have it at hand.

Thank you for your co-operation.

M.O. Morgan,
VICE-PRESIDENT (ACADEMIC).

| | Even though institu- tions have worked well in the past, if they are no longer effective they should be destroyed. Radicals of the left are just as much a threat to the rights of the individual as are radicals of the right. Competition encour- ages excellence. In Canada today dis- ruption is preferable to dialogue for changing our society Sexual behavior bound by mutual feelings is of a higher moral order than that based on formal and legal ties. | | The decline in moral standards is a major problem in Canada today. There are too many foreign professors employed in Canadian universities. Undergraduate education in Canada suffers from the uncritical takeover of many of the worst features of U.S. higher education. It is important to me that university appointments be filled by Canadian citizens. The sooner the long post-war era of Canada's economic dependence on the United States draws to a close the better. | 41.7 | 37.1 | 40.6 | 28.0 | 44.0 | 48.8 | 44.7 | 30.5 | 28.9 | 50.8 |

| The Government's October, 1970 decision to invoke an act which could be used to deprive any citizen of his freedom (The War Measures Act) to deal with the Front de Liberation du Quebec was fully justified. The vestiges of monarchial government present in the Canadian constitution have neither relevance nor meaning for Canadians of my generation. | 82.8 | 75.2 | 81.0 | 86.0 | 87.8 | 86.2 | 80.4 | 71.1 | 82.2 | 79.3 | |
| The wave of economic nationalism in Canada today is particularly inappropriate at a time when many nations are members of common trade and market communities. | | Hippies represent an important criticism of Canadian society. Marijuana should be legalized. Some forms of Communist regime is probably necessary for progress in underdeveloped countries. In Canada today there can be no justification for using violence to achieve political goals. | 38.3 | 43.0 | 39.4 | 34.9 | 34.0 | 34.2 | 34.1 | 33.0 | 53.0 | 39.8 | 41.3 |
