ABSTRACT

Three skills of written expression--composition, mechanics, and grammar--are the focus of this guide for elementary grades. The goal for these areas is for all students to learn how to use the skills of composing and editing appropriate to their age and level of individual development. Within the categories of composition, mechanics, and grammar, each grade, kindergarten through eighth, is assigned specific goals and activities. (TS)

LANGUAGE ARTS CURRICULUM GUIDELINES
Continuum of Skills: Written Expression K-8
Arlington Heights Public School District No. 25
Arlington Heights, Illinois
September, 1975

These guidelines are the result of a one year project involving an examination of the language arts program. They are only a beginning of something that through their use, revision and extension can develop into a complete, refined set of expectations for the students of District No. 25.

The continuum of skills of written expression consists of three divisions:

Composition: Handwriting
Vocabulary
Sentence Structure
Paragraph Development
Longer Works

Mechanics: Capitalization
Punctuation: Comma
Others

Grammar: (Being Written)

The goal in this area of written expression is for each student to learn and to use the skills of composing and editing appropriate to his age and level of individual development. Attainment of this goal is sought through these guidelines which are a classification of skills by grade as traditionally presented offering a system of continuous growth to the entire district. No materials or methods are suggested here allowing various equally good ones to be chosen by those who must work with them.

202 269

I have written this continuum with three goals in mind: to be succinct, to promote articulation and to facilitate individualization. Each skill should read, "Commensurate with his abilities, the student will . . . (begin to practice forming letters of the alphabet)."

I chose a flowing format to stress the progression of skills from one grade to the next. No skill is ever repeated on this guide although all skills the student has already studied must be continuously applied to insure mastery. This system of organization provides each teacher with the skills taught at the grades before and after his grade as well as at his own grade. Hopefully, this information will greatly aid teachers trying to meet the individual needs of their students.

Grade designation of a skill means that that skill should be introduced to all students in that grade who are ready to learn it and that it should be emphasized in the work for that year. There should be ongoing maintenance of the skills taught in previous years while mastery of a skill will be achieved when each student is ready. It is imperative that every teacher read and use the entire continuum and adjust it to each of his students!

This continuum should in no way tie the teacher only to those skills mentioned. It is meant to be a base, a guideline, which each teacher will extend for his own students as needed. The emphasis should be on application; evaluation is based on the skills already taught.

I would like to thank the Board of Education for their insight in recognizing the need for this project. Their dedication to the children of School District No. 25 is exhibited in their desire to support this study of the language arts curriculum. I also thank the teachers who spent time with me suggesting how curriculum guidelines could best serve them and helping me improve this continuum of skills.

Write imperative sentences: Put the bicycle on the porch.

Change a declarative sentence into an interrogative one: It is raining outside.
Is it raining outside?

Begin writing compound sentences: Bobby made two home runs and we won the game.

Use correct subject-verb agreement: The boys work. The boy works.

Use standard English usage: He did it. This football is mine.

Paragraph Development:

Continue to write four or more related sentences

GRADE 3

Write legibly in cursive form
Vocabulary:

Make lists of words pertaining to a topic: Bicycling: route, schedule, gears, sprocket, link

Make lists of sensory words: taste: sour, sweet, stale smell: fresh, dirty, delicious

Begin to grasp abstract words: eagerness, death, health, joy

Distinguish homophones: to, two, too: hear, here; know, no; there, their, their's

Substitute a synonym for a verb in a sentence: Bob said that he didn't get any. Bob complained that he didn't get any.

Work with sets of antonyms: hot-cold, fat-lean

Sentence Structure:

Identify and eliminate sentence fragments: about a little girl in Japan/ The book is about a little girl in Japan.

Write related sentences without stringing them together with and's: The farm house was painted green and it was large and barnlike and it stood all by itself back of some pine trees and . . .!

Revision: The large, barnlike farmhouse was painted green. It stood all by itself back of some pines.

Express thoughts clearly in longer sentences: The night was so dark I could not see the trees when I went out to walk my dog.

Paragraph Development:

Work on paragraph development to convey a main idea

Tell what happened in the right order

Build a paragraph by adding facts

Begin to understand the use of rough draft

Begin to recognize good writing standards: clarity, suitable words, originality

Recognize wordiness and useless repetition

Longer Works:

Write longer stories

Include colorful characters

Use descriptive passages

GRADE 4

Vocabulary:

Choose words which convey desired, precise meaning: old: ancient, antique, time-honored, secondhand

Write simple figurative language: simile: She was as nervous as a long-tailed cat in a room full of rocking chairs.

Form new words by adding prefixes and suffixes: Lock-unlock, care-careless

Use standard forms of reflexive pronouns: The boys bought the ball and the bat for themselves.

Sentence Structure:

Identify and eliminate run-on sentences: Will you go to Filbert's Bicycle Shop with me its on the way to the library/ Will you go to Filbert's Bicycle Shop with me? It's on the way to the library.

Write sentences with compound parts: Mary and I helped the coach with basketball and volleyball this year.

Expand phrases into complete sentences: *climbed several high mountains/
The three brothers climbed several high mountains.*

Combine a series of choppy sentences: *It was raining.
Mary was late for school.
The teacher understood./*

Because it was raining when Mary was late for school, the teacher understood.

Paragraph Development:

Recognize that supporting details clarify or amplify the topic sentence

Use beginnings and endings to contribute to unity

Include the five W's (who, what, when, where, why) in narration

Develop a paragraph using spatial order: transition words and phrases: next to, in front to, beside, between, behind, near, far, beyond

Develop a paragraph through classification (sorting and grouping): transition words: this group is, the others are, a few are, some similarities

Summarize ideas

Longer Works:

Extend narratives

Include details

Outline main ideas and supporting details

GRADE 6

Write legibly in cursive form without practice for practice sake
Vocabulary:

Become aware of the interrelationship of sensory words introduced in grades 1, 2, 3:

Sight: shiny, brown, ugly
Smell: spoiled, putrid, musty
Hearing: noisy, cracked, piercing
Touch: soft, fluffy, sticky
Taste: spicy, bitter, greasy

Write figurative language: alliteration: Gray ghosts gasped grotesquely.
onomatopoeia: buzz, zip

Sentence Structure:

Write complex sentences: When the holidays were over, the family settled into its routine.

Write sentences using relative clauses: Jerry was in the bus that slid off the road.

Use parallelism in the same grammatical pattern: Mary likes dancing, singing, and playing the piano.

Edit work seeking to achieve varied, concise, expressive sentences

Paragraph Development:

Choose limited topics of interest

Write model paragraph: topic sentence

six to eight sentences on related ideas with details

closing sentence that gives feeling of completeness

Work toward unity of ideas (all sentences stick to the idea expressed in the topic sentence)

Work toward coherence (all sentences have a clear and logical relationship to each other)

Use transitional devices to achieve coherence: repetition; antecedent-pronoun; references to time, place or thought already mentioned.

Develop a paragraph through comparison and contrast: transition words: as, as much as, more than, different from

Use transition words and phrases for relationships between sentences: however, furthermore, in fact, yet, therefore

Draw inferences in development

Begin to use consistent point of view

Utilize effective reasoning: fact vs. opinion

Answer thought questions in a logical and concise manner

Use outlines to establish order of ideas

Longer Works:

Build suspense in narration through: narrative opening realistically described details

carefully selected words

description of characters' feelings, actions and conversation

ordering details

matter of fact tone

real preparation for a surprise ending

GRADE 7

Vocabulary:

Extend study of synonyms: investigate--probe, scrutinize, inquire antonyms: disappear--emerge, loom, arrive homophones: principle--principal

Examine meanings of idioms in general usage: literal meaning: Dick opened his eyes in a strange room.
idiomatic meaning: Dick's trip to Yellowstone National Park opened his eyes to the grandeur of nature.

Avoid clichés: as quiet as a mouse

Use a thesaurus to expand word choice: cunning--crafty, shrewd, sly

Sentence Structure:

Change a sentence from active voice to passive voice: The small boy took the mouse from the trap and threw it away.
The mouse was taken from the trap and thrown away by the small boy.

Write compound-complex sentences: I left in a hurry so I called her when I arrived in New York.

Incorporate into compositions these five sentence patterns:

N-V: Mary sings.

(Subject-verb)

N-LV-Adj: The boy looked unhappy.

(Subject-Linking Verb-Predicate Adjective)

N-LV-N: Tom became the manager.

(Subject-Linking Verb-Predicate Noun)

N-V-N: Tom hired the manager.

(Subject-Verb-Direct Object)

N-V-N-N: Sally offered her brother a cookie.

(Subject-Verb-Indirect Object-Direct Object)

Paragraph Development:

Develop a paragraph through cause and effect: transition words and phrases: therefore, so, for this reason, since because of this, consequently, since

Develop imaginative writing beyond observation dealing with feelings and mental images

Write from first person point of view: I viewed the situation with alarm . . .

Use objective viewpoint: writer not personally involved with the material

Use subjective viewpoint: writer involved with the material

Begin to use consistent tone: indignant, pompous, sweet, scholarly, bitter

Longer Works:

Develop a sense of paragraphing: Begin with topics that can easily be divided in half:

Problem-solution: adjusting to a new school

Before-after: a snowstorm

Preparation-action: participating in sports

Generalization-example: life in a big family

Keep only one main idea in each paragraph

Unify paper around a central theme

Use a final sentence that concludes the entire composition, not just the paragraph

Use smooth transition from paragraph to paragraph: transition words and phrases:

at the same time, in the same way, consequently, for example, in addition, on the other hand

indirect transitional devices: parallelism, figures of speech, tone, rhythm

Use a variety of paragraph formations in one composition: definition, example, comparison-contrast

Outline plans for writing using subtopics

GRADE 8

Vocabulary:

Expand understanding of words through etymology:

paragraph [Gr. < para-, beside + graph, to write] Lines were once used alongside writing that was about related ideas. Later the sign ¶ was used.

Choose words for their emotional impact: eerie, ominous, foreboding

Choose the word with the right connotative value: house--home, pad, castle, dump

Become sensitive to euphemisms of consideration and wary of those of deceit: died--passed away; concentration camp--relocation center

Sentence Structure:

Write sentences using noun clauses: What I should do next is my problem.

The yellow leaves are what I remember best.

Increase complexity of sentence structure by using verbals:

Participals: Turning around quickly, Jean bumped into Mrs. Wood.

Gerunds: Walking is good exercise.

Infinitives: To leave early is sometimes impolite.

Incorporate into compositions this additional sentence pattern:

N-V-N-N: Many girls helped elect Sue President.

(Subject-Verb-Direct Object-Object Complement)

Paragraph Development:

Use a variety of sentence constructions within one paragraph: Introductory prepositional phrase, subject-verb
Develop a paragraph by persuasion, proving facts and supporting opinion
Utilize effective reasoning: deductive/inductive: move from specific to general/move from general to specific

Longer Works:

Work on polishing the skills of exposition

Consciously include the four main parts of the plot in narration:

Opening: sets stage, introduces characters, arouses interest

Development: presents a chain of events and actions, creates atmosphere

Climax: presents the high point of the suspense

Closing: tells how the story comes out

Create a mood or general impression through the use of details

Create a tone

Address a specific audience

Seek unity and balance of the whole

KINDERGARTEN

Visual discrimination between upper and lower cases

In date: October 15, 1975
In address: Arlington Heights, Illinois 60005

GRADE 3

In a series: option: informal, modern use: no comma before conjunction:

We saw lions, tigers and elephants at the zoo.

formal: comma before conjunction:

We saw lions, tigers, and elephants at the zoo.

In date within a sentence: On July 15, 1975, the boys will go camping.

In address within a sentence: He moved to Arlington Heights, Illinois, last December.

In numbers: 2,562; 65,289 (not with round numbers of four figures: 2000)

GRADE 4

Between last name and first name: Powell, Janice; Anderson, Eric K.

With titles: Wilbur N. Woods, Jr.; Louise M. Lorenz, M.D.

After introductory yes and no: Yes, the museum is open all day.

To set off a direct quotation: My father said, "I hope to be home soon."

With appositives: John, the boy with the red hat, found my bicycle.

GRADE 5

More general date: option: December, 1975; December 1975
Time and day added to date: 9:00 a.m., Saturday, April 10, 1975
Complete address within sentence: He has lived at 124 Willow Lane,
Arlington Heights, Illinois 60005, since 1970.

Between city and country: Quebec, Canada

Between city, state and country: Buffalo, New York, U.S.A.

To set off a noun in direct address: Sharon, will you count the cokes?

Between coordinate clauses joined by and, or, nor, yet:

Option: long clauses: comma needed: I am going to the movies at 7:00 to see Dracula, and I hope to go to McDonald's afterwards.

short clauses: comma optional: He will buy a new bicycle or he will fix his old one.

Between all coordinate clauses joined by but or for: We called twice, but he didn't answer.

GRADE 6

With direct address other than names: My friends, I thank you for your support.

With broken quotation: "I'm going," she said, "with my friends."

After introductory modifying phrase when phrase is long, when a mark of separation is required to indicate the point at which the main clause begins or when ambiguity or misunderstanding would result from lack of punctuation.

comma needed: In the book that I read last week, the main character finally found happiness.

comma optional: In this book the main character finally found happiness.

After introductory subordinate clause in complex sentence:

Although the game was only half over, the spectators were leaving.

With interrupters: My song, I hope, will be played on the radio.

GRADE 7

To avoid confusion within a sentence: After eating, my brother rushed to the baseball game.

In a series: Expand this rule introduced in grade three to include:

(The informal, modern option is used in the following examples.)

Nouns:

Subjects: The Blackhawks, Cubs and Bears were her favorite teams.

Direct objects: Buy a book, a pen and some paper.

Indirect objects: Charlie gave Carol, Jan and me rides on his minibike.

Predicate nouns: The most successful students were Fred, Joe and Alice.

Verbs: We flew to California, drove down to Mexico and came home on the train.

Adjectives: [Two adjectives constitute a series if they can be joined by and.]

The attractive, comfortable furniture is expensive.

Phrases: Through the office, by the drinking fountain and into the washroom roamed the aimless boy.

Clauses: We had no idea who he was, where he came from or what he wanted from us.

GRADE 8

Before tag question: You will help me fix the flat, won't you?

With repetition of same word: Too many people who suffer, suffer alone.

Between the main clause and a long modifying phrase when a loosely related phrase follows the main clause: The store owner nervously watched the man, alarmed by his searching look.

BEYOND 8

To set off a nonrestrictive element: The concept of restrictive/nonrestrictive relating to modifying clauses, phrases and appositives is very difficult for students to grasp and, at times, a matter of personal judgment. Before this area of punctuation can even become a problem, the students' writing must be sufficiently sophisticated to produce these structures. Work on the production of these forms first; then, for the students who are ready, teach the rule of punctuation, give examples and work with the application of the rule through the students' own writing.
