ABSTRACT

The directory describes services provided to migratory agricultural workers and their families, through the governmental and nongovernmental agencies interested in and responsible for their well-being. Agencies are grouped into: (1) United States government agencies, (2) North Carolina State government agencies, and (3) private organizations. Among the services provided by the various agencies are: adult basic education; camp inspection; consumer education; counseling; crew leader registration and training; day care; family planning; health services; home care instruction; job development, training, and placement; legal services; self-help housing loans; and emergency transportation. Although the services appear to be all-encompassing, most have limitations based on such factors as definition of migrants, jurisdiction of serving agency, funding requirements and limitations, availability of staff, and limitations to indigenous population. Lists of members of the State Advisory Committee on Services to Migrants and contact persons for the various agencies are provided. An index of services available to migrants is included.

FOREWORD

The State Advisory Committee on Services to Migrants is composed of individuals representing agencies that are actively involved in providing services to migrants. One of the goals of this committee is to provide a free flow of information among the agencies represented so that programs can be coordinated and duplication of efforts can be minimized in order that maximum service benefits will be provided to each recipient. Committee meetings present an opportunity for the agency to give a current status report of trends and services available to migrant farmworkers. Other important goals of the State Advisory Committee are to assist local communities in their efforts to establish advisory committees and to help strengthen existing committees.

"Serving Migrant Families" represents an attempt to bring together, under one cover, a brief description of the services provided to migratory agricultural workers and their families, through the governmental and non-governmental agencies interested in and responsible for their well-being. The publication proved to be a valuable instrument in assisting the committee and its member agencies in serving the migrant families. This is the fifth printing of this booklet, but the purpose remains the same as it was in the beginning, to use this information to help improve the services to migrant families in North Carolina.

Special thanks are expressed to Ellie Wren, Migrant Education Section, and Doris Ellis, Migrant and Seasonal Farm Workers Association, for typing the final copy; Barbara Oliver, Migrant Education Section, Department of Public Instruction, for developing the cover, editing the manuscripts presented by each contributor and preparing the copy for publication; Thurman Nance, Inter-Agency Coordinator, for his efforts in gathering updated information; and to the Migrant and Seasonal Farm Workers Association for printing and binding the this publication.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

FARMERS HOME ADMINISTRATION

The Farmers Home Administration in North Carolina actively participates in the Rural Development Program, a coordinated effort by all agencies of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and non-governmental local representatives to help rural people help themselves through group action. It is concerned with building family farms, strengthening rural communities and strengthening the rural economy.

The Farmers Home Administration has a broad range of supervised credit services, providing the following:

- Help to young farmers in acquiring capital and skill needed to take over the farms of their retiring elders.
- Help to establish family farmers in making needed adjustments in their farming operations.
- Help to farmers who are limited because of age, education or physical handicap in making a better living on the land.
- Help to improve farmers who are low economically.
- Help to low-income farm families in developing non-farm enterprises that will enable them to raise their level of living.
- Help to hard-pressed family farmers to aid them in tapping new sources of income in the development of farm-based recreation facilities.
- Help to rural communities in obtaining such facilities as water and waste disposal systems.
- Help to low and moderate income families (including migrant farm laborers) in obtaining decent, safe and sanitary housing.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
✓EMPLOYMENT STANDARDS ADMINISTRATION
WAGE-HOUR DIVISION

Wage-Hour enforces over 130 federal labor laws. The principal one is the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938. It requires a minimum wage, currently $1.60 per hour but with several bills in Congress to increase it, overtime for most work, has child labor and recordkeeping requirements. The law is enforced by Compliance Specialists located in most of the larger North Carolina cities. Information is readily available from three area offices in Raleigh, Charlotte, and Greensboro or from field stations which have 24-hour answering services.

Wage-Hour was given enforcement of Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act in late 1972 and began field investigations in 1973. Migrant farm laborers fall under the FLSA farm minimum of $1.30 per hour with no overtime pay required. Under FLCRA the migrant crew leader is required to register with the U. S. Department of Labor Regional Office in Atlanta, Georgia. Registration forms and information and assistance in completing them are available at all North Carolina Rural Manpower Service Offices in the state. RMS forwards applications to Atlanta.

To register, the crew leader must:

1. Fill out an application form.
2. Prove he has vehicle insurance of $5/20/5,000 (higher in N.C.).
3. Have his vehicles safety inspected.
4. Complete a medical report.
5. See that all of his full-time employees such as foremen, drivers, etc., are also registered.
6. Renew his registration every year, registrations being valid from January 1 to December 31 of each year.

The crew leader is then given a registration card which he must carry with him at all times. He must advise migrants when soliciting or hiring them of the locations, housing, pay and other conditions of employment for the year. He must pay migrants properly and give them evidence of their pay and deductions each week. Illegal deductions which bring the migrants' pay below $1.30 per hour are violations of the FLSA. The crew leader must post the housing conditions at each camp at which he works. Failure to live up to the terms and conditions of the registration certificate is grounds for revoking the registration.

Wage-Hour vigorously enforces FLSA and FLCRA requirements in North Carolina. This is proven by their obtaining four injunctions in the state in 1973, the first ever under FLCRA. Enforcement of these and other laws for migrants and non-migrants is proof that "someone cares about you".

NORTH CAROLINA STATE GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

EMPLOYMENT SECURITY COMMISSION OF NORTH CAROLINA

RURAL MANPOWER SERVICE

The Rural Manpower Service is a unit of the Employment Service, having the responsibility of providing comprehensive Manpower Services to rural workers and employers, including migrant and seasonal farmworkers. Services include job placement, job development, improving the employability and skills for rural workers, determining the need for training, and establishing training programs by working with other agencies such as Vocational Rehabilitation, Community Colleges and Technical Institutes, providing information and services to rural people who are veterans (benefits they are eligible for such as training programs, educational opportunities, and the type of skills that are in demand on the job market), and the development of youth opportunity programs.

The Rural Manpower Service provides the full range of Manpower Services to migrants and seasonal farmworkers in addition to these general programs:

- Preparing Rural Manpower Mobility Plans on all North Carolina workers referred to other areas or other states. These schedules give the names of the crew leaders, number of workers in each crew, number under the age of 16, home addresses, names of employers, and types and locations of employment.
- Preparing a Manifest List on all workers in each crew entering or leaving the state, describing the number of migrants and children, their ages, sex, and where they are from.
- Inspecting, monitoring, and certifying that migrant housing meets OSHA law prior to occupancy. If housing is not in compliance, notify the Department of Labor, OSHA Division.
- Attempting to schedule all crews on an annual worker plan to insure year-round employment.
- Developing jobs in other states for crews to prevent underemployment or crop loss caused by weather, market, or crop conditions.
- Providing employment counseling, training, and non-agricultural placements for migrants and seasonal farmworkers.
- Receiving and resolving worker complaints, and when necessary, referring the complaint to the appropriate agency for resolution.
- Assisting in organizing work crews and helping them to secure loans to purchase buses and trucks.
- Keeping close contact with crew leaders in the Atlantic Coast movement who expect to work in North Carolina.
- Informing migrant and seasonal farmworkers of community services available to them.

- Monitoring wages, working conditions, and adherence to the terms offered on employer orders to ensure that the rights of workers are not violated and, when necessary, refer findings to an enforcement agency.
- Providing each worker a copy of the employer order signed by the employer and printed in the worker's native language.
- Offering equal access to comprehensive non-agricultural manpower services to each migrant and seasonal farmworker.
- Monitoring prevailing wage surveys to ensure that seasonal farmworkers are receiving the agricultural minimum wage or the prevailing wage, whichever is higher.
- Checking each crew leader to ensure that he or she is registered under the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act. If not registered, providing forms and assistance in applying for registration to the USDL, Employment Standard Administration, Wage and Hour Division.
- Providing Wage and Hour Division with the name and address of each unregistered crew leader.
- Cooperating with all agencies or groups who provide services to migrant or seasonal farmworkers.

NORTH CAROLINA AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, an educational arm of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, conducts educational programs in four broad areas: agricultural production and marketing, family living, youth, and community resource development.

Through its agents in each of the state's 100 counties, the Extension Service provides out-of-school educational assistance locally. Each county's agents in agriculture and home economics can also call upon a state staff of specialists at North Carolina State University.

Many of the Extension's programs should provide direct benefits to migrants. Work in agricultural production and marketing focuses on agricultural commodities which may provide a base for farm employment. Information is available to farmworkers and employers on proper crop production and harvesting practices, as well as labor relations. In some cases, Extension workers have assisted in training crew leaders and workers.

The Extension Home Economics Agents, with offices in the county seat, conduct programs with instruction in a broad range of homemaking activities. Consumer education programs help families to make choices among the many consumer goods now available. These include food buying, health services, child care, clothing buying and sewing. Extension home economists are working in the area of mental health and personal relationships within the family. They work with people of all income levels, with migrant workers, urban and rural families, with youth and the aged.

In most counties program assistants, under the supervision of Extension Home Economists, are working with low income families to improve their nutrition, including how to effectively use the food stamps and supplemental foods they receive.

Currently there are 20 agricultural technicians employed in 14 counties to work with individual farmers who have limited resources. The "Family Opportunities Program", co-sponsored by North Carolina A & T University and North Carolina State University, is supervised by the County Agricultural Extension Agents.

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATION

OFFICE OF MANPOWER SERVICES

The Office of Manpower Services plans, implements, evaluates, and coordinates manpower development programs and the delivery of manpower related services. Manpower planning assesses the balance between supply and demand for use of the labor force. This assessment becomes part of the basis for state policy choices in various areas and the principal basis for implementing specific manpower programs. Manpower programs provide vocational skill training, on-the-job training, and supervised work-experience training for unemployed, underemployed, or economically disadvantaged citizens for the purpose of increasing their employability, their earning capacity, and their ability to be self-supporting.

Manpower program recommendations respond, as far as possible within funding constraints, to needs identified by the State Manpower Planning Council. These recommendations come from specially appointed manpower advisory boards in the multi-county planning regions. Because of federal legislation, the State of North Carolina plans and implements manpower programs in 88 of the state's relatively more rural counties. In addition, nine larger units of government (with population of 100,000 or more) plan and implement manpower programs directly, although they are coordinated through the State Manpower Services Council. By mutual agreement among local governments, the local prime sponsor areas cover 12 counties. The State Manpower Council, acting on the advice of regional manpower advisory boards, establishes priorities for manpower programs to serve identified target groups in each locality.

Manpower skill training and work experience programs increase the employability, and thus the earning capacity, of North Carolina citizens now at the bottom of the earning ladder. These efforts are coordinated closely with public education and community college training (outside manpower programs), with vocational rehabilitation and social services programs, and with industrial development efforts by the Department of Natural and Economic Resources. Particular attention is given to location of new and expanding industries (and job opportunities) in relation to the location of groups of individuals whose earning capacity is influenced by lack of skill or lack of employment opportunity.

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

FOOD DISTRIBUTION DIVISION

The Food Distribution Division is a part of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and has been designated by law as the State Distributing Agency for North Carolina. Under the Food Distribution Program, the U. S. Department of Agriculture makes available, to eligible groups in the state, food acquired under various food programs, including the Agricultural Price Support and Surplus Removal Program. Foods are also purchased under various authorities to supply the needs of certain groups, such as school lunchroom programs. Migrant families are included in several of these eligible groups.

School Food Service Programs and Food Service Programs for Children:

Charitable Institutions serving meals to patients and residents who are unable to pay the full cost for services provided;

Child Care and Child Development Centers serving children of low-income families and working mothers;

Summer Camps providing meals on a non-profit basis for boys and girls of high school grade or under;

High Risk Groups - special allocations of high protein foods to infants and expectant and nursing mothers who are certified by the county health department as having a health or medical need for additional foods;

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNITY COLLEGES

The North Carolina Community College System is made up of fifty-seven institutions which are located geographically so that they are capable of serving 95 percent of the adult population in North Carolina. Many of the adults who come to community colleges for educational opportunities are migrant workers.

The Community College System is equipped to provide, through its "open-door" policy, many educational opportunities to these workers. The schools have offered numerous adult basic education programs in the migrant camps. This is a program in literacy training, which now includes training through the twelfth grade level. Coupled with this, there are courses in occupational education, skill training, and some courses available in leadership for the crew leaders who direct the work of other migrant workers.

The System of Community Colleges and Technical Institutes recognizes the particular need for education that exists among this segment of our population and realizes that the educational programs must be flexible and easily accessible. It also recognizes that life is severe to the migrant workers and that an extra measure of understanding is needed in working with them. These elements are built into the comprehensive educational program that is provided through the schools. The learning laboratories are open and accessible, counseling service is available to these workers, and, as funds and staff will allow, the Community College System will continue to reach out to the migrant workers, to take programs into the migrant camps, and to bring the migrants themselves into the classrooms and laboratories on our campuses.

Contact the nurse supervisor of the health department. If she could not be reached, contact the Program's Central Office in Raleigh by telephone at (919) 829-2775.

V. Organization of Services:

This pattern of service delivery applies to local migrant health projects as well as the State Program.

The Migrant Health Program has evening clinics held by physicians to see sick migrants, diagnose, and treat their illnesses. If a patient needs referral to a specialist, the clinic physician will refer the patient.

If a migrant's condition needs urgent medical attention, the patient is referred immediately to a private physician for care.

Patients needing dental care are referred to private dentists for treatment.

The Program reimburses providers for their services. The Program also pays for drugs and medications for patients seen by physicians in their offices, in clinics, in emergency rooms, or other.

Due to limited funds, inpatient hospital care is limited to essential short term hospitalization. Each case of hospitalization has to be authorized by the Program. For this type of service, contact the Program nurse in the area. Otherwise, contact the Program's Central Office in Raleigh.

DIVISION OF HEALTH SERVICES

SANITARY ENGINEERING DIVISION

The responsibility for enforcement of the Act regulating the sanitation of agricultural labor camps housing 10 or more workers (Article 13A, Chapter 130 of the General Statutes of North Carolina) rests with the Sanitary Engineering Section. Sanitarians in the local health departments, as Deputy Agents of the Department of Human Resources, Division of Health Services, make inspections and work with the growers and crew leaders. District sanitarians assist the local sanitarians and provide technical advice in carrying out the provisions of this Act. The responsibility for providing a camp meeting the sanitary standards set forth in the Act is placed on the grower. The responsibility for maintaining these standards rests on the crew leader.

The general areas of sanitation covered by this Act are cleanliness of camp area, water supply, sewage and bathing facilities, shelter, lighting, food facilities, and garbage disposal.

Nine Sanitation Technicians (six are Environmental Health students, East Carolina University, Greenville, North Carolina) are temporarily assigned to local health departments during the summer months. They provide regular and frequent supervision of camps and other migrant housing, teaching the migrants good food handling techniques, proper methods of handling garbage, insect and rodent control, and general camp sanitation and cleanliness.

The Sanitary Engineering Section cooperates with the Employment Security Commission, which enforces the Department of Labor's regulation on Agricultural Labor Camps.

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES

DIVISION OF MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

The North Carolina Department of Human Resources, Division of Mental Health Services, is concerned with maximizing human potential through prevention and treatment programs organized in 41 mental health areas, covering all 100 counties in North Carolina. In each of the 41 areas, there is a local community mental health center serving a designated geographical area in which communities may tailor or develop mental health programs that address themselves to the needs of the locality. Thus, those localities which have special problems related to migrant workers can design programs suited to their particular needs. Migrant workers, like others, are entitled to utilize the services normally available at each of the 41 local community mental health centers. These services include: 1) Inpatient, 2) Outpatient, 3) Education and consultation, 4) Partial hospitalization, and 5) Emergency services.

In addition to the 41 local community mental health centers, there are several specialized mental health facilities prepared for more intensive and long-term care of individuals. Among these facilities are four retardation centers geared especially for treatment of the severely or profoundly retarded; three alcoholic rehabilitation centers for treatment of alcoholics; four mental hospitals for the treatment of the mentally ill; and the Wright School for the re-education of elementary age children experiencing learning and behavior problems.

Assistance is available to any person within the state who seeks it. For initial short-term services provided by local community mental health centers, there are no residency requirements. Any person seeking intensive care or for whom confinement or intensive care is being sought in one of our long-term institutions is to be treated as a bonafide resident until some other determination is made. If legal residency is established in some other state, the individual may then be transferred to his home state for continued long-term treatment.

For information, contact the specific institutions or the local community mental health departments listed below, or

DIVISION OF VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION

Any man or woman of working age with a physical or mental disability who is in need of assistance in returning to gainful employment is eligible for vocational rehabilitation services.

According to need and ability, one or more of the following services may be provided:

1. A general physical and specialist examination to determine the extent of disability, work capacity, and possibility for improvement.
2. Individual guidance and counseling to help in the selection and realization of a suitable job objective.
3. Medical, surgical, and hospital services to reduce the disability, if the handicapped person is unable to pay.
4. Artificial appliances such as limbs, hearing aids, and braces, when the handicapped person is unable to pay, and such appliances as will increase work capacity.
5. Vocational evaluation and training to provide necessary skills for suitable employment.
6. Maintenance and transportation if necessary, if the handicapped person is unable to pay, while he is undergoing training.
7. Tools and equipment necessary to get the handicapped worker started in employment, if he is unable to provide them for himself.
8. Placement on a job in keeping with the person's handicap.
9. Follow-up after placement to make sure that the worker and the job are suited to each other.

A handicapped person may apply for vocational rehabilitation services by contacting the nearest vocational rehabilitation office. After application a Rehabilitation Counselor makes a thorough study to determine eligibility for services. If the person is eligible, guidance and planning begin, an appropriate job objective is agreed upon, and plans are made for services that will assist the individual in reaching that objective.

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

The Department of Labor, under direction of the Commissioner of Labor, is charged by statute with the responsibility of promoting the "health, safety, and general well-being" of the industrial population of the state. The General Statutes of North Carolina provide the Commissioner with broad regulatory and enforcement powers with which to implement that objective.

The Department's duties are discharged through the work of ten principal divisions. These include:

1. Administration. This division encompasses the offices of the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner, the Controller, and the Information and Publications Office.
2. State Labor Laws and Services. This division enforces the three principal Labor Laws of North Carolina, the Minimum Wage Law, the Maximum Hour Law, and the Child Labor Law, and is in charge of the Department's safety awards program under which awards are given annually for outstanding work in accident prevention in industry.
3. Boiler Inspections. This division inspects and licenses for operation all boilers and pressure vessels subject to the North Carolina Boiler Law.
4. Elevator Inspections. This division inspects for safety all elevators, escalators, dumbwaiters, and a wide variety of other special equipment and amusement riding devices operated in the state, and approves plans and specifications for same.
5. Mine and Quarry Inspections. This division inspects for safety and health all mining and quarrying operations in North Carolina and promotes compliance with the laws governing their industries.
6. Occupational Safety and Health. This division administers the Occupational Safety and Health Act of North Carolina (OSHA-NC) and coordinates a wide-ranging program of inspections, education and training, and consultative services applying to virtually all employment in the state, including sanitation and housing conditions for migrants.
7. Apprenticeship Training. This division supervises and coordinates a state-wide program of apprenticeship and on-the-job training in the skilled trades.
8. Statistics and Research. This division compiles monthly data on employment, hours, and earnings in North Carolina's non-farm industries and on the building construction in cities of more than 10,000 population.

9. Conciliation and Arbitration. This division mediates labor management disputes and coordinates a program under which such disputes may be settled through voluntary arbitration.
10. Private Employment Agency Regulation. This division supervises, inspects, regulates, and licenses all private employment agencies operating in North Carolina.

NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

DIVISION OF COMPENSATORY EDUCATION

MIGRANT EDUCATION SECTION

The Migrant Education Section of the Division of Compensatory Education, North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, is responsible for providing educational and supplementary services to children of migrant agricultural workers. Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Public Law 89-10, provides payment to state educational agencies for assistance in educating children of migratory agricultural workers. Funds provided by the United States Office of Education are used to meet special educational needs of migratory children and to coordinate these services with similar programs and projects in other states.

Public Law 93-380 defines a migratory child as follows: "A migratory child of a migratory agricultural worker or migratory fisherman is a child who has moved from one school district to another during the past year with a parent or guardian who was seeking or acquiring employment in agriculture or fishing, including related food processing activities such as canning."

A migratory child of a migratory agriculture worker or migratory fisherman may continue to be considered such a child for up to five years, with concurrence of his parents, and therefore, may remain eligible to participate in educational projects for migratory children during that period. The purpose for extending the eligibility period for five years is to admit formerly migratory children into the program and to provide children already in the program with continued services after they have ceased to migrate.

Migratory children may be enrolled in educational programs from kindergarten through grade 12, but not exceeding 21 years of age.

The local educational agency, with the help of local farm placement representatives, determines the number of migrant children in the educational unit. The local educational agency and representatives from the State Migrant Education Section jointly plan a program to meet the needs of the children and seek to cooperate with other agencies in providing services to migrants so that efforts are not duplicated and maximum services can be provided.

The priorities of the State Migrant Education Program are listed in order as follows:

1. Summer Programs for Interstate and Intrastate Migrant Children

These programs attempt to utilize an experience-based, non-textbook approach to learning. Special attention is given to language arts, cultural arts, and pre-vocational training and counseling. Most of these programs are operated as separate projects with migrant education funds, but may be integrated with some other summer school program (ESEA Title I or local district programs) in the school.

Summer projects for pre-school and elementary migrant children operate on a weekday basis, providing instruction as well as food and health services. Some evening and weekend activities are designed to involve the parents. Since the secondary school-age youth work in the fields during the day, these projects offer counseling on evenings and weekends so as not to interfere with their work schedules.

2. Regular School Term Programs for Interstate and Intrastate Migrant Children

These programs are designed to supplement and extend services which are not provided to migrant children through other sources of funding. During the regular school term, migrant children should benefit from all appropriate activities available, regardless of the source of financial support. Extended services provided by a migrant project may include additional personnel--classroom aides, reading, counseling, speech or other specialists--who work directly with migrant children or free the teacher to work with them.

3. Staff Development Activities

The Migrant Education Section sponsors statewide and regional staff development sessions for professional and non-professional personnel involved in migrant education projects.

4. Migrant Student Record Transfer System

This communication system enables schools to obtain school-related information on migrant children as they travel from school to school. The aim of the system is to make background information on migrant children available to local educational agencies as soon as possible after receipt of a request for the information so that programs can be planned for the child and efforts will not be duplicated. Schools in North Carolina enrolling migrant children are connected to the Data Bank in Little Rock, Arkansas, through a telephone and teletype communication system.

5. Regional Migrant Education Services

The State Migrant Education Office has an excellent collection of films for use by school units with migrant children. These are circulated from the Northeast Regional Education Center, Grifton, North Carolina. The Center also houses the teletype terminals of the Migrant Student Record Transfer System.

6. Mobile Instructional Units

Two mobile classroom units designed for teaching occupational courses are available to schools with migrant children. One unit is designed for instruction in Automotive Tune-up Fundamentals and one is devoted to instruction in small engine repairs. Requests for scheduling these units should be addressed to the State Director of Migrant Education Programs.

7. Program Activities for Formerly Migratory Children

Children who have ceased to migrate within the last five years and who settle in areas with migrant education projects are eligible to participate in these projects. Since funds may not be used to initiate projects for formerly migratory children, the State Educational Agency will determine the extent to which children in the five-year eligibility category may participate in migrant education projects.

NORTH CAROLINA HUMAN RELATIONS COMMISSION

The North Carolina Human Relations Commission is the official state agency charged with the responsibility of promoting orderly progress toward a life of equal opportunity, justice, and human dignity for all citizens of North Carolina. The Commission was established by Executive Order in January, 1963, and became an official state agency by act of the Legislature in 1967.

Leadership, change, and advocacy toward achieving these goals for the citizens of this state are consistent with the stated goals of the Governor, with the principles established in the laws of the state, and with the dream of a democratic society in which each person and group has freedom and opportunity to develop his potential in a context of genuine equality.

The Commission pursues its responsibilities to the citizens of the state by working in the categories outlined below:

- Providing a statewide mechanism to spearhead the required effort needed to effectively cope with individual and institutional action and values that promote or permit discrimination based on race, sex, color, religion, or national origin; or threaten the peace and tranquility through lack of communication or lack of understanding.
- Facilitating social change by focusing on the issues that impede orderly progress toward achieving the goals of a democratic society through education, research, discussion and communication, and motivation and fortification of individuals and groups to resolve conflicts and remove injustices.
- Providing leadership, direction, and guidance where corrective action is indicated to resolve conflicts and remove injustices.
- Serving as coordinator of state government programs for coping with discrimination and serving as the state's contact with federal agencies in discrimination complaints.
- Promoting and implementing programs to encourage youth to prepare to the full extent of their ability for the opportunity of full participation in the labor market.
- Creating an awareness of inequities women face and encouraging directions and corrective actions to eliminate sex discrimination.

CHURCH WOMEN UNITED IN NORTH CAROLINA

Church Women United in North Carolina has long been interested in the migrant and his needs. They have contributed money for this ministry for some twenty-five years now. In this period of time, they have also donated eight vehicles to be used in the ministry over the state.

In addition to helping financially, Church Women United (CWU) in North Carolina have also donated health kits and new toys for the day care centers, clothing for the migrant workers, and new shoes for their children.

Those units of CWU located near the migrant centers have done needed volunteer work. This is done in cooperation with the directors of the migrant centers or with the director in the day care centers.

MIGRANT AND SEASONAL FARMWORKERS
ASSOCIATION, INCORPORATED

The Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association, Inc., is a private, non-profit organization, dedicated to the economic upgrading of migrant and other seasonal farmworkers. To this end, the Association administers a wide range of manpower and supportive service programs for farmworkers across the states of North Carolina and Virginia.

The Association's Governing Board, composed of seasonal farmworkers (60%) and representatives of other state agencies, sets the priorities for the organization and determines the programs to be implemented.

In order that the Association's programs reach all farmworkers in the state, the Association has divided the state into eight districts which mesh with the state's planning districts. Each district has an established council which represents its area on the Governing Board. The representatives express the needs of seasonal farmworkers based on the input from local target area councils.

The Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers Association has been designated by the Department of Labor, the grantee, to administer farmworker programs in the State of North Carolina under Title III, Section 303, of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). NORTH CAROLINA STATE AFL-CIO

The North Carolina State AFL-CIO has established a statewide Community Service Committee. It has also requested each one of the state's nineteen Central Labor Unions to establish a Community Service Committee within their area. A Central Labor Union is a union of unions and they are spread from Wilmington in the East to Waynesville in the West.

The Community Services Committee will have the responsibility of coordinating the various services that can be provided by the North Carolina State AFL-CIO and its affiliated Central Labor Unions and local unions.

The 1974 Convention of the North Carolina State AFL-CIO passed a strong resolution advocating help and assistance to migrant and seasonal farmworkers.

Some of the services which the Community Services Committee can provide are:

1. Counseling of migrant and seasonal farmworkers in regard to:
 - a. Public assistance programs availability
 - b. A minimum wage law
 - c. Unemployment compensation
 - d. Workmen's compensation
 - e. Medicaid programs
 - f. Available health services
 - g. Job availability
 - h. Processing food stamps
2. Information and interpretation of the Occupational Safety and Health Act as it applies to agricultural workers.
3. Assistance in policing the wage and hour provisions of the National Labor Relations Act.
4. A strong legislative program regarding legislation that affects the wages, hours, and conditions of employment for migrant and seasonal farmworkers.
5. Assistance to see that farm labor contractors working in this state register with the Employment Security Commission Rural Manpower Service, and that they abide by adopted policies and laws regulating their activity.
6. Develop liaison relationships between unions, governmental and voluntary agencies in the field of health, welfare, and recreation in order to promote a more balanced program for migrant and seasonal farmworkers.

7. Design and implement educational and informational programs aimed at increasing union understanding of the problems of migrant and seasonal farmworkers in order to ensure better cooperation between the two groups.

The Community Services Committee will undertake to develop follow-up liaison with the various United Way and United Fund groups in order to increase their awareness of the part labor, through its Community Services Committees, and the United Way can participate in assisting migrant and seasonal farmworkers.
