ABSTRACT

This is a home study unit designed for students learning Chinese as a Second Language (CSL). The lessons in this home study unit are coordinated with Level 1 of "Chinese as a Second Language," and include words and phrases, conversations and self tests. The 32 lessons deal with: greetings (lesson 1), getting acquainted (2), asking people's ages (3), addresses (4), phone numbers (5), days of the week (6), colors (7), classroom phrases (8 and 9), the use of "want" and "have" (10-14), the use of classifiers (15-17), parts of the body (18-20), the use of question words (21-27), the use of "place" words (28), two forms of "thank you" (29), the use of "people" words (30-31), and the use of "family member" words (32). Five short skits are also provided for practice of newly learned materials. (CLK)

I N T R O D U C T I O N

This is a home study unit developed for students that are learning Chinese as a Second Language (CSL). The lessons are coordinated with the Level I of Chinese as a Second Language by Helene Lew.

How To Use This Handbook (To the Students)

The study sheets go along with the lesson you hear on tape. They are intended to help you study at home what the teacher had taught you in school. You can do this by yourself or with another person that speaks or is learning to speak Chinese. Study sheets for each lesson usually includes words and phrases, a conversation, and a self test. Each lesson has been made short enough so that the tape can be played as many times as necessary to learn a lesson.

There are also short skits at the end of every six or seven lessons. These situations are set up so that you can practice what you have learned. Many of the words in the skits you have heard in class, but may have not learned to say. We hope that you will be able to "pick-up" these words by hearing them on the tape. It will be a fun way to use the Chinese you have learned in school and perhaps learn more.
