ABSTRACT

Project H.E.L.P. (Haitian/Hispanic Employability through Language Program) was developed in response to the language and employment needs of adult Spanish-speaking and Haitian immigrants in Florida. It is an interinstitutional cooperative educational program focusing on four basic aspects of communication: understanding, speaking, reading, and writing. The primary purpose is to help students learn functional conversational English. The program is described in detail, including: (1) program philosophy; (2) administrative and programmatic organization, including sample data collection forms for a variety of administrative functions; (3) linkages and cooperative arrangements with community agencies, business, and industry; (4) outreach and need assessment; (5) curriculum objectives, models, and instructional materials; (6) teaching techniques and materials; (7) the volunteer component; (8) evaluation of student progress, staff, and the overall program; and (9) results of participant surveys. PROGRAM PHILOSOPHY

In teaching English as a Second Language to adults, it is of foremost importance to remember that they have immediate language needs in their day to day life. This curriculum is oriented to everyday situations that students will face even while taking the first steps in acquiring the new language.

Project HELP intends to develop the four basic aspects of communication: understanding, speaking, reading, and writing. The primary purpose of the program is to help students learn functional conversational English. The development and acquisition of oral skills (listening-speaking) are extremely important aspects of every level. Secondly, adults have strongly entrenched language patterns. Most adults approach learning a second language from the point of view of new vocabulary that will be fitted into the patterns of their native language. For this reason, oral pattern practice is most important. An adult must learn a whole new set of language habits, a process that requires time, practice, and patience. The patterns and vocabulary used should be immediately applicable to the student's daily needs.

Reading and writing skills are gradually developed after a student has achieved a degree of proficiency with the oral English. Reading and writing are also used as a means to reinforce oral skills. The four basic aspects of communication are gradually integrated so each skill reinforces the others.

In developing the curriculum for Project HELP, we have aimed at immersing the student in practical English. Native language is only used in acculturation sessions by the counselor. English language materials at appropriate levels have been obtained or developed to teach consumer economics, employability skills and acculturation. The life skill components are integrated with the language components.

Our aim is to meet the needs of the community and the program will be modified accordingly to address new identified needs as they arise. It is our hope that the Program shall be bridge for the new arrivals entering the English speaking society of the United States.

ADMINISTRATIVE AND PROGRAMMATIC ORGANIZATION

I. MIAMI-DADE COMMUNITY COLLEGE HISTORY

M-DCC is one of 28 colleges in the Florida System of Community Colleges, with central administrative headquarters in Tallahassee. For the first eight years, 1960-1968, the College was governed at the local level by the Dade County Board of Public Instruction working in conjunction with an appointive, five-member Advisory Committee and the College President.

By action of Florida Legislature, effective July 1, 1968, community college districts were created as independent, separate legal entities for the operation of community junior colleges. Under the new organizational format, M-DCC's Advisory Committee became the District Board of Trustees, working directly with the College President in all matters pertaining to the governance and operation of the College.

The District Board is responsible to the State Board of Education and the State Commissioner of Education. Affairs of the colleges are handled in the Florida Department of Education by the Division of Community Colleges.

Activated by the Dade County Board of Public Instruction in 1959, Dade County Junior College, as it was then called, began instruction on September 6, 1960, in temporary facilities. Since that time, the College has functioned as a coeducational public two-year college supported jointly by the State of Florida and Dade County.

By action of the Board in February, 1963, the College name was changed to Miami-Dade Junior College. In September, 1972, the Board voted to change the name to Miami-Dade Community College, effective, 1973.

Campuses

M-DCC, which opened in temporary quarters with 1,400 students, now has 62,000 students and four major campuses plus several off-campus Outreach Centers at locations throughout Dade County.

With the transition from a single campus to a multi-campus College, the administrative operation was reorganized to provide service common to the whole College, while at the same time providing a maximum of autonomy to each campus.

District Administration offices are housed in the Peter Masiko, Jr. Hall at the South Campus, 11011 S.W. 104 Street, Miami, Florida 33176.

The oldest and largest of the major campuses, is the North Campus is located in the Opa Locka area of Dade County. The campus is fully landscaped with lighted parking areas and a lake around which the buildings in the academic complex are clustered.

South Campus opened in January, 1967, after a year and a half of operation in temporary quarters. The campus is located in the Kendall area, on a 185-acre site 23 miles southwest of Miami-Dade North.

New World Center Campus, formerly named Downtown Campus, is located in the heart of Downtown Miami. It is the only limited-acre urban campus in the area.

Medical Center Campus, the newest of Miami-Dade's campuses, is located in Miami's medical center complex surrounding Jackson Memorial Hospital. The three-story structure houses all of Miami-Dade's allied health programs. The Dental Hygiene and Vision Care clinics, located on the first floor, are open to the public through referrals.

II. PROJECT H.E.L.P. ADMINISTRATIVE ORGANIZATION

The overall college-wide administration of the project is the responsibility of the Project Director. The Project Director is responsible to the Vice President for Education and is assisted in her functions by a senior-clerk (bookkeeper), a distribution officer (audio-visual equipment) and a secretary. The Project Director is also indirectly responsible to the Vice President for Institutional Advancement and the Vice President for Business Affairs for matters related to their areas of responsibility.

Since Project H.E.L.P. was designed to serve the different refugee population pockets throughout the entire Dade County, each campus was asked to assume administrative responsibility for the operation of the program at the outreach centers (off-campus) located in its specific area of service. The program is operated in the areas of Hialeah and Little Haiti through the North Campus, in Little Havana and possibly in South Miami Beach in the near future through the New World Center Campus and in Westchester and Homestead through the South Campus. The management and supervision of the project at the campus level is the responsibility of the Associate Project Director at each campus.

The Associate Project Directors at the South and the North Campuses are responsible to the Associate Dean for Extended Programs/Community Services. At the New World Center Campus, the Associate Project Director is responsible to the Grant's Division Director. Following established administrative procedures at each of the campuses, all businesses merge in the office of the Project Director at District.

III. PROJECT H.E.L.P. PROGRAMMATIC ORGANIZATION

The Project Director also has the responsibility to coordinate all programmatic matters on a college-wide basis to ensure that the services provided at the different locations, each under the administration of an autonomous campus, are common and of equal quality.

Each Associate Project Director is responsible to the Project Director for the administration and supervision of one of the three major program areas: 1) development, implementation and evaluation of the curriculum and instructional materials; 2) design and coordination of counseling support services; and 3) development and evaluation of instructional materials designed for Model B (literacy program) serving the Haitian students primarily.

The Project Director and the Associate Project Directors meet regularly to discuss and evaluate program activities. Jointly they make the decisions to effect changes whenever necessary to meet new program needs. Staff meeting at each of the campuses are conducted on a weekly basis. Instructional and counseling staff meetings are held every month for the entire Project professional personnel.

The charts attached illustrate the administrative and programmatic organization of the Project.

DESCRIPTION OF OPERATIONAL PROCEDURES FOR DATA COLLECTION

Upon referral of the participants to Project H.E.L.P., the students will be scheduled into an Orientation/Assessment session. At this time, the participants will complete the intake form which records data related to the individual's personal information; e.g., name, address, sex, birth-date, nationality, etc., and background information related to education and employment.

After the orientation session, the students are assessed to determine their native language literacy level and English language proficiency as well as to inventory their vocational interests and experiences. The results of the assessment are recorded in the "Assessment Results and Training Plan" form.

The "Training History" form is utilized to record the specific information related to the student's participation in the program as he advances from one level of instruction to the next.

A summary of each individual counseling session held with the student is recorded in a cumulative mode in the "Counseling Log" form. The "Counseling Report" form is completed after each counseling session with the student and is utilized to record the nature of the counseling rendered and the recommendations offered to the student.

"The "Agency Referrals and Follow-up" form serves to maintain a record of all referrals and to document any followup necessary to achieve results. As the students exit the program, information related to their status at the time of termination is recorded in the "Follow-up" form.

This form is also utilized to document the degree of benefits the individual student feels he/she received from participating in the project.

This documentation is based on the student's opinion.

All of the forms described above make up the student's folder. The individual student's folder serves also for auditing and evaluation purposes.

The forms developed for Project H.E.L.P. are attached to illustrate the operational procedures for data collection.

STUDENT FLOW

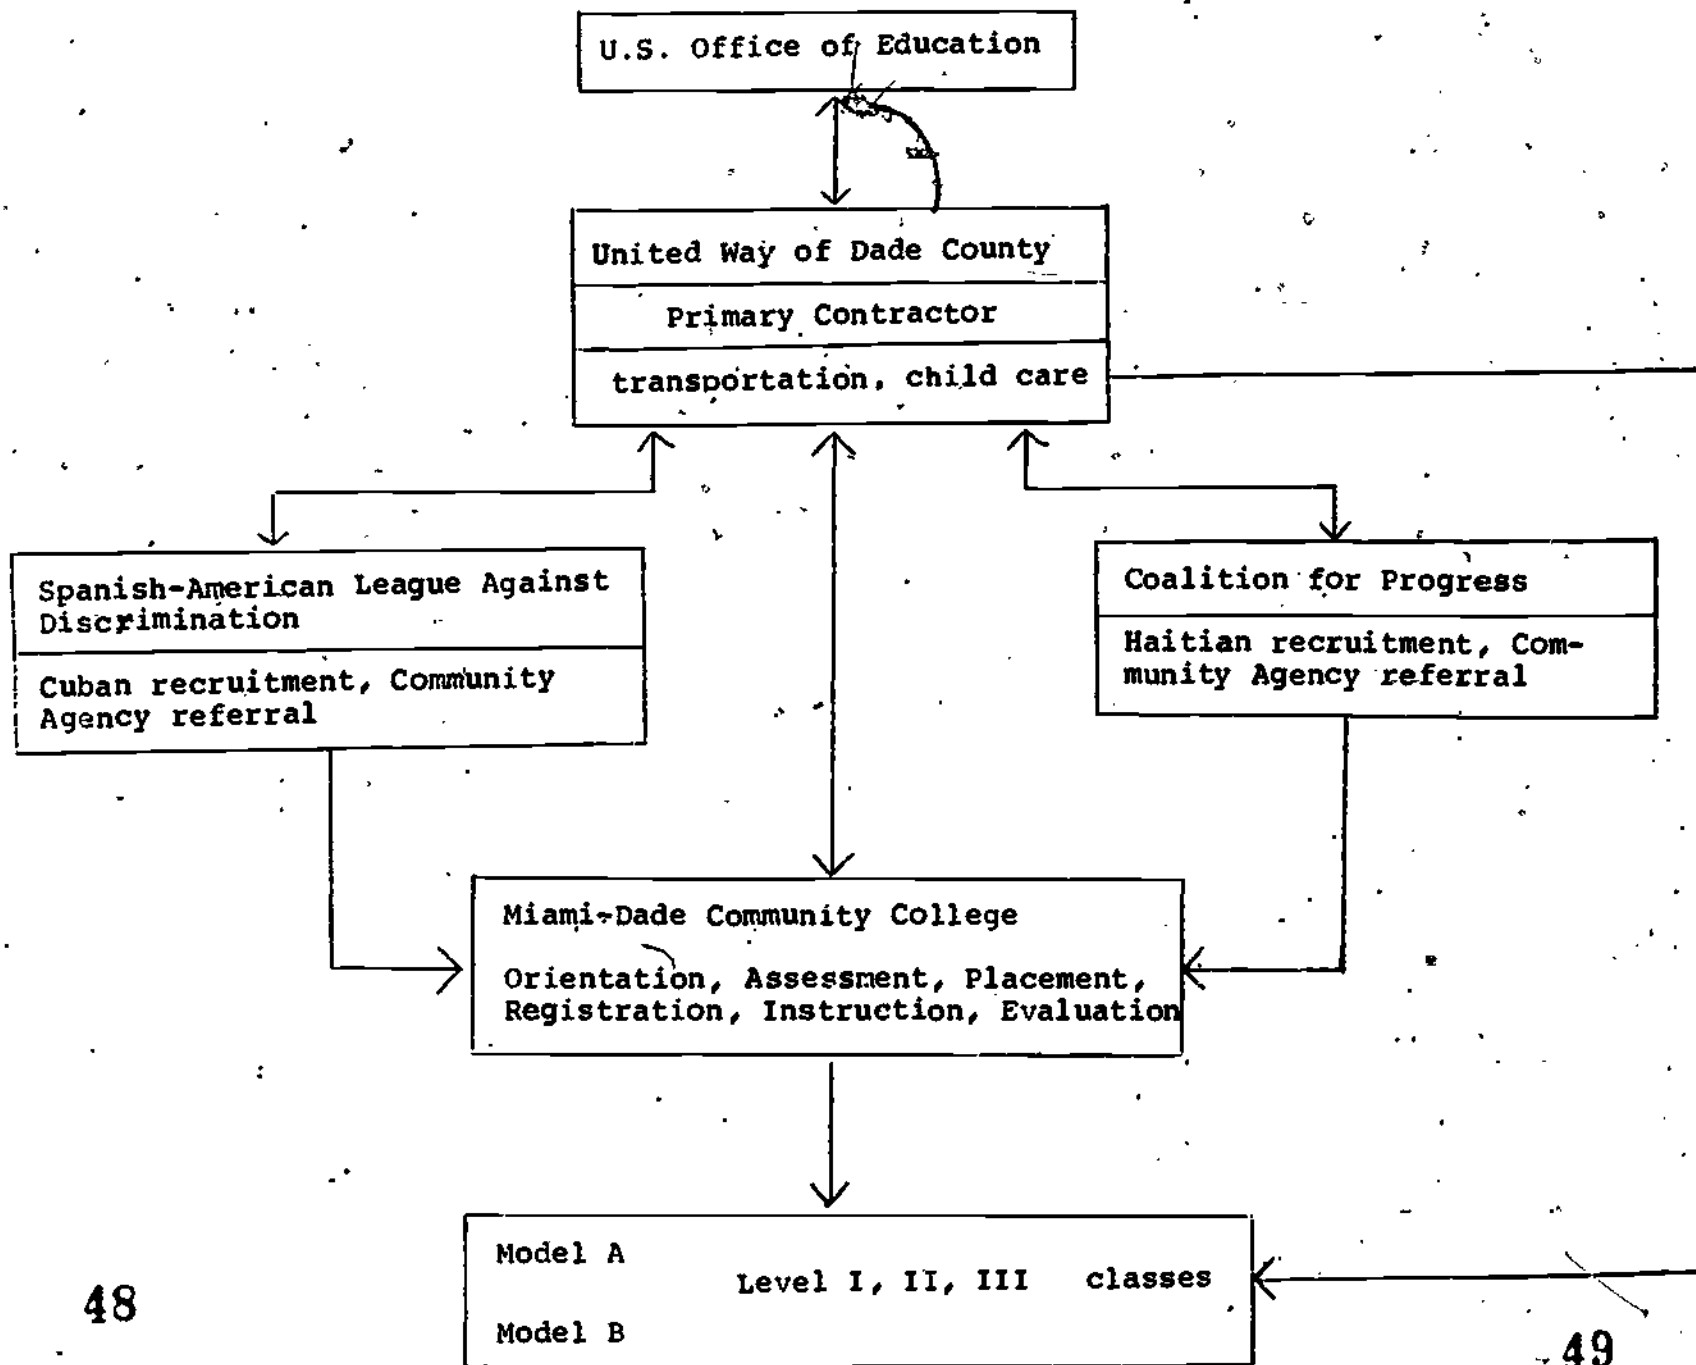

Upon referral by either S.A.L.A.D. or the Coalition for Progress, a participant takes part in an intake/orientation session during which the goals of the program are explained in detail, including the participant's responsibilities to the Project.

Depending on the results of the assessment session, the student is placed in one of the three levels of instruction (determined by oral proficiency in English language) within Model A or Model B (determined by native language literacy level).

During an individual interview with a counselor at the conclusion of the intake/orientation session, the student is given all necessary information to report back to the center on the first day of classes. At this time, the participant is given the opportunity to talk about his/her short and long range goals, the problems he/she may be experiencing and which may impair learning, etc. If necessary, the student will be referred back to either S.A.L.A.D. or the Coalition for Progress or will be referred directly to a service agency if the problem warrants immediate direct referral.

While the participant is in the program, he/she is given the opportunity to schedule individual counseling interviews on a need basis. The student also participates in weekly counseling sessions designed to support classroom instruction while discussing experiences related to their daily life. The student's progress is evaluated periodically to assess the degree of achievement of the established competencies.

When the participant decides to leave the program or at the time when he/she reaches program completion, the student has an exit interview with a counselor. The results of the exit interview are recorded for follow-up purposes. The first follow-up occurs a week from the date of termination if at that time the participant did not have immediate plans related to employment or enrollment in another educational program. The second follow-up occurs at a month from the date of termination to assess to what degree the participant has succeeded in pursuing his/her employment or educational goals. If needed, a third follow-up is done the following month.

LINKAGES AND COOPERATIVE ARRANGEMENTS WITH
COMMUNITY AGENCIES, BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

LINKAGES AND COOPERATIVE ARRANGEMENTS WITH
COMMUNITY AGENCIES, BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

The Hispanic/Haitian Employability through Language Program (Project HELP) is a cooperative effort of Miami-Dade Community College, United Way, the Spanish American League Against Discrimination, and the Coalition for Progress to provide services for the Cuban and Haitian Refugee population in Dade County, Florida.

I. UNITED WAY

Besides having the overall program responsibility as the prime contractor, United Way is also responsible for two ancillary services which assist the program participants in obtaining educational and counseling services.

United Way has subcontracted to provide a transportation system to certain eligible-participants in need of bus service to reach the service centers.

Additionally, United Way is responsible for the Day Care provision in the Program which permits participants with pre-school children to attend classes while their children are being looked after.

Further, United Way has developed a computerized tracking system which permits M-DCC, SALAD, CFP and United Way to retrieve information about program participants immediately and, therefore, provide services efficiently or make referrals to other community agencies.

II. SALAD and CFP

The two community-based organizations, Spanish American League Against Discrimination (SALAD) and the Coalition for Progress (CFP) are the recruiters of program participants.

The organizations also provide social adjustment services as well as referring and assisting with job placement.

III. MIAMI-DADE COMMUNITY COLLEGE

The Community College provides the educational counseling and instructional services of the Program.

The Community College has located its services at outreach centers in areas of the County having large concentrations of the target populations.

Additionally, the College has disseminated information about the Program to the various agencies, organizations and associations in the communities in which their outreach centers are located as well as including information about the Program through the standard community information vehicles which extend county-wide.

IV. FLORIDA STATE EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

Linkage has been established between the HELP Project and Florida State Employment Services whereby computer print-outs of job opportunities are available weekly to the Program Centers.

Florida State Employment Service also provides staff at the Program Centers to register and disseminate information about job opportunities to participants.

Further, refugees seeking services at one of the Florida State Employment Service offices are likewise given information about the Program.

V. INDEPENDENT FOUNDATION

The Independent Foundation has linked with Miami-Dade Community College to provide community volunteers to work as tutors in the program.

Additionally, Miami-Dade has requested the Independent Foundation to assist a Lutheran Church voluntary group seeking to establish free gynecological services for refugees.

VI. OTHER COMMUNITY AGENCIES

Miami-Dade Community College has established linkage with community agencies such as the Christian Community Services Agency, the churches and other "Volags" for assistance in recruitment and referral. (See Appendix I for a more comprehensive list).

VII. ACHIVE

Miami-Dade Community College has submitted a proposal to H.R.S. to obtain funding for a program that would assist refugees in the area of vocational education.

It is hoped that the ACHIVE proposal (Attainment by Cubans and Haitians for Immediate Employability through Vocational Education) will be approved for funding and follow as a natural adjunct to Project HELP.

SECTION III
OUTREACH AND ASSESSMENT

ASSESSMENT PROCEDURE AND METHODS

Participants for Project HELP are recruited through the Spanish American League Against Discrimination (S.A.L.A.D.) and Coalition for Progress. These agencies determine the eligibility of the prospective participants based on documentation of their age, nationality, and date of entrance into the United States.

If prospective participants are found ineligible for services, appropriate community referral are made. However, if the participant is deemed eligible for Project HELP, information is then provided as to the date, time, and location of the next assessment session.

Initial contact between the participants and the Miami-Dade Community College staff occurs during group intake and orientation sessions which are held at different times, days and locations in an effort to insure participant accessibility.

Orientation activities held in the participants native language, include a general overview of the training program thereby acquainting them with the purpose, objectives, results, benefits, and their personal responsibilities. In addition, the students are informed of the training schedules, and locations of the centers throughout Dade County. Any general questions are then answered.

At the orientation session the participants fill out a Project H.E.L.P. Registration form and a Project HELP Intake form, both of which are presented in the participants' native language.

Throughout the orientation session counselors continuously circulate among the participants providing individual assistance in filling out all items. After the forms have been completed, they are reviewed by the counselors to insure that all necessary information has been included.

At this point, the counselors make a preliminary evaluation of the literacy of the students based on the difficulty with which they completed their forms. An "A" for literate or "B" for illiterate is then written on the student forms as a temporary substitute for the CTBS which is administered once the student has been admitted into a class.

Following the completion of the forms and the orientation session, the students are individually assessed as to their level of English by program instructors. The instrument administered is an in-house English assessment test specifically designed to determine the students conversational skills in the English language. Based on their performance on the test, the students are assigned to one of three program levels. The main goal of this assessment is to place the participant in the appropriate level so that the class will be neither too easy or too difficult.

The students are then registered for class according to their assigned level and to the time and location of preference. A card is given to the student which indicates the center, address, telephone number, starting date and time, and the level of their class.

The special needs presented by the refugee population are taken into consideration during the orientation session as well as throughout the entire assessment process. Staff conducting the orientation is bilingual as well as sensitive to the cultural and socioeconomic characteristics of the refugee population.

ASSESSMENT INSTRUMENTS

Students admitted into Project HELP are administered two types of assessments, namely, for vocational skills and literacy in their own native language. The instruments being used for this purpose are the comprehensive occupational assessment and training system (COATS) and the comprehensive tests of basic skills (CTBS).

The CTBS is a Spanish language adaptation of the CTBS reading and mathematics test developed by the Norwalk-La Mirada Unified School district in Southern California. Students in Project HELP are administered the reading vocabulary and reading comprehension sections of level 2. The results of this test assists in determining the student literacy in their own native language, therefore insuring the best placement for the student in future training. The CTBS is administered to a group of students during a regular class period and takes approximately 1 hour to administer. Bilingual staff is always present during these sessions.

During one of the counseling sessions the students are administered the COATS which utilizes an audio-visual format in assessing both vocational interests and past experiences. The audio-visual cartridges present photographs of skill activities as they would be seen from the viewpoint of the person performing the activities.

The audio-visual format requires only minimal reading. Participants need only understand and/or read simple words and phrases such as like, dislike, have done, can do. Furthermore, the audio-visual format allows for this instrument to be utilized with both Haitian and Cuban participants. An additional counseling session is used to interpret the results of the COATS to the participants.

See appendix II for copies of brochures and flyers used for recruitment, intake forms and testing instruments.

SECTION IV
CURRICULUM AND TEXTBOOKS

PROGRAM STRUCTURE

The program is structured in two different models. Model "A" for the literate students and Model "B" for the illiterate students. Each model is divided in three levels of instruction ranging from the beginning to the advanced. The specific English and life skills listed in the contract as "competencies" form the basis of the curriculum.

The material that follows is incorporated in this document to illustrate curriculum content.

Curriculum content for Model A - Levels II and III and Model B - Levels II and III will be made available upon request.

STUDENT PROGRESS RECORD-KEEPING

1. The primary record of student progress is the benchmark system. The operation of this system is explained separately on the pages titled "Explanation of Benchmarks for Instructors." The teacher must keep an up-to-date record of achievement on the class record sheet.
2. At least once every four weeks, usually at the completion of a four-week component, the instructor should transfer the information from the class record sheet to the individual progress chart for each student. These charts must be filed in the student's file in the counselor's office by the end of the course (16th week).
3. The formal four-week component test should be placed by the instructor in the individual student file as soon as practicable after the instructor and student have gone over it.
4. At the end of each four-week component, the instructor completes a Student Assessment page, and places it in the student file.

Summary

The instructor is responsible for placing in each student's file:
a) the completed individual progress chart, b) the completed component tests, and c) a performance assessment sheet for each four-week component.

BENCHMARK EVALUATION SYSTEM

Explanation of Benchmarks for Instructors

Project HELP is bound by contract with the U.S. government to train our population of students in English language and various areas of "life skills". The specific English and life skills are listed in the contract as "competencies", and form the basis of our curriculum. In order to facilitate monitoring of our students' progress towards mastering these various competencies, and to provide an accounting system through which we can demonstrate compliance with the terms of the contract, we have translated the competencies into a series of "benchmarks" (behavioral objectives).

For this purpose, each level of study (1, 2 or 3) is divided into four four-week components, and benchmarks have been written for each component.

The teacher will keep a permanent record sheet for each class showing the students' names and the date (month and day, e.g. 10/3) when an individual student fulfilled a given benchmark. The benchmarks are listed on a separate sheet (see Teacher's Manual), but numbered for easy correlation with the class record sheet.

Completion of a particular lesson is not to be equated with satisfaction of a benchmark. The teacher should judge a student's performance for an individual benchmark at least a week after the relevant lesson has been introduced. The manner of testing for a benchmark will depend on the particular benchmark and the teacher. Clearly "Student will fill out an application form" must be tested in writing, while "Role play ordering a meal in a restaurant" must be tested in an oral but non test-like situation. Many of the grammar-based benchmarks could be tested orally or written, but whenever possible should be tested conversationally.

One or two of the benchmarks can be checked in the fourth-week component tests, but note that those tests are intended as reinforcement tools and do not comprehensively cover the benchmarks. Therefore, satisfactory overall performance on those tests cannot be construed as achievement of the set of benchmarks. In addition, note that the four-week component evaluation is a one-shot, sit-down test, whereas you can check off a benchmark at any time that the student satisfactorily completes the task specified in the benchmark. If a student fails to perform satisfactorily at one point in time, you can go back and test him at a later time until you can check him off. (Remember, too, that the language lab personnel and tutors can help in bringing a student up to level on a specific area.)

The benchmarks should be checked off by the teacher on an ongoing basis throughout the length of the course.

The benchmark record sheet must be turned in to the lead instructor at the completion of each four-week component accompanied by brief comments on any student who has not completed them. The record sheets must also be kept up-to-date and available on request by your lead instructor at any time.

EVALUATION REPORT ON MODEL B

Report on Model B

The Model B curriculum was designed to accommodate those participants of zero or low-literacy in their own language, as determined initially by their lack of ability to complete the intake forms without help.

Model B students in the Haitian component were divided into two groups. Those of zero literacy and those of low literacy, but at least three years of formal schooling.

The Model B curriculum originally established in Project HELP combined the teaching of oral conversational English with the introduction of elements of literacy in Haitian Kreyol and English in parallel. The English literacy component was based on Delta System's "Passage to ESL Literacy", and the Kreyol literacy component was left unspecified, individual teachers providing their own worksheets and methodology. This procedure has met with a good level of success for those students who entered with some, albeit low, literacy skills. The curriculum has given disappointing results in the classes of real illiterate students. In addition, the curriculum is based on covering the first twenty lessons of Delta's English for the 21st Century, whereas in reality, the "slowtrack" classes have seldom gone beyond the twelfth lesson in the first sixteen week period. The language content of the first 12 lessons is very limited, and certainly not a great achievement for students who have spent close to 150 hours in class.

Model B teachers are meeting this week to discuss methods, resources and procedures in an attempt to pull together a Model B curriculum that will be effective for the "slow-track" students.

CURRICULUM MODEL B - LEVEL I.
HOMESTEAD VERSION

MODEL B - LEVEL 1 CURRICULUM (Homestead Version)

The course begins with an intensive introduction to literacy following sections 1 and 2 of Passage to ESL Literacy, Delta Systems Inc. This departure from the original syllabus, in which literacy training ran concurrent with the oral English training, follows the obvious intent of the production staff of PESLL and the experience of at least one center using the Delta System materials with illiterate students. A memorandum circulated by CAL notes that the original Modulearn materials, on which the PESLL is based "were designed to be presented with Lessons 1-10 in English as a Second Language: A New Approach for the 21st Century. The material, however, is best used as a single integrated unit...."

Section 3 of the PESLL uses the vocabulary and structures of and is correlated to lessons 1-10 of the Delta Language text. For this reason, we pick up the two texts in combination at the beginning of the third week, thus providing further literacy training throughout the presentation of the heavily oral English Language Syllabus.

CONSIDERATIONS IN TEXTBOOK SELECTION

I. Speak English

Advantages:

- A. A marked emphasis on 'life skills'. Vocabulary and situations relate directly to the students lives thus reinforcing the acculturation process.
- B. Designed with the adult student in mind.

Disadvantages:

- A. The language content has been reduced to the extent that a systematic approach has been discarded in favor of a rapid introduction of multiple new structures within a single lesson.
- B. The format would necessitate substantial interpretation on behalf of the instructor as instructions are relatively complex and notes to the teacher are included at the bottom of the page.
- C. Tapes do not seem to be available.

II. Bridges to English

Advantages:

- A. New structural forms are introduced gradually, building upon previously acquired skills.
- B. "Conversations" present vocabulary and expressions used in real-life situations.
- C. Writing and reading competencies are also met.
- D. Realistic illustrations and photos promote further discussion.

Disadvantages: (N. B. - Book I is the only one in the series available at time of writing.)

- A. Situations are often not specific enough.
- B. Production schedule will not fit our needs.
- C. Irregularities of language are not taught.

Considerations in Textbook Selection
Page 2

III. Lado Series

Advantages:

- A. Systematic approach to language instruction.
- B. Tape series included.

Disadvantages:

- A. Stilted vocabulary.
- B. Intonation marking is confusing.

IV. New Horizons in English

Advantages:

- A. Systematic approach to teaching of structure.
- B. Easy text to teach from.
- C. Numerous illustrations.

Disadvantages:

- A. Limited U. S. acculturation value.
- B. Stilted conversation.
- C. Oriented to teenagers.

V. English for Adult Competency, Book 1

Consensus: Excellent reference to be used and duplicated by teachers.

Questions: Duplication rights?

Have not been able to locate Book II.

Questions: Is tape series vital when choosing a text?

Will language lab be set up to take advantage of lesson tapes?

Can we make our own tapes for the lab?

Considerations in Textbook Selection

VI. Modulearn - Delta

Advantages:

- A. Spiral approach - skills and patterns are taught by several methods and in different lessons.
- B. Real-life situations and language.
- C. Adult oriented.
- D. Includes reading and writing competencies.
- E. Literacy program included.
- F. Deals with employability and consumer economics.

Disadvantages:

- A. Pace might be too slow.
- B. Need for enrichment materials.

 31. Modulearn, Inc. - San Juan Capistrano, CA.
 32. New Readers Press - Syracuse, N. Y.
 33. Delta Systems Co., Inc. - Arlington Heights, Ill.
(Session with company representative)
- II. After review of above, selected and ordered those teaching materials which fulfilled proposal competencies at various levels. (Materials included student materials, teachers' resource materials, and center resource materials.)
 - III. Developed and designed additional materials to be used in instructional program (i.e. Posters, signs, maps, etc.)
 - IV. Planned language labs for each center. Ordered hardware and soft-ware for use in lab.
 - V. Designed testing instruments plus examiner instructions to be used for language level placement of literate and non-literate during In-Take Sessions.
 - VI. Developed weekly lesson plans for all class levels. [Classes to be taught in 16-week cycles, with teacher changes at end of each cycle.]
 - VII. Delineated responsibilities for instructors, counselors, instructional assistants, and other staff members in the Training Program.

VIII. Began development of staff training manual for future staff members.
Manual to contain:

1. General statement of philosophy, goals, and objectives of the Project.
2. Delineation of responsibilities as pertains to the administration, instructional, and counseling staff members.
3. Definition of all competencies to be met in the instructional program.
4. Weekly lesson plans.
5. Equipment and materials available.

IX. Planned monitoring and evaluation procedures to be followed during course of project.

X. Developed reinforcement materials. Specifically, designed special certificate of completion to be issued to students at end of Training Cycle.

SUBJECT: WORD GUIDE (Books 1 and 2)
GRAMMAR GUIDE (Vol. 1, 2, and 3)
APRENDER INGLES
IRREGULAR VERB GUIDE
BY MYRDICH JOHN BALIAN

DATE: July 14, 1981

The series of books by Balian do not seem to be suitable for use in our program. Certainly as principal texts they are deficient. The author states in the introduction to the grammar guide that it is "designed to reinforce classroom study". Unfortunately the series does not include basic texts for classroom teaching.

On the other hand, the series does not seem usable as a supplement to the materials we have chosen or materials that we might subsequently choose as basic texts. The guiding principle of our selection of text has been practical conversational English with an emphasis on incorporating everyday situations.

These texts are heavily oriented toward grammar manipulation and are not graded spirally in the way grammatical topics need to be introduced to our population. The grammatical topics are organized as discrete units without clear progression. Use of grammatical items and their meanings are not clarified by the examples used. No context is created for the exercises. It is not all clear how these texts can help any language learner. Certainly I can not see how they are relevant to the needs of our population.

SUBJECT: STECK-VAUGH PUBLICATIONS

We reviewed an extensive collection of Steck-Vaugh materials.
Speaking of Pictures - Books 1, 2, and 3 and Speaking of Pictures, Teachers Edition - Books 1, 2, and 3 have been requested on a per teacher basis.

English, Your Second Language seemed to be considerably too reading, writing, grammar based to fit in well with our program. It seems to lend itself to an overly book-oriented, page turning methodology.

The other offerings of Steck-Vaugh are all similar to but not better than the various Frank E. Richards books we have requested.

SUBJECT: REVIEW OF ENGLISH THAT WORKS

We reviewed English that Works; Scott Foresman Publication. It looks very usable for our purposes. Maybe less than perfect in the amount of oral drill type work likely to be inspired by it.

Most worrisome to us, way back in May and early June was the fact that only the first book is available. I would like to see books 2 and 3 when they do come out to reconsider the whole series. By that time we will know how the Modulearn etc. are working out.

SUBJECT: MILK & HONEY BY: HARCOURT-BRACE JOVANOVIICH

DATE: July 15, 1981

1. Assumes a higher intelligence/awareness of world than English for 21st Century.
e.g.- geography
world figures history
2. Has international-cultural flavor-e.g.- in names of people etc. Modulearn is neutral
3. Complex structures are thrown in quite early obeying functional orientation.
e.g.- page 36 "They look like fine boys"
4. Is functional & everyday, but seems to relate to a higher educational & intellectual level of concern than our population. The social context does not seem quite right.
5. Also it seems that a lot of concern about detailed conversational niceties obscures the basic structural elements the student needs to master to communicate.
e.g.- dialogue on page 68 and concern with register page 83 for beginning students it is more practical to choose one all-purpose way of saying something.
6. Very text oriented as ^{compared} ~~composed~~ to Modulearn. It would be difficult to work through this without heavy dependence on the text, and there are few pointers on how to incorporate substantial oral pattern work. On the other hand, there is substantial small group controlled conversation work.

Summary:

I like it but do not recommend it for Project HELP.

Workbook:

Some pages of the workbook are possible as supplementary worksheets for our purpose, but probably not a significant addition to what we have already.

SECTION V

TEACHING TECHNIQUES AND MATERIALS

PROJECT HELP
TEACHING TECHNIQUES

- I. Project HELP is charged with teaching conversational English and employment oriented life skills to Cuban and Haitian entrants. Towards this goal, we have established a curriculum combining practical oral English instruction with an introduction to various aspects of acculturation, consumer economics and employability.

The techniques of instruction follow from the need to orient the classes to situationally appropriate but structurally sequenced lessons. The core of the program is Delta's A New Approach for the 21st Century, a text prepared specifically for refugee populations such as ours. This text lends itself well to the modified audio-lingual procedure--visual presentation of vocabulary and structural material (using prepared visuals and overhead projector transparencies), class and individual student drill practice, extended practice in meaningful and communicative contexts. Our aim is not necessarily for rote memorization of the material but, rather, for a systematic development of the language skills that have immediate application to the student's everyday life.

Vocabulary and language learned within the lessons are exploited in further extended activities, revolving around role playing, directed conversation, and language lab work.

US

Material learned aurally and orally is subsequently reinforced through reading and writing practice. To this end, we have put together a variety of materials outside of the Delta worksheets to serve as the bridge between the essentially language-pattern oriented text and the everyday life skills needs of the students.

In addition, a number of other reinforcement activities have been incorporated into the program. These include games of various kinds, guided and free conversation, directed practical activities, and the use of Xerox publications' Weekly Reader.

All these activities come together to provide an enriched program of language based but acculturation-oriented learning. A more detailed summary of activities follows in Section II.

- II. A. Core Language Presentation
 - 1. Overhead-projector transparencies
 - 2. Visuals
 - 3. Language Lab (See Appendix III)
- B. Language Extension
 - 1. Picture files for vocabulary
 - 2. Role playing a variety of real life situations correlated with the dialogues presented and extended to other situations.
 - 3. Language Lab (See Appendix III)
 - 4. Listening comprehension activities
 - a) number discrimination
 - b) minimal pairs
 - c) cue cards

d) sequencing events

e) picture sets

C. Life Skills Resources

1. driver's license manual menus
 Social Security application newspaper ads health form classified ads immunization record catalogues income tax forms loan applications insurance forms change of address cards job applications utility bills school registration interview questions rental leases resume forms credit applications bank checks car registration W-4 forms accident reports medicine labels traffic citations
2. Telephone white and yellow pages information area codes
 emergency numbers
 long distance calls
 finding possible repairmen locating store to buy Cuban food hospitals and physicians local restaurants for ethnic foods
3. Tel-consumer

D. Enrichment

1. Games catalogue (See Appendix III)
2. File of conversational topics including newspaper articles, magazine articles, situation outlines, and list of resource materials. (See Appendix III)
3. Weekly Reader used each week for current events linking language level of the class with community events.
4. Series of directed activities:
 - Making milkshakes
 - Drawing pictures
 - Making craft projects
 - Locating routes to a specific place on a city map
 - Using bus schedules and routes
5. Acculturation topics (See Appendix III)

SECTION VI
VOLUNTEER COMPONENT

VOLUNTEER COMPONENT

The name Project H.E.L.P. suggests its own objective: HELP. There are many ways in which volunteers can help and that is precisely why a volunteer component has been created within Project H.E.L.P. at Miami-Dade Community College. By coordinating the assistance of community volunteers, help can be provided to enhance the English as a Second Language program.

The objective of the volunteer component is not only to assist the staff in the delivery of services but to foster concrete interactions with individuals from the community so that the refugee students can learn and experience the foundations of an integrated community life.

The volunteer coordinator for Project H.E.L.P. has begun fundamental organization on the three M-DCC campuses. The main approach thus far has been to incorporate the credit student body into the ESL assistance program. College students scheduled to receive class related credits for their service in the program not only enhance their own curriculum and awareness of community social service, but enhance the quality of the educational and support services provided by Project H.E.L.P.

Volunteers are recruited on the basis of the following job descriptions: language laboratory assistants, counselor aides, instructional aides, child care assistants (babysitting) and transportation aides. These positions are flexible according to the volunteer's skills and talents and the program's and students' needs.

At the South Campus, the volunteer component for the Project has been initiated through the Cooperative Education Program (CO-OP) and Operation Student Concern (OSC), a volunteer recruitment, screening and placement program within the South Campus. Also, several college departments including the Social Service Department, the Department of Education and the English Department will be participating to the fullest extent during the 1981 Winter and Spring/Summer semesters. The South Campus is currently using two volunteers as teacher's aides in its Olympia Heights Center. Two other volunteers from the community have been referred to the Associate Project Director for placement at the Homestead Learning Center.

The New World Center Campus, Miami-Dade's Downtown Campus, is beginning its involvement in volunteerism in Project H.E.L.P. The volunteer coordinator has met with the Student Activities Director and Student Congress. Articles have appeared in two campus publications, the Committee of 100 INTERCDM and the Center for the Continuing Education of Women's (CCEW's) newsletter. The response from students and faculty has been very positive.

Several volunteers have been referred to the North Campus to provide instructional and day care services. Currently there are two volunteers from the community assisting in the Haitian center at the Notre Dame Academy. Student and faculty involvement in the North Campus is expected to increase during the next months as we approach the Winter semester.

The volunteer component is still young. The number of volunteers requested by the Associate Project Directors and Lead Counselors and Instructors will determine the amount of volunteers to be recruited from the Skills Bank of the Independent Foundation of Florida, Inc.

The Volunteer Coordinator is a VISTA volunteer placed with the Independent Foundation of Florida, Inc. She has been assigned to serve the College on a part-time basis and is responsible for overseeing the overall recruitment and placement process including regular follow-up on each volunteer and coordination with the Independent Foundation's Skills Bank. The Volunteer Coordinator reports to both, the Director of the Independent Foundation and the Project H.E.L.P. Director.

SECTION VII
EVALUATION

EVALUATION OF THE PROGRAM

The Program is continuously evaluated at each level by the use of various instruments. Copies of the various forms are included in this report in their relevant sections and a general summary is presented here.

1. Tracking of Student Progress

This is accomplished through the use of a tripartite system: a) the benchmarks, which track the student's ability to meet individual ESL and lifeskill competencies, b) the four-week component tests, which provide a more generalized measure of the student's achievement in the program, and c) the student evaluation form, where the teacher provides a broader, subjective report on the student's progress.

2. Evaluation of the Instructional Personnel

Classroom teachers are evaluated on a continuing basis through the use of the lesson plan report which is filed with the lead instructor on a weekly basis. This permits the lead instructor to keep track of the individual teacher's progress through the curriculum, use of supplementary materials and incorporation of innovative and motivating teaching techniques. This report also provides a basis for the lead instructor's in-class observation of the teacher and subsequent discussion and feedback.

On the other hand, the students are requested to provide their own evaluation of their teacher at the end of each 16 week cycle, and the summarized results of these evaluations are made available to the teacher to aid in his/her self assessment of professional development.

3. Evaluation of Counseling Staff

The counselor's work is tracked on a weekly basis through the use of the weekly group-counseling log and the weekly attendance report. The attendance report is turned in with the counselor's notation on his efforts to contact those students who have been absent from class. The counselor is also evaluated by the students at the end of each 16 week cycle, by means of the counselor evaluation form.

4. General Program Evaluation

The progress of the program in general is tracked by means of the monthly report. This contains enrollment, attendance, attrition and demographic data.

The students are provided the opportunity to evaluate the program as they perceive it at the end of each 16-week cycle by means of the program evaluation form.

SECTION VIII
EXEMPLARY PRACTICES

EXEMPLARY PRACTICES

I Job Survey

A questionnaire was distributed to all the students in the Program requesting information regarding their previous education/training in their native countries and the occupation they were employed in. It is hoped that with the knowledge of both their previous education and occupational experience the Program could incorporate training and techniques, as well as develop materials that were more relevant to employment opportunities they are more likely to pursue in the United States.

Compilation of the questionnaire responses have been done by campus.
