ABSTRACT

A catalog of 205 descriptions of college programs to recruit and retain adult learners is presented, based on a national survey, "Attracting and Retaining Adult Learners" (ARAL), conducted in 1980 by the American College Testing Program. Ir addition to a brief program description, each program form pro sinformation on the type of program, the target group, the prima.; purpose, satisfaction with the success of program, the estimated effectiveness of the program, and the contact person's name and telephone number. Mean satisfaction and effectiveness rankings for program categories and for target groups are displayed by institutional type. A cross-reference index is arranged by target group categories. Program categories are: registration; admissions; curricular innovations; administrative structure; financial aid; counseling; course offerings; orientation; skill development; class scheduling; marketing; recruitment; outreach; student services; academic advising; program evaluation; funding; career planning; support; and placement. Target groups include: nontraditional adults; part-timers; employed persons; public school teachers/administrators; career changers; the unemployed; first-time students; reentry students; high risk students; and currently enrolled students. A national survey, "Attracting and Retaining Adult Learners," was conducted by The ACT National Center for Educational Conferences (now The ACT National Center for the Advancement of Educational Practices) in winter 1980. The purpose of ARAL was to identify, analyze, and report on campus practices that have been successful with adult learners.

A Word about the Center

The ACT National Center for the Advancement of Educational Practices has been created to collect, analyze, and disseminate information about crucial educational issues. Following ACT's tradition of service to education, the National Center offers programs and seminars of interest to the educational community.

CATALOG OF SUCCESSFUL CAMPUS PRACTICES FOR ADULTS

INTRODUCTION

This Program Description Catalog is an outgrowth of a national survey, "Attracting and Retaining Adult Learners" (ARAL), conducted by The American College Testing Program in spring, 1980. The primary objectives of the survey were to:

- identify institutions which had taken positive and creative steps towards meeting the special needs of adult learners;
- 2. describe the institutional innovations currently in use and analyze the extent to which they are deemed to be both satisfactory and effective in that setting; and
- 3. provide catalog descriptions of successful, innovative endeavors and disseminate the results among institutions so that practitioners newly acquainted with the needs of adult learners might be provided with a resource network.

The results of the accomplishment of these objectives are described in two ARAL publications: This Program Description Catalog, and a Summary of the Findings. Responses to the ARAL Survey were received from 517 out of 1554 postsecondary institutions sampled, for a response rate of 33%. This response rate was found to be acceptable because many postsecondary institutions are just now consciously beginning to consider providing programs and services for adults.

A primary focus of the survey was the determination of the nature and satisfaction with specific programs, services, and activities instituted to improve the recruitment and retention of adult learners. Data on these action programs were garnered through the use of Program Description Forms which instructed institutions to structure their response by providing the following information for each exemplary program:

Program category
Primary purpose(s)
Target group
Program description
Satisfaction with success of program
Estimated effectiveness of program

Space limited the amount of information that could be detailed on the form. However, a complete reference has been included so that further information can be obtained directly from the contact person listed. These persons have indicated their willingness to share their program descriptions with others.

The catalog contains 205 Program Description Forms selected from the 782 forms that were submitted by 316 of the 517 institutions that participated in ARAL. The Program Description Forms are unedited, and appear as submitted. The primary criteria used in the selection of forms for inclusion in the catalog were: "satisfaction with program"; "effectiveness of program"; uniqueness; and applicability to other campuses. Many worthy additional activities were reported by institutions. Regretfully not all could be included in this catalog. For further reference, a complete listing of institutions who submitted Program Description Forms is contained in the Appendix.

How To Use the Catalog

The Program Description Forms are organized into program category groups. The order in which the program category groups are presented in this catalog reflects the relative satisfaction by institutions with the program they described. Table 1 presents the program category groups in order of mean ranked satisfaction. This order is also reflected in the Table of Contents which lists the program categories and the pages on which each may be found. Additional information on the ranked satisfaction and effectiveness can be found in Tables 2-5. In these tables, mean satisfaction and effectiveness rankings for program categories and for target groups are displayed by institutional type. This information should be useful to institutions interested in identifying the program tegories and target groups which have been particularly successful in the titutions similar to their own.

In addition to the Table of Contents, a cross reference index has been prepared which is arranged by target group categories and shows the pages on which each can be found within a given program category. It should be noted that in many cases there is a great deal of overlap between both program categories and target groups. For example, women students serve as a major target group for several categories: orientation, counseling, and student services.

This catalog presents selected action programs which we hope will serve as a guide to institutions interested in devising programs appropriate to their own campus conditions and needs. For best results, institutions interested in adding or modifying services or programs for adults may want to begin with a period of analysis in which patterns of adult enrollment and adult needs are determined. It is unlikely that even a successful program on a specific campus could be duplicated in the same manner and with the same results in another institution. Similarities do exist, of course, and if adapted to fit local conditions any or many of the programs included in the catalog could be useful to an institution not already engaged in such an effort. The examples of programs found in this catalog might serve as a catalyst to stimulate creative thinking on your campus, resulting in the adoption of an approach that will work best for you.

The inscitutions who participated in the study are to be commended for their hard work, creative thinking, and deep concern for helping adult students. Appendix A contains a list of all institutions that submitted one or more Program Description Forms. Following the name of each institution, the program category and target groups are identified. We sincerely appreciate their willingness to share their efforts on behalf of students everywhere.

1. Gameplan

2. The Project EONS was begun in 1976. Adults who applied for admissions or came in for an interview with academic records below that which we could justify for admission into a competitive university. Criteria to fit within this program includes: (1) Being over the age of 21, (2) Hiatus of 3 yrs. from formal education, and (3) A GBA below the minimum requirements of the University. A completed file for admission processing included a personal statement, letters of recommendation, SCAT scores, official transcripts, and a personal interview with a counselor involved in the committee decision on admissions. Once admitted the students are required to complete the Edwards Personnel Preference Schedule and a questionnaire on background information. These are used for follow-up reserach on the success of the program. Students are assigned a designated counselor to follow through with academic advising and are encouraged to keep in touch with the director of the EONS program. To date, 50 students have been admitted through the program and 4 have graduated. It is an extremely successful program.

Satisfaction with success of program

Please explain:

Only two students have earned less than a 2.0. The average GPA is 2.8. Several students are outstanding students with very high grade point averages. The personal satisfaction of the students is very high.

Estimated effectiveness of program

High

Please explain:

Without the EONS program, we would not have been able to admit these adults to UM. The personal rewards of the students for being given the opportunity of being a student at UM and being successful are fantastic. The effectiveness of the program in demonstrating to the faculty that academic success cannot always be measured by previous performance as a student right out of high school has been very good.

In July 1978 a Part-time Matriculant Services Office was established within the Extension College. This office coordinated academic and admissions services previously under the Full-time Admissions Office. By physically being "where the action is" the PTM Services Office is much more accessible to students and thus, serves as a more effective liaison for students as they deal with other elements of the college. The PTM Services Office admits students to the degree program, facilitates transfer evaluations through the Registrar's Office, and serves as a liaison with academic departments in their dealings with part-time matriculated students.

The centralization of admissions and academic services appears to have benefited part-time students, particularly those who have neither the time nor ability to bounce between several day college offices.

Please explain:

The Part-time Matriculated program has grown dramatically over the last 10 years. Students move freely and without academic penalty from a full-time to part-time or part-time to full-time status. The majority of students in the undergraduate Extension College identify themselves as matriculated degree students. 90% have expectations of completing a degree at the college as part-time students.

Admissions materials and procedures

Prienary Purpove(s)

To increase the enrollment of adult degree seekers, and to facilitate the admissions procedure for the prospective student.

Target Group
Employed adults who need evening degree-track courses to complete a degree begun at an earlier date (junior standing is necessary to complete a bachefor's degree in the evening).

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described 1. Open enrollment in a wide range of regular credit classes offered in the evening. If regular standing is granted later, up to 16 such undergraduate and 12 graduate units may apply toward a degree. This policy permits adults to sample various majors to test their aptitude and interest under "real" conditions. An added spin-off is enrollment by adults who only want to take a class or two, but want the rigor of regular credit classes.

2. For the degree seeker, much of the pre-admissions counseling is handled by telephone, (9 a.m. to 9 p.m.), which saves the working adult several trips to the campus. Our new adult students typically have completed one to three years of college work previously and their questions relate to transferability of credits, applicability of prior units toward a given degree, length of time to complete, etc. We handle general and preliminary questions by telephone, the transcript is sent to us, we evaluate it and telephone the prospective student with a prognosis. Inperson counseling is welcomed at any time in the process, but most busy working adults prefer to wait until it is ascertained that they will probably enroll. If they wish to apply for admission before enrolling, our personnel personally interface with admissions office staff to facilitate what is sometimes a problematical and slow process.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

- 1. Open enrollment. Not possible to quantify because its availability has not been publicized until this year; however, a 30% increase was achieved over the previous year.
- 2. Pre-Admission Service. 65% of those who reach in-person counseling stage enroll.

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

Preliminary (1 year) efforts have been so promising, that a very high degree of success seems likely. Almost uniformly, students enrolled have said they wou'd have done so earlier had they known of the program and services.

counseling center before they enroll. This is extremely important, since many are hesitant about even starting a program until they are sure they can study in an effective manner and if they are unsure about career goals. A followup phone call is made a week after campus visit to offer support and encouragement, and this is repeated as necessary. These adults are invited to participate in any special programs being held for current adult students to provide an opportunity to meet those who have already taken the step. This is especially important for women who have been in the home for a number of years and may have some doubts about their ability to succeed in this new venture.

Admissions materials and procedures

Primary Purpose(s)

To simplify the admissions process for adults returning to college or attending college for the first time.

Target Group

Adult sutdents attending classes either during the day or at night.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Most adult learners are attending classes on a part-time basis, and most have not opted for a degree program. Therefore the category of "special student" was developed for them. The "special student" application is a streamlined, one-page admissions form that does not require an appointment with admissions or scrutiny by the admissions committee. A student may fill the form out in the office of continuing education and register the same day. If a "special student" later opts for a degree program, he then goes through the regular admissions process. But a student may take as many courses as he wishes as a "special student".

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

The process is a comfortable one for adults unaccustomed to a college environment.

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

We received few complaints of administrative entanglement and red-tape from adult students.

Admission materials and procedures

Primary Purpose(s)

To facilitate the enrollment of the adult woman student by removing some of the usual obstacles to enrollment and to reduce her level of anxiety about college by fortifying her with information, role models and counseling before she makes the decision.

Target Group

Adult women who can attend college during the day.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described. We use as a mail piece a special PORTAL (Program of Return to Advanced Learning) brochure aimed specifically at the adult woman who has been out of school for at least 4 years. Photos and stories of past and present students give her a role model to identify with. Her many questions and concerns are anticipated and are addressed in such a way that she feels confortable with the idea of going to college as an adult. Admissions procedures are simplified for her. The application form is concise and free of academic jargon. No SAT's or recommendations are required. When a student contacts the PORTAL office, the brochure, application, cover-letter, and any other special interest materials (like information on financial aid, CLEP, descriptions of special programs like the BS in Nursing for RN's, etc) are sent out within 24 hours. She is encouraged to come in for a personal inverview. 75% of all students enrolling have had a personal interview. Through active listening it is often possible to help the student clarify her own goals, set priorities for herself, and make decisions among the various alternatives offered. The personal interview is the decisive factor for many students.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High Please explain:

We have a 20% conversion rate from all our inquiries, i.e. 20 out of 100 students inquiring about the PORTAL program become enrolled students.

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

Its cost of operation is approximately 3% of the revenue it generates.

Curricular Innovations

Primary Purpose(s)

To offer a variety of educational experiences.

Target Group

Adults with highly developed interests (self-designed programs) and students who desire pre-professional experience while still in college (internships, practicums, etc.)

Description

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described.

Under the Arts and Sciences major and within the University's guidelines, a student can develop a program which fulfills his/her particular needs and interests. For instance, one student with a highly developed interest in the arts has combined courses in the fine arts with courses in business administration, hoping for a career in Arts Management. Another student who has been photographing flora and fauna for years has decided to sharpen her skills and put an official stamp on her vocation with a degree in Biological Photography.

The interships and practicums give students an invaluable experience in the "real" world before they graduate.

Satisfaction with success of program

Please explain:

Students who participate in both programs are very satisfied with their experiences. Student evaluations of the internship program are consistently high. Those who design their own programs report feeling an added satisfaction because of their personal involvement in designing their curriculum.

Please explain:

The only drawback with either program comes from the limited number of students who can (internship) or want (self-designed curriculum) to participate.

Curricular Innovations (self-designed programs)

Primary Purpose(s) The Bachelor of General Studies is an interdisciplinary degree program designed for part-time upper division study by mature adult students who have clearly defined their intellectual goals and whose circumstances do not permit attendance in regularly scheduled daytime classes which meet several times per week. The focus of the degree is an interrelationship of learning and life/work goals.

Target Group Individuals whose previous postsecondary training has been in specialized or technical vocational areas and who now desire further general education; and individuals who have formulated specific vocational or professional goals which may be interdisciplinary or miltidisciplinary in nature.

Description ... If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described The program incorporates upper level course work with independent study under the guidance and instruction of University of Connecticut faculty or course work in other institutions when appropriate. The program combines elements from several traditional areas of study into an academic concentration tailored to the individual's needs and educational objectives. No two degree programs need be identical.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

The students have expressed high satisfaction with the program. The program permits flexibility while maintaining institutional integrity and standards.

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: Admission to the program is selective so that maximum attention may be given to each individual student in program planning and in instruction. Therefore, retention is high. Another measure of effectiveness is the acceptance of graduates into professional and graduate programs.

Curricular Innovations

Primary Purpose(s)

To enable working adults and seniors with course conflicts to follow a planned academic schedule without loss of time due to scheduling problems.

Target Group

The mature student who is anxious to gain a degree for reasons of career and job mobility. The grade point average is usually above 2.9 due to the tremendous amount of independent work required of students.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described.

Each semester a schedule of Independent Study courses is presented at pre-registration and registration. Students will have conferred with advisors to ascertain courses that are needed to fulfill graduation requirements. Meetings are held between individual students and instructors. Course work is developed along the lines of modules. Progress is monitored weekly by the instructor. Finals are taken at the same time that traditional finals are presented. As a consequence, the instruction is more individualized than in the traditional classroom setting.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

The special needs of students are being met and the courses can be fitted into an already tight schedule. As a result, part-time students are able to move toward graduation in less time than under traditional scheduling.

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

The number of faculty members willing to help meet the special needs of the adult working student indicates that the program is working. Both faculty and students express satisfaction with the scheduling.

Primary Purpose(s) Increasing the options for learning for registered nurses in our service area. Most of the registered nurses practicing in Louisiana are graduates of "diploma" rather than baccalaureate programs. ITOL offers the registered nurse the opportunity to follow an upper division program and earn her degree.

Target Group

The non-baccalaureate level nurses in Louisians and the surrounding ares.

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet. Description ·

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described.

The program assumes that the diploma school registered nurse has completed the lower division course work for her baccalaureate degree. This assumption is verified by the N.L.N. or other test program. The student then participates in an upper division nursing curriculum with totally flexible scheduling. The student can complete the BSN in two years.

Introduction of new curricular offering: A Bachelor of Liberal Studies Degree (BLS)

Primary Purpose(s)

To offer a degree with a high transfer credit option for students holding Associate Degrees and a degree with curricular strength in the areas for which the college is well known, liberal arts.

Target Group

Non-traditional students holding a complete Associate Degree or an imcomplete Bachelor's Degree from a previous education experience.

Description

It additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

The BLS degree includes completion of the general campus requirement for "Core Studies", a major requirement of a self-design nature, and a large block of "elective" credit into which previous AA courses or BA courses may be transferred.

The BLS student takes advantage of the degree largely because of the ability to use most of the previous credit work toward a four-year degree. Also, the major requirements permit the option of selecting course work from several different liberal arts fields and combine them into a single major. For example, a student needs to initially pick three areas (e.g., English, psychology & art) and then fulfill a prescribed number of courses in each, which when combined produce the "major" field in the BLS degree. In that sense, the degree is self-designed.

Student satisfaction is high. Students like the choice option and the limited restrictions on the kinds of courses needed for the major field requirement. The requirement is generally easy to fill with courses of specific interest to the student.

Please explain:

The program has been effective in the sense that where once no major field existed, one now does with approximately 20 declared majors. A discipline with 20 majors is significant on the campus of a small college.

Description (continued)

RSVP prints class rosters, frequency reports, and test statistics for the user. The user selects the information to be included in the class roster and frequency reports. In addition, RSVP captures invaluable data for research related to students and their performance in a course.

RSVP is "content" free and, therefore, it can be programmed by its users to suit their own needs. RSVP operates in the "batch" processing mode, so the cost per student decreases as the number of students in a course increases. It does not require computer terminals for student interaction.

During 1979-80, the Office of Continuing Education and Public Service, in cooperation with selected academic departments, have been developing the graduate courses in an experiment combined instructional format. The courses are experimental because they have been redesigned into a course structure different from either the traditional guided individual (correspondence) or off-campus course format. The redesigned courses incorporate to some degree independent study, group-class meetings and individual field-based research. Each course is designed so group-class discussion, independent study and individual field research are integrated into a complete and balanced instructional structure. Each component will be used for the instructional purpose for which it is best suited. For example, the guided individual study component will be used for content dissemination, and the group-class meetings will be used for more penetrating analyses of subject matter so depth of analysis and understanding are increased.

These courses will be offered during the next two academic years. Since they are (continued)

Bachelor of Liberal Studies (BLS)

This degree is tailor-made to the needs of the individual student, who prepares a curriculum in conjunction with an advisor. Emphasizing breadth rather than specialization, there is no "major"; no student is required to satisfy a certain number of hours in a single area. BLS is multi-disciplinary, drawing from three to five interrelated areas in addition to basic liberal studies (multidisciplinary) courses. While about half the course work will be of senior-college leval (course offerings 300-400-500), no BLS program can duplicate an existing University program. For example, a liberal studies program including only business courses would of necessity be similar to the Bachelor of Science in Commerce degree program. Credit may be allowed for life experience or earned through the College Level Entrance Placement Examination (CLEP); normally up to 18 hours may be applied toward the BLS

A concentration in popular culture, for example, might draw from study of culture, history, journalism, literature, psychology, sociology, and writing, plus inter-

High Satisfaction with success of program

Please explain:

The Liberal Studies courses which are interdisciplinary provide integrative experiences for students who have studied broadly in the more traditional disciplines. We must still rationalize our interdisciplinary offerings to provide a thorough and sequenced approach to this integration.

Estimated effectiveness of program

In terms of student satisfaction and effectiveness in their performance within the University, we must rank the program as very successful. We have no longitudinal evaluations of graduates at this time. We graduate approximately 40 students a year in a program that is only five years old. Our current list of active majors is about 170. Our mature adult population is the majority of our majors.

Curricular Innovations

Primary Purpose(s)

To design an evening degree program to meet the needs of the working adult, especially those not being met through other programs in the area.

Target Group

Adults employed full-time who want to complete a baccalaureate degree.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Program was designed in 1978 after survey of needs and interviews with nontraditional students concerning problems with existing programs. Main features are: guaranteed classes (regardless of enrollment), scheduled printed 4 years in advance in terms of courses offered (not times) so degree program can be planned, classes meeting once a week, regular Coe faculty not graduate students, student services designed for the adults in the program. Two majors (Business and Interdisciplinary Studies) are offered, with a collateral concentration in accounting also available. Coe's internship program, an important part of our program for traditional students, was adapted so that it could be used by working adults and still maintain their employment. Student, college and employer work together to design a semester-long experience to fit person's development within company (not credit for doing present job); for example, a person who is a regional sales coordinator with no merchandising experience will spend her four months working in a different area to pick up that background. An assistant plant manager will understudy and then function with the current plant manager, visit other plants(contd,)

Please explain: Both students and employers have expressed enthusians for the program. Students appreciate being able to plan a degree program with confidence that they can take courses when planned. They use services from skill building to career planning to job seeking all designed for the adult with experience rather than an 18-22 year old. They are able to get all the courses needed for their degree in the evening. Employers and students both are most enthusiastic about internships.

Primary Purpose(s)

To recruit employees at the various industries within the college district.

Target Group

Employees who may not otherwise plan to attend college but because the option is made available through their place of employment they decide to take several courses.

Description

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

The Dean of Industry Relations visited the various industries within the college district to determine what educational needs they might have. He then prepared personalized educational programs for each industry. The industry has the feeling that the program has been prepared for their employees. In essence what the college has done is offer an approved curriculum with special elective options to satisfy the needs of the individual industries.

Special enrollment and registration times have been established for the various industries and each has an on-campus contact to answer specific questions.

Hopefully the industries will use the educational preparation in planning their employee advancement program.

This program was funded by a grant from National Science Foundation and was designed to offer highly intensive instruction in engineering core courses and computer programming to women who had received degrees in the physical sciences 2 to 20 years ago but who were not working in the field. Twenty-hour per week internships with area industries were also required.

Results of the program have been excellent. Its success can be measured by the fact that virtually all participants have been accepted to master's degree programs and that the majority are now employed on a permanent basis as professionals with their internship sponsor.

This program is entitled SAVE (Senior Avocational-Vocational Education). It is funded by the college with free bus service and instruction. This program is conducted during the afternoon, for non-credit and without cost to the participants, and includes such courses as music, art, crafts, physical activities, science, cosmetology, Bible, Spanish, business, creative writing, geography, psychology, health, politics, reading and other courses. All facilities provided by the college for regular students are available to enrolled senior citizens.

Persons in this age group may also take regular college courses for credit, but tuition and fees are charged as regular students. There is a scholarship program especially for this group for such courses.

Please explain:

This program has been most effective in all communities over the county. Churches have cooperated in allowing the churches to be places of assembly for bus service. Some churches have even offered their buses for service to the college.

The Lincoln Eagleville Masters Program has a curriculum that integrates theoretical concepts with on the job learning. A unique feature is that the program is cosponsored by a university and a human service agency. Students receive instruction from classroom teachers and from preceptors who are themselves human service professionals with advanced degrees. An advisory and policy hoard is constituted by representatives of the agencies from which students are recruited.

Everything about the program, from administrative design to class hours (on weekends and one evening a week) is intended to foster the full development of the work site as a learning center.

The Division of Student Affairs and the Division of Continuing Education in 1978 jointly established an Office of Adult Special Programs at NCSU. In association with the academic schools and departments, the Director of Adult Special Programs promotes development of late afternoon and evening degree programs and general interest credit courses for residents of the Research Triangle, N.C. area. The Director functions as a liaison with the University's academic and administrative units and its external clientele. He coordinates the analysis of the need for additional evening credit courses and complete clientele. He coordinates the analysis of the need for additional evening credit courses and programs, and advocates the extension of courses, clusters of courses and complete degree programs into the evening hours as the need for them is demonstrated. He works with both Student Affairs and Continuing Education staff to assure that adult, parttime students have adequate and convenient access to necessary academic support services such as admissions, advising, counseling, career planning and registration. Finally, the Director promotes credit programs, both day and evening, amoung prospective adult, part-time clientele in the greater community within reasonable commuting distance of the campus.

Primary Purpose(s) An Institutional Team for Adult Education comprised of Faculty, administration and adult learners determined a centralized office and director was necessary to ascertain specific needs of and services to adult learners. The director was also to determine need for continuing education offerings in the surrounding community.

Target Group

Adult learners already enrolled at Dakota Wesleyan were the main target group Continuing education surveys focused on the community - personal and business needs.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

The Office of Adult Education has been in existence for four (4) months. The initial task has been a needs assessment survey which has taken place on several levels. We first surveyed the adult learners on the campus (25% of the student body) to determine their needs and desires. Programming and services offered through the Office of Adult Education will be built on input from that survey. It has helped to centralize the services offered to adults.

A need assessment for continuing education on a community wide basis was also done. Specially targeted were businesses within the Mitchell community. The Institutional Team for Adult Education is now charged with assessing the data received through the survey and building policy and programming.

Financial Aid - Scholarship Fund for Continuing Studies Students

Primary Purpose(s) To provide for financial assistance to adult part-time students in emergency and special circumstances (retention); priority to (1) working adults already enrolled facing financial barriers to remaining in school; (2) unemployed, disadvantaged; (3) immigrants; (4) non-credit adult professional or personal upgrading

Target Group

Low income working, unemployed, underemployed adults.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

The program is not publicized since funds are limited and are used on emergency and direct requirement basis. These surface throughout the year and as students or adults in the community are identified by organizations or agencies, and mostly our own students who cannot continue with their studies for financial reasons, we prafer to help these. The latter, having demonstrated desire and seriousness of purpose, are pleasantly surprised to be assisted with little or no red tape. Most of the students assisted were enrolled in our Intensive English Program (non credit). We have had about (90,000 in such scholarships over the past eight years; and this year, we received a gift that should provide an additional $100,000 endowment, the interest from which will be available in about four years.

i. Financial aid

Primary Purpose(s)

To give financial assistance to new adult part-time students and subsequently provide information about other kinds of financial aid to help them continue their educations.

Target Group

DEST COMY MANUACE

Adults who have been out of school one year or more.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

New in fall 1979. We placed these students in "spot jobs" on campus at student assistant pay scale with the agreement that they would work until they had earned enough money to pay their tuition and fees. At WSU they would work approximately 25 hours to pay for a three hour course, 50 hours to pay for six hours of course work. We looked primarily for part-time students. To provide incentive for employing offices, the university provided half of the amount the students earned to augment the student assistant budget of those offices. We provided follow-up information about financial aid to students once they were enrolled. A pilot program so far. To give credit where it's due, I got the germ of the idea from Middlesex College in Boston.

In the fall of 1979 we had eleven students participate in the program, and while we did not advertise heavily for spring, we had five more then. There is a ripple effect—we had a letter this week from a woman in New Mexico who is moving here this summer and wanted application information for "Earn to Learn"!

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: A real exercise in coordinating (manipulating?) many areas of the university to achieve a desired end. This part was very successful. Our two-person office absorbed the program, and the administration was fairly time-consuming because of the large number of offices, forms, and people. HIGH potential program!

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: Adults don't seem to think of themselves as eligible for financial aid (BEOG, etc.), and this opens some of those doors for them. One woman said God sent her to us. Perhaps He will help us recruit more students, place them in satisfactory jobs, and balance the books with the hiring departments.

Financial Aid

Primary Purpose(s) To provide financial aid for students who are returning to college for the first time in seven or more years and who enrolling in five credits or less. Currently financial aid is not available through other programs for a student who takes five credits or less, so this program was designed to fill the gap for those students who are planning to begin school at a slow pace.

Target Group Individuals who have been out of school for seven or more years and who plan to begin their higher education with five credits or less. The project is open to men and women, however, 99% of those who have participated in the project have been women.

Description

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

A scholarship program was instituted by the Lower Columbia College Foundation to provide tuition scholarships for all re-entry students who meet the criteria listed above. There is no other criteria, financial need is not required. Students are counseled by the director of the Women Studies program before receiving the re-entry scholarship. They may be referred by any office on campus. The financial business office monitors and prepares checks for the students, however, the scholarship is not related to any other tinancial aid program. Scholarship is strictly for the first quarter. The student is obligated to find their own method of funding during the second quarter. Scholarships range from $10-$55.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: During 1979-80 59 individuals received the scholarship for a total cost of $2,409.60. This says on the average a student enrolled for four credits. A study of scholarship recipients in the previous year indicated that 50% of them returned for a second or more quarters and that the students who returned took an average of 10 or more credits. This average credit load is higher than the average credit load at the institution as a whole.

Counseling Services/Programs: C.A.R.E. (Comprehensive Adult Re-entry Experience)

Primary Purpose(s)

To provide support in areas such as study skills development, time management, test-taking, assertiveness; need areas that may become more apparent as the term progresses.

Target Group

First semester returning adult students and other currently enrolled adults who may be interested.

Description

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Half-day workshops were planned twice in each semester during the fall semester of 1979 and winter of 1980. Topics chosen for discussion were based on information obtained from a general survey mailed to those contacted about orientation. Some of these included study skill techniques, assertiveness, choosing a major, preparing for te. s, planning for the next semester and reporting on other campus activities.

Staff included (1) academic advisor, (2) peer advisers, (3) faculty/staff representative from a different department. Handouts and information on the adult student organization.

Primary Purpose(s)

To help the students plan their program, answer questions, support their anxieties and fears with College study skills, i.e., note taking, studying, test taking, etc., and as a result increase our retention of the adult student.

Target Group

All interested adult students.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

Evening advising in the past had been the responsibility of the Continuing Education staff. As the enrollment grew and the College began to use extension sites for the convenience of the adult student, it became impossible to advise all the students who needed help. As a result, the Counseling & Advising Division began to take a strong interest in the adult student and indicated a willingness to extend their hours and not only advise but be a part of the registration process and informational meetings as offered by Continuing Education.

In addition, an Advising & Counseling Center was designed and implemented for day and evening students. Students can stop in or call daily, M-F from 8:30 am - 8:00 pm and receive advising or make an appointment with an advisor. Surveys have been sent to the Extension Centers indicating the services available and appropriate numbers to call.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

To date, students are using the service. We have to remember that many faculty teaching evening courses serve as informal advisors and therefore, we do not receive calls from many students.

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

Though hard to measure, we have to assume that the service is aiding in the retention of our students.

They have definite names and numbers to call. They are aware of the service and use it. The important aspect is that the part-time evening student is receiving effective advising as is the full-time day student.

The Adult Re-Entry Office provides a variety of "counseling" services and programs intended to facilitate adults' return to college.

Target Group

Adults in the community considering entering or re-entering college and adults currently enrolled in college programs.

Description

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet. Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

The Adult Re-Entry office was initiated in July, 1977. Services provided include individual counseling and advising, courses designed to address specific concerns of returning adults (e.g., Taste of College, Managing Dual Roles, Divorce and Beyond, Career Search for Women), informal support groups, programs for community adults (e.g. Back to School Day for Women, Open House for Adults), and credit for life/work experience.

Primary Purpuse(s) To encourage potential adult learners to return to, or to enter, the University, by providing academic advising, peer support, and trained counseling, in several non-traditional, non-threatening forms and environments. A secondary purpose is to involve faculty and staff in informal interactions with adult learners.

Target Group

Adults in the community considering a return to school; presently enrolled adult students. In addition to the primary target group, the involvement of a widening group of faculty and staff is encouraged to participate.

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet. Description

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Three kinds of coordinated activities form the core of the University's Re-entry Program and Services:

1) Brown Bag Lunch: every Thursday of the year, with the sole exception of Thanksgiving, the Re-entry Program Director (a trained psychologist) and the Academic Advisor who works with Re-entry meet with pre-entry and currently enrolled adult students between 11:30 and 1:30 in a Student Union meeting room. The time and location facilitate "dropping in." Studenc concerns, fears and triumphs are shared; informal peer counseling, counseling, and academic advising takes place. Conversations are frequently continued in the Advising Center; referrals are made. A significant number of adults have been enabled to make the commitment to formal learning in the academy through Brown Bag; many others are sustained by it. Interested faculty and staff from many areas attend as schedules allow. A bi-monthly program of Learning Moments features faculty and staff members who briefly present a key learning experience in their own careers, as a part of Brown Bag (presentation time: 12:30 - 12:45; discussion follows)/

Sonoma State University Program Description cont'd.

- 2) Conversations: monthly gatherings of adult students, faculty from all disciplines, academic staff, held alternately on Tuesday and Wednesday, in order to permit late afternoon/evening part-time students who come to campus on only one day to attend. Scheduled from 4:30 6:30 p.m., Conversations provide valuable opportunities for adult students to talk with faculty from their own and other fields. The informality and ease of contacts over wine and cheese makes possible a range of interactions: serious academic discussion, academic advising, sharing of personal interests and concerns. The faculty who attend Conversations leave with a better understanding of the diversity, needs, and spirit of our large adult student population, an important side benefit. Several more formal presentations on interdisciplinary subjects have been included during this time period.
- 3) Colloquia: regularly scheduled discussions of educational issues, centered around one specific theme each semester, with a panel of faculty and administration participants provoking discussion with adult students.

Excellent success. Many employed people stop on their way home from work-pleased that they do not have to "leave work" during the day. Adults seem to feel more at ease, not rushed, by coming to see a counselor after regular office hours. Most of the adults enroll in evening courses and/or independent study by correspondence.

Counseling services and programs - Academic Re-Entry Program

Primary Purposes:

Academic Re-Entry serves two essential purposes: (1) to introduce the college, its faculty and facilities to the older undergraduate student; (2) to serve as a support group for these students.

Target Group Newly admitted older undergraduate students (25 or older) who are commencing or resuming an undergraduate degree program.

Description

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described the Academic Re-Entry program began in the fall of 1973. The Admission's Office notifies the Dean of Students Office when an older undergraduate has been admitted. The Dean of Students Office, through an older student who serves as the coordinator of the program, corresponds with each new matriculant prior to his or her arrival on campus welcoming the older undergraduate to the campus and describing the Academic Re-Entry Program. ARE Program consists of three elements: a one-credit hour seminar for the adult learner co-instructed by the Dean of Students and the student coordinator; a chartered student organization called "Chrysalis" for older undergraduates; a Monday "brown bagger" no host lunch which meets, as do the other undergraduates; a Monday "brown bagger" no nost lunch which meets, as to the other two elements, in the Older Student Lounge located in the College Center. The Seminar meets once per week for two hours for one term during which the services of the college are described, key faculty and administrators guest lecture, and supportive bonds are fashioned between and among the students enrolling in the course. The Seminar serves as a very effective orientation device.

Please explain: Academic Re-Entry is highly successful. Some students (approximately 150 new students per year) participate in all three elements of ARE, some participate in one or two of the elements. No student has indicated a negative attitude toward ARE - many students have insisted that the Seminar be continued for a second and a third successive term. Academic and non-academic problems encountered by individual students are aired and are generally resolved. The seminar is conducted on an

Please explain: Started as a "last minute" effort in Spring 1978 and has accomplished what we had hoped for. Since its conception, we have found that previous "First Time" students make excellent resource personnel for first general session and also as volunteer advisors during registration. An indepth study of effectiveness should be available at conclusion of this semester.

Publicizing of counseling support services included use of all campus media/

EXPANDED HORIZONS - a program for Women

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described. This program is based on the recognition that women often discontinue their education for a period of life for various reasons—marriage, child bearing, child rearing, the need to earn money, and even societal discouragement for women in higher education. Many who leave college or never attend wish to return later but are often afraid to do so. They are afraid to compete with the younger students, afraid their skills are diminished as well as feeling that their knowledge is outdated. These fears and anxieties prevent them from readily returning and often contribute to their early exit from the campus if they do return.

The women who do return are also likely to find themselves at a greater disadvantage; they have not had the college preparation usually provided to high school seniors nor are they likely to have the experience of working. Housewives tend to suffer most of all from a sense of acute disorientation and role overload. While the returning women may see higher education as a door to the future, this door is often a difficult one to open.

Description

The Expanded Horizons program, based on these beliefs, seeks to minimize the transition problems encountered by the adult women who enter higher education. Students enter the program as a group member - women sharing common interests and concerns. The groups take classes together, attend special presentations, and provide opportunities for social contact. The group concept also offers the opportunities to build and maintain a support system among students who have similar goals.

Classes are offered in blocks of time for the convenience of the mother or the working woman. The choice of classes are: English Composition, Basic Math, Beginning Algebra, Intermediate Algebra, Study Skills, Interpersonal Communication, Assertiveness, Life/Career Planning, and Math anxiety. All Classes are regular classes for credit, that have been set aside as self-contained classes for the Expanded Horizons Students.

To facilitate the beginning, all admissions, registrations, and financial aid information are handled within the Expanded Horizons office. An extensive orientation introduces students to the campus, (buildings and parking) as well as each other. From the beginning personal sharing is an important part of the building of a student's confidence and inclusion into the university.

The evaluations of more than 480 students to date are heart-warming. The program, its staff and its philosophy meet the needs of the entering student. The students learn to approach education as an interactive rather than a passive process. A successful foundation is built for future academic success.

The average enrollment for each year for the past 14 years has been 555 participants. Currently the program includes 30-35 workshops annually. Most workshops are for 3 or 4 quarter hours of undergraduade credit and are conducted for one week, Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 5 p.m. Other class times include late afternoon and night sessions for a period of time and weekend classes. Independent Directed Study is conducted for special individual needs. Most workshops have been and still are conducted on the campus of TNC. Some have been conducted at a school site and in more recent years at the Metro Nashville Teacher Center. The emphasis of the workshops is centered around the solution of problems that confront the teacher in the respective areas of study. The problem solving approach is used with dialogue, group work, and individualized instruction. Credit earned by teachers is used for various purposes such as: 1) the renewal of a teaching certificate, 2) the adding of an elem. endorsement to a secondary level certificate and vice versa, 3) completing the requirements for a professional certificate at either the elementary or secondary level, 4) meeting professional growth requirements of local boards of education and 5) personal enrichment.

Course Offerings - Certificate Programs

Primary Purpose(s)

To provide short (3 to 6 course) integrated course clusters in career-related areas as alternative or supplement to degrees.

Target Group

Adult students with probably short term goals or who may wish to supplement Liberal Arts Major with career-related studies.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

Until recently, the Evening College curriculum consisted of many traditional baccalaureate programs supplemented by special interest electives developed randomly as need appeared. In academic planning the adult student with short term goals was not given serious attention.

During the last three years six short programs have been introduced in subject areas ranging from Personnel Administration to Computer Programming for Business Applications. Curriculum was drawn mainly from existing courses, although in some instances course content was revised or new courses created where University resources had not existed.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain:

Planning at a greater-than-course but less-than-degree level enables us to meet adult needs better. Curriculum is better integrated in special interest fields and the programs are self-promoting. Enrollments in integrated courses have substantially increased. In one instance, all courses have been closed out for the past year. One program has been incorporated within a major.

Primary Purpose(s)

The National Association of Bank Women program is designed for women who are employed full-time within the field of banking and wish to obtain, without interrupting their careers, a college degree with a concentration in management.

Target Group

Women bankers who wish to move from areas of specialization in banking into executive posts.

Description

At the heart of the program is a series of six Management Institutes. two-week sessions provide the basic core of the management curriculum. They are essential to the program for three reasons: (1) the intensive study which condenses the amount of in-class time needed to complete degree requirements; (2) the interaction among students which is itself part of this unique learning experience; and (3) the focus on the theory and practice of management as experienced by women in the banking organization.

In addition to recognizing the learning needs and time limitations of the fully employed banker, the program also recognizes the diverse backgrounds of women bankers and their wide geographic representation by providing a variety of means for earning academic credit for the degree.

A special orientation was designed for the non-traditional aged students when the College initiated the Gateway Program in 1974. The women in this group are defined as women 25 years or older who have not been full-time students at a college or university during the past four years. As we have designed the orientation program for these women over time, we have evaluated and revised it. In its present form, the orientation session includes the following:

1) Study Skills Workshop, 2) Lunch and campus tour with peer counselors,

3) Self-Assessment Workshop, 4) Writing Skills Workshop, 5) Library Skills Workshop, 6) Lunch with academic advisors, and 7) Introduction of President, Deans, Registrar, Librarian and Counselor.

"Catch Your Second Wind" Workshop

This six hour workshop offered for 1/2 unit of non-transferable credit provides basic information about the campus as well as covering some of the issues of job search, career decisions, coping with returning to school as a parent and/or full time employee. Peer advisors were active participants, sharing their own experiences, answering questions, conducting campus tours, working in small groups discussions.

The workshop is offered the Saturday before new student registration, preparing the re-entry person for the newly beginning quarter. Peer advisors are also available at the registration center to assist these new students and provide a friendly face.

Adult Workshop in June "Putting a Degree Together"

Primary Purpose(s)

To allow the first-time adult student to experience a mini orientation session at the college.

Target Group

The adult population who responded to a flyer distributed to a combined mailing list of inquiries to the Week-end College, the current student body who act as peer counselors and our Cultural Centre list.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Program was initiated in 1977 with the co-operation of committed faculty and administration as a mini-workshop patterned on the orientation given to incoming freshmen and transfer students in the spring.

It includes a general information session; small group session at which time adults learn of the College's academic programs; a second small session which introduces the aspect of job availability in the area, scholar incentives and qualifications for these positions; a third session — a student panel which varies from year to year in choice of topic. Students describe their joys, frustrations and coping strategies for returning to school. This year the panel will discuss the credit for life experience program and their involvement in the process.

Finally we have found it most beneficial to run the program on the same day as "Artists on Campus" thereby opening the events of the day to wider audience.

25% of students contacted through Workshop made appointments for advisement. Of these, 50% enrolled in fall semester. 20% enrolled in the second summer session. Orientation Sessions and Activities

To provide new Weekend College students with a general orientation Primary Purpose(s) in order to relieve anxiety and dispense information. To provide new and returning Weekend College students with an orientation session to each of their classes so that the withdrawal rate between the date students sign up for classes and the date of the first weekend of classes could be reduced by 50%.

Target Group

New and returning Weekend College students.

It additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet. Description

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

New Weekend College students are required to attend a general orientation session where they meet and hear from returning Weekend College students about their experiences in adjusting to the program, staying with it, and setting priorities. Students also meet and hear from the Weekend College staff. Orientation session is intended to relieve anxiety and introduce new students to the "success" stories of others similar in background to them who are making it and have made it.

In addition, since Weekend College students receive their assignments for classes sometimes two months in advance, anxiety builds up during that period and a large number of students were withdrawing simply because of "cold feet". An orientation session to each class was begun two trimesters ago, where students meet with their professors before it actually "counts" and they go over the assignments, the course requirements in more detail, and questions are answered. Withdrawal rate was reduced by over 50% when orientation sessions to classes were begun.

Orientation sessions and activities - Salem Older Student Night

Primary Purpose(s)

The purpose of this evening program is to introduce Oregon College of Education to prospective adult learners in the Salem, Oregon metropolitan area.

Target Group

Prospective older adult students.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described. During the late summer OCE acquires space in the Salem YWCA for an evening meeting with prospective older students. The President of the College, Deans, Provost, Department Chairmen, and administrative and instructional faculty are introduced and the programs and facilities of the college are explained. Sufficient time is scheduled so that the prospective students have opportunities to meet individually with appropriate faculty and administrators. Financial aids, course selection, course scheduling, the acceptance of transfer credit are typical of the common problems discussed.

Equally significant is the presence of presently-enrolled older learners who provide a peer-group liaison with prospective students. Selected students from the preceding year's Academic R2-Entry program are invited to participate and they make a most effective contribution.

Name of program - "SECOND FLIGHT"

Orientation sessions and activities --

Primary Purpose(s)

To orient adult female students who have not been involved in formal education for an extended time period to the college environment. The purpose for the program was to acquaint these students with the College and its services and to relieve anxieties about coming back to school

Target Group

Women students over 25 years of age. (Younger students are also allowed to participate upon their request)

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Program brochures and information are distributed throughout the College and the community.

First-time entering women students who are 25 or older, and who have submitted an application for admission are sent a letter from the "Second Flight" coordinator to participate in the program.

The coordinator, who is a woman counselor, arranges "coffees" or informal meetings of groups of about twenty.

In an informal setting, a welcome to the College is presented and various subjects are presented and discussed that relate to the woman who is entering a period of "second flight."

Career and life-planning programs are presented as well as information on other services such as tutoring and special curriculum.

Primary Purpose(s) The Individualized Manpower Training System (IMTS) was implemented to provide an individualized, open entry program for remedial or developmental math, English, and reading. Courses in study skills, vocabulary and spelling, speed reading, and applied communications were designed to aid students in obtaining supplemental skills to better their performance in their curricula.

Target Group Developmental courses are offered for entering curriculum students whose placement tests indicate skill deficiencies. General Education Development (GED) students enroll in developmental courses to prepare for the high school equivalency exam. High school students may audit any course in the program to strengthen their skills. The GETA developmental education students also work within the IMTS framework.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described The Test of Adult Basic Education (TABE) is used as the diagnostic foundation for IMTS reading, math, and English course. Each student has an individual study schedule designed to correct skill deficiencies through assignments in a modular format. Through this personalized approach with its well-planned management system, students and instructors are constantly aware of progress and necessary revisions in their study schedules. In addition to developmental subject area classes, students participate in life/coping skills, consumer education, and learning style mapping.

The supplemental curriculum courses are capable of being tailored to meet the needs of students in various curricula.

All courses are offered Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. and four nights a week from 6 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Flexible scheduling and open-entry classes are successful in meeting a variety of needs.

The St. Regis Mohawk Adult Higher Education Project was initiated several years ago and has continued to flourish. Financial support from the federal and state levels and from the University has been essential. However, a key ingredient has been the scheduling of courses at the reservation after normal daytime working hours. Classes are given in the late afternoon or early evening to accommodate the students.

Description

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

The WCC School of Nursing has developed a viable and well considered completion program for the working RN who needs or wants to complete a BSN. All requirements for the degree are the same as the generic student's requirements but courses in nursing are taught at evening sessions on all the campuses of the college. Two years are needed to complete the nursing component of the program once the student is admitted to advanced standing (60+ hours). Continuing Education has worked to make courses available at places and time convenient to the working RN. This has brought us in contact with in-service directors of many hospitals in the area and we are currently utilizing hospital facilities for teaching classes as well as workshops designed to supplement in-house training at various locations. Off-campus workshops have increased as a result of our relationship with the health-care institutions and we are experiencing a growth as a provider of these services (credit and non-credit)

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Continuing Education was locked into newspaper advertising and other expensive media to announce classes which begin every day of the week, the result being that those courses were scheduled heavily to coincide with the mailing of the University schedule of classes in August, January and May. Continuing Education had to break out of the semester by semester scheduling tendency and in order to do that had to have some way to get its announcements in front of the public. A bi-monthly direct mail "catalog" was initiated so that the Continuing Education cycle is now 60 days rather than the 120 day average of the past. Small direct mail announcements continue but the number of these expensive mailings has been reduced because a device is now available to announce new courses on a continuous basis to large segments of

The faculty are then trained in information giving and they contact community organizations and identify themselves as resource people willing to present information about returning to school, availability of courses and special services at UNM, and the opportunity for pre-orientation counseling through the Office of School Relations. Volunteers for this program are made aware of the sensitivity to the special needs of adult prospective students. They must also be willing in lieu of speaking engagements to write a short informational piece for an organizational newsletter. PORTAL Preview is an open house held at the college in the fall and spring. Through mailings and advertisements women are invited to campus to learn what it is like going to college as an adult. An introductory session by the Director gives them specific information on admissions procedures, financial aid opportunities, support services, etc. Following the introduction, a panel (6) of past and current PORTALS from a variety of backgrounds and differing ages (26-65) are as ed to speak extemporaneously about themselves, their reasons for going to college, what their concerns were, and how they coped. This brings out many of the underlying fears and concerns shared by these women. The prospective student then attends an on-going college class of their choice to get a feel for being in a college classroom. This hour is followed by an informational session lead by the PORTAL Director devoted to processing the day's experience with them. The attention paid to the human dynamics of the day are extremely critical and make the difference between a student gaining the confidence to take the step and enter school or giving the idea up entirely.

The Adult Inquiry Program was initiated in July 1978. Since that time, the Admissions Office has sponsored four additional sessions. Invitations are sent out to adults who have indicated an interest in Silver Lake throughout the school year. A minimal amount of publicity is done prior to the program. Although the session is co-ordinated through the program director in the Admissions Office, it is run by a panel of Silver Lake students who came to the college after being out of school for a number of years. Throughout the course of the program, brief statements are given by the Director of Student Services, the Director of the Study Skills Center. the Financial Aid Director and a faculty member who has the older student in his/ her class. The faculty member comments on all that the older student can offer in a class situation. Discussion in all these areas is encouraged. A tour of the campus is optional and coffee mixer winds up the event.

Entitled "A College Program For Parents With Young Children," this program includes Effectal arts courses which will enable students to explore academic and career interests. The program is flexible enough to allow students the choice of matriculation into a variety of degree programs in the first year.

The major innovation in the program is the establishment of an accredited nursery school on site.

The Dean of Students' Office has one component known as "Services to Women and Returning Students." One of the primary functions of this component is to assist the adult learner in adjusting to the college campus again. We offer orientation sessions, individual assistance, and self-development workshops which are designed with the needs of the adult learners in mind. Initially, we concentrate on housing, employment, and child-care needs of the re-entering adult learner. Later we offer special assistance with self-development needs via the workshops. Of course, we also make many referrals to existing services on campus so that the adult learner is mainstreamed into the system.

One of the most important functions we perform is to provide a gathering place each week for the first four weeks of each semester for adult learners to meet, have coffee, cokes, and beer, and discuss problems, visit with peers, or just relax. We find that interest wanes after the first month or so, for our adults have generally found additional support by this time.

Academic advising services

Primary Purpose(s) 1. To unify and centralize all academic advising (except of majors already admitted into a department).

2. To establish an Advising Center, a physical location, available to all students on a drop in and appointment basis seven days a week.

Target Group

All Mundelein College students, weekday and weekend, older and younger.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

The Advising Center is the place to go with academic questions and problems. The staff are academic problem solvers, as well as acting as referrals to other advising/counseling services on campus e.g. personal counseling, career counseling. All students are assigned an advisor from the Center with whom they may consult in person or by phone. In addition, advisors initiate contact with their advisees when information is received from a faculty member regarding a student in academic trouble in a class, or when the advisor does an analysis of the student's grades at the end of a term.

The staff is composed either of full-time faculty, one half of whose time is spent in the class room, the other half in the Center, or of professionals with academic credentials who work full time in the Center.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: - the Advising Center is highly utilized by many adult students, not only for academic advising per se, but also (especially on weekends) as a focal point for various questions. Its staffing on weekends is an institutional statement about the value we place on servicing the adult student. - centralized monitoring of academic progress of students has resulted in being able to salvage some before they are academically bankrupt. - having a central place where students can explore

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: In some ways, the effectiveness of the Center is dependent on the potential client's willingness to use it. There are still too many students who drop out who appear never to have taken advantage of the services available.

Adequate staffing, especially during peak work times such as registration, is a perennial problem.

Frimary Purpose(s)

Provision of advisement services for prospective and entering adult students

Target Group

Adults 25 and over interested in entering college and first semester adult students in the Second Careers Program

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Recognizing that adults have many anxieties about returning to school, the Second Careers Office provides pre-admissions advisement on a one-to-one or small group basis either by appointment or on a walk-in basis. The usual practice is to send descriptive literature to prospective applicants who are asked to read the materials and call back for an appointment to clarify any questions they might have. The pre-admissions advisement deals with an exploration of the prospective student's goals and determination whether the College has appropriate resources for achieving them; information giving about the Program—admissions requirements; the CLEP General Examinations (how to prepare for them, when to take them, how scores are evaluated, how credits earned fit into curricular requirements) as well as other nontraditional ways of earning additional credits.

Individualized and group advisement is provided by this office until the student completes the five CLEP General Exams and earns matriculated status as a result of scores earned on the CLEPs. Those who do not achieve the cut-off scores on the

Please explain: Adults who receive pre-admissions advisement (in an atmosphere where their concerns and anxieties are understood) apply and register in classes at a greater rate than those who simply apply to the Program but do not seek further information about what it involves. Although the Program is open to any adult 25 or older with a high school diploma or the GED, s/he must have no more than 30 transferrable credits and must agree to take the CLEP exams.

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: We believe this service has been most effective—it alleviates some of the adult's anxieties, helps him clarify goals and objectives, and, most importantly, affords him/her an opportunity to meet someone in the College to whom additional questions could be asked. The continuing service offered during the first semester is a valuable complement to our Re-Entry Seminar which all new students without prior college experience must take.

Approximately 1000 telephone surveys have been completed thus far. Questions are directed toward identifying student characteristics, amount and nature of participation in lifelong learning, educational objectives, and perceived obstacles to achieving them. Questionnaires are structured, but interviewers are encouraged to probe responses in-depth and elicit comments. This is not a "program" instituted by the college, but rather one that the college has been able to take advantage of. Most major corporations offer employees some form of educational benefit. The purpose of such programs is to permit the employee to learn while working. The college has been able to benefit from such offerings by way of providing that learning at times convenient to the employee.

The "Business and Industrial Institute" at Volunteer State Community College was formed in September, 1978. Mailouts of brochures and handbooks are made periodically to area firms (attached). News releases are issued for on- and off-campus newspapers. If interest is expressed in the Institute, a proposal is developed for every company desiring an in-company or in-plant program. Each proposal provides an overview/course design and cost for implementing the plan. Length of programs can vary from 1 day to 10 weeks according to a company's need. In 1979-80 alone, the Institute served 14 companies or 1,500 individuals. Continuing education units (C.E.U.'s) are awarded all the Institute's participants. The C.E.U.'s generated and reported in 1979-80 accounted for a revenue-producing source of approximately $35,000. The University has had considerable success in encouraging major employers in the greater Des Moines area in providing a tuition assistance program for their employees. It has ranged from 50% tuition assis ance to 100%. Some employers will pay for any course desired by an employee, while others will only allow those courses to be reimbursed that are job related. We meet with employers encouraging them to huild it into their fringe benefit package and the rationale for why it is desirable. Many students are pursuing both undergraduate and graduate degrees using employer tuition assistance.

Winona State provides counseling, academic advising, and Career Planning Services in the primary extension centers in southeastern Minnanota. The counselors are trained to work with adult students, schedule daytime and evening appointments, and have access to the MOIS system. The MOIS system is the Minnesota Occupational Information System and provides computerized educational and occupational information. Programs are also available for interest inventory and job-seeking skills. Availability of these services is advertised in all extension schedules, newspaper ads, and radio spots.

Program was initiated in the summer and fall of 1979. Prospective and current adult students were given the Career Planning Program. CPP results provided basis for counseling sessions with these 42 students. Those who needed or desired extra help were given individual help in using Career Center and COIN system.

Because of a large percentage of adult students in programs beginning Spring Quarter, 1980, there was an indicated need to extend Student Development hours. A counselor was appointed evening coordinator for the college with special emphasis given to the needs of the adult student in the career counseling area.

Primary Purpose(s)

Identify occupational competencies to provide more relevant training for job skills which will better meet the labor market needs of Tucson, as well as Arizona.

Target Group

Adult job-seekers, job changers, and those entering the labor market for the first time. i.e.. secondary students.

If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet. Description

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Twenty occupations have been researched and identified as being those which will be highly in demand in the 80's. Occupational competencies will then be developed for those 20 jobs, utilizing resources and information from local employers in business, industry, labor and government. This information will be merged and summarized with information from literature resources, Department of Economic Security, and the CIRCA office (Career Information Center for Adults), University of Arizona.

This set of competencies will then be disseminated to vocational educators in various job training programs, career planning programs, and secondary and postsecondary educational institutions in order to provide a) students with a realistic set of job requirements, b) instructors with a standardized evaluation tool, c)educational administrators with information necessary for program design and implementation, and d) employers with more competent employees.

High Satisfaction with success of program Low Please explain:

Employers and those involved in career planning have indicated a high degree of interest in the occupational information being gathered by this project. If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet. Description

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described Placement staff personnel are involved in community workshops and seminars and University-sponsored workshops at least once every two weeks. In this way, contacts are made with the target population." A high percentage of these candidates subsequently make appointments with counselors in the Placement Office to discuss career plans, or, simply, life plans.

Many referrals take place from this office to counseling departments for testing, etc.

An average of 6-8 persons per week fall into the above categories and are counseled in the Placement Office. They may be in any stage of decision-making from further education to part-time work, to full-time work, etc. We feel strongly that many persons have been assisted in their career/life planning.

Experience - Based Career Education (EBCE)

Primary Purpose(s)
To provide students with opportunities to explore several careers in the community, in order to make informed, experience-based career decisions.

Target Group

Any student of the College; however, most students are adult learners.

Description

It additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described

EBCE involves enrollment in a 3 credit course called Career Exploration. This individualized course structures a student's community placements with assignments related to the career site. Each student spends a minimum of 10 hours per week on site, observing and in many cases getting hands-on experience on a non-paid basis. Students also take a 1 credit course in career planning, and may enroll in other academic courses which have been adapted for EBCE. For example, a student may take English Composition; the assignments would be geared to the current career site. In this way, students learn the connection between academic theory and actual jobs. By the end of the semester, most students rate their career plans as firm.

Career Planning (resume writing, job search techniques, and interview techniques)

Primary Purpose(s) Camden County College offered the above named services in career counseling, vocational testing, a career information resource library, and a series of selected seminars and workshops to all residents of Camden County, and to the students of Camden County College, beginning on Jan.2, 1980. This four-fold career guidance service provides a strong outreach to the community and organizational linkages and referrals to and from many agencies in Camden Co.. to expand career

Eligible clients are residents of Camden County above age 14, and students of the college.

Description If additional space is needed, continue description on separate sheet.

Along with your completed survey, attach copies of materials you use in each program you have described. The Career Education Institute opened Jan. 2., 1980. Our marketing tactics included a periodic newsletter, "The Career Advisor" mailed to 2500 individuals, agencies, and interested educators in Camden Co. Ample use has been made of local media coverage. posters, bulletin boards, and student publications to generate CEI client activity. Response has been excellent. Services are being used to maximum staff capacity with appointments possible at this time only three weeks in advance because of the high demand for career counseling, vocational testing, use of career library resources, and the workshop and seminar series for both professional and CEI clients. CEI staff is limited to a full-time Coordinator, a full-time Secretary, and a parttime Counselor who maintains our Saturday and evening program. CEI hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. Mondays to Thursdays, 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Fridays, 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. on Saturdays. To date CEI registrants number in excess of 450 clients, with many others not registered. Twenty Career Planning Workshops have been offered this semester, 8 resume Writing, Job Search, & Interview Techniques Workshops, 3 Careers for the 1980's, 1 Career Options for Women and Minorities, and 7 Professional/ off comput workshops of varied formats.

Satisfaction with success of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Please explain: Although formal program evaluations are to be conducted at the end of the semester in June, 1980, the overall response has been excellent, with requests for services by students, staff, faculty and residents being much in excess of CEI's ability to serve. We now have a back log of appointments three weeks in advance at all times; our Sacurday and evening programs are utilized as fully as our daytime programming. Comments are genuinely favorable and quite appreciative by all clients seen by CEI staff. CEI meets a definite need in the community and the college as well

Estimated effectiveness of program Low 1 2 3 4 5 High

Phase explain: This will be determined by the individual client evaluations at the end of the semester. Overall useage and continued requests for services and use of facilities and staff to conduct professional training for other area counselors and agencies indicates a high level of effectiveness in meeting the needs of the community as a whole for career educational services in counseling and vocational guidance both at the layman and professional levels. Further data will be available after June, 1980.

The University has included in its mission statement, its obligation to seek better programmatic approaches to serving those students in need of tutoring counseling and alternative ways to acquiring a baccalaureate degree. In 1975 a grant was received from H.E.W. to launch such a program.

Under the trio program of H.E.W. a portion of staff resources is allocated for the Independent Study (College II) Program of Special Services. A larger portion of staff resources are allocated for supportive services that will meet the essential needs of students enrolled in an urban university. Placement services have always been offered at the college for its students. Now many of the services are also being offered to community residents. Of particular note is the computerized job file. Any resident may add his name to the file. Periodically, a program is run in which the individual is matched up to any/all jobs listed with the Placement Office so that the person has a detailed list of jobs which meet the criteria he himself listed on his file sheet.

Another relatively n s service offered by the Placement Office is a weekly job listing sheet, titled CLC JOBS. The adults in the community can learn much from this listing, thich not only gives jobs available, but also gives Career Information as a regular feature.

· ATTRACTING AND RETAINING ADULT LEARNERS

(ARAL)

This publication is based on the findings of a nationwide survey,
"Attracting and Retaining Adult Learners" (ARAL). This survey was designed to identify, analyze, and catalog campus practices that have been successful with adult learners. Special appreciation is extended to the survey directors for the design of the study and the construction of the survey instrument. Without their foresight, initiative, and thoughtful contributions, this publication would not have been possible. The following individuals served as ARAL survey directors:

Patricia Gartland Assistant Vice President Public Affairs Division

Lee Noel
Executive Director
The ACT National Center for the Advancement of Educational Practices
