ABSTRACT

The curriculum is a modification and adaptation of the special education curriculum on sexual exploitation for mildly retarded students developed by Seattle Rape Relief. A Title IV-C Developmental Grant was written to develop a curriculum to meet the needs of moderately and severely handicapped students. The curriculum was subsequently evaluated by a state panel and selected as a model program for adoption in the state of Washington. The curriculum consists of 11 units: (1) identifying relationships; (2) precautions to take with strangers; (3) private body parts; (4) saying "no"; (5) protecting information; (6) travel safety; (7) social situations; (8) home safety; (9) authority figures; (10) exploitation in exchange for favors, gifts, and kindness; (11) reporting exploitation. The first five units are intended to help students acquire general information and skills needed for self protection, including discriminating strangers and learning the appropriateness of certain activities with strangers. Appropriate and inappropriate touching is discussed, as are examples of "safe" and "unsafe" information to give strangers. Units 6-11 feature self protection in specific situations. Units include information on materials, activities, and alterations. (Author/CL)

ABSTRACT

SELF PROTECTION FOR THE HANDICAPPED

INFORMATION AVAILABLE FROM: MOLLY ROESELER, EDUCATION AND TRAINING CONSULTANT, 415 5TH AVENUE WEST, KIRKLAND, WASHINGTON 98033

THIS CURRICULUM IS A MODIFICATION AND ADAPTION OF THE SPECIAL EDUCATION CURRICULUM ON SEXUAL EXPLOITATION FOR MILDLY RETARDED STUDENTS DEVELOPED BY SEATTLE RAPE RELIEF. A TITLE IV-C DEVELOPMENTAL GRANT WAS WRITTEN TO DEVELOP A CURRICULUM TO MEET THE NEEDS OF MODERATELY AND SEVERELY HANDICAPPED STUDENTS. DRS. CHARLENE BEHRNS AND GARY FISHER COORDINATED THE GRANT IN 1982-83 AT GRAND VIEW SCHOOL IN KENT, WASHINGTON, WHERE DR. BEHRNS IS CURRENTLY SERVING AS PRINCIPAL. THE CURRICULUM WAS SUBSEQUENTLY EVALUATED BY A STATE PANEL AND SELECTED AS A MODEL PROGRAM FOR ADOPTION IN THE STATE OF WASHINGTON.

THE SELF PROTECTION FOR THE HANDICAPPED CURRICULUM CONSISTS OF 11 UNITS:

1. IDENTIFYING RELATIONSHIPS
2. PRECAUTIONS TO TAKE WITH STRANGERS
3. PRIVATE BODY PARTS
4. SAYING NO
5. PROTECTING INFORMATION
6. TRAVEL SAFETY
7. SOCIAL SITUATIONS
8. HOME SAFETY
9. AUTHORITY FIGURES
10. EXPLOITATION IN EXCHANGE FOR FAVORS, GIFTS AND KINDNESS
11. REPORTING EXPLOITATION

BECAUSE OF THE SENSITIVE NATURE OF THIS MATERIAL, A MINIMUM OF 6 HOURS OF INSERVICE TRAINING IS REQUIRED FOR TEACHERS OF THOSE WHO WILL WORK WITH STUDENS. TRAINING CAN BE ARRANGED FOR ONE, TWO, OR THREE DAY PROGRAMS AND MAY INCLUDE TEACHERS, PARENTS OR OTHERS WHO ARE INTERESTED.

SELF-PROTECTION CURRICULUM

The Self-Protection for the Handicapped Program Staff is keenly aware of the desire of educators to institute this program. However, care must be taken to ensure that all staff involved with this curriculum have participated in inservice training designed to provide skills in teaching the Self-Protection Program and techniques for dealing with students who are victims of exploitation. Without such training, teachers may find themselves in situations which are quite uncomfortable and/or are potentially harmful for their students.

Therefore, it is not recommended that this curriculum be used by anyone until they have completed inservice training in the use of the Self-Protection Program.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This project was funded by E.S.E.A. Title IV-C, Grant Award 35774

The self-protection curriculum was designed for moderately and severely handicapped students and is an adaptation of the Special Education Curriculum on Sexual Exploitation developed by the Developmental Disabilities Project of Seattle Rape Relief. The self-protection curriculum utilizes the same audio-visual materials as the rape relief curriculum and these materials may be purchased from Comprehensive Health Education Foundation, 20814 Pacific Highway South, Seattle, Washington, 98188.

We wish to acknowledge the contribution of Seattle Rape Relief in developing the sexual exploitation curriculum and express our appreciation to Ellen Ryerson, Director of the Developmental Disabilities Project, for her assistance and support.

All materials from the Special Education Curriculum on Sexual Exploitation are reproduced with permission.

Introduction to the Curriculum on Self-Protection for the Handicapped

This curriculum is a modification and adaptation of the special education curriculum on sexual exploitation developed by the Seattle Rape Relief Developmental Disabilities Project. A Title IV-C developmental grant was written for this purpose since it was felt that some revision of the sexual exploitation curriculum was necessary to meet the needs of moderately and severely handicapped children.

EXPLOITATION OF THE HANDICAPPED

The problem of sexual exploitation of handicapped individuals has been well documented by the Seattle Rape Relief Developmental Disabilities Project. Between 1977 and 1979 over 300 reports of exploitation of handicapped persons were handled by this agency. Since the FBI estimates that only 20% of all adult rape cases are reported, it may be assumed that many more incidents of sexual exploitation actually occurred. The issue of reporting sexual exploitation is complicated by the fact that in the overwhelming majority of cases, the offender is someone the victim knows (relatives, friends, or acquaintances). Seattle Rape Relief data indicated that, in a two year period (July 1977 - July 1979) only 1% of the offenders were unknown to the victims. Since the victim usually knows the offender, there are several factors which may determine whether or not the exploitation is reported. First of all, the handicapped victim may be told to keep the activity secret or may be threatened (eg. "If you tell anyone about this, I'll beat you up"). Since handicapped individuals are often extremely responsive to requests from authority figures, they may not report exploitation even though they may perceive that the sexual activity is inappropriate. Secondly, the offender may do appropriate activities with the victim or may do favors and give gifts to the victim. The handicapped person may have difficulty discriminating the inappropriate and appropriate actions of the offender.

In addition to sexual exploitation, handicapped individuals are also vulnerable to other types of exploitation, particularly since Public Law 94-142 has emphasized intergration of handicapped and non-handicapped persons. Handicapped persons may be victims of extortion and burglary due to a lack of knowledge of assertive skills and self-protection techniques. Therefore, the purposes of the self-protection curriculum are to increase student's ability to identify exploitation and to increase student's ability to protect themselves from exploitation.

Description of the Self-Protection Curriculum

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE SEXUAL EXPLOITATION AND SELF-PROTECTION CURRICULA

The sexual exploitation curriculum contains 2 levels depending on the student's age. These 2 levels have been consolidated into one curriculum with the idea that younger (8-13 years) or the more handicapped students would only receive instruction in the first five units the first few times the curriculum is taught. There was some reordering of the units with Unit 10 of the sexual exploitation curriculum (Protecting Personal Information) placed as Unit 5 in the self-protection curriculum and retitled Protecting Information (Safe-Unsafe). The reordering was done because it was felt that the skills taught in this unit were prerequisite to concepts presented in later units. Some lessons have been omitted and others added but, in general, the lessons from the sexual exploitation curriculum are intact. Vocabulary has been simplified where necessary.

Some of the pre and post tests have been modified to make them more standardized and to simplify vocabulary. Forms to record student performance on tests have also been developed. Also, there is a data sheet for each unit so that student progress can easily be tracked.

There was an attempt made to change many of the written narrative stories from third person to first person characters. It was found that students could more easily understand the situations if they felt they were the main character in the story.

References to rape and sexual exploitation have largely been omitted for two reasons. First of all, it is felt that the self-protection curriculum deals with exploitation in general rather than sexual exploitation specifically. Secondly, many students have little or inaccurate knowledge regarding sexual intercourse. Therefore, the concept of rape would not be meaningful. In instances where a victim is described as being raped in the sexual exploitation curriculum, the self-protection curriculum describes the victim as being "hurt." The audio-visual materials developed for the sexual exploitation curriculum have not been modified. These may be purchased from Comprehensive Health Education Foundation, Seattle, Washington.

TESTING CONSIDERATIONS

Since there are pre and post tests for each Unit as well as pre and post tests covering units 1 through 5 and 6 through 11, it is important that the instructor insure that valid results are achieved. Unit pre and post tests may be conducted by the instructor. The tests are included in the curriculum. Students should always be tested individually in an area which minimizes distractions. Students should not be cued as to the correct answers. However, if it is clear that the questions or instructions have not been understood due to language deficits, the vocabulary may be modified by the instructor.

It is advisable to have a person unknown to the students conduct the role play tests covering units 1-5 and 6-11. This is to gain a greater sense of whether or not the students have learned the concepts or simply associate them with their teacher. There is this possibility since the instructor is involved in many role plays during instruction. Specific procedures for conducting the role play testing precedes the role plays in the curriculum.

SELF-PROTECTION CURRICULUM

There are 11 units in the curriculum. Each unit has an introduction, pre and post test, data sheet, and lessons. It will be necessary for the instructor to make copies of the student response sheet for each student. On each lesson, the objective, materials, and activities are described. In almost all cases, materials are part of the curriculum. Where this is not the case, it has been noted. Also, alterations necessary for various handicapping conditions are described and the criterion for mastery of the lesson is listed.

The 11 units are as follows:

- Unit 1: Identifying Relationships
- Unit 2: Precautions To Take With Strangers
- Unit 3: Private Body Parts
- Unit 4: Saying "No"
- Unit 5: Protecting Information (Safe-Unsafe)
- Unit 6: Travel Safety
- Unit 7: Self-Protection in Social Situations
- Unit 8: Home Safety
- Unit 9: Avoiding Exploitation by Authority Figures
- Unit 10: Exploitation as an Exchange for Favors, Gifts, or Kindness
- Unit 11: Reporting Exploitation

The units are divided into two sections, Units 1-5 and Units 6-11. Pre and Post tests have been developed for each section. In Units 1-5 students learn the general information and skills necessary for self protection. They are taught to discriminate between friends, family members, and strangers; and learn which activities are appropriate and inappropriate to do with strangers. Unit 3 discusses the parts of the body which are private and should not be touched by others. Appropriate and inappropriate touching is also presented. Assertive skills are learned in Unit 4. In Unit 5, the students learn to respond to requests for information from strangers which are classified either as "safe" or "unsafe". Examples of "unsafe" information would be phone number, address, or if anyone is at home. Students are taught that they may politely but assertively refuse to answer "unsafe" questions.

In Units 6-11, self-protection in specific situations such as at home, parties, and on the bus is learned. The issue of incest is dealt with in Units 9 and 10 by teaching that touching private body parts is not appropriate even if the person is an authority figure or does nice things for the student. In Unit 11, the students learn how to report exploitation.

TEACHING APPROACHES

Instruction in the self-protection program differs from many of the methods of teaching handicapped students in that the program requires group instruction. Therefore, the following should be considered.

1. Students who have difficulty attending in group situations may have to be included in smaller groups to be sure that the skills are mastered.
2. Role plays have proven extremely useful in acquiring self-protection skills. Whenever possible, give all students an opportunity to role play.
3. Whenever possible, enlist colleagues, friends, and parents to participate in role plays. This will help to lessen the likelihood of students demonstrating self-protection skills only in the presence of their teacher.
4. Constantly repeat previously mastered skills. It is recommended that prior to introducing a new unit, review all previously learned skills. Additionally, it may be necessary to repeat a whole section if posttest results are not acceptable. The acquisition of self-protection skills by handicapped students does not differ from their acquisition of other skills. Repetition is necessary. It is crucial that students master the skills of Units 1-5 before going on to Unit 6. If less than 3/4 of a class masters posttest Units 1-5, it is recommended that these units be repeated.
5. The instructor should feel free to go beyond the activities described in the lessons. Teacher made materials and additional role plays may be used to reinforce the concepts presented.

STUDENT ROLE PLAYS

Testing through the use of role plays is conducted prior to instruction of Unit 1, after completion of Unit 5, prior to instruction of Unit 6, and after completion of Unit 11. There are separate role plays covering Units 1-5 and Units 6-11.

Role plays should be conducted by a person unfamiliar to the students to assure valid results. A male should be used since in the vast majority of exploitation cases, a male is the offender. Drama students from a local high school or college have proven successful in performing the role plays. The tester should have the opportunity to practice with approximately four students to insure that standard instructions are given to each student.

Students should be tested in a quiet room with only the tester and student present. A tape recorder should be placed in a inconspicuous location and used to record student responses. The purpose for using a tape recorder is to avoid having the tester write down student responses and thus interfere with the realism of the role play.

The instructor should only prepare the students by telling them that they will be going to a room to work with someone. The instructor should send the students individually to the testing room rather than having the tester enter the room to get each student. This will insure that each student sees the tester only during testing.

The tester should give the following instructions to the students; "Have you ever pretended to do something? We are going to pretend to do some things. I'll tell you what we are going to do. Let's start." The tester then reads the situations on the script. After testing, the tester should tell the student not to tell anyone else what they did.

The instructor can transcribe the tapes after testing. One point is given for each correct response and zero points are given for each incorrect response. Examples of correct and incorrect responses are included in the curriculum. There is a "a" or "b" following each question on the role play script. "a" questions ask for personal information or unsafe actions. "b" questions ask for information which is safe for the student to answer. The total number of correct "a" responses and "b" responses should be tallied separately. The criteria for mastery is on the role play script.

UNIT 1

INTRODUCTION

This initial unit is intended to teach students to distinguish among strangers, friends, and family members. Students are introduced to the concepts of stranger, friend, and family member as a prerequisite to learning cautious behavior with strangers (Unit 2) and to discriminating appropriate and inappropriate touching (Unit 3).

Family members are those people who are related to the student by blood or by marriage. It is important for the student to realize that family members can sometimes be strangers (for example, the cousin who lives in another state), and that those people must be approached with the same caution that one holds for strangers.

For the purposes of this curriculum, no distinction is made between strangers and acquaintances. The reason for this approach is that the behaviors which are appropriate when dealing with acquaintances are the same as those which are appropriate when dealing with strangers. Students are taught that anyone they do not know very well is a stranger. This definition includes those people about whom the student knows nothing, as well as those people with whom the student has had some contact, but not enough for a friendship to develop (such as the mailman, gas station attendant, and other community workers).

The following statements are offered in helping the student identify a friend, and thus discriminate between friends and strangers.

1. A friend is someone you know well.
  - A. Basic information is known about the person, such as their address, school attended, and parent occupations.
  - B. More time is spent and enjoyed being with a friend than with people who are not friends.
2. Common interests and activities are shared by friends.
3. Friends care about each other.
  - A. Friends demonstrate kindness and consideration.
  - B. Friends help each other.

UNIT GOAL

The student will identify and discriminate among family members, friends and strangers.

LESSON SUMMARIES

- Pretest: The student identifies pictures as either family members, friends or strangers.
- Lesson 1: The student identifies strangers and non-strangers.
- Lesson 2: The student discriminates among strangers, family members, and friends.
- Lesson 3: The student recognizes community workers as strangers.
- Posttest: Same procedure as pretest using different pictures.

NOTE TO TEACHER: Several of the lessons in this unit require pictures of the student's family, friends, and strangers. We suggest that prior to beginning the unit, the teacher send a letter home to the parents requesting several pictures of family members and friends. These should be single, not group shots. Parents should label pictures with subject name and relationship to child.

Pictures of strangers can be cut from magazines, but should also include snapshots. If this detail is overlooked, some students are likely to discriminate on the basis of snapshot vs magazine picture, rather than on the basis of the concepts taught in the unit.

A Polaroid camera may be used to let students take their own pictures of friends.

UNIT 1: PRETEST

OBJECTIVE: Given a set of six pictures of people (two of family members, two of friends, and two of strangers), the students will correctly identify each as a family member, friend or stranger.

MATERIALS

* Six pictures for each student - two each of the child's family, friends, and strangers.

*Not included.

ACTIVITIES

Randomly stack the pictures. Show one picture at a time and ask the student, "Is this a family member, friend, or stranger?" Record responses.

ALTERATIONS

BLIND/PARTIALLY SIGHTED:

Record voices of family members, friends, and strangers.

HEARING IMPAIRED:

Sign language.

LANGUAGE DELAYED:

Require only "yes" or "no" responses for each picture, "Is this a family member?", "Is this a friend?", and "Is this a stranger?"

CRITERION: 100% accuracy in identification of pictures without assistance.

IF CRITERION IS MET: Proceed to Unit 2.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Proceed to Lesson 1.

UNIT 1: LESSON 1

SKILL: Identifying strangers.

OBJECTIVE: Given a set of pictures (4 of strangers, 2 of friends, and 1 family member), the student will correctly identify six of the seven pictures as strangers or non-strangers when asked, "Is this a stranger?"

MATERIALS

*A set of 10-15 pictures of people that are not known by the students. Include pictures of total strangers as well as pictures of familiar faces (eg. pictures of movie stars, advertising personnel).

*A set of pictures of some of each student's friends and family members.

*Not included.

ACTIVITIES

- A. Lead discussion about family members and friends. Elicit the following points:
1. Family members:
    - a. Are people who are related.
    - b. Usually live together, sometimes do not.
    - c. Usually know each other very well, sometimes do not.
  2. Friends:
    - a. Trust each other.
    - b. Know a lot about each other.
    - c. Demonstrate kindness toward one another.
    - d. Share common interests.
    - e. Enjoy spending time with each other.
- Ask the students to name some family members and friends.
- B. Introduce the concept of a "stranger". Emphasize the following points:
1. Little information is known about strangers.
  2. A stranger can be someone you have seen before.
  3. A stranger cannot be trusted.
- C. Show pictures of strangers. Discuss each, telling why the person is a stranger.
- D. Go around the class. Intermingle 1 picture of a family member, two of friends, and four of strangers. Show each picture and ask, "Is this a stranger?"

ALTERATIONS

BLIND/PARTIALLY SIGHTED:

Record voices of family members, friends, and strangers.

HEARING IMPAIRED:

Sign language.

LANGUAGE DELAYED:

Require only "yes" or "no" response to the question, "Is this a stranger?"

CRITERION: Six out of seven correct responses in Activity D without assistance.

IF CRITERION IS MET: Proceed to Lesson 2

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET. Teach the student to discriminate between family members and friends, then reintroduce Lesson.

UNIT 1: LESSON 2

SKILL: Identifying and discriminating among friends, family members, and strangers.

OBJECTIVE: The student will discriminate family members, friends, and strangers by sorting pictures.

MATERIALS

*A large sheet of paper divided into 3 sections with dark lines.

*Not included

ACTIVITIES

- A. Review concepts of a stranger, family member, and friend.
- B. Present sectioned paper and pictures. Direct students to:
  1. Identify each picture as a stranger, friend, or family member and place in the appropriate place on the paper.

ALTERATIONS

BLIND/PARTIALLY SIGHTED:

SKILL: Recognizing that community workers can be strangers.

OBJECTIVE: The student will identify community workers as strangers.

MATERIALS

* 20 pictures of community workers (14) and friends, and family members, (6) pasted on cardboard.

* Small flat box

ACTIVITIES

- A. Explain to the students that people who work in their communities and homes can also be strangers. Give examples and discuss the reasons these people are strangers, (ie. Don't know them well, don't know personal information about them).
- B. With the students, make a list of community workers who may be strangers. For example:
- |                        |                            |
|------------------------|----------------------------|

| 2. firemen             | 10. taxi drivers           |
| 3. store clerk         | 11. gas station attendants |
| 4. construction worker | 12. elevator operators     |
| 5. teachers            | 13. postmen                |
| 6. bank tellers        | 14. clergy                 |
| 7. nurses              | 15. door to door salesman  |
| 8. doctors             | 16. repairman              |
- C. Present pictures of community workers, friends, and family members. Ask students to tell which are strangers. It would be helpful to take snapshots of community workers so that discriminations will not be made on the basis of whether the picture is a photograph or cut out of a magazine.
- D. Play the card game. Each student is dealt five cards (of community workers/family/friends). One student at a time turns over one of their cards, identifies whether or not it's a stranger, and places it in appropriate place (inside stranger box or beside). A token is earned for each correctly identified card. After all cards are dealt out and identified the player with the most tokens wins.

INTRODUCTION

Unit 2 deals with safety precautions which should be taken when dealing with those people who are defined as strangers. As stated in the introduction to Unit 1, students are taught to use the word "stranger" to refer to two groups of people: (a) those who are typically referred to as strangers and about whom there is little or no information; and (b) those who are generally called 'acquaintances' about whom there is some, but not much, information. The precautions that should be taken with both strangers and acquaintances are the same, and therefore to make a distinction between the two at this point seems superfluous and risks confusing the students.

It is important for children to exercise precautions with strangers. Data indicates that numerous physically and mentally handicapped children are exploited by people considered strangers. For example, neighbors, volunteers, bus drivers, and store clerks have been cited as offenders in some cases of exploitation. Because offenders are found in all strata of society and in all professions, the student needs to take equal precautions with all people who are considered strangers, be it attorney, salesperson, or construction worker.

In this unit, students build on the concepts presented in Unit 1 to develop safety practices which should be observed in dealing with people, particularly strangers. Safety practices for a variety of situations are introduced and reinforced through practice. For example, students are taught never to let strangers in the house, and never go anywhere alone with a stranger.

It is hoped that this unit will provide students with the skills needed to operate wisely in real world situations where exploitation is a threat.

UNIT GOAL

The student will be cautious when dealing with strangers.

LESSON SUMMARIES

Pretest: The student identifies safe and unsafe situations and/or actions.

Lesson 1: The student recalls 3 "stranger safety rules."

Lesson 2: The student discriminates simple situations as safe or unsafe.

Lesson 3: The student discriminates increasingly more difficult situations as safe and unsafe.

Lesson 4: The student will recognize inappropriate touching by strangers.

Lesson 5: The student recalls "stranger safety rules" by creating his/her own story about a person who breaks one of the rules.

Posttest: Same as pretest.

UNIT 2: LESSON 2

SKILL: Recognizing risks in dealing with strangers.

OBJECTIVE: Given descriptions of four unsafe and two safe situations, the student will identify three instances in which the main character acted unsafely and two in which the character acted safely. (The situations describe an event in which a character encounters a stranger. The text identifies outright the stranger as a stranger.)

MATERIALS

WN 201-210

ACTIVITIES

- A. Review the stranger safety rules from Lesson 1.
- B. Role play the situations provided. Ask if the student acted safely or not. Discuss reasons for the answer (in this lesson, the student is told directly that the main character is dealing with a stranger). The situations are suggested ways to begin the role plays. The teacher should feel free to go beyond the questions provided.

UNIT 3

INTRODUCTION

In this unit, students are taught to identify certain areas of the body as private. Students need to be instructed that no one should touch private areas of their body except for health or hygienic purposes. An individual of any status (family member, friend, or stranger) who touches private body areas without a hygienic or health related purpose, is touching inappropriately. Through the use of pictures included in this unit, students learn to distinguish inappropriate from appropriate, hygienic or affectionate touching.

It is intended that this approach will assist children who are victims of incest or child molestation to recognize the inappropriate behavior of the offender. In Unit 11, the students will learn how to report such inappropriate touching to a reliable authority figure.

UNIT GOAL

The student will realize that certain body parts are private and should not be touched by other people other than for health reasons.

LESSON SUMMARIES

Pretest: The student identifies inappropriate touching, and identifies private body parts that should not be touched by anyone except for health reasons.

Lesson 1: The student locates private body parts.

Lesson 2: The student discriminates body parts that should not be touched by others except for health reasons.

Lesson 3: The student discriminates appropriate and inappropriate touching.

Posttest: Same procedure as pretest.

UNIT 3: PRETEST

UNIT 3: LESSON 1

SKILL: Identifying private body parts.

OBJECTIVE: The student will locate private body parts on a model.

MATERIALS

*Any male or female models such as a doll or mannequin should be used. Both male and female should be used.

*Not included

ACTIVITIES

- A. Discuss appropriate touching. Ask the students to make a list of the appropriate ways people touch them, for example; shaking hands, pats on the back, hugs, and kisses. Explain that whether touching is OK depends on whether it is a friend, family member, or stranger doing the touching. For instance, it is OK for anyone to shake hands but it is not OK to hug a stranger.
- B. Explain that everyone has private body parts that should not be touched by anyone - strangers, friends, or parents except for health reasons. It may be necessary to explain this. Show the private body parts on the models.
- C. Point to various parts of the models and ask, "Is this a private body part?"
- D. Work with each student individually. Show the doll to each student individually. Say, "Show me the private body parts."

ALTERATIONS

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Repeat Lesson 1

UNIT 3: LESSON 2

SKILL: Identifying body parts not to be touched by others except for health reasons.

OBJECTIVE: Given a set of photos showing both appropriate and inappropriate touching, the student will identify five photos which show inappropriate touching.

MATERIALS

PS 312-326

ACTIVITIES

- A. Review private body parts on doll.
- B. Discuss appropriate touching. Talk about ways that people touch children. Approach the topic from the stand point that when children are babies, people must touch private body parts for hygienic reasons (diapering, bathing, checking for rashes and infections), but as children grow older, people have less and less need to touch private body parts. Elaborate on this point as necessary, considering the handicaps of the students in your class and the personal touching which may be necessary because of the handicaps.
- C. Show pictures of appropriate touching. Discuss why each picture is appropriate after reading script.
- D. Explain that sometimes people who are strangers, friends, or even family members, touch children's private body parts without good reasons.
- E. Show pictures of inappropriate touching. Discuss why each picture is inappropriate after reading script.
- F. Combine appropriate and inappropriate touching pictures. Ask students to state which are OK and which are not OK.

ACTIVITIES

- A. Review location of private body parts.
- B. Review general rule about private parts.
- C. Review specific exceptions to rule - health reasons.
- D. Show slides, read script, and ask questions:
  - 1. Who is doing the touching?
  - 2. Where are they touching?
  - 3. Is that OK?
  - 4. Why or why not?

INTRODUCTION

Assertiveness is a verbal technique that students can practice as one method of avoiding exploitation. In their book on assertiveness YOUR PERFECT RIGHT, Alberit and Emmons provide a description of assertiveness:

Through assertive behavior, the person enhances his or her self, expresses feelings honestly, and achieves his or her goals having chosen how he or she will act. A good feeling about oneself usually follows assertive response.

Using assertive behavior, students can learn to express their needs clearly and persistently in order to protect themselves by not allowing others to exploit them.

For example, if a man stops his car and offers John a ride as he is walking home from school, John can say "no thanks." If the man persists in trying to get John into the car, John can repeat this assertive response, without giving excuses, as he walks away. Using this response, John has protected himself without behaving offensively, which might antagonize the stranger. Further, John has not entered into a situation where he would become vulnerable to exploitation by accepting the ride and getting into the stranger's car.

When teaching assertiveness to students, it is important to help them believe that they have a "perfect right" to be assertive in order to protect themselves from exploitation, even if the assertive statement is not accepted or well received by others.

SAYING "NO" ASSERTIVELY

The following curriculum materials emphasize teaching students to decline potentially exploitive invitations by saying "no" assertively. For example, students learn to say "NO" to the question, "Can I borrow some money?" Ultimately, the student will use an assertive "no" statement to resist exploitive advances.

Students should learn all of the specific techniques which, when applied together result in an assertive self-protection response. Throughout this unit and other units of the curriculum students practice assertive attitudes and effective assertiveness skills.

The lessons of this unit provide exercises for students to learn basic assertive skills, including the mechanics of saying "no." A summary of this information is offered here to serve as a guide for the teacher.

ASSERTIVE BODY LANGUAGE

1. Body Posture: Square shoulders, a straight back, and head held erect give the student an "assertive body language" which adds strength to his/her verbal message. Students who have inattentive, weak body posture will especially need assistance with this basic skill.
2. Facial Expression: Facial expression should be appropriate to a given assertive response and should not weaken the verbal message. For example, smiling while saying "no" weakens the response.
3. Eye Contact: Students should practice maintaining direct eye contact with the person to whom an assertive statement is directed. Eye contact strengthens the verbal message.

MECHANICS OF SAYING "NO"

1. Say "No": Students should actually say the word "no" rather than using weaker phrases such as "Well, I don't think so.." or "Well, I don't know.."
2. Shaking Head: Students should practice shaking heads "no" to strengthen their "no" statement.
3. Avoid Reasons: Students should be taught not to give reasons or excuses for a "no" statement. Reasons allow others to argue, persist, or manipulate the student. For example, Bill meets a stranger named John in a bowling alley one afternoon. John invites Bill to come home with him and Bill says, "No, I have to go home and study." John persists and argues, "Oh, come on. You don't have to do your homework. It's no big deal. Don't be such a good boy."
4. Repetition: Students may find themselves in situations where they need to repeat a "no" statement before another person "hears" them and accepts the "no" statement. For this reason, students should practice offering repetitive and persistent "no" statements during practice sessions.

UNIT GOAL

The student will use assertive body language and will be persistent in saying "No".

LESSON SUMMARIES

Pretest: The student is asked a question by the teacher to which the student is to answer "no". The teacher scores the student on the basis of the student's effectiveness in saying "no".

Lesson 1: The student uses assertive body language.

Lesson 2: The student responds assertively to a question posed by the teacher and avoids attaching excuses or reasons to the "no" statement.

Lesson 3: The student says "no" repeatedly in the face of persistent efforts.

Lesson 4: The student integrates all the assertiveness skills taught in Lessons 1, 2, 3, responding to an actual stranger.

UNIT 4: PRETEST

OBJECTIVE: The student will use assertive body language and will be persistent in saying "no" to a hypothetical question asked by the teacher.

MATERIALS

None

ACTIVITIES

Work with the student individually. Tell the students that you are going to ask them a question. Use potentially exploitative questions such as:

1. Can I borrow a dollar?
2. Will you give me your lunch?
3. Can I have your coat?
4. Will you go buy me a coke?

Be persistent in trying to change the student's "no" response.

Evaluate each student on the basis of 1. assertive body language, 2. maintaining the "no" statement in the face of persistence on the part of the teacher.

ALTERATIONS

Directions: Ask each student the following questions. If the initial response is "no" ask the follow-up question. For each question indicate whether the student: 1. used assertive body language, 2. maintained the "no" statement when the follow-up question was asked. Circle Yes or No for each area assessed. If the student responds "yes" to the first question, the follow-up question would not be asked. The student receives one point each for demonstrating appropriate body posture, maintaining neutral expression, and maintaining eye contact, and 3 points each for answering "no" to the first question and "no" to the follow-up question.

UNIT 4: LESSON 1

SKILL: Using assertive body language when saying "no".

OBJECTIVE: The student will use assertive body language when saying "no", (assertive body language includes 1. direct eye contact, 2. shaking head "no", 3. keeping attentive body posture, and 4. maintaining appropriate facial expression.)

MATERIALS

List of questions students can answer "no" to.

ACTIVITIES

- A. Tell the students that today you're going to teach them how to say "no" to people who ask them to do something they don't want to do. Ask one student (or group of students) to watch your body, ask another student (or group) to watch your face, another to watch your eyes, and another to watch your head.
- B. Call a student up to the front to ask you a question. Tell the student "no", using ineffective body language, (slump your shoulders, don't look the person in the eye, smile while saying "no", and keep your head still). Ask each group appropriate questions about your body language.
- C. After the discussion, ask whether the "no" was strong or weak.
- D. Say "no" to the student again, this time using assertive body language (see the introduction to this unit). Ask each group to tell how your body language changed. Ask the students to tell you which "no" was stronger.
- E. On the board, make a list of how to say a strong "no". Your list should include:
1. sit up straight.
  2. Look the person in the eye.
  3. Do not smile when saying "no" (appropriate facial expression,)
  4. Shake head no.

BLIND/PARTIALLY SIGHTED

Instead of modeling saying "no" in Activities C and D mold each student's body in both assertive and nonassertive postures. Ask them to tell you the difference. Emphasize using an assertive tone of voice.

UNIT 4: LESSON 1 (cont)

ACTIVITIES

F. Go around the room and have students respond to questions. Note whether assertive skills are used.

G. It seems especially difficult for many students to maintain eye contact. If this is the case, have the students practice maintaining eye contact with each other.

CRITERION: Given two trials, one demonstration of 3 out of 4 assertiveness skills, (listed in Activity E)

IF CRITERION IS MET: Proceed to Lesson 2.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Practice saying "no" to various people asking potentially exploitative questions until criterion is met.

TEACHING MATERIALS

UNIT 4

Lesson 1: List of questions students can answer "no" to.

1. Can I have some money?
2. Can I copy your work?
3. Will you give me your lunch?
4. May I ride your new bicycle?
5. Will you help me beat up Steve?
6. Can I have your coat?
7. Will you buy me a coke?
8. Do you want to steal candy from the store?
9. Can I come to your house and play with your toys?
10. Can I kiss you?

UNIT 4: LESSON 2

SKILL: Avoiding giving reasons for the "no" statement.

OBJECTIVE. The student will respond with an assertive "no" without offering excuses to hypothetical questions posed by the teacher.

MATERIALS

Situations in which student must consistently answer "no"

ACTIVITIES

A. Review appropriate body language for saying "no". Ask each student to say "no" assertively to you.

B. Explain that when you want to say "no", explanations and excuses are not necessary; the word "no" is enough.

C. Go around the group and ask each student a potentially exploitive question. Tell the student to say "no" assertively, and to be sure not to offer excuses. Offer the students feedback for improving their skills. Some suggested questions:

1. Will you stay after school and do extra homework?
  2. Can I have your lunch?
  3. Can I borrow a pencil?
  4. The janitor is not here today, will you clean up the room?
  5. Could I use your bicycle for a week?
- Give each student a chance to say "no" as many times as possible.

D. Explain to the students that there are questions which they can answer "yes" to. Provide examples such as "What time is it?" or "Do you know where the Safeway is?"

TEACHING MATERIALS

Unit 4

Lesson 2: Situations in which the student must consistently answer "no".

1. A stranger wants to sell you a radio. You don't want to buy it.
2. Someone calls you when your mother and father aren't home and wants your address.
3. A friend wants to trade you his bicycle for yours. You don't want to.
4. You are on the bus and someone starts talking to you. They ask for your phone number.
5. You are at the bowling alley. Someone you have seen before but don't know offers you a ride home.
6. Your brother wants to borrow a dollar. You don't want to give it to him.
7. Your teacher asks you to stay inside at recess and wash the blackboard. You want to go outside and play.
8. A friend is at your house. He wants to see your dad's new watch.
9. Your sister wants to take the model airplane you made to school to show her class.
10. A stranger asks you to get in his car and show him the way to the store.

UNIT 4: LESSON 3

SKILLS: Repeating the "no" statement until heard.

OBJECTIVE: The student will continue to say "no" to a hypothetical question in spite of the person's persistence.

MATERIALS

Enough candy or fruit for each class member to have some.

WN 401

ACTIVITIES

A. Explain to the students that there will be times when they will have to say "no" more than once in order to be "heard" by the asker. Remind them that when someone tries to touch them inappropriately, it is important to keep saying "no" until the asker hears.

B. Select one student. Tell the student that you have some candy (or fruit) in your desk, and that if he/she asks enough times, you will give some to the whole classroom. Model saying "no" persistently to the student's persuasion.

C. Go around the class. Have students ask each other and the teacher potentially exploitive questions. Set up situations which may be particularly difficult for students to say "no" to. For example, "Do you want a stick of gum?" Offer feedback to the students who are saying "no". Reverse roles. Also, intersperse questions the students can answer.

D. Reward the students who persisted in saying "no".

SKILL: Saying "no" to inappropriate touching.

OBJECTIVE: The student will use assertive body language in saying "no" to inappropriate touching.

MATERIALS

List of role play situations.

ACTIVITIES

A. Review Unit 3, Private Body Parts, and remind students that no one has a right to touch private body parts except for reasons of health and hygiene. Also, discuss the fact that many kinds of touching are not appropriate when strangers are involved.

B. Remind the students that they must be assertive in saying "no" to inappropriate touching. They should say "no" or "don't touch me", or "I don't want to be touch there."

C. Have the students practice saying "no" to inappropriate touching.

ALTERATIONS

HEARING IMPAIRED:

CRITERION. Given two trials one demonstration of saying "no" to inappropriate touching using assertive body language.

IF CRITERION IS MET: Proceed to Lesson 5.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Review Unit 3, Private Body Parts and Lessons 1 and 3. Reteach lesson.

1. A stranger gives you a hug as you walk down the street.
2. Your cousin asks if he can touch your breast.
3. While riding the bus, the man sitting next to you puts his hand on your thigh.
4. You are at the movies. Your boyfriend puts his hand on a private body part.
5. You are walking down the street. A man who looks like he drank too much tries to kiss you.

UNIT 4: LESSON 5

SKILL: Intergrating effective "saying no" skills.

OBJECTIVE: The student will use assertive body language and will be persistent in saying "no" to a stranger's question.

A person who is a stranger to the students in the class.

ACTIVITIES

Prior to class, direct a person (stranger to the students) to ask several of the students questions to which they should answer "no". Tell the stranger to be persistent. The stranger may circulate during free time, lunch, or any other appropriate time, and ask the students questions to which the students should respond "no". Evaluate the students on the basis of 1. assertive body language, 2. offering no excuses for saying "no" and 3. maintaining the "no" statement in the face of persistence on the part of the stranger.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Repeat Lessons 1, 2, 3, and 4.

POSTTEST UNIT 4: SAYING "NO"

OBJECTIVE. The student will use assertive body language and will be persistent in saying "no" to a hypothetical question asked by the teacher.

MATERIALS

None

ACTIVITIES

Work with each student individually. Tell the students that you are going to ask them a question. Use potentially exploitive questions such as:

1. Can I borrow a dollar?
2. Will you give me your lunch?
3. Can I have your coat?
4. Will you go buy me a coke?

Be persistent in trying to change the student's "no" response.

Evaluate each student on the basis of 1. assertive body language and 2. maintaining the "no" statement in the face of persistence on the part of the teacher.

Directions: Ask each student the following questions. If the initial response is "no" ask the follow-up question. For each question indicate whether the student: 1. used assertive body language, 2. maintained the "no" statement when the follow-up question was asked. Circle Yes or No for each area assessed. If the student responds "yes" to the first question, the follow-up question would not be asked. The student receives one point each for demonstrating appropriate body posture, maintaining neutral expression, and maintaining eye contact, and 3 points each for answering "no" to the first question and "no" to the follow-up question.

UNIT 5

PROTECTING INFORMATION (SAFE-UNSAFE)

INTRODUCTION

It is not uncommon in our culture to find ourselves in a situation where we have a friendly chat with a complete stranger. We meet strangers in different types of situations, such as buses, trains, planes, bus stops, and waiting lines. Certainly conversing with strangers is a pleasant way to spend spare moments, and sometimes to meet new friends. However, during such conversations, people at times reveal information about themselves that may give strangers access to their lives. By revealing such information to a stranger, persons are left vulnerable to exploitation. For example, if a woman tells a stranger, during a friendly conversation, where she ordinarily gets off the bus and the stranger is a potential or actual rapist, he has the perfect opportunity to follow the woman down the few lonely dark blocks to her house. Unfortunately, we are unable to trust strangers with any such personal information, and we must caution handicapped students about certain "unsafe questions".

In this unit, we have identified certain types of questions, when asked by strangers, as "unsafe". Students learn to recognize these types of questions as cues not to reveal the information requested. Examples of such questions are:

1. Where do you live?
2. What's your address?
3. What's your phone number?
4. Do you get off the bus here?
5. Do you live alone?
6. Are you (home) alone?
7. Is your mom or dad home?
8. Are you married? Do you have a boyfriend?
9. Do you come here often? Alone?

Many persons who are not mentally handicapped contend with these questions by giving clever, quick responses in which they do not reveal unsafe information about themselves, but continue to carry on a friendly conversation. For example: A woman sits next to a strange, but friendly man on a plane, and the man asks, "Are you traveling alone?". The woman responds, "Oh, no...my husband always insists on sitting in the non-smoking section. He's up there." In fact the woman is traveling alone and is cleverly protecting herself. It requires mental skill to respond as quickly and cleverly as this woman. It is felt that it would be most difficult to teach handicapped students such mental dexterity. Therefore, in this curriculum, a standard response is taught which handicapped children and adolescents can use in order to protect personal information. This response is, "I don't tell people that." This response can be used with any of the questions listed above. Of course, the difficulty with this response is that the stranger may consider the handicapped individual unfriendly, and may comment on this. For example, "I was just trying to be friendly. What's wrong with that?" If this occurs, the handicapped individual can assure the stranger that he/she does not mean to be unfriendly, but assertively repeats the statement, "I don't tell people that." For example: "I don't mean to be unfriendly, but I don't tell people that."

In this unit a variety of tape recordings are available to teach students to recognize unsafe questions and to give the standard response. Each tape creates a situational vignette in which unsafe questions are posed. A 5 second pause in the tape after each question allows time for the students to actually practice the standard response. It is recommended that you listen to at least one sample tape in order to familiarize yourself with the teaching procedure.

UNIT GOAL

The student will avoid answering unsafe questions when asked by a stranger.

LESSON SUMMARIES

- Pretest: The student refuses to answer "unsafe" questions in role play situations.
- Lesson 1: The student discriminates between "safe" and "unsafe" questions.
- Lesson 2: The student responds to "unsafe" questions by stating, "I don't tell people that."
- Lesson 3: The student demonstrates refusal to answer "unsafe" questions in context.
- Posttest: Same procedure as pretest.

UNIT 5: LESSON 1

SKILL: Identifying "safe" and "unsafe" questions.

OBJECTIVE: The student will discriminate between safe and unsafe questions.

MATERIALS

WN 1310

WN 1311 - 1317

ACTIVITIES

A. Conduct a discussion about personal information. Explain that personal information is anything about oneself (name, favorite color, etc.) and that some personal information is not safe to give out to strangers or people they don't know very well. Examples of unsafe questions are:

1. What is your name?
2. Where do you live?
3. What is your phone number?

B. Explain that these are unsafe questions because knowing personal information can lead to exploitation or danger to the student, such as obscene phone calls, showing up at your house, following you to a dark place, etc.

C. Explain that questions are "safe" when they can be answered without giving out information on where you live, who is at home, how much money you have, etc. Examples: "How do you like the weather?", "What time is it?", "What's your favorite food?", and "Do you like bowling?"

E. Read the stories aloud, ask the students to raise their hands whenever they hear an "unsafe" question being asked. (Pause after reading each question).

ACTIVITIES

A. Lead a discussion about how to respond to "unsafe" questions. Emphasize that when people ask for their name, they should give only the first name. When people ask unsafe questions, they should say, "I don't tell people that."

B. Go around the room and ask each student to answer an unsafe question. Continue the process until each student has been asked five questions. Reinforce those students who respond appropriately.

C. Play tapes requiring students to respond at the appropriate intervals.

D. Repeat Activity B mixing safe and unsafe questions.

It was Saturday morning and Bill was on his way to the park. He was meeting his best friend, Kip. As he was passing a restaurant, a stranger standing in the doorway called out to him. "Excuse me, son, can you direct me to the nearest gas station?"

Bill told the man where it was.

The man said, "Thank you," then he asked, "where are you going?"

Bill said, "To the park."

"Oh, yeah," said the man. "Are you meeting someone?"

Bill said that he was.

"I'll bet you're meeting your girlfriend," said the man. "Am I right?"

Bill shook his head. "No, I'm meeting Kip, my friend, we're going to play catch."

"Well, said the man, how old are you?"

"Twelve," said Bill.

NARR: It was Saturday night and Jan was at home again with nothing to do when the phone rings.

JAN: Hello.

MAY: Hi, Jan, this is May. You doin' anything tonite?

JAN: Nope. Got any suggestions?

MAY: Yeah. Why don't we go to that little tavern down on Main Street. Maybe we'll meet somebody new. If not, at least we can enjoy talking with each other.

JAN: Okay, sounds great.

MAY: I'll pick you up in 30 minutes. Bye now.

NARR: Jan and May entered the tavern and sat down at one of the tables. May ordered a pitcher of beer for the two of them. Jan noticed that a man was looking their way as if he were watching them. Soon the man came over to their table.

MAN: These seats taken?

MAY: Why, no.

NARR: The man sat down with May and Jan.

MAN: You girls come here often?

JAN: On occasion.

MAN: Live near here?

NARR: What should the women say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: Live near here?

MAY: I don't tell people that.

MAN: (as if offended) Oh, all right. I was just trying to be friendly. What's the matter with that?

NARR: What should the women say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: I was just trying to be friendly--what's the matter with that?

JAN: We're not trying to be unfriendly, it's just that we don't tell people that.

MAN: Well, is your name private information too?

NARR: What should the women say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: Are your names private information too?

JAN: My name is Jan and this is May.

NARR: The girls invited the man to sit down again with them. He sat down and asked:

MAN: What are your last names?

NARR: What should the women say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: What are your last names?

MAY: I don't tell people that, either.

NARR: The girls asked, what's your name? The man responded:

MAN: Jerry.

NARR: The girls talked to Jerry for awhile over a few beers. They had a great time, and so did Jerry. After about an hour, Jerry said he had to leave.

JERRY: I have to leave, {frustratedly}. I'd really like to get to know you better, but you won't tell me where you live, give me your phone number, or tell me your last name. What am I supposed to do?

NARR: The girls wanted to get to know Jerry better. What could they say?

JERRY: How am I supposed to get to know you better?

JAN: Well, how about meeting here again sometime--maybe Saturday night at about 8:30?

JERRY: Well, all right. See you then.

- NARR: George began to search through his bookbag for money to pay for the ice cream. Finally he found fifteen cents, but he needed thirty. He put his fifteen cents on the counter and dug through his bookbag for more.
- CLERK: Having trouble finding the rest of your money? Well, don't worry about that--we'll let it go this time. What's your name, fellow?
- NARR: What should George say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:
- CLERK: What's your name, fellow?
- GEO: George.
- NARR: George continued to search for the rest of the money. The clerk waited patiently.
- CLERK: Well, George, do you live around here?
- NARR: What should George say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be;
- CLERK: Do you live around here?
- GEO: I don't tell people that.
- NARR: Finally George found a dollar bill tucked away in a secret compartment of his bookbag. He brought it out and handed it to the clerk.
- CLERK: You seem to have plenty of money for ice cream. Do both of your parents work?
- NARR: What should George say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:
- CLERK: Do both your parents work?
- GEO: I don't tell people that.
- NARR: George started to leave.
- CLERK: Hey, wait a minute! How about waiting in front of the school for me tomorrow? I don't have to work. I'll bring some ice cream and we'll go for a walk.

GEO: I don't tell people that. Thanks for the ice cream. Bye!

NARR. George finished his ice cream and rushed home to tell his parents about his talk with the ice cream man.

- NARR: Susan had just gotten off work and had come to the bus stop to wait for her bus home. She was greeted by a friendly, nice looking man.
- MAN: Hello! I've seen you here often, haven't I? I think we ride the same bus. Which bus do you take home?
- NARR: What should Susan say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:
- MAN: Which bus do you take home?
- SUSAN: I don't tell people that.
- NARR: When Susan rose to get on her bus, the man followed. Susan chose a seat beside another person - a businessman on his way home from work. After several stops, the businessman got off the bus. The man at the bus stop took the empty seat beside Susan.
- MAN: I was hoping we could sit together. I'd like to become your friend, since we ride the same bus every day. My name is Tom Jones, what's yours?
- NARR: What should Susan say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:
- MAN: What's your name?
- SUSAN: Susan. OR I don't tell people that.
- NARR: The bus approached Susan's stop. As Susan walked to the front of the bus to pay her fare and get off, so did the man. The man had never gotten off the bus at Susan's stop before, so Susan thought something was funny. She did not want to get off the bus with the man.
- NARR: What should Susan do? (5 sec. pause)
- NOTE TO THE TEACHER: Susan should stay on the bus. She should ask the bus driver or someone else for help.
- SUSAN: This man is bothering me. Would you please help me?
- NARR: Susan was able to get some help from the bus driver and she arrived home safely.

NARR: Gail had been working at her job as a cashier in a restaurant for about two months. She liked her work and enjoyed chatting with some of the regular customers as they came through the line. One evening a young man she'd seen at the restaurant two or three times before came up to talk with her.

MAN: Hi! Haven't I seen you somewhere before?

GAIL: No, I don't think so.

MAN: Well, I've been coming here for the past week or so and just thought you looked familiar. What time do you get off work?

NARR: What should Gail say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: When do you get off work?

GAIL: I don't tell people that.

MAN: I was wondering if you'd like to go out for a drink after work?

NARR: What should Gail say? (5 sec. pause)

MAN: I was wondering if you'd like to go out for a drink after work?

GAIL: No thanks. OR if Gail wanted to meet the man she could say:
Sure, I'll meet you downtown at Jake's.

MAN: Why don't you give me your address and I'll come and pick you up.

NARR: What should Gail say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: Why don't you give me your address and I'll come and pick you up?

GAIL: No, I'd rather meet you down at Jake's instead. See you there!

MAN: Hey, look,....I'm just trying to be friendly. I'm not going to hurt you. What's the matter?

NARR: What should Gail say? (5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: Hey look....I'd just like to be friendly. I'm not going to hurt you. What's the matter?

GAIL: I don't mean to be unfriendly. I would rather meet you downtown at Jake's.

MAN: Well, ok. How about 6:00?

GAIL: That's fine. See you.

STUDENT ROLE PLAYS

Testing through the use of role plays is conducted prior to instruction of Unit 1, after completion of Unit 5, prior to instruction of Unit 6, and after completion of Unit 11. There are separate role plays covering Units 1-5 and Units 6-11.

Role plays should be conducted by a person unfamiliar to the students to assure valid results. A male should be used since in the vast majority of exploitation cases, a male is the offender. Drama students from a local high school or college have proven successful in performing the role plays. The tester should have the opportunity to practice with approximately four students to insure that standard instructions are given to each student.

Students should be tested in a quiet room with only the tester and student present. A tape recorder should be placed in a inconspicuous location and used to record student responses. The purpose for using a tape recorder is to avoid having the tester write down student responses and thus interfere with the realism of the role play.

The instructor should only prepare the students by telling them that they will be going to a room to work with someone. The instructor should send the students individually to the testing room rather than having the tester enter the room to get each student. This will insure that each student sees the tester only during testing.

The tester should give the following instructions to the students; "Have you ever pretended to do something? We are going to pretend to do some things. I'll tell you what we are going to do. Let's start." The tester then reads the situations on the script. After testing, the tester should tell the student not to tell anyone else what they did.

The instructor can transcribe the tapes after testing. One point is given for each correct response and zero points are given for each incorrect response. Examples of correct and incorrect responses are included in the curriculum. There is a "a" or "b" following each question on the role play script. "a" questions ask for personal information or unsafe actions. "b" questions ask for information which is safe for the student to answer. The total number of correct "a" responses and "b" responses should be tallied separately. The criteria for mastery is on the role play script.

SELF-PROTECTION CURRICULUM

The Self-Protection for the Handicapped Program Staff is keenly aware of the desire of educators to institute this program. However, care must be taken to ensure that all staff involved with this curriculum have participated in inservice training designed to provide skills in teaching the Self-Protection Program and techniques for dealing with students who are victims of exploitation. Without such training, teachers may find themselves in situations which are quite uncomfortable and/or are potentially harmful for their students.

Therefore, it is not recommended that this curriculum be used by anyone until they have completed inservice training in the use of the Self-Protection Program.

UNIT 6

INTRODUCTION

Each year, numerous individuals are raped while hitchhiking, or otherwise traveling unsafely. National FBI statistics state that the third most frequent location for the occurrence of rapes is the victim's or the offender's car. This unit focuses on safe and appropriate ways to travel through public areas, whether rural or urban. The student will consider the possible consequences of unsafe modes of transportation and will become aware of safe alternatives such as riding a bus.

Self protection techniques for walking through public areas are also taught in this unit. It is important to emphasize the following points while teaching the lessons:

1. Exploitation can occur in broad daylight as well as at night. It is unsafe to walk through alleys or other secluded areas during the daytime just as it is at night. If possible, secluded areas should be avoided and routes chosen where people are present.
2. It is wise to walk through public areas as if with a purpose and a destination rather than to "mosey" along. This disposition can discourage people who attempt to badger or exploit others.
3. Students should ignore strangers who badger them on the streets. (Students may need to practice how to ignore someone who bothers them.) If followed or badgered incessantly, it is important to seek help as soon as possible from the nearest available people and to call the police if this is possible.

Before teaching this unit, we recommend that you contact a local rape assistance agency and ask for information concerning the areas of your locality where the highest number of rapes occur. Your students should be aware of the risk in these areas. For example, in Seattle the areas with the highest incidence of rape are Capitol Hill, the University District, and Yesler Terrace Public Housing.

UNIT GOAL

The student will travel safely in public areas.

LESSON SUMMARIES

- Pretest: The student responds appropriately to safe and unsafe travel situations.
- Lesson 1: The student discriminates safe and unsafe methods of car travel.
- Lesson 2: The student states the basic rule for safe car travel.
- Lesson 3: The student identifies 3 rules for walking safely.
- Lesson 4: The student verbalizes an appropriate response to a stranger's advances.
- Lesson 5: The student demonstrates ignoring a stranger's inappropriate advances.
- Lesson 6: The student discriminates unsafe bus situations.
- Lesson 7: The student identifies 2 ways to safely get help in emergency situations.
- Posttest: Same procedure as Pretest.

UNIT 6: LESSON 1

SKILL: Traveling in a car safely.

OBJECTIVE: The student will discriminate safe and unsafe methods of car travel.

MATERIALS

SS 801 - 806

ACTIVITIES

A. Discuss traveling in a car, where students travel and with whom, both in town or out of town. Emphasize that it is fun to ride with friends, but NEVER with a stranger. Emphasize that even in an emergency situation, such as when students are caught in a rainstorm or have a minor injury, they should not take a ride with a stranger.

B. Review Unit 1.

1. Review lists of friends, emphasizing that it is okay to ride with them in a car.

2. Review strangers list. Explain that we do not ride in a car with people we do not know well because we don't know whether they will really take us where we want to go or whether they will hurt us. A good rule to follow is NEVER ride with strangers.

C. Read stories. Ask the students to tell you whether or not the main character should take the ride.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Review Unit 1 and repeat this lesson.

UNIT 6: LESSON 2

SKILL: Stating the rule of travel safety.

OBJECTIVE: Students will state the rule, "Never ride with strangers."

MATERIALS

SSH 800: Woman at Market with script, questions and activities.

SSH 801: Boy at Bus Stop may also be used in this lesson to demonstrate male on male rape and to emphasize that men as well as women must not ride with strangers.

ACTIVITIES

A. Review discussion of traveling by car - with whom. Emphasize the rule, NEVER ride with strangers or someone you just met.

B. Explain that sometimes people will offer to give students a "lift" - for instance, from the bus stop, grocery store, school, shopping center, but the rule still applies - NEVER ride with strangers, or someone you just met. It is only okay to accept these rides if the offer is from a trusted friend or family member.

C. Present the slide show, reading the script. Discuss questions at end, emphasizing major concepts and complete activities.

OBJECTIVE: Student will identify 3 rules for walking safely.

MATERIALS

*SS 807 - 834
(unsafe areas where potential problems could occur)

*No script

ACTIVITIES

A. Discuss with students traveling by walking.
Ask them where they walk, with whom, and when.

1. Tell them it's fun to walk, but they need to learn some simple rules to do it safely.
2. Tell them three rules:
  - a. Walk in the daytime.
  - b. Walk with friends when you can.
  - c. Do not walk in alleys or dark places.

B. Discuss unsafe places to walk (dark, dimly lit, no lights; no people around, loitering people; no phones, no way to quickly get help; lots of places for people to hide) and what makes them unsafe.

1. Show slides of unsafe areas, pointing out why they are unsafe or potentially unsafe (approaches by strangers, hidden attackers). Elicit discussion.
2. Tell the students that if they absolutely must travel through an unsafe place, to walk briskly and keep looking around and behind them for possible dangers.

C. Ask students to state the three rules for walking safely.

UNIT 6: LESSON 4

SKILL: Identifying appropriate responses to strangers' inappropriate advances.

OBJECTIVE: The student will verbalize an appropriate response to a stranger's advances (say "NO", ignore, and walk away).

MATERIALS

SSH 802

Woman in Alley - with questions and
activities

ACTIVITIES

- A. Review the concepts of saying "no", unit 4
- B. Explain that sometimes when walking, strangers may come and "badger" - talk to you, ask for money, ask for a match, ask to walk with you, tease, or touch
  1. Explain and demonstrate that students must say "no" to these people, then ignore them, and walk away quickly.
  2. Practice skills of:
    - a. saying "no"
    - b. ignoring
    - c. walking away quickly
- C. Ask students to recall the three rules for walking safely. Tell them they are going to see a show about a person who forgot the rule. Present slide show, reading the script. Discuss major concepts and complete activities at end of script.
- D. Ask students to explain what they would do if a stranger made inappropriate advances toward them.

UNIT 6: LESSON 5

SKILL: Handling inappropriate advances while walking.

OBJECTIVE: The student will demonstrate appropriate responses to inappropriate advances by an approaching stranger.

MATERIALS

WN 817 + 822

ACTIVITIES

- A. Review what to do if approached while walking by a stranger. Emphasize that the students should ignore the stranger and walk away briskly and purposefully.
- B. Read the stories and ask questions at the end.
- C. Ask each student to show you what he/she should do if approached while walking by a stranger. Teacher or another student role plays the part of the stranger in the stories.

SKILL: Learning to ride the bus safely.

OBJECTIVE: The student will discriminate unsafe bus situations.

MATERIALS

SSH 801: Boy at Bus Stop--with questions, and activities.

WN 823 - 828

ACTIVITIES

- A. Discuss appropriate steps in riding a bus:
1. waiting at the bus stop
  2. paying bus fare
  3. finding a seat
  4. getting off and walking to destination
- B. Discuss inappropriate responses in bus travel. For example:
1. riding with a stranger, if bus doesn't come
  2. leaving with someone you just met to get something to eat
  3. getting off the bus with a stranger and going to his/her house
- C. Present slide show, reading script. Discuss concepts and complete activities at end of script.
- D. Read each of the stories and ask what the character should do. Role play each story, having students take turns demonstrating what they would do in the situation.

ALTERATIONS

UNIT 6: LESSON 7

SKILL: Safely getting help in emergency situations.

OBJECTIVE: The student will identify 2 ways to safely get help in an emergency situation.

MATERIALS

WN 829 - 832

ACTIVITIES

- A. Review rule: "NEVER ride with a stranger."
- B. Discuss emergency situations. Emphasize that student should not take rides from strangers, but they can get strangers to help them:
  - 1. Ask the stranger to call the police, ambulance, etc.
  - 2. Ask the stranger to get help.
- C. Read stories of emergency situations. Ask students to identify 2 ways they could safely get help.
- D. Role play responses to story situations.

SUM UP "NEVER TRAVEL WITH STRANGERS" RULE

Storyline:

A woman is shopping in a supermarket. A man follows her and begins to chat with her while they are shopping. The man helps her put things into her basket and waits for her at the check-out counter. He offers her a ride home because she was going to take the bus. It is cold and he seems very friendly and fun, so she accepts the ride. She tells him which way to her house but he suggests another route. She begins to get worried. He drives her to a deserted stretch of road, hauls her out of the car, and assaults her.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. It is dangerous to accept rides from strangers.
2. It is dangerous to accept rides from acquaintances.
3. It is safer to meet new acquaintances at public places for the first few meetings (more detail in Unit 7, Lessons 4, 5, and 6.

REVIEW QUESTIONS:

- A. Why shouldn't you ride with strangers or someone you just met?
- B. What if the man keeps insisting that she ride with him?
- C. What if it is cold and raining and you don't want to wait for the bus?
- D. What should you do if you want to see the man again?

ACTIVITIES

1. Select students to role play saying "no" assertively to a stranger or an acquaintance who offers them a ride. Have the students stand away from the car.
2. Discuss appropriate modes of transportation for students to use so they avoid potential exploitation (e.g. buses, walking, rides from friends or relatives).
3. Discuss public places where it is safe to meet acquaintances or new friends in order to get to know them better in a safe environment.

4. Ask students to role play saying "no" to the ride invitation and then inviting the man to meet in a public place. This invitation could be to meet directly after the shopping is completed ( example: "Why don't I meet you down the street for coffee?" or to meet somewhere at a later date).
5. Discuss what the woman could do if she did not want to talk to the man at all. What if the man was bothering her? What should she do?
  - a. Tell the man "I'm not going to talk to you now. Please don't follow me."
  - b. If the man persists, ask a store clerk to help you.
  - c. If the store clerk will not help you, ask to use the phone and call the police.
  - d. Do not leave the store until you are sure the man cannot follow you or harm you.

NOTE: You may want to show the slide series The Boy at the Bus Stop directly after showing this series in order to help male clients understand that taking rides from strangers is equally dangerous for men. You can then have role playing practice after both slide series have been shown.

STORYLINE: A boy is waiting for a bus on a cold, wet day. A man in a car offers him a ride and he gets into the car. The man drives him to a deserted school yard where his buddy is waiting. They assault the boy.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. It is dangerous to accept rides from strangers.
2. It is dangerous to accept rides from acquaintances.
3. Even if someone appears to be friendly, it is dangerous to accept a ride unless he/she is a friend or family member.

SHOW ASSERTIVENESS REPLAY SLIDES 22 - 30. Discuss appropriate assertiveness used by the young man to avoid potential harm.

ACTIVITIES

1. Role play saying "no" to a friendly stranger offering a ride.
2. Discuss appropriate and safe ways to travel by bus.

STORYLINE: A woman walking down an alley is followed by a man. He stops her and asks for a match to light his cigarette. Instead of taking the match, he grabs her, forces her to the ground and assaults her.

DANGERS: Walking down deserted alleys and stopping to interact with strange men in deserted places.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. It is important that clients learn to avoid potential danger areas like alleys, even in the daytime. Stress that there are few people close enough to hear screams for help.
2. Clients should learn to generalize this situation to other unsafe places.
3. Students need to learn to be firm, even unfriendly, to discourage a possibly dangerous stranger.

RECAP ENTIRE STORY

REVIEW QUESTIONS

- A. What are some places where you shouldn't walk alone?
- B. What can you do if a man follows you when you walk away from him? ( Try to walk fast or run to an area where there are other people)

SHOW ASSERTIVENESS REPLAY SLIDES 17 - 25. Discuss appropriate assertiveness used by the woman to avoid exploitation.

ACTIVITIES

1. Select students to role play saying "no" assertively to a stranger and continuing to walk away briskly. (Ask the stranger to be persistent).
2. Ask students to role play more difficult but similar situations such as a man asking directions ( Say "I don't know where that is," or offer brief directions while continuing to walk away.)
3. Discuss safer places to walk than areas where no people are around. Instruct students to avoid such areas when possible.

UNIT 7

SELF-PROTECTION IN SOCIAL SITUATIONS

INTRODUCTION

In this unit, social situations are broadly defined as any situation in which the student is interacting with friends, acquaintances, and/or strangers, such as parties, dates, and social get-togethers. The materials in this unit continually emphasize that it is important and appropriate to meet new friends, but that it is also important to become acquainted with these new persons in a safe and careful manner.

Our data indicate that many handicapped men and women are exploited in a private setting with a stranger or new acquaintance. For example, several cases involved women who met men for the first time at a party, became acquainted for several hours, and then left the party and went to the house or room where the exploitation occurred.

In order to protect themselves from being exploited, students are encouraged to meet new friends in public places for at least the first two encounters. This process may discourage a potentially exploitive person, who is generally seeking a more vulnerable victim, and may protect those students who are unable to judge whether a new person is trustworthy. This method of becoming acquainted also allows the time and opportunity to determine whether the acquaintance is truly a trustworthy individual.

Several slide stories are included in this unit as well as audio tapes in which students are confronted with situations in which they must decline invitations to go somewhere alone with a stranger or acquaintance. Students should be taught to invite the stranger or acquaintance either to meet or remain in a public setting. Students can role play these invitations.

UNIT GOAL

The student will avoid exploitation in social situations.

LESSON SUMMARIES

- Pretest: The student states the appropriate response to safe and unsafe social situations.
- Lesson 1: The student identifies safe ways to travel to social events.
- Lesson 2: The student states the "stranger" rule - "Never go off alone."
- Lesson 3: The student demonstrates refusing a ride from a stranger..
- Lesson 4: The student recites 2 ways to safely meet friends.
- Lesson 5: The student recalls 3 public places.
- Lesson 6: The student refuses a ride from a stranger and suggests an alternative.
- Lesson 7: The student says "No" to inappropriate/undesired touching and offers an alternative behavior.
- Posttest: Same procedure as Pretest

UNIT 7: LESSON 4

SKILL: Learning to meet new friends safely.

OBJECTIVE: The student will recite two appropriate ways to safely meet new friends.

MATERIALS

WN 905 - 910

ACTIVITIES

A. Review the rule: NEVER go off alone with a stranger or someone you just met.

B. Discuss social situations - that these are good places to meet new friends. It's important to meet new friends. We are going to talk about how to do it safely. These are two good rules to always follow:

1. Invite the new friend to meet or remain in a public place for at least two meetings. Emphasize that students must not travel with the new friend to a public place; that they must go separately and meet each other there.
2. Invite the new person to come to your house when your parents are home.

C. Explain that you are going to read stories of situations in which people meet new friends:

1. Discuss each story, keeping in mind the two rules for meeting new friends.
2. Ask students to pretend they are the main character in the story and demonstrate what they would do. Be sure the demonstration shows their understanding of the two rules.

D. Have students role play the inappropriate story situations to practice saying "no" and finding an alternative.

CRITERION: Identification of two appropriate ways to safely meet new friends in two different social situations without prompting.

AT 901: Jan and May with script. (see Unit 5 for script)

SSH 903: Bowling Alley with script, questions and activities.

SSH 904: Teenage Party with script, questions and activities.

ACTIVITIES

A. Review two rules for meeting new friends. Also review travel safety (never accept rides from strangers). Explain that these rules apply when student is by himself and also when he and a friend are together and a stranger wants to give both a free ride.

B. Discuss that students must not accept rides with strangers or someone they just met. The student could be left in a strange place or hurt if he doesn't know the driver well. Tell the students they are going to see a story about 2 people at a bowling alley who are offered a ride by some people they just met at the bowling alley.

C. Present slide shows discussing questions and completing activities at end of script.

D. Review the three rules to follow when meeting new friends:

1. NEVER go off alone with a stranger or someone you just met.
2. Invite a new friend to your home (when 1 parent is home).
3. Invite a new friend to meet you in a public place.

ACTIVITIES

E. Discuss alternative behaviors:

1. Stay at alley and bowl. Perhaps arrange to bowl together another day (meet at alley), if they want to.

2. Say "NO." If men persist in "bugging" them, report it to adult at bowling alley.

F. Have students pretend they are the main character in the slide show. In a role play situation, have the students demonstrate:

1. What they would do

2. An alternate action

G. Play tapes and ask students to respond with alternative meeting places.

CRITERION: Given 3 trials, 2 demonstrations of offering alternate public meeting places without prompting.

A. Review safety practices to be taken in social situations. Also review that the students have the right to say "no" to others touching their private body parts. Explain that sometimes they may go to social events with a new friend and that sometimes that person may try to touch the student inappropriately. Tell the students that they have the right to say "no" and they do not owe the person anything even though the person may try to tell the student that he or she does.

Tell the students that not only should they say "no" but they should also go home immediately and they should do so by bus or by calling their parents. Emphasize that they should not go home with the person who touched them inappropriately.

B. Tell the students that they will listen to a tape about a girl on a date. Tell them that they should respond whenever the narrator asks what the main character should do.

C. Play the tape and discuss.

Should Joan take the ride with her friend?

WN 903

Margie was sitting alone at the basketball game. Some kids that she didn't know came over and sat next to her. They began to tell her about a party they were having after the game and invited her to come along.

Should Margie go to a party with kids she just met?

WN 904

Brian lived in a group home. One night when everyone was watching TV, a new boy sat down next to Brian and began rubbing his hand along the inside part of Brian's thigh.

What should Brian do?

WN 905

Chris had been practicing all week for the Special Olympics. When Saturday came, she ran her best and came in second. At the dance, she met some other winners. She particularly enjoyed dancing with Joel. Even though she had only met him once, she liked him. Joel asked her if she wanted to go bowling next weekend.

What should Chris do?

WN 906

Celeste was at a church picnic. All the other kids her age were sitting together. One of the boys Celeste didn't know asked her to take a walk with him.

WN 910

A bunch of Anne's friends decided to go rollerskating on Friday night. Anne went with them and met a guy named Joe. Both of them had a great time and Joe wanted to see Anne again. "How about meeting me at the diner across the street for lunch tomorrow?"

What should Anne do?

Storyline: A woman is introduced to a strange man at a party. He gives her too much liquor and puts his arm around her. He persuades her to leave the party and go with him to a room down the hall. In the bedroom, he rapes her.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. It is dangerous to go off alone with someone you just met.
2. If you drink, be aware that alcohol affects judgment and increases vulnerability to exploitation.
3. Parties are a good source of recreation and for meeting new friends, but it's probably not OK to kiss anyone passionately in public.
4. It is OK for a friend to put his/her arm around you or to give you a light kiss, if you want to.
5. If someone touches you and you don't want them to, it's OK to assertively tell them "no".
6. If you want to make friends with a new person, meet them in public places for the first time or two.

REVIEW QUESTIONS

- A. Is it OK to go off alone with a stranger or someone you just met and kiss, hug, or be affectionate?
- B. Is it OK to go off with a friend and be affectionate?
- C. What should you do if a man is touching you and you don't want him to?
- D. Where are good places to meet new friends?

SHOW ASSERTIVENESS REPLAY SLIDES 27 - 43. Discuss that this is one way of responding to the situation if the woman does not want to have physical contact with the man.

ACTIVITIES

ALTERNATIVE 1: (Responses when you don't want the man to touch you)

1. Select students to role play asking a man not to put his arm around them.
2. Select students to role play asking a man not to touch them and moving from the man.

ALTERNATIVE 2: (Responses if you like the man)

1. Explain that it is fine to meet new people, but only in public places at first.
2. Role play asking the man either to remain in the living room, or to meet later in a public place. (Remind them to travel to the public place separately)
3. Discuss how many times you should meet someone before going off alone with them.

*This is a good opportunity to review positive sexuality. It is OK to share affections with someone you have met several times in a public place who has been nice to you and who has done things that help you trust them.

Storyline: Three women are at a cafe. Two men who are acquaintances are sitting at another table. The men become friendly and move to the women's table. The men invite one woman to go with them to their house. She leaves her friends and gets into the men's car. They drive her to their house. Once inside, they assault her.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. It is dangerous to go places alone with someone you just met.
2. It's fun to meet new people, but meet them in public places for the first two times. (More detail in Unit 7, Lessons 4, 5, and 6.)

REVIEW QUESTIONS

- A. What should you do if people you just met ask you to go somewhere with them?
- B. How can you get to know new friends better?
- C. Where are good places to meet new friends?

SHOW ASSERTIVENESS REPLAY SLIDES 30 - 45.

ACTIVITIES

1. Select a group of students to take turns role playing saying "no" when an acquaintance asks them to leave the group. (Cue the acquaintances to be persistent.)
2. Discuss safe places where the students can meet people they don't know.
3. Ask individual students to invite the acquaintances to remain in a public place with them, or to meet in another public place.
4. Discuss modes of transportation for meeting new acquaintances in public places.

Storyline: A young couple are at a bowling alley. Two men come up and begin using the next alley. They talk and all four leave at the same time. In the parking lot, the two men invite the couple to come with them in their van. The couple accept. The men drive down a lonely road and throw the boy out. They drive off with the girl and rape her.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. It is dangerous to accept rides with people you just met.
2. It is dangerous to accept rides with acquaintances even if there is a friend with you.
3. It is safer to make new friends by meeting in public places for first two times.

REVIEW QUESTIONS

- A. Should you accept a ride with a new person?
- B. What if you want to get to know these men better?
- C. What are some safe places to meet new friends?

SHOW ASSERTIVENESS REPLAY SLIDES 33 - 48. Discuss the couple's assertive response and the fact that the couple is safe and will not be hurt now.

ACTIVITIES

1. Select female - male pairs to role play saying "no" assertively to someone they just met who offers them a ride.
2. Discuss the fact that although it is not safe to go off with someone you just met alone, it is OK to meet them in a public place so that you can get to know them better.
3. Once students can say "no" assertively, ask the couples to say no to the ride invitation, then to invite the new people to meet them in a public place.
4. Discuss modes of transportation for meeting new people in public places.
5. Practice making suggestions for alternative meeting places.

Storyline: A young woman and her boyfriend are at a party. They want something to drink so they go into the kitchen. After getting the drinks out of the refrigerator, the young man backs the young woman up against the refrigerator door. He tries to put his hand on her breast, and kiss her. She pushes his hand off her breast and tells him she doesn't want him to touch her like that. She explains to him that she really likes him but she doesn't want him to touch her breast. She suggests that they get their drinks and go back to the living room and dance. He pours their drinks and they go back to the party in the living room. They continue to dance and enjoy each others company.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. If you don't want to be touched, you can say "no".
2. You can still remain friends and/or have a good time after saying "no".
3. If you want to be touched, that's OK too. (Except you should choose a more appropriate setting, talk about positive sexuality.)

ACTIVITIES

1. Discuss with students the fact that they do not owe their boyfriends sexual favors simply because they are dating.
2. Explain that it is the student's right to say "no" to pushy boyfriends. Have students role play a dating situation like the slide show.
3. Discuss ways to say "no" without jeopardizing the relationship.

THE VALENTINE'S DAY DANCE

AT 900

- NARR: It was Valentine's Day and the school had planned a dance. Debbie and Mary had decided to go together. The gym was beautifully decorated with the tables surrounding the dance floor. Mary and Debbie sat down at one of the tables to talk.
- MARY: It sure looks nice in here. No one would believe that it is really just a gym. Why, I was playing volleyball in here just last Friday.
- DEBBIE: Yeah, it looks great - and everyone seems to be having such a good time. I hope we have the chance to dance.
- NARR: Mary and Debbie didn't have to wait long until some fellows came over and sat down.
- BOB: Hi, girls. My name is Bob, and this is Jack. What are your names?
- NARR: What should Debbie and Mary say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:
BOB: What are your names?
MARY: My name is Mary and this is Debbie.
- BOB: Why don't we dance this next song?
- GIRLS: Sure.
- NARR: Mary and Debbie enjoyed dancing with Bob and Jack the entire evening, but soon people began to leave.
- BOB: Well, this party is getting to be a drag. What'd ya say we go over to my house for something to eat? My folks have gone away for the weekend, so we'll have the house to ourselves.
- NARR: What should the girls say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:
BOB: What'd ya say we go over to my house for something to eat?
MARY: No, let's meet at Pizza Hat restaurant instead, OK?
- BOB: Well, all right. I'll drive.
- NARR: What should the girls say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:
BOB: I'll drive.
MARY: That's OK. We'll meet you there in my car.
- BOB: Aw, come on, I've got a new car. Come on and ride with us!
- NARR: What should the girls say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:
DEBBIE: No, we'll meet you there in my car.
BOB: (reluctant) All right. See you there.

NOTE TO THE TEACHER: Please explain to the class that in this story the main character, Rita is out on a date with somebody she doesn't know well. Rita does not want to be touched by John.

NARR: Rita was excited about her plans for the evening. Her friend Ann, had gotten her a date with the cousin of her boyfriend. She had never met him before tonight. They had planned to go to a concert and then go out for Cokes.

RITA: That was a wonderful concert. It's been a long time since I've heard such great music. Where shall we go for something to drink?

ANN: Let's go over to my place. I've got a new blender that I'm dying to try out. Milk shakes would be perfect.

NARR: Ann made everyone milkshakes. She put some music on the stereo, sat down beside her boyfriend and put her hand on his shoulder. Pretty soon they were kissing and stroking each other. Rita was feeling pretty awkward. She felt her date's arm slip around her shoulder as he pressed his lips next to hers. Rita did not want to kiss John.

What should Rita say? ( 5 sec. pause) A good response would be:
RITA: I don't want to kiss you. Let's do something else.

JOHN: Aw, come on.

NARR: Rita's date pulled her closer and continued to kiss her. He tried to put his hand inside her blouse. Rita felt very uneasy. She just did not feel like kissing John.

What should Rita say? ( 5 sec. pause) A good response would be:
RITA: Stop. I don't want you to do that.

NARR: Rita went to the phone and called home to ask her father to come pick her up. No one was home. Rita hung up the phone. Her date came over.

JOHN: No one home? Why don't I take you home?

NARR: Rita was scared, she didn't feel like she could trust her date to take her directly home.

What should Rita say? ( 5 sec. pause) A good answer would be:
JOHN: Why don't I take you home?

RITA: No, thanks. I think I'll take a bus home. Thank you for taking me to the concert. Good-bye.

NARR: Rita walked outside to the bus stop and caught a bus home. When she was safely inside her house the phone rang. It was John. He apologized for not respecting her wishes, and asked if she would go out with him some other time.

INTRODUCTION:

Unfortunately, people often hold false assumptions about the security offered by their homes. Statistical evidence indicates that the home can be a dangerous setting where rapes can and do occur. National statistics gathered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation indicate that the most frequent setting for rape is the victim's home, with an average of one-third of all rapes occurring in that setting. Rapists gain access to their victims through both legal and illegal entry to a private home.

This unit is intended to teach students how to recognize potentially dangerous situations which can occur or exist in their homes. Self protection practices are introduced which students should exercise at all times while at home.

Two major areas of knowledge are covered in the unit:

1. Safety practices within the home, such as locking doors and windows, using a chain lock or "peephole".
2. Self protection procedures which should be followed when responding to a stranger or acquaintance who comes to the door.

In this unit, students will learn how to contend with various persons (such as a salesman who may come to the door, or a stranger who needs help). Police statistics indicate that some rapists gain access to their victims by either dressing in "disguise" as repairman (for example, the "Boston Strangler") or appearing desperate for assistance (for example, "My car is broken"). This unit is especially important for handicapped people who may move into unsupervised settings. For example, those individuals who move from residential facilities (group homes, halfway houses) into independent apartments. As the trend towards independent living increases, the need for home safety training becomes even more important.

UNIT GOAL

The student will practice safety precautions to prevent exploitation in the home.

LESSON SUMMARIES: (Note: Unit 8 is divided into two sections. Section A deals with making the home safe against intruders. Section B teaches the students to respond safely to people who come to the door. There is a separate Pretest and Posttest for each section).

Lesson A-1: The student states 2 home safety rules.

Lesson A-3: The student corrects unsafe home situations.

Lesson A-4: The student demonstrates opening the door safely.

Pretest B: The student will demonstrate refusal to let a stranger into the house and will discriminate those people who should be let in the house and those who should not be let in.

Lesson B-1: The student will discriminate safe and unsafe persons who may come to the door.

Lesson B-2: The student will demonstrate refusing to let a stranger or acquaintance into the house.

Lesson B-3: The student will demonstrate responding appropriately to a repairman's request to enter.

Lesson B-4: The student will demonstrate responding appropriately to a salesperson's request to enter.

Lesson B-5: The student will state a response helping a stranger at the door without letting him in the house.

Lesson B-6: The student will protect personal information on the telephone.

Posttest: Same as Pretest.

UNIT 8: PRETEST A

OBJECTIVE: The student will identify safe actions for home safety.

SKILL: Identifying safe conditions in the home. (eg. locked doors and windows)

OBJECTIVE: The student will state two home safety rules.

MATERIALS

ACTIVITIES

ALTERATIONS

SS 1001 - 1019

A. Discuss different ways to keep home safe against fire, theft, exploitation, etc. (Turn stove burners off, smoke detectors)

B. Explain that these are specific things that people do to keep their homes safe against people who might try to hurt or who might try to rob them.

C. Present slides and elicit discussion by following script.

D. Ask students to name unsafe conditions. List on board. (Teacher can help students by reminding them of the safe slides--examples: Remember the picture of the window that was shut and locked? That was a safe condition. What would the window look like if it were unsafe?)

E. Ask each student to individually state their own list of home safety rules and write them on the board. Put the students name by the rule stated to aid in data keeping.

SKILL: Identifying unsafe conditions in the home.

OBJECTIVE: Given a story, the student will identify two home safety errors.

MATERIALS

WN 1001 - 1003

ACTIVITIES

A. Tell the students that you are going to read them a story about a person who makes several home safety mistakes.

B. Ask the students to raise their hands whenever they recognize a mistake. Call on a student to tell you what the mistake was, then proceed with the story.

SKILL: Correcting unsafe conditions in the house.

OBJECTIVE: After identifying unsafe conditions in the house, the student will describe how two of those conditions could be changed to make the house safer.

MATERIALS

SSH 1000: Open Window with script, questions
and activities.

WN 1001- 1003

ACTIVITIES

A. Present slide show. Discuss alternatives to make the home more safe.

B. Read the stories. Reidentify the main character's errors. Ask students how the errors could be corrected.

SKILL: Answering the door safely.

OBJECTIVE: The student will answer a door by checking a peephole, asking "Who is it?" and opening the door with the chain lock secured.

MATERIALS

- * Dead bolt lock
- * Chain lock
- * Peephole

- * Not included

ACTIVITIES

- A. Explain to the students that they know how to keep people out of their houses by locking windows and doors and taking other safety precautions. Explain that there is another way to keep unwanted people out of the house and that is by taking special precautions when opening the door.
- B. Tell the students that all doors should have one of the following:
1. peephole      2. chain lock      3. dead bolt lock
The dead bolt lock should be secured at all times.
- C. Tell the students that when someone knocks on the door, to peep through the peephole first. If they know the person, they can open the door. If there is no peephole or they cannot see the person through the window, they should not open the door. If an adult is at home, they should get the adult to come to the door.
- D. Tell the students that if there isn't a peephole in the door, they should ask, "Who is it?" Only if the person is a friend or family member should the door be opened.
- E. Have each student answer the door and practice asking "Who is it?" Each student should practice getting an adult to come to the door or looking through a peephole to determine if the person is a friend, family member or stranger.
- F. Discuss the type of door students have at home. Identify the safest way to answer the door and role play situations for practice.

Mike's parents were going out for the evening, and leaving Mike alone. It was Friday night, but Mike didn't mind being alone. He even enjoyed the idea of having the house to himself.

Mike's parents had been gone for about an hour when he started feeling hungry. There was a drive-in a few blocks from his house. He decided he had enough money for a hamburger and a milkshake. Mike was about to leave the house when he remembered to get the key. The key was nowhere to be found. Mike looked in his pockets, on the table, and in the kitchen, but there was no key. He decided to leave the door unlocked.

At the drive-in he saw a boy from his school. The boy asked Mike what he was doing. Mike said he was staying home alone and went out for a hamburger. He felt very grown up.

A stranger standing nearby had been listening. The stranger asked where Mike lived. Mike told him.

When Mike got home, he forgot to lock the door. All he wanted to do was watch T.V. He forgot to pull the blinds and sat in the window watching T.V. Soon, Mike was fast asleep.

It was a rainy afternoon in December and already dark when Sally got home from school. "Oh, no," she thought to herself, walking up to the front door. "I forgot to leave the porch light on." She was in a hurry though, and didn't have time to worry about it.

Sally lived with her mother in her grandparent's old house. Her mother worked so Sally left for school from an empty house, and since her mother didn't get home until six o'clock, Sally also returned to an empty house. She always started dinner for her mother and herself. She barely had time to change her clothes before it was time to start the potatoes and salad. Tonight she was in an especially big hurry because she had invited her friend Paul to join them for dinner.

The house was dark as she hurried inside. She had also forgotten to leave on a light in the livingroom. Then she went directly into her bedroom to change her clothes. She had so many things on her mind that she didn't even think about locking the front door.

She was standing in her slip, brushing her hair and trying to decide what to wear when the phone rang. She ran into the livingroom to answer the phone without bothering to put on a dress or bathrobe.

The person on the phone said they were offering a special on rug cleaning. Sally looked down at the dirty carpet and said, "My mother might be interested but she isn't home right now."

The man on the phone asked, "Is someone else home who I could talk to?"

Sally replied, "No, only my mother and I live here and she's at work."

The man asked, "Is she ever home during the day when I might call her?"

Sally said, "Only on the weekends."

"HMMM," the man said. "The office is closed on weekends but I could send out a representative to talk to her. Is the address you have listed in the phone book correct?"

"Yes," said Sally.

"Well, thank you very much and good-bye."

Sally hung up the phone only to notice the drapes were wide open. She ran back to her room hoping no one had seen her.

She was in the kitchen busily peeling potatoes when she felt someone pinch her waist. She screamed and whirled around only to see Paul standing in front of her. He stood with his hands on his hips, shaking his head and laughing as he said, "What did you expect? The front door wasn't locked?"

Rick knew something was wrong the minute he saw his mother's face. She was usually smiling, with bright cheerful eyes. Today when Rick got home from school, his mother's eyes were sad, and she was only able to give him a quick, nervous smile.

She said, "Your grandfather is very ill, I must leave town for a few days. Aunt Mary will come and stay with you. The only thing I'm worried about is I must leave tonight and Aunt Mary can't come until tomorrow afternoon. You'll have to stay here alone until she arrives. But I know you'll be all right, won't you?"

Rick didn't want his mother to worry. He said, "Sure, Mom. Don't worry about me. I'll be fine."

That night Rick was alone. He got hungry. He decided to take the money his mother left and go get a hamburger. He was so busy thinking about his mom, his grandfather, and Aunt Mary that he forgot his home safety rules. He forgot to lock the door; he forgot to leave a light on; he left the drapes wide open. Then he walked to the "Tasty Kitchen", a cafe near his home.

Rick sat down at the corner counter. A man sat down beside him. The man looked familiar. Rick smiled at him. The man said, "You live in the yellow house on 39th street, don't you?"

Rick nodded.

The man asked, "What are you doing here alone?"

Rick told the man that his mother had left for a few days and that he would be alone until Aunt Mary arrived tomorrow.

The man said, "Would you like me to visit you?"

Rick smiled and nodded. Then he finished his meal. The man was still eating when Rick got up to go. He waved at Rick and said, "Maybe I'll see you later."

Rick walked alone in the dark to a dark house.

One evening about three weeks before Christmas, Don was in the workshop with his dad. They were building a dollhouse for Don's little sister. They had the house to themselves that night and were hoping to get a lot done. Don's little sister was getting so snooty that the only way they could surprise her was to work on the dollhouse when she wasn't home. They heard a knock at the door. Don's dad said, "I wonder who that could be. Were you expecting anyone?" Don shook his head no. His dad said, "Neither was I. Go answer it, will you?"

An old man was standing at the door. He said, "I'm looking for the Freidman residence. Do you know where they live?"

"No," said Don, "but my dad might. I'll go ask him."

"Thank you," said the man, "may I wait inside? It's so cold outside!"

One evening Joe's family went to see his cousin's new baby. Joe couldn't go because he was just getting over the flu and his mother was afraid he might still be contagious. He was content to stay home and work on his model airplane. There was a knock. Joe opened the door to a young man in jeans and T-shirt. The man said, "Is your father home?" Joe said, "no." The man didn't leave. He said, "I work with your dad and I need very much to speak with him. It's very important. Can you tell me where he is?" Joe told the man that he didn't have the address or phone number but that his father would be home in an hour or so. The man said, "I need very much to see him. May I wait for him?"

Hal was supposed to wash the morning dishes. Before his mother left, she said, "I'll be home by noon and I expect this kitchen to be clean." He always hated to wash dishes, but he found it especially boring when he was alone. Just when the pile of dishes was beginning to look like a mountain, Hal heard a knock at the door. He ran to answer it, hoping his friend Bobby might have decided to drop by. Instead of finding Bobby, he found a well dressed man carrying a briefcase. The man smiled at Hal and said, "Hi, I'm sorry to bother you, but I have a problem. My car broke down and I'm on my way to an important meeting. May I use your phone?"

Hal knew he wasn't supposed to let strangers into the house but the man looked okay. He said, "My mother will be back soon. She might let you use the phone."

The stranger frowned and said, "By then it will be too late. Couldn't I just come in for a minute? Here I'll even pay you a dollar if you let me use the phone." He reached into his pocket and pulled out a crisp new dollar.

Hal looked at the dollar wondering if he should take it.

TALK ABOUT NOT LETTING STRANGERS IN THE HOUSE AND BEING CAREFUL

- 24 How does she feel now? (hurt, scared)

RECAP ENTIRE STORY

- A. Why should you keep the doors locked and chained?
- B. How can you help someone without letting them into your house?

SHOW ASSERTIVENESS REPLAY SLIDES 25 - 46

ACTIVITIES

1. Have the students role play saying "no" to the stranger who asks to come inside the house. (Ask the stranger to be persistent and sound desperate)
2. Discuss with the group: What could the woman do to help the stranger without letting him into the house?
3. Have students role play several alternatives:
  - a. Saying "no" to the man's request to come in. Offer to call a service station or tow truck. Keep door chained.
  - b. Saying "no" to the man's request to come inside. Direct him to a pay phone down the street. Keep the door chained.

NOTE TO THE TEACHER: Students should not allow traveling salesmen into their homes for two reasons: 1. The salesman could be a rapist in disguise, 2. The salesman may swindle the student with a complex sales agreement.

NARR: Peggy was at home alone one day when the doorbell rang. She went to the door and opened the door a few inches with the chain lock still attached.

PEGGY: Yes.....?

JIM: Hi, I'm Jim Dunnaway from Evans Cookware. I'd like to show you our new line of stick-free cookware. May I come in?

NARR: What should Peggy say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:

JIM: May I come in?

PEGGY: No, I'm not interested.

NARR: The salesman did not seem to hear Peggy at all. He persisted enthusiastically.

JIM: Ma'am, this is a great opportunity for a fine deal on the best stick-free cookware made. Everything is half off store prices and our products are unconditionally guaranteed for one year. How about letting me in for just a minute to show you our merchandise?

NARR: What should Peggy do? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:

JIM: How about letting me in for just a minute to show you our merchandise?

PEGGY: No, I'm really not interested.

JIM: (very quickly) Well then, I'll just give you one of our sample items, so you can at least try it out.

NARR: Peggy wanted a free cooking pan, but she did not want to take the chain lock off the door so the salesman could hand her the pan.

NARR: What should Peggy say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:

JIM: Well then, I'll just give you one of our free sample items.

PEGGY: No, I'm not interested. Good-bye.

NARR: Peggy shut the door and locked it. She watched through the window as the salesman departed down the stairs.

DISCUSSION: Review with students why it is unsafe to allow traveling salesmen into their homes.

AT 1001

AN ACQUAINTANCE COMES TO MARILYN'S DOOR

NARR: Marilyn had been working as a cashier in a restaurant for several months. She had been approached by two or three strange men who seemed to want to take her out, but she had managed to avoid giving them information about herself, where she lived and so forth.

Marilyn was off work this particular evening and was settling down at home to watch a little television. She was alone at home tonight and was a little nervous. She was just sitting down as someone knocked on the door.

MARILYN: Who is it?

MAN: It's me, Dave, from the restaurant. Remember? I was talking to you last night.

NARR: Marilyn remembered, all right, he seemed to be nice enough, but Marilyn was puzzled as to how he had gotten her address. She cracked the door, making sure that the guard chain was secured.

MAN: You sure are locked up! Are you alone or something?

NARR: What should Marilyn say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: Are you alone or something?

MARILYN: I don't open the door to people I don't know very well.

MAN: Well, you know me, so how about letting me in?

NARR: what should Marilyn say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: How about letting me in?

MARILYN: No, I don't let people I don't know inside.

MAN: Surely you can trust me. Look, I brought you a box of candy. Now would a bad person do that?

NARR: What should Marilyn say? (5 second pause) A good answer would be:

MAN: I brought you some candy. Would a bad person do that?

MARILYN: Thanks for the present, Dave, but I still can't let you in.

MAN: (pushy, aggressively) Come on. Let me in!

NARR: Marilyn was afraid. She did not know Dave and did not think he was safe. What should Marilyn do? (5 second pause)

NOTE TO THE TEACHER: Under all circumstances, Marilyn should now close and bolt the door, then call the police.

NARR: Marilyn quickly closed the door and secured the bolt lock. She ran to the phone and called the police.

UNIT 9

AVOIDING EXPLOITATION BY AUTHORITY FIGURES

INTRODUCTION

Numerous mentally and physically handicapped individuals are exploited by "authority figures." These offenders are usually adults who have some control or authority over the handicapped person's life. Offenders do not represent any particular professional or economic group. For example, there have been cases reported involving volunteers, residential facility staff, work supervisors, bus drivers, school personnel, friends of the victim's family, and neighbors. It is important to realize that no particular group or type of authority figure should be singled out as a potential offender. Handicapped students must understand that regardless of status, authority, or profession, no one has the right to touch them inappropriately.

UNIT GOAL

The student will avoid exploitation by authority figures.

LESSON SUMMARIES

- Pretest: The student identifies inappropriate touching by authority figures and tell whether the touching should be reported.
- Lesson 1: The student recalls 5 authority figures.
- Lesson 2: The student discriminates appropriate and inappropriate touching by authority figures.
- Lesson 3: The student identifies an authority figure, exploitation, and appropriate assertive response.
- Lesson 4: The student reports exploitation regardless of threats.
- Lesson 5: The student demonstrates appropriate assertiveness techniques when touched inappropriately by authority figures.

UNIT 9: PRETEST

OBJECTIVE. The student will 1. discriminate between appropriate and inappropriate touching by authority figures and 2. will tell whether the touching should be reported.

MATERIALS

SS 1101, 1102, 1103,

ACTIVITIES

- A. Work with each student individually. Scramble the slides, then present to the student and read the accompanying script.
1. Did offender do anything wrong? What?
  2. Should victim tell someone what offender did?

ALTERATIONS

UNIT 9: LESSON 2

SKILL: Recognizing appropriate and inappropriate touching by authority figures.

OBJECTIVE: The student will discriminate between appropriate and inappropriate touching by authority figures.

MATERIALS

Slides of authority figures in appropriate and inappropriate touching situations.

SS 1101 - 1112

ACTIVITIES

A. Show the slides of authority figures touching appropriately.

1. Discuss each figure:
  - a. Who is he/she?
  - b. What is he/she doing in the slide?
  - c. Is that ok?
  - d. Why?
  - e. Who does student know in the role?

B. Discuss the fact that sometimes people touch others inappropriately and that this is not right to do.

C. Show slides of authority figures touching inappropriately.

- a. Who is he/she (what position)?
- b. What is he/she doing in the slide?
- c. Is that ok (or appropriate)?
- d. Should someone be told about this? (yes)

CRITERION: Correct identification of the authority figure, the exploitation, and the appropriate assertive response to two inappropriate touching situations with no prompting.

IF CRITERION IS MET: Proceed to Lesson 4.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Repeat Activities A and B.

UNIT 9: LESSON 4

SKILL: Handling threats and secrecy.

OBJECTIVE: The student will report exploitation, regardless of the offender's threats or desire for secrecy.

MATERIALS

WN 1111 - 1114

ACTIVITIES

A. Discuss with students that a sexual offender will sometimes threaten the victim. Define threat, giving examples such as , "I'll kill you if you tell anyone," or "I'll get you" etc. Be sure the students understand the concept. Tell students that even though they have been threatened, they should tell someone about the situation and ALSO tell that they have been threatened. Have students practice telling the teacher.

B. Discuss with students that some offenders will tell the victim to "keep it a secret," not to tell anyone, or that "this will be between us." Again students should report the incident anyway, and should say that the exploiter said to keep it a secret. Have the students practice telling the teacher.

C. Read the stories. Ask students whether or not the touching should be reported. It might be helpful to use the dolls from Unit 3, Private Body Parts, to demonstrate the touching in the stories.

ALTERATIONS

HEARING IMPAIRED:

CRITERION: Students successfully indicates whether touching should be reported on each story.

IF CRITERION IS MET: Proceed to Lesson 5.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Review discussion and role play.

UNIT 9: LESSON 5

SKILL: Avoiding sexual exploitation by authority figures.

OBJECTIVE: The student will demonstrate the appropriate action a person should take in the event that an authority figure inappropriately touches them.

MATERIALS

WN 1115 - 1123

ACTIVITIES

- A. Discuss appropriate assertive responses (saying "NO") to someone who touches inappropriately.
- B. Select student to role play. Read a story and ask student to act out an appropriate assertive response.

ALTERATIONS

HEARING IMPAIRED:
Sign language.

CRITERION: Given 3 trials, 2 demonstrations of saying "no" assertively to inappropriate touching by authority figures.

IF CRITERION IS MET: Proceed to Posttest.

IF CRITERION IS NOT MET: Review assertively saying "no" and alternative behaviors.

UNIT 9: POSTTEST

OBJECTIVE. The student will 1. discriminate between appropriate and inappropriate touching by authority figures and 2. will tell whether the touching should be reported.

MATERIALS

- 1112 The co-worker is showing her how to use the paper cutter. He touches her shoulder as he guides her arm to cut the paper. Did he do anything wrong? (no) Should she tell someone? (no)

Storyline: An adolescent girl waves good bye to her parents as she goes off to work. She is greeted by her boss. She works in an office addressing envelopes and does some typing. Her boss comes in and puts his hand on her telling her she does good work. At the end of the day, the boss passes out paychecks as the employees leave. The girl is the last one in the office. The boss comes into her office and closes the door. He touches her breast and buttocks. She goes home and doesn't tell her parents.

Through the assertive replay the girl says "no" to the boss. She tells her parents about the sexual abuse and the parents confront the boss. The girl starts work at a different workshop. There the boss is a nice man and interacts appropriately.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. Authority figures have control over the job; however it is OK to be assertive with a boss.
2. Authority figures do not have the right to touch inappropriately.
3. If inappropriate touching occurs, it is necessary to report it to a responsible adult.
4. When exploited by a boss, it is best to find another job. (Statistics demonstrate that the boss will likely repeat his behavior.)

ACTIVITIES

1. Review with students that authority figures do not have the right to touch the student and that the student should be assertive and say "no".
2. Discuss with students that when such situations occur that the student should report the incident immediately.
3. Have students pretend that they are the character in the story and demonstrate how they would say "no" assertively.
4. Teacher can make up other situations similar to the one that occurred in the slide show. Have students role play and show how they would handle the situation.

UNIT 10

AVOIDING EXPLOITATION AS AN EXCHANGE FOR FAVORS, GIFTS, OR KINDNESS

INTRODUCTION

In order to fully protect their personal rights, students must understand that they never owe anyone sexual contact in exchange for favors, gifts or other kind treatment. The lessons contained in Unit 10 provide different types of situations in which peers of the individual provide favors or kind treatment, then expect or demand sexual contact. Lesson 4 addresses the complicated issue of incest. Not only does Uncle Harry provide kindness to his niece, such as taking her to lunch, but he is an authority figure and a relative. Each of these issues can greatly confuse a handicapped individual (see General Introduction for further explanation). Up until this point, these have been considered separately. Lesson 4 provides an opportunity to review all of these issues as they occur within one exploitive incident.

UNIT GOAL

The student will not allow exploitation in return for a favor, gift or kindness.

LESSON SUMMARIES

- Pretest: The student identifies exploitation for a favor.
- Lesson 1: The student identifies a favor.
- Lesson 2: The student recognizes exploitation in return for a favor.
- Lesson 3: The student selects the appropriate response to inappropriate touching.
- Lesson 4: The student identifies an offender, the favor, and the appropriate assertive response.
- Lesson 5: The student discriminates whether or not a situation should be reported.
- Lesson 6: The student reports exploitation in spite of threats or demands for secrecy.
- Posttest: Repeat procedure of Pretest.

UNIT 10: LESSON 3

SKILL: Responding to inappropriate touching requested in return for a favor, gift, or kindness.

OBJECTIVE. Given 3 choices, the student will select the appropriate response to inappropriate touching.

MATERIALS

WN 1213 - 1217

ACTIVITIES

A. Review the concept of private body parts. (Refer to Unit 3) Emphasize that no one has the right to touch another's private body parts if that person doesn't want them to unless the touching is for hygienic reasons. Explain that sometimes people may expect touching or sex in return for a favor, and that this is wrong. Emphasize that the student does not owe anything in return for a favor.

B. Remind the student that in Unit 4 they learned how to say "no". Explain to the students that they have the right to say "no" to anyone who is touching their private parts, even if the person has just done them a favor. (Review Unit 4, Lesson 4) Remind them that they do not have to touch the other person's private body parts either.

C. Read the stories aloud. After each story, ask what the main character should do. Give the three choices. Ask students to choose the correct answer. Discuss the choice with the class.

D. Have the students pretend they are the main character and practice saying "no" to the inappropriate touching.

OBJECTIVE: The student will state whether or not a situation should be reported.

MATERIALS

WM 1218 - 1221

ACTIVITIES

A. Lead discussion reviewing concept of inappropriate touching. Tell students that all inappropriate touching is wrong, even when done for favors. Teacher explains that these situations should be reported.

B. Explain that this kind of incident should be reported to one responsible adult:

- |                    |                         |

- A. What favor did the brother do?
B. Who is the offender?
C. What could the sister do?

STORYLINE: A girl is going out with her boyfriend. He takes her out for dinner, pays her way to the movies, and buys her a necklace. While they are parking he begins to touch her breasts and implies that she owes it to him since he has done so many kind things for her, and especially since he gave her the necklace.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. Even though friends and acquaintances are friendly, they may sometimes try to take advantage of you sexually.
2. Even if a date is kind and gives you gifts, spends money on food and entertainment for you, you do not owe him anything in return.
3. If you feel indebted to a date, and wish to "even" up the score, you can do so in several ways without being sexually exploited: pay your own way (dutch treat) take turns treating.
4. You have the right to say "no" when one of these people touches you inappropriately.
5. Exploitive incidences must be reported to a responsible adult to prevent the incident from happening again.

ACTIVITIES

1. Discuss who the incident should be reported to if a friend or acquaintance sexually exploits them. Point out that the incident must be reported even if they were told to keep it a secret.

Page 3

2. Talk about different ways in which friends and acquaintances may appropriately touch each other.
3. Teacher can think up other situations where favors are offered. Have students role play how they would handle the situation.

STORYLINE: An adolescent girl in a group home is happy when her favorite uncle comes to take her out. They go to a cafe, then to his house. He fondles her breast. She is very uncertain about the uncle's behavior and is not really sure whether it is appropriate or not for him to touch her breast. Later, she tells her housemother. The housemother explains that Uncle Harry should not touch her breast. The housemother confronts Uncle Harry when he comes again and protects the girl from further advances.

MAJOR ISSUES

1. Although relatives may be kind, it is wrong for them to touch private body parts unless for health or hygiene reasons.
2. Use of favors, gifts (entertainment) and kindness by an authority figure (uncle) is not appropriate if sexual exploitation is the price.
3. Even though one may be fond of a relative, and have had many positive experiences with him, it is not appropriate behavior for a relative to touch private body parts. You don't owe him, you're not indebted to him.
4. When exploitation occurs, report it so that exploiter (uncle) can get help (counseling) - even if it means you don't see him for awhile.

RECAP ENTIRE STORY

- A. Although relatives may be kind, is it ok for them to touch private body parts?
- B. What should you do if someone touches you inappropriately?

ACTIVITIES

1. Discuss with students the fact that they never owe anyone sexual favors in exchange for gifts or kindnesses. Emphasize that no adult has the right to exercise authority by touching personal areas of the student's body unless for health reasons. Ask students: What other family members should not touch private body parts the way Uncle Harry touched the girl? (father, stepfather, grandfather, uncle, mother's boyfriend, etc.)
2. Explain that students can say "no" to the relative. Have students role play saying "no" to a relative. If the relative persists, the student should know how to leave the situation.
3. Discuss who should be told, if the students are victims of inappropriate touching. Students must tell a responsible adult. Reassure them that even if the offender told them to keep it a secret, or threatened them, they must tell someone what happened so they won't be touched again. (frequently, in incest cases, the offender tells the victim to keep what happened a secret)
4. Emphasize that students are never at fault if they are victims of this kind of sexual exploitation.
5. If appropriate, explain that the uncle in the story should get help, counseling, so that he can learn not to touch his niece's private body parts. Until then, she should not spend time with him alone.
6. Review appropriate ways family members can touch. (kiss, hug)

UNIT 11

INTRODUCTION

Students should be able to contact one or two trustworthy authority figures if they are victims of exploitation. If possible, the child should contact an immediate family member for assistance. However, because the child may have been exploited by a family member, it could be difficult for him/her to discuss the exploitation with another family member. (See General Introduction for further explanation.) Therefore, it is important for the child to know of at least two other resource people who are not family members. Teach the students to contact people who are highly accessible to the child in the school or community, and who will believe the student if he/she reports an incident of exploitation. Possible resource people are:

- a. teachers
- b. school nurse, counselor, or principal
- c. social workers
- d. doctors

It is very important to emphasize to students that they need to persist and report any incident of exploitation to a second adult if the first does not believe their story, or does not provide assistance. If possible, students should be taught to inform the adult about the availability of Rape Relief or other rape crisis agencies as a resource.

Finally, the students should be encouraged to report exploitive incidents even if the offender instructs them to keep such incidents a secret. It is possible that the offender will threaten the victim with unpleasant consequences if reported. If threatened in this way, students should still report incidents of exploitation. Under such circumstances, however, it is extremely important that agencies and individuals who are assisting the victim do so very cautiously so that the offender does not take action on any threats.

UNIT GOAL

The student will report exploitation to the appropriate people.

LESSON SUMMARIES

- Pretest: The student discriminates whether or not a situation should be reported and identifies to whom it should be reported.
- Lesson 1: The student discriminates inappropriate touching of private body parts that should be reported.
- Lesson 2: The student names 3 persons to contact about exploitation.
- Lesson 3: The student identifies procedure of reporting to a second and third person if the first doesn't believe them.
- Lesson 4: The student discriminates incidents to be reported and to whom they should be reported.
- Posttest: Same procedure as pretest.

- A. Review the concept of private body parts (see Unit 3, lesson 2) recognizing inappropriate touching by strangers (Unit 3, lesson 3) and saying "no" to inappropriate touching by strangers (Unit 4, lesson 4)
- B. Tell the student that whenever anyone touches a private body part for any reason other than hygienic, it should be reported. Give some examples of touching by family, friends, and strangers that should be reported. Emphasize the following:
1. Sometimes the person doing the inappropriate touching will tell the person to keep it a secret. Tell the students that the touching should be reported anyway because it is wrong.
  2. Sometimes a person will touch another person under their clothing, such as under a shirt or skirt. Tell the student that this is also inappropriate and should be reported.
- C. Present pictures and read the accompanying descriptions. Ask the following questions:
1. Who did the touching?
  2. Where did he/she touch?
  3. Is this touching ok? (only "yes" or "no" required)
  4. Should _____ report this? (only "yes" or "no" required)

Aunt Katherine had a cabin on the beach and every 4th of July her whole family and most of their children and friends met there for a big picnic. Karen looked forward to it every year. She especially liked to swing on the rope swing Aunt Katherine had tied to the big maple tree. Karen had the swing to herself. Mr. Cole, a man who worked with her father walked up to her and asked, "Need a push?" Karen eagerly nodded and said, "I sure do." He pulled her back but instead of pushing her forward, he put his hand down her pants.

STUDENT ROLE PLAYS

Testing through the use of role plays is conducted prior to instruction of Unit 1, after completion of Unit 5, prior to instruction of Unit 6, and after completion of Unit 11. There are separate role plays covering Units 1-5 and Units 6-11.

Role plays should be conducted by a person unfamiliar to the students to assure valid results. A male should be used since in the vast majority of exploitation cases, a male is the offender. Drama students from a local high school or college have proven successful in performing the role plays. The tester should have the opportunity to practice with approximately four students to insure that standard instructions are given to each student.

Students should be tested in a quiet room with only the tester and student present. A tape recorder should be placed in a inconspicuous location and used to record student responses. The purpose for using a tape recorder is to avoid having the tester write down student responses and thus interfere with the realism of the role play.

The instructor should only prepare the students by telling them that they will be going to a room to work with someone. The instructor should send the students individually to the testing room rather than having the tester enter the room to get each student. This will insure that each student sees the tester only during testing.

The tester should give the following instructions to the students; "Have you ever pretended to do something? We are going to pretend to do some things. I'll tell you what we are going to do. Let's start." The tester then reads the situations on the script. After testing, the tester should tell the student not to tell anyone else what they did.

The instructor can transcribe the tapes after testing. One point is given for each correct response and zero points are given for each incorrect response. Examples of correct and incorrect responses are included in the curriculum. There is a "a" or "b" following each question on the role play script. "a" questions ask for personal information or unsafe actions. "b" questions ask for information which is safe for the student to answer. The total number of correct "a" responses and "b" responses should be tallied separately. The criteria for mastery is on the role play script.
