ABSTRACT

Intended for teachers, this document provides curriculum specifications for the Grade 12 Diploma Examinations in English 33 in Alberta, Canada. Introductory information (1) indicates the approximate time to be devoted to teaching various components of the language arts, the relative importance of concepts and skills, and priorities for instruction and evaluation; (2) defines both process and outcome objectives; and (3) discusses the purposes of the classroom evaluation and the Grade 12 Diploma Examinations (to assess outcomes and their audience is students and their parents, employers, post-secondary institutions, and school systems). The second section of the document outlines the writing, reading, viewing, listening, and speaking concepts specified for high school language arts programs. The third section provides a rationale for the selection of objectives for diploma examination purposes, outlines outcome objectives for the diploma examinations in English 33, and lists the skills needed for mastering the three testable concepts of writing, reading, and viewing. SECTION A: INTRODUCTION

The language arts curriculum specifications for examinations in English 33 were originally prepared in July, 1981, by a committee of classroom teachers, university professors, and Alberta Education personnel under the direction of the Curriculum Branch. These specifications were revised and validated in January, 1982 and in June and July, 1983. Alberta Education acknowledges with appreciation the contributions of the members of the two Grade 12 Language Arts Committees.

The curriculum specifications for the Grade 12 Diploma Examinations in English 33 were developed from the same criteria as were the curriculum specifications for the Provincial Achievement Tests in English 33 (1982). These criteria are:

1. to be based wholly on the Program of Studies for Senior High Language Arts, Revised, Spring, 1981.
2. to reflect the wholeness of the Language Arts program by integrating a taxonomy of levels of thinking with the various communication skills. These include the receptive components of listening, viewing, and reading, and the expressive components of speaking and writing.

PURPOSE OF CURRICULUM SPECIFICATIONS

Curriculum specifications are designed to identify priorities in the Language Arts Program of Studies for the purposes of teaching and evaluation. Evaluation at the provincial level and at the school level should be guided by these specifications.

WEIGHTING FACTORS

Varied emphases are reflected in the system of weighting in terms of time and importance.

1. Time Factor

Time factor refers to the approximate time to be devoted to teaching various components of the language arts in the classroom.

The Curriculum Specifications Committee considered percentage weightings for time spent on the various modalities or strands (e.g., reading) and for time spent on levels of thinking (e.g., understanding). As a result of these considerations it was recommended that, for example, time allotments in English 33 be 30-40 per cent for reading, and 20-30 per cent for knowledge and understanding. It will be noted that a 10 per cent range exists when weightings are given.

2. Importance Factor

All concepts and skills in the language arts program are considered important, but some have greater importance than others. The importance factor attempts to distinguish these differences and to suggest what the priorities should be for instruction and evaluation.

The importance factor, separate from the time factor, is represented by the letters A, B and C as follows:

- A - Extremely Important
- B - Very Important
- C - Important

The concept appropriate reading strategies is weighted A. This indicates that it is considered extremely important at the Grade 12 level in English 33.

3. Process and Outcome Objectives

Both process and outcome or product objectives are important, and both can and should be evaluated by the classroom teacher. At this time, provincial testing is directed almost exclusively to outcome objectives. Definitions of these terms, for the purposes of this document, are:

Process Objective - an objective which involves certain actions or activities, i.e., processes that may result in products which cannot be evaluated by traditional external testing procedures. Evaluation of these objectives is best accomplished by the classroom teacher.

Outcome Objective (Product Objective) - an objective which, as a result of some action or process, leads to a product or outcome which can be measured or evaluated by external testing.

For further clarification of curriculum specification concepts, readers should refer to the concept and skill statements in the Program of Studies for Senior High Language Arts, Revised, Spring, 1981.

Table 1 outlines the percentage weighting of classroom time suggested for each of the communication skills in English 33: writing, reading, viewing, listening, and speaking. Table 2 outlines the percentage weighting of classroom time suggested for each of the taxonomic levels. Section B of this document outlines the detailed curriculum specifications.

*Percentages reflect emphases for the total English 33 program.

In some instances, where the skills listed in English 13 and 23 are expected to be treated at the 33 level, these skills have been added to the specifications for English 33.

DIPLOMA EXAMINATIONS AND CLASSROOM EVALUATION

The curriculum specifications which follow identify priorities in the Language Arts Program of Studies for teaching and for evaluation in the classroom and at the provincial level. The two levels of evaluation differ somewhat in their purpose, characteristics, and scope.

The purposes of evaluation in the classroom are: to provide students with information about their strengths and weaknesses; to provide a basis for teachers and students to plan instruction; to provide information about whether objectives are being met; to assess mastery of content; and to help students to develop their writing, reading, listening, viewing and speaking skills.

Classroom evaluation is an integral part of teaching method. Teachers instruct on the basis of assessing students' work at various stages, and by suggesting improvements in presentations as students develop their skills and understandings. Some of this evaluation is formal, but much of it is informal, and is essentially a dialogue between teacher and student, and teacher and parent, about the student's progress toward attaining the course objectives.

Diploma Examinations serve a different purpose. Rather than being an integral part of the instructional and learning process, they occur at the end of that process. Their purpose is to assess outcomes. Their audience is the student and his parents, employers, post-secondary institutions, and school systems.

The characteristics of evaluation in the classroom are usually quite different from those of evaluation at the provincial level, partly because of the purposes served. Much of the evaluation in the classroom occurs as skills and knowledge are being developed. It is on-going and is designed to guide and assist students. Sometimes it is motivational in nature. For example, credit is given for the completion of assigned work. At mid-term and end-of-term another type of evaluation is used when there is an attempt to measure whether or not students have met intended objectives or mastered fundamental content. Students' work is assessed in both the oral and written modes. Whether classroom evaluation is on-going, motivational, end-of-term, oral or written, teachers maintain their sensitivity to the growth and development of the students as they assess students' efforts.

Diploma Examinations, on the other hand, are end-of-term examinations which are course-specific and pertain only to the skills and understandings that the student has developed by the end of English 33. The diploma examinations, while program- and course-specific, are not classroom- or school-specific. They are paper-and-pencil tests and, clearly, have their limitations.

The scope of classroom evaluation in language arts is broader than that of diploma examinations. In the classroom, a student's development in all the language arts skills can be evaluated. A student's understanding of a literary concept may be evaluated through a group discussion which he leads, or through a formal speech. At the same time as his reading skills are being developed, his speaking skills will be developed and can be evaluated. A classroom teacher will probably use film or television as an integral part of instruction and may evaluate students' critical viewing skills through oral or written assignments.

Because of the limitations of paper-and-pencil tests, Grade 12 Diploma Examinations cannot test a student's skills in listening and speaking and in aspects of viewing at this time. Even though some of the concepts listed under reading and writing are similar or parallel to concepts in listening, speaking and viewing, the Grade 12 examinations evaluate only those concepts and skills which can be tested in a relatively short time with paper and pen.

Grade 12 Diploma Examinations serve to complement classroom evaluation. Both types of evaluation assess some of the same aspects of student achievement; however, classroom evaluation encompasses the whole of the language arts program while Grade 12 Diploma Examinations can assess only a part.

SECTION C: DIPLOMA EXAMINATION SPECIFICATIONS

RATIONALE FOR SELECTION OF OBJECTIVES FOR EXAMINATION PURPOSES

The Program of Studies for Senior High Language Arts, Revised, Spring, 1981 recognizes the importance of two kinds of learning objectives -- process objectives which concentrate upon ways and means, and outcome objectives which concentrate upon product. As indicated in the introduction of this document, the English 33 Diploma Examination will consist of test items that are tied solely to outcome objectives.

Performance on certain outcome objectives listed in the English 33 Language Arts Curriculum Specifications will not be evaluated by the English 33 Diploma Examination. Most notably, outcome objectives classified in the English 33 Language Arts Curriculum Specifications under listening and speaking, and some aspects of viewing, will not be tested at this time. Similarly, due to the limitations of pen-and-paper test design, performance on other outcome objectives, such as demonstrating "increased ability to skim and scan for required information," will not be evaluated. All such outcome objectives have been excluded from the present English 33 Diploma Examination Specifications.

The amount of time available for testing places further limitations on the scope of outcome objectives that can be tested in any one examination. For a more specific indication of what will be tested on the first round of English 33 Diploma Examinations (January, June and August, 1984), please refer to the blueprints in the English 33 Diploma Examination Bulletin.
