ABSTRACT

In March 1987, Maryland's Howard Community College (HCC) conducted a follow-up survey of 1986 graduates to assess former students' perceptions of the college with respect to the achievement of their transfer and employment preparation goals. Questionnaires were mailed to 273 former students who had received an associate degree or certificate between July 1985 and June 1986, requesting information on their current employment/educational status, original educational goals and their attainment, influences on college choice, ratings of HCC, attendance patterns, and transfer experiences. Study findings, based on a 61% response rate, included the following: (1) two-thirds of all graduates were enrolled in programs designed to prepare them for immediate entry into a career, while one-third were in transfer programs; (2) Nursing, with 25% of the graduates, continued to be the most popular program; (3) 68% of the graduates were women, 19% were minority, and their median age was 29; (4) the reasons most frequently given for enrolling at HCC were convenient location, academic programs offered, and low cost; (5) the overall quality of the college and the quality of instruction were given ratings of very good or good by more than 85% of the respondents; (6) at the time of the survey, 83% of the respondents were employed and 42% were attending college; and (7) of the graduates whose goal was to prepare for employment, 97% had jobs and earned an average annual salary of $20,740. The survey instrument is appended. (MDB)

PURPOSE: In order to evaluate current programs and student services in the community colleges, one of the means used by Maryland's community colleges and the State Board for Community Colleges (SBCC) is a bi-annual survey of graduates. Howard Community College (HCC) continues to conduct these studies on the alternate years as well. These surveys provide useful information on students' perceptions of the college and its value in accomplishing their transfer and employment preparation goals.

In addition to presenting the survey results, this report provides descriptive data, including demographic characteristics on all FY86 graduates of HCC.

METHODOLOGY: The questionnaire used to survey the 1986 graduates was developed and revised jointly by members of the Maryland Community College Research Group (MCCRG) and the SBCC. In March 1987 questionnaires were sent to all 273 of HCC's graduates who received an associate degree or certificate between July 1, 1985 and June 30, 1986. Two additional mailings were sent to non-respondents. Graduates' employers have also been surveyed, and those results will be published in a separate report.

RESPONSE: Of a total of 273 graduates, 142 responded to the survey in time to be included in the analysis and 19 were undeliverable. An additional 12 responses were received too late to be entered into the SBCC data system. Overall, the adjusted response rate was 61%, an excellent response.

Respondents were generally of the same demographic composition as the total population of graduates. However, a higher percentage of respondents came from those receiving Associate Arts degrees than from those receiving certificates. A similar bias appeared with respect to program type with a higher rate of response among transfer rather than career graduates.

FINDINGS:

In FY86, 273 students became graduates of Howard Community College. Nine of these graduates earned two awards for a total of 282 awards granted (230 A.A. degrees and 52 certificates). Two-thirds of all graduates were in programs which prepared for immediate entry into a career, while one-third were in programs preparing for transfer to a four-year institution. Nursing, with 25% of the graduates, continued to be HCC's most popular program. The Business Administration and Electronics Technology programs maintained high numbers of graduates as well.

Demographically, the composition of all graduates was 68% female and 19% minority; their median age was 29. This is very close to the makeup of the entire student body.

Of all graduates who intended to pursue a degree upon entering HCC, only two-thirds stated an academic goal. The others simply planned to take a course or courses.

Respondents most frequently reported that preparation for transfer to a four-year college, or preparation for a first job or a different job was their most important goal when they entered HCC. Seventy percent said that they achieved their goal completely, and another 26% said they had partly achieved their goal.

The most frequent reasons given for enrolling at this community college were: convenient location, academic programs offered, and low costs.

Responding graduates began attending HCC an average of 3.8 years prior to graduation. Slightly more than half of the graduates reported attending primarily as full-time students.

In their ratings of various aspects of the college, the overall quality of the college and the overall quality of instruction received the highest positive response with 89% and 88% of respondents rating these very good or good respectively. Classroom instruction in their particular program was also highly rated, but job placement services were given a good or very good rating by only 23.5% of the respondents. This is about the same percentage as the state average on this question.

Most graduates (83%) reported their status as employed (60% full-time and 23% part-time). Forty-two percent listed their status as students (24% full-time and 18% part-time). Others were full-time homemakers and a few were unemployed.

Of the graduates whose goal was to prepare for employment, 97% had jobs at the time of the survey. Eighty percent were in a field related or somewhat related to their program of study at HCC. The average annual salary reported by responding graduates working full-time was $20,740. Eighty-eight percent began their job while attending or after graduating from the college. Most of those not working full-time in a related field were continuing as students. Responding graduates stayed close to home: 96% were working in the state of Maryland and 33% in Howard County. Seventy-seven percent rated their preparation for employment as good or very good, and the rest rated it as fair.

In the survey of employers of these graduates, employers reported high satisfaction, as they have in past years, with HCC graduates. Of the employers who participated in the survey, 100% who responded would hire another HCC graduate. Eighty-eight percent rated HCC preparation for employment as good or very good.

The college is successful in preparing students for transfer to four-year institutions. Of the respondents who came to HCC to prepare for transfer, 74% had achieved this goal at the time of the survey. Forty-one percent of the respondents had attended another college since graduation (28% full-time and 13% part-time). Eighty-eight percent of those who transferred were students in the same or a related program.

Of the 55 transfer students, 33% went on to the University of Maryland at College Park (UMCP) and 33% to the University of Maryland in Baltimore County (UMBC). Graduates' achievement at the four-year institutions is good: 88% reported a GPA of 2.5 or better at the transfer school. Forty-five percent lost no credits in transfer, and 81% lost fewer than 13 credits. Eighty-one percent reported that HCC gave them good or very good preparation for transfer, with another 17% stating the preparation was fair.

A good indication of the graduates' high level of satisfaction with the college is that 87% responded that they would definitely or probably attend HCC if they had to do it over again. Eighty-four percent said they would definitely or probably enroll in the same program.

GRADUATES BY GENDER

Females continue to make up a majority of HCC's graduates. The percentage of males who graduated (32%) is slightly lower than the percentage of males in the student body (36-37%).

Percentages by gender are nearly the same for respondents as for all graduates.

GRADUATES BY RACE

When a comparison is made between all graduates and respondents on minority/non-minority status, the percentages are quite similar. However, if the minority category is further defined, the percentages are slightly less similar. This difference is wider when a comparison is made between all graduates and the entire student body.
