ABSTRACT

This guide to sources for students at San Diego State University who are doing library research in Criminal Justice, Criminology, and related subject areas begins by noting that topics in these areas can be researched in a variety of subject disciplines, including psychology, sociology, law, social work, political science, public administration, business, education, and even biology, chemistry, and medicine. Annotations are provided for entries whose titles are not self explanatory or for works which are important sources. A variety of sources are listed, including monographs, periodicals, newspapers, databases, bibliographies, government publications, and statistical publications. The University's Public Administration Research Center is described, and two appendixes list periodicals and National Institute of Justice Publications. (EW)

Criminal Justice and Criminology

Library Research at San Diego State University

This guide is intended to aid students at SDSU in doing library research in criminal justice, criminology and related subject areas. Topics in these areas can be researched in a variety of subject disciplines ranging from psychology, sociology, law, social work, political science and public administration to business, education, and even biology, chemistry and medicine. Therefore, many different sources are listed. Annotations are provided for entries that need more explanation of the content than is stated by the titles alone, and for the more important and useful sources. Sources that include references to book reviews are also indicated in the annotations. Most materials are in the General Reference room on the main floor of the University Library of San Diego State University. Additional locations may be given.

For more information or assistance, please consult a reference librarian.

SOURCES OF BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The handbooks, encyclopedias, and dictionaries listed below are good beginning points for research. They can provide overviews of a topic, or explanation of a concept, and basic factual information to use in getting started in your research. All books with 'Ref' under the call numbers are in the General Reference room stacks, unless otherwise noted.

CARD CATALOGS AND SUBJECT HEADINGS

The card catalogs are divided into two major sections. The Author/Title Catalog lists books alphabetically by authors and by titles. If you know of a particular book you want, check it by author or title in this catalog. The Subject Catalog lists library materials by subject. To find the correct subject headings for your research topic, use the Library of Congress Subject Headings, a red-covered, two-volume set located near the catalog and reference desks. Criminal justice, criminology, and crime have many sub-fields. Find the most specific headings for your topic before you use the Subject Card catalog. Some of the many subject headings are as follows:

CRIMINAL JUSTICE, ADMINISTRATION OF CRIME AND CRIMINALS
JUVENILE JUSTICE, ADMINISTRATION OF CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION
CRIMINAL STATISTICS
CRIMES WITHOUT VICTIMS
PUNISHMENT
VICTIMS OF CRIMES
REHABILITATION OF CRIMINALS
PRISONS
COMMERCIAL CRIMES
TERRORISM
WHITE COLLAR CRIMES
CHILD ABUSE
WOMEN -- CRIMES AGAINST AGED -- CRIMES AGAINST
CAPITAL PUNISHMENT
GANGS
ORGANIZED CRIME
MAFIA

Please consult a librarian for assistance in choosing subject headings for your topic.

After finding books in the Subject Card Catalog under your subject headings, write down the call numbers (top, left corner of the card), and go to the floor where your books are to be found, which is determined by the first letter of the call number of each book.

e.g. call number: HV - 'H' call number on third floor.

8665
C758

Book locations by first letter of call numbers:

A-H 3rd Floor
J-P 4th Floor
Q-Z 5th floor.

Books can be checked out for four weeks by taking them down to the circulation desk on the second floor and presenting your student ID card.

PERIODICAL INDEXES AND ABSTRACTS

These indexes provide subject access to journals, magazines, newsletters and other periodicals. Some include books, government documents, pamphlets, conference papers and other materials, too. Indexes usually provide citations by subject and author; abstracts provide short summaries of the full articles as well. Periodical articles are important for getting current information, and for a variety of viewpoints on your topic. Your specific topic may be too narrow to find complete books written about it, but there may be periodical articles on your topic. A reference librarian can advise you on the best periodical indexes to use for your particular topic. These are some of the most important ones for criminal justice and criminology, listed in order of importance.

Periodicals in SDSU Library or in the Public Administration Research Center (in PSFA-100)
Related to Criminal Justice

Periodicals (magazines, journals) in the library are arranged by call numbers, and are primarily on the first floor for criminal justice. The current issues and the bound volumes are under the same Library of Congress call numbers (e.g., HV 926 J6). Current issues (usually the last year or two) are in the Current Periodicals Reading Room (first floor), and the older bound volumes are on the same floor. Sometimes the older issues are only available in our library on microfilm (e.g. F-2204) or microfiche (e.g., C-557), which are on the first floor in the Microforms and Newspaper Center. The Government Publications Department on the third floor houses periodicals and other reports published by the U.S. government, the California State government, and the United Nations. Consult the Serials Printouts (located in the Reference Room and other locations) to find out if we subscribe to any periodicals you need.

Steps in Locating Periodical Articles in Love Library

- (1) Use a periodical index (example: Criminal Justice Abstracts)
- (2) Check your subject (example: "Capital Punishment -- Alternatives to")
- (3) Locate specific articles you need.

Example:

Citation: Cheatwood, Derral. "Capital Punishment and Corrections: is There an Impending Crisis?" Crime and Delinquency 34 (April 1985): 461-79.

Abstract: Philosophical and empirical debates about capital punishment remain unresolved, but the number of persons on death row in the United States (1,479 on March 1, 1985) continues to increase. If the U.S. is not prepared to execute this many people, then alternatives are required. Three options are examined: execution, commutation and segregation of the capital offenders, and commutation and dispersal throughout the general prisoner population. The most likely outcome is an increase in life-without-parole statutes and the return of many of these death row prisoners to the general prison population.

- (4) Check names of periodicals in the Serials Printouts for the Library. Write down the call numbers, or microfilm or microfiche numbers, for each periodical. Go to the first floor and locate periodicals by call numbers.

Appendix 1 lists periodicals in the SDSU Library and in the PSFA Library (Public Administration Research Center, Room 100).

NEWSPAPERS

Newspapers provide current information on crime and criminal justice topics of interest to the general public. Issues such as prison overcrowding, juvenile gangs, and the mood of the country regarding capital punishment are covered continually. The following newspaper indexes are some of the most useful:

NEWSBANK INDEX 1970-present, General Reference Table 9

This is an index by subject to selected articles in about 600 regional newspapers around the U.S., including the San Diego Union. The articles are reproduced on microfiche and filed on the first floor under C-315 & C-388 in the Microforms and Newspaper Center.

National Newspaper Index latest three years, Table near Reference Desk

This microfilm index covers the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, the Washington Post, the Christian Science Monitor, and the Los Angeles Times.

New York Times Index 1851-present, Index Table 9

This is the most important newspaper index in the U.S. Summaries of the news are given along with the citations to specific stories.

Los Angeles Times Index 1972-present, Index Table 9

The major newspaper index for the west coast.

Datetimes 1984-present, Computer Database

This commercial computer system is available by appointment with one of the reference librarians, and costs 85 cents/minute to search and print from. The San Diego Union and thirty-two other newspapers are available in full text. A topic, company, or person can be searched and the complete articles printed out for you. There is no printed index to the San Diego Union.

Newspapers arrive in the library in the Microforms and Newspaper Center, 1st floor, and are stacked in alphabetical order by title. After two-three months, the microforms are received, and are filed by microfilm or microfiche numbers, according to the Serials Printouts.

For examples, the newspapers listed above are filed under the following numbers:

New York Times F-168
Los Angeles Times F-161
Wall Street Journal C-781

Washington Post F-176
Christian Science Monitor C-396

COMPUTER DATABASES

These databases are files of computer-stored information available for access through an online terminal in the library. A computer search is much faster than manual searching through printed sources, and the database tapes are frequently updated to provide the most current information. Most databases are identical to the printed periodical indexes, although some are unique files.

The output of an online search is a list of references similar to that found in a printed index or abstract source. The cost of a search varies, depending on rates set by the commercial vendors involved, and usually ranging between $15 and $30. To make an appointment with a reference librarian to have a search done, or to find out if your topic is an appropriate one for a computer search, come by the General Reference desk and talk to a reference librarian. The databases are listed in possible order of importance to criminal justice.

Criminal Justice Periodical Index. Ann Arbor, Mich.: University Microfilms International, 1975- .

Provides comprehensive indexing of 100 administration of justice and law enforcement periodicals, journals, and newsletters. Covers crime, juvenile delinquency, the justice system, penology, criminal law, crime against persons or property, political or social crime, drug abuse, and environmental and industrial crime. Also available as a printed periodical index in the General Reference room.

NCJRS. Rockville, Md.: National Criminal Justice Reference Service, 1972- .

Covers all aspects of law enforcement and criminal justice from police, courts, corrections, juvenile justice, community crime prevention, criminal justice system, etc. Includes citations from books, journal articles, U.S. and international research reports, and audiovisual presentations.

Sociological Abstracts. San Diego, CA: Sociological Abstracts, Inc., 1963- .

Covers the world's literature in sociology and related disciplines in the social and behavioral sciences. Over 1,200 journals and other serial publications are scanned each year to provide coverage of original research, reviews, discussions, monographic publications, conference reports, panel discussions, and case studies. Also available as a printed index in the General Reference room.

Social SciSearch. Philadelphia: The Institute for Scientific Information, 1972- .

A multidisciplinary database indexing every significant item from the most important 1,500 social sciences journals throughout the world and social sciences articles selected from about 3,000 additional journals in the natural, physical, and biological sciences. Subject searching is by words in the titles of articles. Citation searching produces a list of references citing an author's particular work. Also available as the Social Sciences Citation Index, a printed index located on an index table in the General Reference room, covering 1966-present.

Psyc Info Washington, D.C.: American Psychological Association, 1967- .

Over 1,300 periodicals and other materials are indexed and abstracted to cover the world's literature in psychology and related disciplines. Also available as a printed index entitled Psychological Abstracts, covering 1927-present, in the General Reference room and the Science Reference room.

PAIS International, Bulletin. New York: PAIS, Inc., 1972- .

Covers journals, books, government publications and other materials in all fields of the social sciences including criminology, criminal justice, political science, law, international relations, economics, sociology, education, and social welfare. Good for international coverage of crime and criminal justice. Also available as a printed index from 1915-present in the General Reference room and in Government Publications.

Legal Resource Index. Belmont, Calif.: Information Access Corporation, 1980- .

Indexes over 750 key law journals and six law newspapers plus many books and government documents related to law and crime. Journals are indexed thoroughly, including book reviews, case notes, columns, letters to the editor, transcripts, and editorials.

Child Abuse and Neglect. Washington, D.C.: U.S. National Center for Child Abuse and Neglect, 1965- .

Includes five types of materials: bibliographic references, ongoing research project descriptions, service program listings, legal references, and audiovisual materials. The bibliographic references are English-language books, periodical articles, government publications, and conference proceedings in the field of child abuse and neglect. Also includes abstracts of court case decisions.

Mental Health Abstracts. Alexandria, Va.: IPI Plenum Data Co., 1969- .

Indexes and abstracts over 1,200 journals, books, dissertations, conference proceedings, and other materials in all areas of mental health and the social sciences from 41 different countries. Compares to Psychological Abstracts in its coverage of psychology journals.

Additional databases may be appropriate for your topic. A reference librarian can advise you on what is available.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

Bibliographies list materials published on a particular topic or in a particular field. They are useful to researchers since the compiler has pulled together many references on the topic. Some bibliographies are annotated with descriptions or evaluations of each item. Indexes and abstracts are useful for updating bibliographies. Check the Subject Card Catalog for the topic with the subheading "bibliography" (e.g., HOMICIDE--BIBLIOGRAPHY).

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

Government publications on the third floor cover a wide range of subjects of public interest. Many publications produced by the U.S. Department of Justice and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services are of special interest to criminal justice researchers. Also, California state and United Nations publications are found on the third floor.

U. S. GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

The U.S. Government is the largest publisher in the world. The library receives reports, statistics, studies, and other publications from many departments and agencies of the government, as well as congressional hearings, laws, federal regulations, and census materials. There are separate catalogs and indexes for government publications, and they have their own call number system, called the Superintendent of Documents Classification, which is arranged by agency. Go to the third floor, Government Publications room for this card catalog and other indexes to government reports. Librarians staff a reference desk there to help you. The following sources are the most important access points to what the government publishes. Statistic reports are primarily in the section of this guide on "Statistics".

- GP 3.8      U.S. Superintendent of Documents. Monthly Catalog of United

U.S. National Institute of Justice. National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS): Document Retrieval Index. Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1972- .

This index is for a national and international collection of information on all aspects of law enforcement and criminal justice, including juvenile justice, corrections, courts, community crime prevention, evaluation, human resources development, organized crime, and police topics. Included are books, published articles, published and unpublished research, project reports, and audio-visual presentations. The Document Retrieval Index is a microfiche publication that provides bibliographic descriptions of these materials in the NCJRS Library in Washington, DC. Once specific items have been identified through the index, one may obtain the materials in a variety of ways, either through our library collections, or by loan or purchase. This index, therefore, is for the researcher who needs more information than is readily available at SDSU. The index is divided into five parts: (1) document citation, (2) subject index, (3) personal name index, (4) title index, and (5) NCJ thesaurus. Located in a binder on reference shelf.

UNITED NATIONS PUBLICATIONS

The Government Publications Department has documents of the main organs of the United Nations. There is a separate card catalog and other indexes for U.N. materials. However, publications from constituent organizations attached to the United Nations, such as FAO, ILO, WHO, and UNESCO, should be checked in the main card catalogs on the second floor, since these materials are not in this special collection.

Check the United Nations Catalog and other indexes in the Government Publications Division, third floor, for materials on your topic.
