ABSTRACT

The manual presents a set of career education goals and objectives to be used in developing Individualized Education Programs for severely handicapped and other special education populations in grades K through 12. The framework includes 7 content areas, 18 main goals, 80 main objectives, and 512 menu items. It is designed so that teachers, after identifying present level of performance in the content areas, can choose from a "menu" of items those objectives most critical to the student's career development and most appropriate for his/her current functioning level. The seven main areas are: (1) language/communication, (2) applied/functional academics, (3) motor/recreation, (4) social/emotional, (5) independent living/domestic, (6) career development, and (7) health. Objectives are keyed to curriculum resources and materials which are listed with addresses. Appendixes provide a tabular cross reference between the Career Special Education Framework and eight curricula. (DB)

CAREER SPECIAL EDUCATION FRAMEWORK

I. Introduction

Career development is an important and necessary part of all students' development. It is particularly important for students in special education. Career development is the process by which children learn about the world of work as it relates to our society and about themselves and their role as workers. During the process of career development, they learn about the world of work and their interests, skills and abilities related to occupations. Eventually they choose careers, and develop a set of key skills that are transferrable across These skills are the focus for entry into employmany occupations. In schools, this process is fostered through exposing the students to the four stages of career education; i.e., self and career awareness, career exploration, career preparation and placement/ transition.

California recognized the critical need for special education students to receive:

"pre-vocational career education for pupils in kindergarten and grades 1 - 6, or... vocational education, career education, or work experience education or any combination therefore, in preparation for remunerative employment, including independent living skills training for pupils in grades 7-12". California Education Code 30 (56345,b, 1&2).

Santa Clara County has also recognized the need for providing special education students with career and vocational preparation through inclusion of career goals in individualized education plans (IEPs). To help special education teachers and others assist in writing IEPs, a Special Education Career Framework was developed in 1987 for use by all districts and schools in the county.

II. Goal of the Framework

In the spring of 1987, thirty districts joined together with the County K-12 Career Education Consortium to develop a set of career education goals and objectives for special education learning and severely handicapped populations, K through 12th grade, to be used in developing IEPs. The resulting goals and objectives reflect the career development needs of the students as well as the skills needed to function in occupations and adult life. The objectives were developed for use in a computerized IEP, as well as paper publication, format.

The framework includes seven content areas, 18 main goals, 80 main objectives and 512 menu items. It is designed so that teachers, after identifying present level of performance in the seven content areas, can choose from a large "menu" of items and objectives which might be appropriate for:

- a) learning handicapped; i.e., special day class and resource specialist program students in elementary through high school.
- b) severely handicapped; i.e., autistic, severely emotionally disturbed, mentally retarded students and multi handicapped in elementary through high school.
- c) physically handicapped; i.e., visually impaired, orthopedically impaired, and other health impaired in elementary through high school.
- d) communicatively handicapped; i.e., deaf, deaf-blind, hard of hearing, severe language handicapped, including aphasic and speech impaired in elementary through high school.

The 80 main objectives attempt to cover the range of skills needed by students with severe or learning handicaps to prepare for their future as workers and independent adults; skills from comprehending vocabulary and expressing needs to job acquisition and retention. The framework is not structured developmentally or sequentially but is designed functionally to include a wide range of skills within it.

It is structured so that teachers, having assessed their individual students, may choose from a "menu" of objectives those: a) most critical/necessary to the student's career development, and b) most appropriate for his/her current functioning level. Teachers should use their knowledge about their students and their expertise to choose from the menus of items. Teachers can use the 512 menu items to write individualized career and vocational goals, adapting the items to their students, classroom level and situation as needed. Teachers should also use the objectives and menu items as samples, to stimulate their own awareness of appropriate career goals and objectives for students with special needs.

Special education is also iddressing the transition from "school to work" needs of students. The framework addresses transition through the inclusion of a number of menu items. Some menu items address higher functioning exit or independent living/working skills; e.g., the student will identify and develop transferable skills and show how to apply these to other career situations/jobs. Other menu items are written for students who will need assistance in exiting from school to work; i.e., the student will apply for SSI benefits.

III. Process for Developing the Framework

During the spring of 1987, a group of teachers representing the 30 participating districts met for four months to develop the framework. This coordinating committee decided to use the eight areas of the County IEP form as the base for the framework; i.e., language, communication, academics, motor and perceptual development, social/emotional, self-help or independent living, career/vocational, and health.

The coordinating committee first reviewed two documents; Career Education for the 80's - Santa Clara County K-12 Career Education Framework and Related Classroom Activities, from C/VEG Publications, Santa Clara County Office of Education, and Career Guidance Outcomes from the Division of Vocational Education, California Department of Education. These documents provide the guidelines for career and vocational education for non-handicapped populations in the county and state. The committee cross-referenced the framework with these documents to insure that the framework followed the county and state career and vocational guidelines (see Appendices A & B).

The coordinating committee then reviewed existing local, state and nationally validated curricula to identify goals and objectives which were appropriate for special education populations and could be incorporated into the framework. The curricula they reviewed included:

- * Slice of Life Fremont Union School District
- * Slice of Life Adaption Contra Costa Special Education Service Region
- * Project Worth La Mesa Spring Valley School District
- * Employability Skills for the Special Needs Learner by Wircenski, Aspen Systems Corporation
- * A Handbook of IEP Goals and Objectives for use with Slice of Life, Fresno County Department of Education
- * Life Centered Career Education Brolin's 22 Competencies, Council for Exceptional Children
- * Taxonomy of Behavioral Objectives for Habilitation of Mentally

  Handicapped Persons by Talarico, Portland Habilitation

  Center, Portland

The committee also reviewed the Competency Objective Performance Evaluation (COPE) curriculum and the four domains (vocational, domestic, recreational, and community) currently used with students with severe handicaps in the county schools. These curriculums were reviewed and cross referenced to the framework (see Appendices C through H). Many of the objectives in these curricula were appropriate, in whole or with adaptation, to the framework. Educators already using or wishing to use these curricula can easily identify which framework goals and objectives correspond to these curricula.

IV. Content and Use of the Framework

The framework is designed to provide IEP developers with examples of goals and objectives that can be used in IEPs for students with severe handicaps and/or learning handicaps at the elementary, junior high and/or secondary levels. Because the scope of the framework is broad, teachers of the learning handicapped may find some objectives useful, while teachers of the severely handicapped may find these items not useful and other items more useful. The framework is made up of seven main areas:

- 1.0 language/communication
- 2.0 applied/ functional academics
- 3.0 motor/recreation
- 4.0 social/emotional
- 5.0 independent living/domestic
- 6.0 career development
- 7.0 health

Table 1 illustrates the main areas.

Under each of the seven main areas are the sub-areas. For example, under the main area of 5.0, independent living/domestic, there are two sub-areas - 5.1, functional skills, with four sub-areas; and 5.2, independent living skills, with 12 sub-areas. Each of these sub-areas includes a generic objective; for example, under sub-area 5.2.5., consumer skills, the generic objective is "the student will identify needs and make appropriate purchases" (see page ____).

The generic objectives may be appropriate for use with a particular student. However, because the framework is developed for use with a broad population, and because IEPs are designed to be individualized to each student, that generic objective may not be appropriate. After each generic objective, therefore, is a "menu" or list of alternate objectives, one or more of which may better fit a particular student's needs. For example, if one were triting an IEP using sub-objective 5.2.5., the following menu items might be selected:

- a) for an elementary student, menu item "the student will carry personal I.D. and emergency money" might be appropriate;
- b) for a severely handicapped junior high student, an IEP developer might choose "the student will be able to use vending machines";
- for a learning handicapped secondary student, the menu item "the student will use newspaper and media for comparative shopping" might be an appropriately chosen objective; for a moderately or severely handicapped student transitioning from school to adult life, an appropriate menu item might be "the student will seek assistance in consumer purchase/advocacy needs."

A teacher may wish to take one of these objectives and adapt or modify it even more for a particular student. For example, a teacher of the severely handicapped might task analyze or break a menu item down into more discrete steps.

The framework has been designed for versatility and individualizing. The IEP developer using the framework should look at the students: (a) functioning and/or skill level, (b) age, (c) immediate and future needs related to functioning in life, and then chose the most appropriate objective from the menu, or develop a new objective and add it to the menu bank (the menus are not all inclusive). To help determine which objectives in the career education framework might be appropriate for partispecial education populations, Table 1 has been developed to illustrate the areas and objectives which may contain objectives for severely handicapped (SH), learning handicapped (LH), elementary (Elem), junior high 'Jr), and secondary (Sec) students. This table should be used as a suggested point of reference. An individual teacher may want to review the table and revise the x's to denote areas which have objectives. most pertinent to his/her class and students.

The objectives do not include performance criteria, or given certain situations or equipment statements, since chese should also be individualized for a particular student. Developers should, therefore, add these components to their selected objectives. For example, the menu item "the student will identify needs and make appropriate purchases" under 5.2.5 might be written to include the following criteria for two different students:

- a. Given a newspaper ad of personal care products, the student will, with 100% accuracy, identify those he/she needs and make a list of those to purchase.
- b. Given a picture chart of lunch items, the student will identify those he/she wants to purchase, go to the cafeteria at lunch on three consecutive days, and make appropriate purchases.

Teachers are encouraged to modify, add to, and expand upon the menus in the framework. The framework is not designed as a set of ready made, but possibly inflex ble and therefore less usable, objectives. It is designed to allow flexibility, creativity, and most of all, individualization.

V. Goals and Objectives

1.0 Language/Communication Related to Career Education

1.1 Receptive Language

Goal: The student will respond to vocabulary appropriate to work and life related situations; i.e., in domestic, job and community situations (appropriate to his/her functioning level and mode of communication).

1.1.1 Comprehends Vocabulary

Objective: The student will indicate that he/she comprehends work and life related vocabulary.

Menu:

- a. The student will respond to names or tools, materials, and objects in the environment.
- b. The student will respond to work and community action words; e.g., faster, slower, stop, start.

1.1.2 Follows Directions

Objective: The student will follow directions/instructions in work and life related situations (appropriate to mode and level of communication).

Menu:

- a. The student will follow single or multiple step directions.
- b. The student will follow directions given individually or in groups.

1.2 Expressive Language

Goal: The student will express him/her self adequately in work and life related situations (appropriate to his/her functioning level and mode of communication).

1.2.1 Uses Vocabulary

Objective: The student will use work and life related vocabulary.

Menu:

- a. The student will use correct terminology to identify objects, materials, and tools.
- b. The student will use vocabulary which is socially correct to a situation.
- c. The student will give directions in work and life situations.
- d. The student will provide explanations in work and life situations.

1.0 Language/Communication Related to Career Education

1.2.2 Expresses Needs

Objective: The student will express needs in work and life related situations.

Menu:

- a. The student will recognize and express needs.
- b. The student will use socially appropriate communication to express needs; e.g., volume of voice, words, signs.
- The student will identify the appropriate time and place to express needs.
- d. The student will identify the appropriate person to whom needs should be addressed.
- e. The student will request assistance when needed.

1.2.3 Communicates by Phone

Objective: The student will communicate information by phone.

Menu:

- a. The student will complete personal calls to friends.
- b. The student will complete a business call to inquire or complain about a product or service.
- c. The student will complete a call on a pay phone.
- d. The student will communicate with employers by phone.

2.1 Written Language

Goal: The student will communicate in written language as needed for work and life related situations.

2.1.1 Uses Written Form

Objective: The student will communicate in written form using printing, cursive writing or typing as needed.

Menu:

- a. The student will spell words related to work and life at the age, grade or appropriate developmental level and/or will seek help when needed.
- b. The student will use correct grammar and punctuation to communicate clearly in written form.
- c. The student will understand and use written communication.

2.1.2 Records Information

Objective: The student will record messages as needed.

Menu:

- a. The student will record oral messages, if needed.
- b. The student will record messages from phone conversations.
- The student will record important information from written material; e.g., books, forms, newspapers.

2.1.3 Completes Forms

Objective: The student will complete forms or dictate information necessary to complete them.

Menu:

- a. The student will write a personal information card.
- b. The student will write a complete name, address, phone number and other personal information where requested on a form.
- c. The student will complete an application for a library card.
- d. The student will complete an application for a bicycle license.
- e. The student will complete a standardized test form.
- f. The student will convert and write numerical money ($18.20) to written form (eighteen dollars and twenty cents).
- g. The student will compete a job application.
- h. The student will complete check/checkbook forms.
- i. The student will accurately fill out a time card.
- j. The student will complete savings and checking account applications, deposit slips, and withdrawal slips.
- k. The student will fill out a social security application.

2.1.4 Writes Letters

Objective: The student will write letters or dictate information for letters to others.

Menu:

- a. The student will write his/her own name, address, zip code, and telephone number.
- b. The student will write a simple thank-you letter, an invitation, or a personal letter.
- c. When given necessary information, the student will properly address an envelope.
- d. The student will write a simple business letter to request information, complain, or inquire about a product or service.
- e. The student will identify the parts of a personal letter; e.g., date, greeting, bcdy, and closing.
- f. The student will identify the parts of a business letter; e.g., letterhead, date, address, greeting, body, and closing.
- g. The student will identify the receiving and return address on an envelope, including zip code.

2.2 Reading

Goal: The student will read work and life related material appropriate to his/her functioning level and mode of communication.

2.2.1 Survival Reading

Objective: The student will read and comprehend survival, consumer, and job related vocabulary.

VI. Curriculum Resources

Once you have selected objectives and developed an IEP, the following Curriculum Resources Section lists available publications that are appropriate for mildly and moderately learning handicapped students and correspond to the framework's objectives. These resources may help you in identifying student and teacher materials that help provide instruction in the selected objectives.

To use the Curriculum Resources Section:

- a) Select the curriculum materials area in which you are interested; e.g., 5.2.10 Home Safety.
- b) Locate the numbers which follow the area heading (5.2.10 Home Safety: 47-75-102, etc.). These correspond to curriculum materials listed by publisher in the bibliography.
- Turn to the bibliography. The first curriculum resource that teaches home safety is #47, Life-Centered Career Education, published by the Council for Exceptional Children.
- d) If you are familiar with this publication or have it already, obtain it and review it for the parts that are pertinent to home safety.
- e) If you do not have this material or are not familiar with it, you may then write to the publisher for a catalog or examination copy of the resource material.

The large majority of the materials listed are student use materials for lower reading level students (2nd through 5th-6th grade) and inexpensive. Audio-visual materials are available for non-readers but are generally not listed here. Some of the listed publishers do have good audio-visual materials in their catalogs.

Unfortunately, there are few publications available for severely mentally retarded. Attainment Company, EBSCO, and Rehabilitation and Research Center are probably the only publishers listed here with products for this particular population.
