ABSTRACT

A textbook on United States government is written for immigrants studying for American citizenship. It is designed in a way that encourages students to practice all of their English skills (listening, speaking, reading, and writing) in each lesson. Most lessons have five parts: pre-reading, information, reading, testing skills, and review. The 25 chapters cover the following subjects: introduction to government; the Constitution; executive branch; election process; legislative branch; judicial branch; checks and balances; state government; and local government. Study questions, notes to instructors, a vocabulary index, and an answer key are appended. (LB) (Adjunct ERIC Clearinghouse on Literacy Education)

TO THE STUDENT

We wrote this book for you. We hope you will think the lessons are interesting. We hope you will enjoy learning about the U.S. government. The lessons can help you become better residents and citizens of the US.

Each lesson has a title. It tells you the subject of each lesson. Under each title there will be one or two objectives. These objectives say what you will learn from the lesson.

You will have to practice all your English skills in these lessons -- listening, speaking, reading and writing. Most of the lessons have 5 parts:

- I. Pre-Reading
- II. Information
- III. Reading
- IV. Testing skills
- V. Review

I. Pre-Reading

At the beginning of every lesson, Pre-Reading, you will find some questions to discuss with a partner, in a small group or with the class. These questions will be about some pictures and some ideas about government.

After the discussion, you will find some new vocabulary words. Their definitions will help you understand the lesson. Some of these words have other definitions, too. Sometimes you will have a written exercise to do.

Some exercises will tell you to guess. Guessing means you do not really know the answers. You give your ideas about what you think the answer will be.

Other exercises will ask you to scan a paragraph. When you scan you do not read everything. You look for specific information. You can review your answers for the guessing and scanning exercises at the end of the lesson.

II. Information

The Information is always on a chart or in a diagram. It shows you the main points of each lesson.

First, think about the title. Next, read the information on the page carefully. Ask yourself questions about the information. For example, if the lesson is about the President, you can ask:

Who is the President?
What does the President do?
Where does the President live?

Finally, do the exercises -- Using the Information. Look at the Information page (and sometimes the Vocabulary) to help you complete the speaking, listening and writing exercises.

III. Reading

The Reading is usually one to five paragraphs long. Sometimes the Reading will give you more information about the main points. Sometimes the Reading will give you new information.

First, think about the title.

Next, read the paragraphs quickly for a general idea.

Then, read the paragraphs again carefully.

Finally, do the exercise(s) -- Using the Reading. Look at the Reading (and sometimes the Information) to help you complete the exercise(s).

IV.Testing skills

The Testing skills help you test yourself. Can you answer the questions without looking at the Information and the Reading? If you cannot answer the test questions, you should look back at the Information and Reading again.

You will learn about many different types of tests. Some of the tests are oral and some are written. We included some ideas about how to answer oral questions. This section will he!p you prepare for the citizenship test.

V. Review

The last part of every lesson is the Review. The Review has the most important things for you to remember. There are usually 1 - 5 questions. If you cannot answer the review questions, you should look back at the Information and Reading again. If you can answer the review questions, you can go on to the next lesson.

What should you do if you are not in a class? What should you do if you are studying alone?

If you are studying alone, show the lessons to your friends, or someone in your family, or someone at work. Ask people to help you practice your English. Ask them to be your partner for the speaking exercises. Ask them to do the group discussions with you.

You can also read the section: To The Instructor. This section gives some more information to the instructor about the lessons. It also explains how to do some of the different exercises.

Answer Key

There is also an Answer Key in the back of the book. After you finish the exercises, you can look at the Answer Key to check your answers. If your answer is wrong, look at the Peading and Information again. Try to find the correct answer.

Sometimes there is more than one possible answer. For example, the discussion questions can have many answers. These questions do not have answers in the Answer Key. Also, the Pre-Reading Oral and the Review questions are not in the Answer Key. You need to learn those answers yourself.

Principles: general rules and basic ideas

Republican form of government: like a democractic government; usually has a head of state (for example, a president); the citizens elect officials to represent their interests

Resident Alien: An immigrant with a green card; someone with legal permission to live and work in the U.S. A resident alien gets a green card from the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS).

Rights: Basic things we can do; our freedoms and privileges

LESSON 1 AN INTRODUCTION TO GOVERNMENT

Objectives Explain why we have governments

Identify 3 levels of government

Pre-Reading Oral:

Look at these pictures. Talk to your partner. Think of a word (or a few words) for each picture. Use these words:

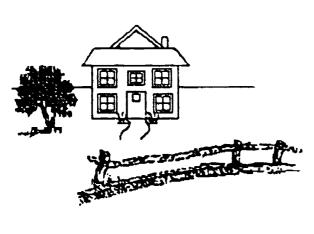

world Mexico federal green card state citizen local

Vocabulary:

Look at the words on the left. They are important words. We will use these words many times in this book.

Read the sentences on the right. Can you find the word on the left in the sentence on the right? Circle the word.

government The government makes laws for a country and helps the people.

federal The national or federal government is for all of a country.

states There are 50 states in the U.S.

live in Texas. My city is Brownsville.

Brownsville is my local area.

county A county is a small part of a state. Miami is a city in Florida. Miami is in Dade

County, Florida.

laws Laws tell us things we can do and things we cannot do.

Map skills: Use maps of the world, the U.S. and your country.

1) Find the U.S.

2) Find your country.

3) Find your state in the U.S.

4) Find your state or province in your country.

5) Find your local area (city, county, town) in the U.S.

6) Find your local area in your country.

Information

Levels Of Government

	Level	What it does
1. Washington, D.C.	federal	makes laws for all of the country
2. Illinois	state	makes laws for one state
3. Chicago	local	makes laws for a small area in a state (city, county, etc.)

Using the Information:

- A. Look at the chart above. It has three columns. The first column gives you examples of different levels of government in the U.S.: Washington, D.C., Illinois, and Chicago.
- 1. The second column lists the three levels of government. The levels are: _____, state and local.
- 2. The third column tells the about actions of the levels of government. Which level makes laws for all the country?
- 3. Which level makes laws for a small area?

4 U.S. Government Structure

B. Form a small group. Talk about U.S. laws you know.

Make a list of some laws. Share your list with the other groups.

Are U.S. laws the same or different from laws in your country?

Reading

Governments

The world is very big. There are many people in the world. There are many countries in the world. Every country has a government. The government makes the laws. The laws are for all the people in the country. The governments help people live together.

There are many different kinds of governments. In the U.S., we have a democracy. The citizens in a democracy choose people to be the leaders of the government by voting.

Using the Reading:

- C. Answer these questions:
- 1) What does the government do?
- 2) What kind of government do we have in the U.S.?
- 3) What kind of government does your country have?

Testing skills

You will read many questions in exercises and on tests. Try to find the question word(s). This word helps you find the correct answer. For example, the question word "who" tells you to give a name.

Look at the questions below. Circle the question word. Write an answer.

- Where do you live? 1)
- 2) When did you come to the U.S.?
- How many states are in the U.S.? 3)

You will see many multiple choice exercises in this book and on tests. First, read the question or top sentence. Then, read the choices below. One of the choices is the best. Circle the letter for the best answer:

Example: How many levels of government do we have in the U.S.?

- a. one
- (b) three
- c. five
- 1) What level makes laws for all the country?
  - a. local
- b. state
- c. federal
- 2) What level makes laws for a city?
  - a. local
- b. state
- c. federal
- 3) What level makes laws for California?
  - a local
- b. state
- c federal

Review

What are the 3 levels of the U.S. government?

Why do we have governments?

LESSON 2 THE CONSTITUTION: THE SUPREME LAW OF THE LAND

Objective

Reading

The Supreme Law

The U.S. Constitution is the supreme law of the country. We cannot make any other laws against it. It tells us the important rules of our country. It protects the rights of all the people living in the U.S. Everyone must follow the Constitution or they can get in trouble. We have self-government in the federal, state and local governments because we choose representatives. The representatives can make laws or change laws.

Using the Reading:

C. Look at the true and false questions again and at the reading and picture on page 6. Can you answer them correctly now? Circle T or F.

7)	Representatives can make changes in the laws.	T	F
8)	The Constitution says that we can own property.	T	F

Testing skills

Sometimes the INS officer asks you questions aloud. You have to listen very carefully. You should think about the question and then answer it.

You will see a set of two possible questions below. Your teacher will read one of those two questions. Listen carefully and read the choices. Which question did the teacher ask? Circle the letter of the correct question.

Example: a) Who wrote the Constitution?

b) Who read the Constitution?

The teacher asks: Who write the Constitution? (listen)
You circle(a)

- 1. a) Where did they write the Constitution?
  - b) When did they write the Constitution?
- 2. a) How many main principles are in the Constitution?
  - b) How many basic rights are in the Constitution?
- 3. a) Is self-government important to the American people?
  - b) Is government by the people important?
- 4. a) In the Constitution, what are the three main branches?
  - b) In the Constitution, why are there three main branches?
- 5. a) Do we have the right to a trial?
  - b) Do we have the right to own property?

LESSON 3 THE CONSTITUTION: THE PREAMBLE

Objective Describe the structure of the Constitution

Identify the Preamble

Pre-Reading

Oral: Discuss these questions with the class:

You want to know about a TV show tonight. How can you find out about it?

Suppose you want to go to a movie this weekend. There are two movies near your house. How can you find out about them?

You go to the library. You want a book to read. How can you learn about the story before you read it?

What is an introduction? Is it important? Why or why not?

Written:

Read the following paragraph quickly to find the following words. Underline them.

welfare justice defense establish

PREAMBLE

We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

Vocabulary:

Match the words on the left with the meaning on the right. Put the correct letter on the line. You can use a dictionary to help you.

 	1. (to) establish	a. peace, calm, quiet
	2. (to) ordain	b. doing well in life

List the parts of the Constitution.

The people of the United States wrote the Constitution for many reasons. Name 3.

LESSON 4 THE CONSTITUTION: THE ARTICLES

Objective

Identify the content of different articles in the Constitution

Pre-Reading

Oral:

Look at these pictures of important buildings. They have special meanings for Americans. Each building represents a branch of the federal government. Can you identify the buildings?

Many people work in these buildings.

- 1) Do you know any duties they have?
- 2) Do you think one branch has more power than the other two branches?
- 3) Do you have any contact with the federal government?

Vocabulary:

Read the definitions below.

Legislative part of the government - the Congress = the House of Representatives + the Senate for the federal government

Executive part of the government - the President, Vice President and his helpers (or advisors) for the federal government

Judicial part of the government - the Supreme Court, other courts and their judges

To amend the Constitution - to make some changes, to add some new things

To ratify the Constitution or an amendment - when three-fourths (3/4) of the states vote "ye"

Treaty - when the United States says it will do something or will not do something, together with another country. The President can suggest a treaty. The Senate must approve, or say "okay" to the treaty.

Written: Read the vocabulary. Circle the word that does not belong.

Example: school student car desk

Answer: car (because school, student, and desk are words about education)

Congress Senate Legislative Preamble
 Changes Treaties Additions Amendments
 Representatives White House Vice President Executive Judicial Judges Ratify Courts

Information

Articles of the Constitution

The writers of the Constitution used Roman numerals for numbers.  $I=1,\ II=2,\ III=3,\ IV=4,\ V=5,\ VI=6,\ VII=7.$  The names are the same: I= "one," V= "five."

ARTICLE	WHO	WHAT IT DOES
	Legislative	makes laws and decides taxes okays treaties (Senate)
11	Executive	gives ideas for laws & treaties is Chief of Army & Navy (President)
111	Judicial	decides if laws are okay (judges) helps protect people's rights
IV	States	says all states have a republican form of government tells each state to respect the laws of another state
V		tells how to amend the Constitution
VI		says the Constitution is the supreme law
VII		tells how to ratify the Constitution

3)	The President is the of the army.
4)	Information about the courts is in Article

- 5) Article V says the government can change the Constitution.

   fourths of the states must vote _____ to pass an amendment.
- B. Work with a partner. One person reads the five sentences. They are not true. The other person listens and tells the partner the true sentence.
- 1. The President okays treaties.
- 2. Article V tells us each state has a republican form of government.
- 3. The Senate decides if laws are okay.
- 4. Article IV tells about ratifying the Constitution.
- 5. The judicial part of the government decides taxes.

Reading

The Articles of the Constitution

Article I: The Congress has many powers. It can decide taxes like the Social Security tax. It also makes laws about citizenship.

Congress can start post offices, too. It makes laws about foreign trade. For example, if Honda, from Japan, wants to sell more cars in the U.S., the Congress decides yes or no. If the U.S. fights with another country, Congress can declare war.

Article II: The President has other powers. He or she is the Commander-in-Chief of the military. The President can choose people to be judges on the Supreme Court. He or she can choose people to be ambassadors. But, the Senate must say okay to these people. The President also gives information to the Congress. He or she tells Congress about problems in the U.S.

Article III: The Judicial branch has certain powers. The courts can review some laws. If the laws do not agree with the Constitution, the courts can tell Congress to change the laws. The courts listen to problems about protecting the Constitutional rights of the people.

Article IV: States have a republican form of government. States can make some state laws. All states must respect the laws of other states. If Congress says okay, new states can become part of the U.S.

Article V: This article explains the way to amend the Constitution. Three-fourths of the states must say okay to an amendment.

Article VI: This article says the Constitution is the supreme law of the U.S. Everyone must follow the Constitution.

Article VII: This article says three-fourths of the states must say okay to this Constitution. There were only 13 states in 1787.

Using the Reading;

(judicial) and IV (states). Put the number I, II, III or IV next to the prect sentence:
 1. Tells about citizenship laws.
 2. Tells about protecting our rights.
 3. Tells about choosing judges.
4. Tells about setting up places to mail letters and buy stamps.
5. Tells about setting up new states.
 6. Tells about business with foreign countries.
 7. Tells about the head of the army.

C. These sentences are about Articles I (legislative), II (executive),

Testing skills

Read (or listen to) this conversation:

INS official: Okay, Mr. Mendoza. I will ask you some questions about the Constitution. Please tell me your answers.

Mendoza: Okay.

INS official: In what year was the Constitution written?

Mendoza: Written?

INS official: Yes, when did they write the Constitution?

Mendoza: Let me think... They wrote it in...in 1787.

INS official: Right. Let's continue. What are the three branches of government? ...

Think about these questions:

1. Did Mr. Mendoza give his answer immediately?

- 2. Why did he say, "Written?"
- 3. Why did he repeat "in...in...?"
- 4. What do you say when you don't know the answer immediately?
- 5. Do you hear people say, "Let me think...?" Is this a good expression to use?

LESSON 5 THE CONSTITUTION: THE BILL OF RIGHTS

Objective

Identify the Bill of Rights (Amendments 1 - 10)
Show the importance of the Bill of Rights to all the people living in the U.S.

Pre-Reading

Oral:

Form a small group. Discuss the following situations. Record a group answer and share it with the class.

- 1) Jose wants to put a sign on his car, "VOTE for PABLO VELASQUEZ."

  Can he do this?
- 2) Carmen is a member of the Baptist church. Is that okay in the U.S.?
- 3) The police stop Jean-Pierre. They take him to the station.
  Can he talk to a lawyer?
- 4) The police put Jean-Pierre in jail. He stays there for three years before he goes to trial. Is this okay in the U.S.?
- 5) There is no war. It is peacetime. Some soldiers want to live in my home. I do not want them in my home. Do I have to let the soldiers live with me?

22 U.S. Government Structure

Written: Work with a partner. Unscramble these words. Match the letter of the word to the pictures.

a) serps: es b) linregoi: r_i_i_

c) opceli: __l_e

Read the sentences below.

1) The police think you have something illegal (not legal). They want to search your home. This means they want to go in your home and look for the thing. They ask a judge for a search warrant. A search warrant is a special paper. It gives the police the right to search your home.

The judge asks them, "Why do you think this person has something illegal?" The police give their reasons. The judge can say, "O.K. I think your reasons are good. Here is the warrant." Or, the judge can say, "No. Your reasons are not good. A warrant is unreasonable."

2) You have a problem. You are accused of a crime. Someone says you did something wrong. You may have to go to court. You ask a lawyer to help you. A lawyer studies the laws and the court systems. Your lawyer helps you bring your case to court.

You think you did nothing wrong. You want the judge and jury to believe you. You and the lawyer plan a defense. The lawyer asks someone to speak in your favor at court. This person is a witness. The person speaks in your favor, so he or she is a defense witness.

3) The police put you in jail. You do not want to stay there during the trial. You ask the judge to set bail. This is an amount of money you pay to get out of jail. It cannot be an unreasonable amount of money. After the trial, you get the money back. If you lose the case, you receive a punishment. The judge can tell you to pay some money. This is a fine. Or, the judge can send you to jail. The punishment cannot be unreasonable.

Answer these questions. Use the new vocabulary words:

1)	Two types of people carriler you at a that. Name them.
	a) b) defense
2)	What do police need before they search your home?
	search
3)	When you are accused of a crime, what does your lawyer plan for

Amendment 4: Searches and Arrest Warrants

Police cannot make an unreasonable search of our homes or take our things without a warrant.

Amendment 5: Rights of People Accused of a Crime and Protection of Private Property

You do not go to a second trial for the same crime, if a judge says you are free at the first trial.

You do not have to answer questions at your trial.

The government cannot take private property for public use without paying the owner a fair price.

Amendment 6: Right to a Fair and Speedy Trial

if you are accused of a crime, you have the right to a speedy and public trial with a jury.

You have the trial in the state where the crime happened.

You can have a private lawyer or the court can give you one.

The lawyer can ask all witnesses questions.

You can have defense witnesses.

Amendment 7: Right to a Jury Trial in Civil Cases You can have a jury trial if the money in the case is over twenty dollars ($20.00).

Amendment 8: Bails. Fines and Punishments

A judge cannot charge you unreasonable bail.

A judge or jury cannot charge you unreasonable fines.

A judge or jury or the police cannot give you unreasonable punishment.

Amendment 9: The People Keep Some Rights

The Constitution lists many rights of the people, but it does not list all the rights. The people have other rights too.

Amendment 10: The States or People Keep Some Powers The Constitution lists some powers for the states, but it cannot list all the powers. There are other powers for the states and for the people.

Using the Information:

- A Read the following sentences. They are all false. Look at the information above to find the true sentences. Write these sentences correctly.
  - 1) The 6th amendment says you do not have to answer questions at your trial.

- 2) The Constitution lists all the rights for the people.
- 3) The 4th amendment says the police can search our homes when they want.

- 4) My neighbor broke a window in my home. I want to get $18.00 from him to repair it. I can go to court and have a jury trial to get the money.
- 5) I do not belong to a church or temple. Amendment 1 says this is not okay.
- 6) The states only have the powers listed in the Constitution.
- B. Discuss these questions with your partner. Write down your answers and share them with the class. Your teacher can make lists on the blackboard.

Does your country have jury trials?

Does your country put people in jail without trials?

Does your country guarantee free speech?

Can you name a country without religious freedom?

Do you think the Bill of Rights is important? Why or why not?

Testing skills

Fut the number of the amendment next to the sentence about it.

- 1. A poor man does not have money for a lawyer. The court gives him one.
- 2. A policeman shows you a search warrant and enters your apartment.
- 3. A TV newswoman does not like a treaty the President made with China. On TV, she says the treaty is bad.

Reading

The Amendment Process

We have a living Constitution. Men wrote it in 1787, and we still use it today. These men were intelligent. "The U.S. will change in the future," they thought. "We must find a way to let the Constitution change too." And they did.

They put in the amendment process. This process is important.

Amendments can change or add rights and restrictions to the Constitution. An amendment can change part of an article in the Constitution or another amendment.

Two-thirds (2/3) of the Congress or of the state legislatures must agree on an idea for an amendment. If three-fourths (3/4) of the states ratify the amendment, it becomes part of the Constitution.

Using the Reading:

- C. Write questions using these words. Answer your questions. The first one is done for you as an example.
- 1) How/change/ Constitution?

  Q: How can be change the Constitution? A By amendment.
- 2) Who/ must agree/ idea/ amendment?
- 3) How many/ states /ratify/ amendment?
- 4) Why/ we/ amend/ Constitution?

Testing skills

With multiple choice tests, you can learn to make good guesses. One or two of the choices are always wrong. Look at the questions below. Look carefully at the question word. There are three possible answers. One answer is clearly wrong. Think carefully and put an X on that answer. You do not have to find the right answer.

What do we call changes to the Constitution? Example: men in Congress c) amendments a) articles

One clearly wrong answer is (b) because it answers the question "Who?" not the question "What?"

- 1) How many members of Congress must approve an idea for an amendment?
  - a) three-fourths b) two-thirds c) the state legislatures
- 2) According to amendment 16, what can Congress tax?
  - a) every 4 years b) income c) liquor
- 3) Who can vote for President?
  - a) women b) for two terms c) a 16 year old man
- 4) When did they write the Constitution?
  - a) to put in the amendment process
  - b) in 1887
  - c) over 200 years ago

LESSON 9 EXECUTIVE BRANCH: THE CABINET

Objectives Explain the role of the Cabinet

Match executive departments with their responsibilities

Pre-Reading

Oral: Look at the sequence of pictures. What do you think is happening?

Written: Read the following sentences. Each sentence tells about a picture above. Put the number of the picture next to the correct sentence.

- a. The President meets with the Cabinet. They talk about a problem. The Cabinet gives advice to the President.
- b. The President listens to Cabinet members with different ideas. One wants to give federal money for new low-cost apartment buildings. The other member says it is too expensive.

c. The President makes a decision and the Cabinet members agree.

d. The President thinks about the problem.

Vocabulary:

Read the following definitions.

The Cabinet is a group of advisors to the President. They are in charge of the executive departments.

We call most Cabinet members, "Secretary." For example, Thomas Jefferson was the first Secretary of State. The State Department advises the President about foreign policy.

The head of the Justice Department is the Attorney General.

Juan needs money for college. He asks for financial aid.

Hilda is looking for some information. She goes to the library to do some research.

It is a very hot summer. We need to save water. We practice water conservation. We use water carefully.

We must get a car inspection every year. We take our cars to a service station. A mechanic checks the car. He looks at the lights, brakes and tires.

LESSON 10 EXECUTIVE BRANCH: INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

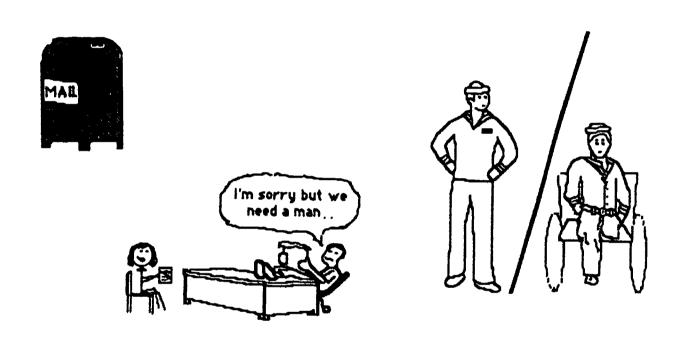

Objective Identify one independent agency

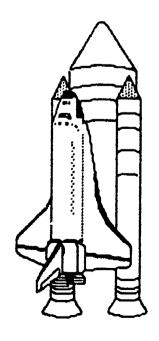

Pre-Reading

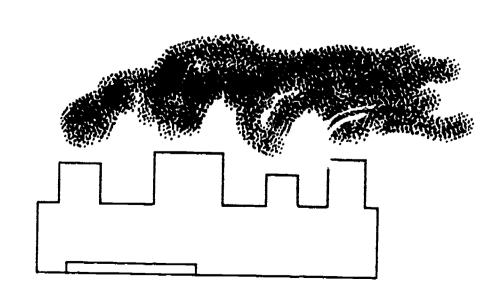

Oral: Look at the 5 pictures. Talk about the pictures with your partner. What is the relationship between the pictures and the U.S. Government?

Vocabulary:

Read the following words and their definitions.

Agency - an office of the U.S. Government

Discrimination - to say "no" to someone because of race, age, sex, religion, etc.

Pollution - dirt in the air, in the water, on the ground, etc.

Veteran - a soldier who was in a war

Information

Independent Agencies

There are many independent agencies in the executive branch. They are independent because they are not part of any executive department. Some agencies and their responsibilities are:

Agency	Responsibility
Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)	helps stop pollution
National Aeronautic and Space Administration (NASA)	plans the space program
U.S. Postal Service	delivers mail
Veteran's Administration (VA)	helps veterans and their families
Commission on Civil Rights	helps stop discrimination

Using the Information:

Look at the chart and read the following stories. Which agency should help these people? Discuss the stories with a partner.

1)	Kim always likes to go fishing on Sunday. Last week he went to the river near his house. He saw a lot of dead fish in the river.  Agency:
2)	Anna's parents live far away. She does not see them very often.  She likes to send them letters.  Agency:
3)	Ellen's husband died in the Vietnam War. She works hard to help her children. She wants them to go to college. She needs help to pay for their education.  Agency:
4)	Juliana is from Puerto Rico. She finished high school in New York last year. She applied for a job yesterday. The manager said he wanted a man for the job.

LESSON 11 THE ELECTION PROCESS

Objective

Explain the election process

Pre-Reading

Oral:

Look at the picture below. Some of these people are waiting to vote.

Discuss these questions with your partner:

- 1) Do you think all the people in the picture will vote? Why or why not?
- 2) Will they vote for President or Senator?
- 3) Can you vote? Why or why not?
- 4) How do people vote in your country?

Vocabulary:

Use the dictionary to find definitions for these words. Write a short definition.

Information

The Election Process for President

A political party is a group of people with the same ideas about government. There are two main political parties in the U.S. The Republican Party and the Democratic Party. Also, there are many other smaller parties.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY REPUBLICAN PARTY Spring Campaign Primary elections Primary elections Summer Democratic Convention Republican Convention Campaign November General Election GOLD DELANEY January Inauguration Day January 20th JANUARY

Using the Information:

- A. Read the following sentences. They tell about the election process. They are in the wrong order. Put the numbers 1 5 on the lines to show the correct order.
- a. U.S. adult citizens vote for a President in a national election.
- b. At first, there are 2 or more candidates for the Republican Party and 2 or more candidates for the Democratic Party.
- ____ c. After the party conventions, the candidates continue to campaign.
- d. The inauguration of the President is on January 20th.
- e. In the summer, each party has a convention to choose one candidate.
- B. Have a class discussion about elections. Talk about the process in the U.S. and in your country. Here are some questions to help you.
- 1) How many political parties are in your country?
- 2) Who can vote in your country?
- 3) How do people vote in your country?
- 4) How often do you have elections?
- 5) Does the law say, "All adult citizens must vote?"
- 6) Is there a fine or punishment if you do not vote?
- 7) Is the election process the same in your country and the U.S.?

Reading

The Electoral College

When the citizens vote for the President, they are really voting for state electors. These electors form the Electoral College. Every state has electors. The number of electors equals the number of senators + the number of representatives in a state. For example, Alaska has 2 senators and 1 representative. So, Alaska has 3 electors. Florida has 2 senators and 19 representatives. So Florida has 21 electors.

This is what happens:

- 1) Citizens of a state vote.
- 2) Their votes are counted.
- 3) One candidate has 51% or more of the votes.
- 4) This candidate wins all the electoral votes of that state.
- 5) The electoral votes of all the states are counted.
- 6) The candidate with the most electoral votes becomes the President.

Using the Reading:

C. Look at the following information about the state of New Jersey. Answer the questions. Write the numbers on the line.

2 senators + 14 representatives = electors

60% vote for Mr. Angeli 28% vote for Ms. Parson 12% vote for Mr. Roth

1)	How many electoral votes will Mr. Angell Win?
2)	How many electoral votes will Ms. Parson win?

3) How many electoral votes will Mr. Roth win?

Testing skills

Read the first sentence. Circle the letter of the other sentence with the same meaning.

- 1) All adult citizens of the U.S. can vote in a national election.
  - a) All citizens must vote.
  - b) All citizens have the right to vote.
  - c) All citizens want to vote.
- 2) In an election year, candidates make many campaign speeches.
  - a) Candidates only make speeches at the convention.
  - b) Candidates make speeches at the inauguration.
  - c) Candidates make speeches during the election process.
- 3) There are many political parties in the U.S.
  - a) There are 2 main political parties.
  - b) There are the Republican, Democratic and other political parties.
  - c) The largest parties are the Republican and the Democratic parties.

 2. make new laws
 3. send the army to war
 4. say if a person can be a citizen
 5. put a tax on things the U.S. sells to other countries
 6. say a person is the King of America
7. maintain a police force

B. Form a small group. The Constitution lists some things Congress cannot do. The writers of the Constitution had a reason for this list. What do you think the reasons are? Discuss them with your group. Write your answers and share them with the class

Example: Congress cannot give titles of nobility.

Why not? Because the writers wanted all Americans to be equal.

They did not want anyone to become king or queen

- 1) Congress cannot take away the right to a trial. Why not?
- 2) Congress cannot make laws about marriage. Why not?
- 3) Congress cannot use tax money without authorization. Why not?

Reading

The Number Of Representatives

There are 435 Representatives in the House. States with a large populations have many representatives. In 1987, there was usually one representative for about every 580,000 people in a state. However, all states must have at least one representative. For example, Idaho has a population of 998,000. Idaho has 2 representatives. But, Alaska has only 525,000 people. Alaska has 1 representative. States with many representatives have more power in the House than states with only a few representatives.

Some states have many districts. The number of districts is equal to the number of representatives. The citizens of a district vote directly for their representative. Representatives listen to the needs of the people in their districts and their states.

Using the Reading:

C. Look at the maps of 6 different states. The number below the map tells us the population of that state in 1987. How many representatives did each state have? Write the number on the line below the population. Use these numbers:

The Trial of Andrew Johnson

Only the House of Representatives can impeach officials. Only the Senate can try the officials. The Senate decides if the official can stay in office. The Senate does not try many impeached officials. In U.S. history, there was only one trial to remove a President from office. The President was Andrew Johnson. He was President (1865-1868) after the U.S. Civil War. The country had many problems. The President had many problems. Congress wanted to remove Andrew Johnson from the office of President.

Two-thirds (2/3) of the Senate must agree to remove an official from office. In 1865, there were 54 Senators. Now there are 100 senators. At the trial against Andrew Johnson, only 35 Senators voted to remove him. They needed 2/3 of 54 (or 36) votes. Andrew Johnson stayed in office.

LESSON 15 LEGISLATIVE BRANCH: A BILL BECOMES LAW

Objective

Explain how a bill becomes a law

Pre-Reading

Oral:

Look at the picture below. Many families have rules for living together in their houses.

Work with a partner. Discuss these questions.

- 1) Do you have laws (or rules) in your home?
- 2) Who makes the rules in your home?
- 3) Do the rules change?
- 4) Do the laws of a country change?
- 5) Who makes the laws in your country?

Vocabulary:

Read the sentences below.

A committee is a group of people. They work together.

You see a movie and you like it. You can recommend the movie to your friends.

78 U.S. Government Structure

Two carididates for President have different ideas. They can have a debate. They talk about their ideas.

Members of Congress are having a meeting today. They are in sassion.

The members will finish their meetings in December. They will adjourn the session and go home.

Members of Congress like a bill. They approve the bill. They pass it. Members of Congress do not like a bill. They do not approve the bill. They defeat it.

The President wants a bill to become law. He signs it. The President does not want a bill to be a law. He vetoes it.

The President vetoes a bill. Congress wants the law. Both the House and the Senate approve the bill with a 2/3 vote. They override the President's veto.

Reading

The 1986 Immigration Law

It is usually a long process for a bill to become law. Sometimes a bill needs only one year to become law. But other bill bills need many years to become laws. For example, the 1986 immigration law took six years to become a law.

First, the House and the Senate started two different bills about immigration. There were many debates and changes to the two bills. After the debates, the House approved one bill and the Senate approved another bill. Next, they worked together to write one bill. The House and the Senate approved the bill. They sent the immigration bill to the President. Finally, the President signed the bill into law on November 6, 1986.

Using the Reading:

- C. Answer these questions:
- 1) Do bills usually become laws quickly?
- 2) Where did the immigration reform bill start?
- 3) What happened after the House and Senate approved the bill?
- 4) What was the President's final decision on the bia?

Testing skills

LESSON 16 THE JUDICIAL BRANCH: THE STRUCTURE AND THE APPEALS PROCESS

Objective

Describe the organization of the judicial branch Explain the appeals process

Pre-Reading

Oral:

Look at the following pictures. Take turns and describe the pictures. Do you think the people will go to a federal or state court?

Vocabulary:

Read the following vocabulary words:

(to) hear a case - a judge (and sometimes a jury) listens to both sides of a legal problem in court decision - the result of a court case

- (to) review another judge (or group of judges) in a higher court looks at a decision; this judge (or these judges) decides if a decision is correct
- (to) appeal to ask another court to review a decision

appellate court - a court that hears appeals

- District Courts the lowest courts in the federal court system; they have a judge and jury; they hear the cases
- Circuit Court of Appeals appellate courts in the federal court system; they have a group of three judges to hear appeals; they do not have a jury
- Supreme Court the highest court in the U.S.; it has nine judges; all the decisions are final
- (to) interpret to decide if a law follows the Constitution
- customs taxes for imports (things people bring into the U.S. or things foreign companies want to sell in the U.S.)

Scan this paragraph quickly and underline the following Written: words:

interpret appellate review case

Many federal courts are appellate courts. If someone does not like a decision from a lower court, that person can try to appeal. That person can ask an appellate court to review the case. If the case is about a federal law, the appellate court can interpret the law. So, the court decides if the law is constitutional.

Reading

The following reading is from the Federal Citizenship Text - U.S. Government Structure. Try to read this paragraph.

"One of the most important rights in the U.S. is the right to a fair trial. The appeals process is set up to help make sure that people have as fair a trial as possible. Sometimes a person believes justice was not served at his/her trial because he/she believes:

- his/her rights were violated;
- a rule of law was not properly followed; or,
- all the evidenge was not available.

That person may try to appeal his/her case to a higher court. The judge may agree with the:

- person and overturn the lower court's decision; or,
- · lower court and uphold the decision.

The person may try to appeal again if he/she still is not satisfied. Courts will not always hear appeals, however."

Using the Reading:

C. The paragraph above may be difficult to read. The following sentences are easier. They have the same information, but one is not correct. Can you find it? Put a check next to the wrong sentence.

1) We have the right to a fair trial.	•
2) There is an appeals process to help us.
3) If there is a problem at our trial, we can try to appeal.

4)	The problem can be about evidence (= information)

Supreme Court Justices

Supreme Court justices have an important job. Justices hear cases about constitutional rights. Their decisions can affect all U.S. citizens. One of the nine justices is the Chief Justice.

The President appoints someone to be a justice. The Senate must approve his choice. Supreme Court justices have the position until they die or retire. If justices do something wrong, the Congress can try to impeach them. But, this does not happen very often.

	Answer the following questions:  Who chooses a Supreme Court justice?
2)	What can happen if a justice does something wrong?
3)	How many Chief Justices are on the Supreme Court?
4)	If there is a new President, do all the Supreme Court justices change?

Checks and Balances

The U.S. Constitution establishes three branches for the federal government; executive, legislative, and judicial. The three branches work together to help the country. Each branch has its own responsibilities and powers. No branch has more power than the other branches. They have balanced powers. Each branch has separate duties to check the powers of the other branches.

Using the Reading:

- A. Answer these questions:
- 1) Does one branch have more power than the other branches?
- 2) Do all three branches share many duties?
- 3) Will the President have more power than the courts in the future?

LESSON 21 STATE GOVERNMENT: STRUCTURE

Objective

Identify the structure of state governments

Identify state leaders

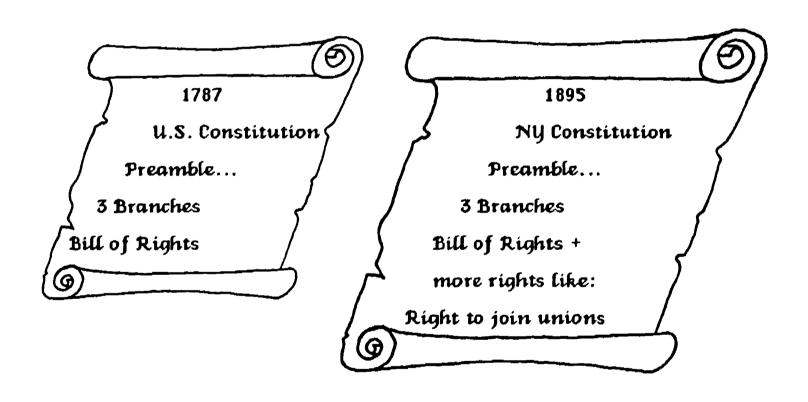

Explain direct democracy through referenda and petitions

Pre-Reading

Oral:

Look at the pictures below. Discuss what is the same or different about them with a partner.

Why do you think state constitutions are like the federal constitution?

Vocabulary:

Read the following vocabulary words.

Assembly - the name for the House of Representatives in some state legislatures

Governor - the chief executive in a state

Lieutenant Governor - the assistant governor, the second-incommand in the state executive branch

National Guard - the military force of a state; the governor is the chief

Petition - a voter (or group of voters) can write a paper (a petition) to explain a problem, ask for a new law, or change a law. A petition must have the signatures of many citizens before a state legislature will review it.

Direct Democracy

Sometimes the federal government seems far away. Many citizens think they cannot change the federal laws. They think their Senators and Representatives do not pay much attention to their ideas. For the state government, the situation is different. This government is closer. State officials listen to opinions of the citizens.

One example of direct democracy is the right to petition. The citizens take action themselves. A petition to the state government can ask to make a new law or to change a present law. The idea from the petition is put on a ballot. Every voter can vote on it. If citizens agree with the idea, they vote "yes." If they disagree, they vote "no."

Using the Reading:

State Government Responsibilities

Amendment 10 of the U.S. Constitution says: If the federal government does not have certain powers in the Constitution, then the states or the people do. For example, the states have responsibilities for establishing education systems and police departments. They build roads and control licenses for marriage, driving, and some jobs (like doctors and lawyers). They make rules about trade inside the states.

Sometimes the state and federal governments share responsibilities. Many times they both offer services to help people, like health care and welfare. They also protect our environment, like parks and rivers. Federal and state governments can collect taxes, establish courts and make laws. There is one important point to remember. No state law can go against the U.S. Constitution!

Using the Reading:

A. Use the information in the paragraphs to fill in the chart below. List 4 responsibilities for each side:

State Responsibilities  Alone	Shared Federal & State Responsibilities

Form several groups in class. Choose one of the licenses and discuss some rules for it. Think about age, training, testing, and why the license is important.

Share your ideas with the class. Discuss the other groups' ideas. Do you agree with them? Would you add something else?

Testing skills

Read the following questions. Discuss them with a partner. You can write the answers if you want.

1)	How many states are in the U.S.?
2)	What is one responsibility for the state government, but not for the federal government?
3)	Does the Constitution give powers to the states?

Types Of Local Government

Local governments are different from state and federal governments because they do not have constitutions. Local governments receive a charter (plan of government) from the state government. There are different types of local governments: city, county, town, and village. The local charter tells about the organization for the government. Look at this chart. What kind of local government do you have?

CITY

- 1. MAYOR CITY COUNCIL
- The mayor and council are elected by the citizens.
- The mayor is the executive. The council is the legislature.
  - 2. COUNCIL CITY MANAGER
- The council is elected. The council hires a city manager.
  The council makes the laws and directs the city manager. The city manager carries out the city's business.
  - 3. COMMISSION
  - The citizens elect a group of commissioners.
  - The commission is both an executive and legislature.

COUNTY

Read this paragraph from the Federal Citizenship Text - U.S. Government Structure:

"Local governments have a court system, which handles local issues, such as traffic laws and small claims. Sometimes cases may be appealed to the state courts. Judges in local courts are sometimes called justices of the peace, though many are called judge or magistrate. Local courts tend to specialize in one area of law, such as traffic or family, to make sure that the judge is as knowledgeable as possible. By specializing, local courts try to provide responsive, efficient legal service."

Using the Reading:

- C. Now read the sentences below. They have the same information, but they are easier to understand. Discuss the answers to the questions about your local government.
- 1) Local courts take care of local problems. For example, you go to a traffic court for traffic problems. If the money in the case is a small amount, you go to a small claims court.
  - What kinds of local courts are in your area?
- 2) Sometimes a citizen can appeal a local court decision to a higher state court. For example, the county court says you are guilty in an accident. You do not believe you are guilty. You want a review. You can appeal to a higher court in your state.
  - Can you think of another situation?

Reading

Read the following paragraph from the Federal Citizenship Text - U.S. Government Structure:

"One of the most important functions or duties of local government is managing the public schools. People often want to be involved in decisions made about the schools because they want the children in the area to get a good education. Local school districts elect school boards so that the people can be involved. The school board makes decisions about teacher salaries, curriculum, and to a certain extent, funding, as well as many other administrative aspects of maintaining the schools in its district. People in the community often go to school board meetings to publicly state their opinions about what needs to be done in the schools."

  - c) Local courts hear cases about speeding tickets.
- 4) The Clerk's Office keeps official records.
  - a) The Clerk's Office takes care of licenses and certificates.
  - b) The Clerk's Office gives driving tests.
  - c) The Clerk's Office keeps tax money.

Review

Name 3 services your local government provides.

LESSON 25 GENERAL REVIEW

This lesson will help you review the information in lessons 1 - 24.

Leaders

A. We have different names for many leaders in our three levels of government. There is a list of those names below. Can you find the names in the word search? Circle the words.

President -	M	A	Y	S	S	R	Z	J	U	S	T	1	C	Ε	E
Governor	0	F	N	E	U	B	R	E	P	R	E	S	1	U	٧

Petitions

- B. Form a small group. Choose a topic:
  - 1) you want to change a law in your state;
  - 2) you want to write a new law; or,
  - 3) you want the state or local government to give money to build a hospital or school or more roads.

Discuss your choice. If you want one of these things to happen, what can you do? Write a group petition. Say what you want. Give your reasons. Give ideas to make this happen.

Share your petition with the class. Do your classmates agree with your ideas? Have a class vote on each petition.

Responsibilities of Government

C. Look at the following list. These are responsibilities or actions of the different levels of government. List them in the correct column in the chart below:

passes state laws
School Board of Education
National Guard
driver's licenses
makes treaties parking ticket prints money
city council

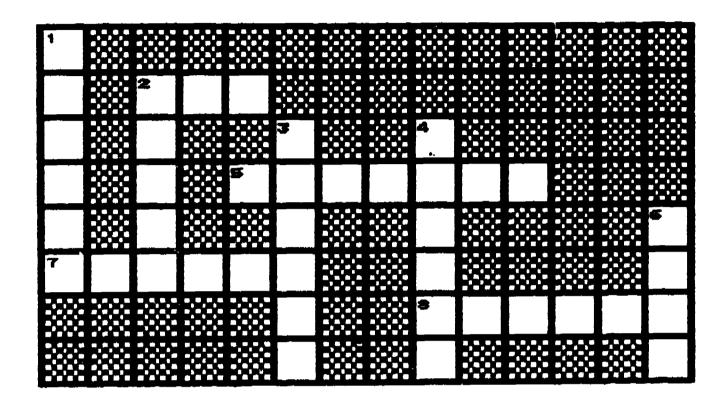

gives money for defense collects federal taxes water department cases between citizens of 2 states cases between citizens of same state rules for trade in one state rules for international trade fire department

Number Game

F. You need to remember some important numbers in the U.S. Government.

Fill in the blanks below with the correct numbers (#):

1.	# of branches in the U.S. Government	3
2.	# of senators in the U.S. Congress
3.	# of representatives in the U.S. Congress
4.	# of Vice President(s) in the executive branch
5.	# of Supreme Court Justices
6.	# of states
7.	# of amendments in the Bill of Rights	_
8.	George Washington was President #
9.	In 1987, the U.S. Constitution was years old +

- 1. What do we call the plan for a local government?
- 2. Name two types of local government.
- Name two authorities (person or group) for a local government.
- 4. Name two services offered by local governments.
- 5. Who is the head of your local government?

TO THE INSTRUCTOR

General Guidelines

By The People: U.S. Government Structure, Of The People: U.S. History, and For The People: U.S. Citizenship Education and Naturalization Information have been created for limited English proficient students who are applying for citizenship or permanent resident status. The books were developed for the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) of the U.S. Department of Justice. The contents are based upon the INS' federal citizenship textbook series.

These books have been written for advanced beginner/low intermediate English as a Second Language (ESL) students. For those teachers and administrators familiar with the SPL (Student Performance Level) ratings, these books address level 4 students, with some less difficult exercises for level 3 students and some more challenging ones for level 5 students. Instructors can use these texts to creat their own lessons for students at SPL 1 and 2. The lessons in these books incorporate all four skills: listening, speaking, reading and writing. The lessons become progressively more difficult as the students continue through the course.

Our past experience with this student population indicates that many students in the citizenship classes have stror ger oral skills than literacy skills. We sought to build upon those oral/aural skills when developing these lessons. Each lesson begins with a discussion exercise to provide background information to the content that will be presented ,as well as to elicit any information the students already have about the subject. In addition, these discussions offer the students opportunities to compare their countries and cultures with the US. Furthermore, within each lesson there are paired and group activities that encourage speaking practice and opinion-sharing among the students.

Most teachers will find not only students with strong oral skills in their classes, but also students of mixed levels and abilities. These heterogeneous, multi-level classes are frequently the most difficult to teach. Our awareness of this fact led us to include a wide variety of exercises and presentations of the information. The opportunities for cooperative learning approaches exist with written and oral group work, peer teaching and problem-solving activities.

Besides the inclusion of much oral practice, these books have another unique feature. Each lesson contains a testing section that helps prepare students for oral and written exams. The students have the opportunity to learn how to pause or stall and request clarification or repetition when confronted with oral questions which they do not hear correctly or understand at first. The written testing exercises expose students to the diverse types of exam questions commonly found in American schools and training programs. This testing section is also important because it reinforces the material learned in the lesson.

The instructor's role should be that of a facilitator, while doing these lessons. The aim is to guide the instruction and the subsequent comprehension as the information is conveyed through the charts, diagrams, pictures, maps and readings. The salient points of the material are emphasized and should be reinforced by the instructor. However, we hope the students will learn how to read these charts, et. al. on their own after some initial guidance.

The instructor does however provide a crucial link for the students between the classroom and the outside world. It is with the instructor's experience and resources that the students will be able to move beyond the book. The instructor should use authentic materials from newspapers, radio and TV news, and community centers (e.g., libraries, historical landmarks, government offices) while conducting the classes. It is most important to demonstrate to the students how the government and history subjects affect their lives today.

The instructor is also best suited to gear the instruction to the appropriate level of the class. Knowing the composition of the student body, the instructor can decide which exercises to complete in the lessons. Not all of them need to be done, nor must all of them be done with the methods we have suggested. For example, if all the students would understand an exercise better when done together as a class, then the instructor should feel free to utilize the material in that way. We have deliberately built into the lessons and exercises methodological flexibilty.

It is also important for instructors to remember that these textbooks are content-based. They have been designed to present history, government and civics in a comprehensible manner to limited English speakers, encouraging their participation and skill development. They have not been designed to teach survival or academic ESL. Using these books alone will not teach basic English to beginning students.

Furthermore, the authors have assumed that the instructors using these textbooks have had some experience teaching ESL and/or this adult population already. The following teacher's notes are guides to instruction and not a text in general methods and techniques of teaching ESL to adults. They do not explain each exercise, nor tell the instructor how to address students, divide classes into pairs or groups, generate discussion, or judge which sections to embellish and which to dispagard. That knowledge comes from the instructor's own experience and attentiveness to the students being taught.

These texts were developed in a very short time frame, and therefore had only limited field-testing. The authors would appreciate feedback from classroom and tutorial experience for revisions in future editions.

Lesson Format

Students will practice all skill areas -- listening, speaking, reading and writing. Most of the lessons have 6 parts, including:

- Objective(s)
- II. Pre-Reading
- III. Information
- IV. Reading
- V. Testing skills
- VI. Review
- I. Objective(s): Each lesson has one or more stated objectives. The objectives are written in terms that you, as the teacher, will understand more easily than the students. They will help you focus on the key information in each lesson.
- II. Pre-Reading: The Pre-Reading section of the lessons is very important. The Pre-Reading exercises prepare the students for the new material in the lesson and can help you assess how much the students already know about the topic. Every lesson has two or three exercises -- Oral, Vocabulary, and/or Written.

Oral: The stimulus for the oral exercise is usually a picture or short situation statement with questions for discussion. The discussions can be conducted with pairs, small groups or the entire class. The questions are designed to stimulate some discussion and to introduce the topic of the lesson. Whenever possible, the teacher should try to build on what students already know about their own countries and the US. If the students work in small groups, it is always a good idea to bring everyone back together to share the group responses.

Written: There are several different types of written exercises - scanning, guessing (or predicting), and matching. In scanning exercises, you must always make sure the students read the questions before they scan the paragraph or chart. This helps them focus on specific pieces of information. It is also helpful to give the students a time limit for completing the scanning exercise.

For the guessing (or predicting) exercises, teachers should reinforce the idea of guessing - what do the students think the answer will be? Stress that they are not expected to know the answer. Everyone should review the predictions after the lesson is completed.

Vocabulary: Many of the vocabulary words that are needed to learn about the US government are not used everyday and will have to be taught. The most important thing to remember is to work from the known to the unknown.

Keep in mind that a lot of the vocabulary is passive - we do not need to use it, but we do need to understand it. In addition, certain abstract concepts, such as democracy and freedom, may be unfamiliar to the students; and extra care should be taken during their explanations.

When teaching vocabulary, you should try to contextualize the words as much as possible.

For example, in lesson 8, there is a definition for soldier. If you show a picture of soldiers, the students will probably understand the word immediately.

Another way to contextualize is to give examples or situations of how the word is used in everyday speech. This method is particularly effective with abstract words.

For example, in lesson 6, students are asked to match the word blessings with a synonym or definition. Fake a sneeze in class and see if the students know the polite response, "God bless you." The simple context may help them understand the word in more difficult contexts.

If your students speak a Romance language (Spanish, French, Portuguese, etc.), another good strategy for dealing with new vocabulary is to use cognates, words that are similar in both English and their native language.

For example, in lesson 2, students find the word supreme. Spanish speakers should recognize the Spanish cognate, suprema. Some cognates, such as resign in lesson 6, will only differ in pronunciation or in spelling with one or two letters, e.g., resignar.

One word of caution with cognates, though. You do not want the students to get the idea that all English words that sound or look like words in their native language are cognates. They also have to beware of false cognates [e.g., "embarrassed" in English is not "embarazada" (pregnant) in Spanish].

The lessons contain different types of vocabulary exercises. In some instances, we provide the definitions and/or example sentences. In others, we suggest students use a dictionary to write the definitions themselves, complete crossword puzzles, or answer matching exercises. Encourage students to try these exercises without a dictionary first. Other types of exercises are: finding the word which does not belong, unscrambling, and sentence completions.

III. Information: The topic, or new information, is usually presented in a chart or diagram. We chose this approach with the beginning student in mind. We hope that students will be able to break the charts or diagrams down into parts, and therefore, be able to understand the material more easily. We also feel this format is less threatening than a page of prose. Moreover, it highlights the most salient features of the lesson.

The starting point of all the Information pages is the title. Have the students make predictions based on the title. Next, have the students skim the page quickly for some general impressions of the content. Finally, ask the students to read the Information carefully.

Some student with limited literacy skills may have difficulty focusing on the charts and diagrams. Teachers can help by guiding the students with questions.

For example, in lesson 1, you can ask students to tell you what is on the left side, in the middle, and on the right side of the chart. You might ask them to tell you the name of their state and other states. You could discuss where they live now and where they lived before - large or small city, suburbs, small town, rural area, etc.

Always encourage students to ask questions. Let classmates supply the answers whenever possible. Refer the students back to the Vocabulary or Pre-Reading exercise(s) when appropriate.

Using the Information: There are usually two exercises after the Information presentation. One requires writing and the other requires listening and/or speaking. Before asking the students to complete the exercises, you should make sure they understand the instructions. There are many different types of exercises, so the students will need some guidance. Each time a new type of exercise is introduced, we have explained its procedure in the lesson notes which follow.

These exercises are not for testing, so encourage the students to look at the chart or diagram. After the students complete the written exercises, they can check their answers in groups or pairs, or they can look at the answer key in the back of the book. All the small group discussions should be reviewed with the entire class.

For example, exercise B, in lesson 1, asks each group to list some laws. After the groups finish making a list, have each group report one or two of the laws to the class.

IV. Reading: Sometimes the Reading will be a prose version of the Information. Other times the Reading will introduce new material on the same topic. Most of the Readings have been simplified from the INS U.S. Government Structure text. However, there are some paragraphs that have been copied directly from the text and are followed by simplification exercises.

The teaching strategies for the Reading are similar to those used with the Information. First, have students discuss the title. Next have them skim the paragraphs for the main idea or scan the paragraphs for specific pieces of information. Finally, have the students read the passage silently. As with the Information, encourage students to refer back to earlier parts of the lesson and to ask questions. The words in bold-face are new vocabulary words for that lesson.

Using the Reading: The reading comprehension exercise is not a test. Students should be encouraged to look at the Reading while completing the exercise. The purpose of the exercise is to help the students understand the basic concepts and to provide language practice. Again, students should check their answers before continuing on to the next part of the lesson.

V. Testing skills: The purpose of the Testing skills section is twofold. First, this section tests the students' mastery of the key points in the lesson. Second, and more importantly, it helps students prepare for test-taking situations. Our experience with this population has indicated that students frequently do indeed have the necessary knowledge to pass a test, but they are often unable to demonstrate their knowledge without appropriate test - taking skills.

In the beginning you will have to guide the students through the different types of tests. About one-half are pen-and-paper type tests-- Multiple Choice, True/False, Matching, Listening Discrimination, etc. The other half are simulated oral interviews. (You may want to record these interviews on tape for additional listening practice.) In the interviews, students will learn and practice requesting clarification, and pausing or stalling while thinking about an answer. We include these stategies in the testing section because they are used so often by native speakers in interview situations. Students should be encouraged to learn and use more clarification and stalling strategies.

Students should check their answers before preceding. One good learning stategy is to look back through the lesson and circle (or highlight) the answers in the text.

VI. Review: The last section is very brief. The review questions focus on the key points of the lesson and restate the objective(s). If students are unable to answer the review questions, try to help the student identify what s/he missed. You may need to create some additional practice exercises. If students are able to answer the review questions, they are ready to begin the next lesson.

LESSON NOTES

Lesson 1

Vocabulary: This first vocabulary lesson is intentionally easy. Students only have to recognize the word. This exercise will help you identify students who may not be literate. Ask students to identify their state, local area and/or county.

Map skills: Take as many maps as possible to class: maps of the world, the US and the students' countries. Some teachers might want to discuss the maps of the students' countries before the US map.

Exercise B: After you elicit different laws from the groups, you may want to try to have the class categorize the laws: federal, state or local.

Exercise C: Can be done orally or in writing

Reading: Discuss other types of governments (communist, dictatorship, monarchy, etc.)

Lesson 2

Oral: Question 4 is intentionally difficult. If your students are at a lower level, delete this question and any others that you think are too difficult.

Written: This is the first prediction or guessing exercise. Encourage students to guess. Tell them you will accept any answer now. They will look for the correct answers in the lesson.

Information: "Supreme law of the land" may be difficult to understand. Provide further explanation with examples.

Exercise B: If necessary, define the word "rules" and compare it to "rights." An example to start the class might be:

Rule - no smoking in class Right - everyone has the right to speak in class

Exercise C: Sometimes students will have to refer back to the Information or Vocabulary in this section (e.g., item 8 requires students to look back at the Information chart)

Testing skills: Teacher reads sentences: Example: Who wrote the Constitution?

1. When did they write the Constitution?

2. How many principles are in the Constitution?

3. Is self-government important to the American people?

4. In the Constitution, what are the three main branches?

5. Do we have the right to own property?

Review: As with all lessons containing a prediction exercise, review the questions again after the lesson is completed.

Lesson 3

Oral: If necessary explain "introduction."

Written: This is a scanning exercise. Students should only underline words. They do not need to read it carefully. It may be helpful to set a time limit.

Vocabulary: Since this is the first matching exercise, you may want to do it as a group. With the exception of defense, welfare and justice, these words are passive vocabulary that the students up not need to study.

Exercise B: An INS official might ask a student to read the Preamble as a test of literacy. You should read it aloud first to model the intonation and pronunciation. Ask students to read the Preamble aloud, but do not expect them to understand it or pronounce it correctly word for word. They can do this with a partner or in a small group.

Lesson 4

Oral: You might need to give the students some ideas for item 3, such as income tax or stamps. Discuss government buildings in students' countries. Do they look similar or different? You might ask students to draw pictures of important buildings in their countries.

Written: This exercise may appear to be more difficult than it is. Be sure students look at the vocabulary definitions when they do the exercise. For example, students can look up Legislative for the first item and they will find the words Senate and Congress in the definition.

Information: The Roman numerals (I, II, etc.) here are for recognition only. You might ask students to put Arabic numerals (1, 2, etc.) next the Roman numerals.

Exercise B: Many exercises will have more than one answer. Discuss different possibilities (ONLY if appropriate for the level of your students). For example, in item 1, students could say:

The President gives ideas for treaties; or Congress okays treaties.

Testing skills: It is very important that students understand that native speakers use requests for clarification and stalling /pausing strategies all the time. Have the students role play a conversation using these strategies. Think of some other examples to share with the students.

Lesson 5

Note: The Bill of Rights is for everyone living in the U.S., not just citizens.

Oral: Contrast with students' countries. Could they do these same things in their own countries? (see lesson 5, exercise B)

Written: Unscrambling may be new to the students. Explain the idea of one letter per space. The pictures are not the words themselves, but symbols for the words.

Vocabulary: Note that the bold-face words are the new vocabulary words. Contrast with students' countries. For example, can police search people's houses in their countries without a search warrant?

Information: Amendment 2: We do not use the expression "to bear arms" but some students may have heard it. If necessary, you can explain it to them. Amendment 5: You might need to explain "free" meaning "not guilty." Explain the idea of self-incrimination-- you do not have to say anything, especially if it may be detrimental to your case. Ask students if they ever watch a TV program about courts. Have them share their impressions.

This is a good place to introduce the ordinal numbers. We usually say "the first amendment," and so the students need to learn the ordinals.

Lesson 6

Oral: Ask students to guess or predict what the Constitution says.

Vocabulary: This is the first dictionary exercise. You might want to help students with dictionary skills, such as the procedure for alphabetizing and using guide words on the top of the dictionary pages. Try to get more advanced students to write definitions in their own words, rather than copying from the dictionary.

Written: Explain that this exercies is for scanning only.

Exercise A: This exercise is intended to check predictions from the beginning oral exercise.

Exercise B: This can be done individually or in groups.

Reading: Have students read the first sentence, "We have a living Constitution." Next, ask them to read the first paragraph and tell why we say we have a living Constitution.

Exercise C: You can have students ask their partner the questions orally.

Testing skills: Have students focus on WH question words. You might want to ask students to explain why they chose their answers (e.g., #1 C is wrong because it answers the question "Who"or "What", not the question "How many"). Point out that "how" is considered a WH question word.

Lesson 8

You might want students to be listening to the news on radio or TV outside of class during the days you do this lesson.

Oral: This could be done as a mixer -- have all the students stand up and circulate asking different people about their countries. When the class looks at the pictures, ask if they know anything about these presidents. (Stress that George Washington was the first President of the U.S.)

Information: Have the students write the names of the current President and Vice President on the lines in the boxes.

Exercise B: Tape TV or radio news programs to use in class. Tell students to listen for the President's and Vice President's names. If appropriate, use the newspaper (often reading the titles of articles will give enough information).

Lesson 9

Students should recognize that the Cabinet advises the President. They do not need to memorize all the Cabinet offices. Note: A new Cabinet office, Department of Veterans Affairs, becomes effective March 15, 1989.

Vocabulary: Make the vocabulary as relevant as possible. Find out which Cabinet offices the students are familiar with already.

Information: Try to build on information already covered and make this page as relevant as possible (e.g., Treasury takes our income tax money, INS is part of the Justice Department -- which printed this book, HHS collects and disburses Social Security money).

Exercise B: This game is similar to the old TV show What's My Line?, and the game 20 Questions. Make up 13 cards with one member of the Cabinet on each card. Have 1 student come up and select one card (without showing card to others). The other students must ask YES/NO questions to guess which Cabinet member the student is. Encourage students to ask at least 3 - 5 questions before they try to guess the Cabinet. This game is often played in teams. Teams can earn points for all YES answers. There should be a penalty for guessing the wrong Cabinet member. Continue until all 13 cards have been chosen.

Testing skills: After students have circled their answers, have them role play the conversation using stalls, pauses and clarification requests.

Lesson 10

Oral: Encourage guessing and look at the vocabulary page for ideas.

Lesson 11

You might want to contact the League of Women Voters in your area. They can usually provide information about voting and examples of ballots and voting booths.

Oral: Students might want to look back at lesson 6 if they are having difficulty with the discussion questions.

Vocabulary: This dictionary exercise can be done in groups. Ask students to write the definitions in their own words. Groups can put their definitions on the blackboard and the class can edit them.

Information: Point out that the number of candidates on this chart is arbitrary. During an election year, ask if the students can name the candidates.

Exercise A: Have students focus on adverbials of time (At first, After the . . . , In the summer, on January 20th).

Exercies B: An interesting discussion can be generated by asking if voting is mandatory in their countries. Mention that voter turnout is low in the US and ask for their ideas as to the reason. This could become a debate. Should voting be mandatory in a democracy?

Reading: The concept of an electoral college is very difficult for most people to understand. You do not need to emphasize it. Discuss direct and indirect elections (e.g., the election of Senators is direct--based on the actual number of votes, whereas the election of the President is indirect--based on the number of electoral college votes).

Lesson 12

Oral: Have students guess how to complete the words--House of Representatives and Senate.

Information: Before or after reading the chart you could also do a listening discrimination exercise. For example:

Congress can't put a tax on exports.
Congress can make laws about taxes.

Students listen and decide if they hear CAN or CAN'T.

Exercise B: Encourage students to remember earlier lessons about the Constitution.

Testing skills: Ask students for other ways to request clarification and to stall (see Lessons 4 and 6).

Lesson 13

Oral: All of the states have representatives. This map only gives the total number for some of the states as an example. If you want, have your students investigate to find the number of representatives for the other states.

Oral: Additional questions for practice with the map:
Do any states have only one representative?
Do any states have less than 5 representatives?
Do any states have more than 20 representatives?
Does _____ (give a state's name) have more representatives than _____ (give another state's name)?
Does _____ have fewer representatives than _____?

Information: This chart may need clarification for students. lowal has a total of 6 representatives. Each representative is responsible for 1 district.

Exercise C: Alaska has 1 representative; Idaho, two; California, 45; North Carolina, 11; and Virginia, 10. Find out how many representatives your state has. Can students figure out the approximate population of your state?

Review: Have students write the name(s) of their representative(s). Sometimes INS officers ask this question during the citizenship interviews.

Lesson 14

Exercise C: Point out that today there are 50 states and 100 Senators. Review majority. Explain that 2/3 of 100 = 67. Numbers to be dictated:

1) Try an official	yes 70	no 30
2) Rátify a treaty	yes 90	no 10
3) Confirm an appointment	yes 45	no 55

Review: Have students write the names of their Senators. Sometimes INS officers ask this question during the citizenship interviews.

Lesson 15

Written: Note this exercise is matching opposites (simple examples could be happy/sad, clean/dirty, etc.)

Information: Follow the solid lines in this flow chart to show how a bill becomes law. This is a simplified version of the actual process. The dashed lines show ways that a bill can be defeated.

Exercise A: If your students need more writing practice, they can try to write the sentences in a paragraph.

Exercise B: Discuss other current issues being discussed in Congress.

Exercise C: Can be done orally or in writing.

Lesson 16

Note: As of late 1987, there were 13 Federal Circuit Courts of Appeals. The federal citizenship textbook only refers to 11.

Oral: Discuss the pictures.

- 1. Point out that the Post Office is a federal agency.
- 2. Point out that this is a first amendment issue.
- 3. This is not a federal issue--it is a local or state one.
- 4. No state has jurisdiction in the air.

Information: Explain that there are two types of court systems: federal and state.

Exercise A: Dictation (Students need to refer to the pictures and the Information.)

- 1. The post office robber can go to the Circuit Court of Appeals first.
- 2. There is one circuit court for each state.
- 3. A state makes laws about speed limits in cities. You drive too fast. The police office stops you. You can go to a federal district court.
- 4. The people can try to appeal to the Supreme Court.
- 5. Some courts do not have a jury.

Afterwards, discuss each question and answer with the students.

Reading: Reading is taken directly from text so it will be difficult. Exercise C will help the students understand the Reading.

Lesson 17

Oral: Review the three duties of federal courts from lesson 16 regarding problems with federal laws, problems with constitutional rights, and the appeals process. Ask students if the picture is about one of the three duties. Hijacking is a crime. Ask students where the hijacking happened. Then ask why a federal court hears the case.

Exercise A: Help students with the #1. Remind them that every sentence begins with a capital letter.

Reading: Read the following paragraph:

We talked about 11 duties of the federal courts. They hear cases about federal laws. They interpret laws to see if they are constitutional. They try to solve problems between citizens of two different states. If a foreign government has a problem with the government of Florida, it can bring a case to a federal court.

Lesson 18

This lesson is intentionally short.

Lesson 19

Oral: If appropriate for the level of your class, listen to radio or TV news or read the newspapers for ideas to discuss (question 4)

Testing skills: Have students role play the conversation using other examples of checks and balances.

Lesson 20

Exercise B: Encourage the students not to look at their partner's chart. They should cover it with a piece of paper.

Lesson 21

Oral: Point out that both state and federal governments have constitutions.

Exercise A: Do the first one together. Example:

The President is the head of the federal government Who is the head of a state government? Governor

Note: A few states refer to their state representatives (or assemblymen) as "delegates."

Exercise B: This may be done orally or in writing.

Lesson 22

Oral: Students should think about earlier lessons (e.g., lesson 12).

Exercise B: You might want to do some investigating in your local area about jobs which require licenses. Use examples of students' jobs whenever possible (for example, beauticians). You might also want to contrast these with the students' countries.

Reading: The idea of a petition can be difficult to understand. Try to give the students an example from their state. Also some might have heard about referenda and initiatives. You can explain they are similar to petitions and are also examples of direct democracy.

Lesson 23

Information: Nebraska is the only state with one house in its state legislature.

Exercise B: You might want to have a mock campaign and have students make speeches. Try to elicit local problems they would address if they were running for mayor or city council.

Reading: This reading is taken directly from the textbook so it will be difficult for the students. You may want to begin with a scanning exercise:

1) What is the paragraph about? Scan. Report.

2) What do local courts do? Scan. Report.

3) What do we call judges in the local courts? Scan. Report.

Lesson 24

Exercise A: Question 3: Students may not know that we need to show a birth certificate to get a passport. (Note: In many other countries every adult has a national identity card.)

Reading: Again, this may be difficult to read. Give students some scanning questions first. For example:

- 1) What is the paragraph about? Scan. Report. 2) Are citizens involved with local schools? Scan.
- Report.
- 3) What does a school board do? Scan. Report.

You might want to reinforce the importance of parental involvement in the schools through PTA's or other groups.
