ABSTRACT

Project WORK was developed by San Diego State University and San Diego City Schools in California to prepare young people with disabilities for work and life after high school. The program teaches employment skills; supports students in their first work experience; works with students and their families to plan for the student's work and life after graduation from high school; provides vocational preparation skills and transition services; and provides paid employment opportunities, ongoing job site support, and adult agency support. The program's four main components are parent support and parent workshops, job skills classes, job development and support, and linkages with community agencies. This pamphlet for parents describes the four program components, explains what is involved in the initial home visit by family support specialists, outlines the cooperative role of the California State Department of Rehabilitation, lists documentation needed for employment, and notes the value of job-related record keeping. Job sites may include a local grocery store, movie theater, office, hospital, fast food restaurant, or retail store.

Once your son/daughter has a job, the job coach will keep in touch with the employer to assist with any problems that may occur. If you have any questions or concerns regarding your child's job, you can contact the his/her job coach.

4. LINKAGES WITH COMMUNITY AGENCIES

There are many agencies which can provide support for your teenager to live independently. Some examples include:

- The State Department of Rehabilitation
- Regional Center
- Vocational Educational Programs in high schools
- Community College Programs
- Mobility (Transportation) Training.

These agencies should be contacted at least two years before your child graduates from high school. Project WORK staff can assist you in obtaining needed services.

THE INITIAL HOME VISIT

Family support specialists make an initial home visit with each student's family to explain the goals of the project and to solicit parent support. At this time, they obtain parents' signatures required for school and working in the community.

These forms will be brought to the initial home visit:

1. Activity Form
Your child may go on out-of-school activities as part of the Job Skills Class. These activities may take place during school hours, so parental permission is needed for children under age 18.
2. Release of Information
Your permission is needed before the school can release any information to an outside agency. Students age 18 and older can sign their own release form.
3. Permission for Testing
Some testing may be needed if your child applies for services from an outside agency. This form allows Project WORK staff to test your child for eligibility purposes. Project WORK follows all state and federal regulations for testing students.
4. Transportation Training
Your child may receive training in how to use the public transit system. Your permission is needed for this training.
5. Publicity
Because Project WORK is a unique program, some publicity may be desired. For example, photographs of your child at his/her job or in the classroom may be taken to show others about Project WORK.
6. Parent Questionnaire
Parents' perspective of their child's abilities is obtained.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF REHABILITATION

Project WORK, San Diego City Schools, and the California State Department of Rehabilitation have a cooperative agreement. A rehabilitation counselor with the Department of Rehabilitation will provide vocational assessment and job support assistance to Project WORK students.

The Department of Rehabilitation offers services to help students secure employment. Services include: transportation expenses, work clothing, work training expenses, job placement assistance, job start-up expenses, reader & interpreter services, counseling & family services.

The family support specialists will bring you the application and other paperwork that are needed. These forms are listed below.

Forms For the Department of Rehabilitation

2. Student Information Sheet
3. Health Questionnaire
4. Release of Information

A Medical Exam Is Required.

The Department of Rehabilitation will send authorization papers to your son/daughter to visit a physician for a routine physical evaluation, at no cost to the parent. It is a requirement that a parent accompany the child to the exam. This exam is very important; the Department of Rehabilitation cannot provide services without it.
