ABSTRACT

Pima County Adult Education's Workplace Education Project provided workplace education classes at 8 worksites to 322 workers. The worksites included Hughes Aircraft Company; AiResearch Tucson Division; Burr-Brown Corporation; Westward Look Hotel; Tucson Medical Center; Radisson Suite Hotel; Manufacturing & Research, Inc.; and University of Arizona (Facilities Management). All participants were pretested; 249 completers were posttested. Teachers of English for speakers of other languages (ESOL) designed pre- and post-assessments that included speaking, listening, reading, and writing components. Math instructors designed pre- and post-assessments. Reading instructors created a reading assessment using company material. In the writing classes, a student writing sample was taken. (The 12-page report is followed by these appendixes: generic workplace curricula for reading skills, writing skills, math fundamentals, math for statistical process control, algebra, and ESOL; job-specific curriculum matrices; sample company-specific curricula and lessons; sample pre- and post-assessments; sample pre-posttest comparisons: basic math; holistic scoring guidelines for writing sample; sample student needs assessment; sample supervisor needs assessment; sample manager evaluation; sample student course evaluation; and articles about the project. An attached external evaluation report sees the development of assessment instruments as a major contribution.) (YLB)

FINAL REPORT NARRATIVE

Pima County Adult Education's (PCAE) Workplace Education Project, funded under the National Workplace Literacy Program, provided workplace education classes at eight worksites to 322 workers. The worksites included: Hughes Aircraft Company, AiResearch Tucson Division, Burr-Brown Corporation, the Westward Look Resort, Tucson Medical Center (TMC), the Radisson Suite Hotel, Manufacturing & Research, Inc. (MRI), and the University of Arizona (Facilities Management).

COMPARISON OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS TO OBJECTIVES

The following information compares actual accomplishments to the objectives contained in the approved application.

Objective 1

A minimum of 230 adults with inadequate basic skills will be recruited and trained in workplace classes.

Accomplishments

Three hundred and twenty-two workers were recruited and trained in on-site workplace classes. Additionally, 47 workers attended more than one ten-week cycle in ESOL or GED Preparation. These workers were only counted once.

Objective 2

A minimum of eight worksite locations, including both large and small Tucson employers, will be served.

Accomplishments

Eight worksites, including large and small employers, were served.

Objective 3

A minimum of 27 class cycles will be completed. A "class cycle" is a class held in a worksite location for an 8-15 week time period.

Accomplishments

Thirty-one class cycles were completed. The average class cycle was 10 weeks (20-40 hours of instruction).

Objective 4

All learners will be pre- and post-tested at the beginning and end of each cycle. Educational levels as well as job performance evaluations will be obtained.

Accomplishments

All learners were pre-tested and those that completed (249/77%) were post-tested. Educational gains as well as gains in self-esteem were obtained. It was difficult to obtain hard data on increased productivity and attendance at work because managers didn't always respond to these questions. Although we do not have hard data on increased productivity and attendance at work, managers who did respond to these questions felt that participating workers were either productive and had good attendance already or they had improved in these areas.

Objective 5

A minimum of five meetings with the outside project evaluator will be held, to conduct and benefit from on-going evaluation.

Accomplishments

The outside evaluator, Nancy Siefer, met with the Project Manager, Linda Hellman, and the staff of the Workplace Education Project five times over the course of the grant period. The meetings included on-site visits to participating companies, advisory committee meetings, and staff meetings with the instructors. The evaluation process and activities are described in more detail on pages 7 & 8 in this Final Report.

Objective 6

Information about the project and materials developed will be disseminated to the Curriculum Coordination Center and the ERIC Clearinghouse. The project will be presented at one or more national or statewide conferences.

Accomplishments

Linda Hellman, Project Manager for PCAE's Workplace Education Project, copresented at the Project Directors' Meeting in Washington, D.C. in May, 1991 on "What Works and What Doesn't." Linda co-presented twice on workplace education at International TESOL (Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages) in Vancouver, B.C., Canada, in March 1992. She also presented in Tucson at the Society for Human Resource Managers. Ellen Grieser, Manufacturing Training Manager for Burr-Brown Corporation, co-presented at the Project Directors' September, 1992 Close-Out Meeting in Washington, D.C. on the role of business in curriculum writing. Since Burr-Brown is one of PCAE's workplace sites, this too was dissemination of information about our project.

Many articles have been written about the Workplace Education Project. "Paychecks and Report Cards" an article written about PCAE's Workplace Education Project appeared in the June 5, 1991 issue of Tucson Weekly. Linda wrote an article for TESOL's Adult Education Newsletter, published in February, 1992, on the Workplace Education Project. Recently, an article was published in the Bureau of Business Practice's Employees Relations Bulletin entitled "A Partnership in Learning" about the Workplace Education Project. The United States Department of Education highlighted PCAE's Workplace Education Project as an exemplary program in its publication Workplace Literacy: Reshaping the American Workforce. All four articles mentioned above are included in the Appendix of this Final Report.

The Project Manager has sent information and materials in response to requests from numerous adult education providers, workplace education providers, and researchers. Materials and information were disseminated to the Department of Education of Puerto Rico; Northeast Metro Technical College in Minnesota; the School Board of Palm Beach, Florida; the New Britain Adult Education Center in Connecticut; the University of Arizona; the Arizona State University and University of California at Berkeley. The Project Manager will send the Workplace Education Project's final report, evaluation, and other materials to the Curriculum Coordination Center and the ERIC Clearinghouse on Adult, Career, and Vocational Education. Curriculums will be sent to the Center for Applied Linguistics National Clearinghouse on Literacy Education in response to its request.

CURRICULUM

All curriculums used in the workplace education classes were developed by the staff of the Workplace Education Project. The curriculum linked the goals of both the participating workers and the individual companies, making the instruction learner-centered and participatory.

During the extension period of the grant, the instructors combined all the company specific curriculums together by subject (reading, writing, math, and ESOL) and developed a generic curriculum for each content area. These curriculums will be used by instructors in the Workplace Education Project to customize from, rather than reinvent the wheel each time we begin a class at a new company. These curriculums can also benefit other workplace education providers.

In ESOL, the instructors met with supervisors, managers, and workers to identify tasks where the need for English appears to be the greatest. These tasks were categorized into a limited number of topic areas and linguistic functions were determined for each task. In reading, writing, and math (Math Fundamentals, Math for S.P.C., and Algebra), the curriculums include scope and sequence for each content area. In addition, job-specific curriculum matrixes were developed by compiling all job titles served with the basic skills necessary to perform each job. Generic and job-specific curriculums are included in the Appendix of this Final Report.

STAFF DEVELOPMENT

All staff involved in the Workplace Education Project received one-to-one and small group training with the Project Manager and Lead Teacher on an on-going basis. Topics covered included task analysis, assessment, curriculum writing, lesson planning, evaluation, and student support services. Teachers also met regularly to share ideas, lessons, etc. The Project Manager conducted on-going observations of every class at every workplace.

Pima County Adult Education also has an extensive in-service staff development program and staff working in this Project benefitted from both PCAE's program and the specific training offered through the Workplace Education Project. In addition, the Lead Teacher attended several conferences on workplace literacy and adult education, including AAACE (American Association of Adult and Continuing Education) in Anaheim, California and Jorie Philippi's Strategies for Designing Workplace Literacy Programs in Scottsdale, Arizona. The Project Manager and one ESOL instructor went to the International TESOL Conference in Vancouver, Canada.

ADVISORY COMMITTEES

Advisory Committees were formed which included representatives from the training or human resource department of the company, managers, students, instructors, and the Project Manager. The groups met a minimum of once a cycle to discuss how the class/es were going, any problems or concerns, suggestions for improvement, ideas for future classes, etc. The advisory committees were a very useful tool for keeping the classes relevant, participatory, and learner-centered. Aside from the Advisory Committees, we conducted on-site planning meetings and task analyses at every worksite, which incorporated workers' input.

EVALUATION

The Workplace Education Project utilized Nancy Siefer as our outside evaluator. Her expertise in workplace literacy has been invaluable in guiding the Project and helping it become an exemplary program. Nancy's primary focus was quality. PCAE's Workplace Education Project worked with Nancy from the initial stages to the end of the grant cycle. Not only was the program evaluated on an on-going basis, but also each class, instructor, and student were evaluated. The four levels of evaluation which follow list who or what were evaluated in each level and by whom.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Pima County Adult Education's Workplace Education Project tested a random sample of approximately 75 workers at Burr-Brown in reading using the Advanced TABE (Tests of Adult Basic Education). This was to ascertain a baseline average of workers' skills in reading. We also performed readability studies on Burr-Brown's work-related and generic materials. We plan to test a random sample of workers in math and put grade levels to Burr-Brown's math materials as well. Burr-Brown is in the process of setting up a computer lab for its education and training department. The participating workers will be able to use the computers for basic skills enhancement in addition to attending classes.

Aside from our federal grant, the Workplace Education Project provided Skills Enhancement Classes to Arizona Department of Economic Security (DES) workers. This is an innovative project because it involves a partnership between two governmental agencies. In 1991-1992, PCAE trained 127 DES employees in reading and writing through a special grant. These funds included the production of a 20-minute video on workplace literacy entitled "Skills for Success", which highlighted Pima County Adult Education's Workplace Education Project, Phoenix Union High School District (our counterparts in Phoenix), and DES. Also featured on the video was the Burr-Brown Corporation as an example of a business committed to workplace education. We have also provided non-grant related classes to employers requesting our services that are not members of the Arizona Consortium for Education and Training or the Southern Arizona Innkeepers' Association on a cost-per-class basis.

OUTCOMES

The following pages give statistics on the number and characteristics of project participants who did and did not complete the program as well as the measurable learning gains. In this report, we have identified "completers" as the workers who completed two-thirds or more of the classroom time offered in each cycle.

Our statistics indicate that 249 participants (77%) out of 322 participants served completed project activities and 73 participants (23%) did not. Many of our "non-completers" were laid off while they were enrolled in workplace education classes. Since our goal was to train 230 workers, we are pleased to have 249 workers who completed the programs at their worksites.

PCAE instructors pre-tested every participant at every location when he/she entered the workplace education class. The instructors post-tested at the end of each cycle, which ranged from 8-13 weeks in length. A total of 185 workers tested higher in basic skills and another 94 improved their communication skills. All 249 completers and 30 non-completers had learning gains documented by pre-/post-test results or determined by teachers, supervisors, or workers themselves. Workers' evaluations of the classes documented increases in self-esteem.

In ESOL, PCAE used teacher-designed pre- and post-assessments. The instructors and the Project Manager developed the assessments according to the specific curriculum at each workplace. The tests were scored on a holistic scale of 0-6:

0 - pre-beginning

1 and 2 - beginning

3 and 4 - intermediate

5 and 6 - advanced

The test components included speaking, listening, reading, and writing. Students were scored on every component and an average overall score was also given to each student. For example, a student might begin the class with an average overall score of 1.3 and post-test at 2.7. A sample ESOL pre- and post-test is included in the Appendix of this Final Report.

Several types of assessments were used in the basic skills areas. For the math classes (Math Fundamentals and Algebra), PCAE instructors designed pre- and post-assessments. These assessments were written with two goals in mind: 1) to assess skill levels that had been determined through prior task analyses to be necessary for job competency and 2) to write math word problems at a reading level appropriate for the group. After administering these assessments, instructors provided each student with an individualized item analysis of his/her strengths and needs, as determined by the assessment. The item analyses were repeated for the post-assessments. This procedure enabled students to pinpoint areas in which they had made the most significant gains. Sample pre- and post-assessments for Math Fundamentals are included in the Appendix of this Final Report as well as pre- and post-test score comparisons from Burr-Brown's Math Fundamentals class.

In reading, the instructor created a reading assessment utilizing company material. The cloze approach was used on a passage taken from the employee handbook. Different selections were used for the pre- and post-tests.

In the writing classes, a student writing sample was taken. The writing samples were scored holistically. The Workplace Education Project's Holistic Scoring Guidelines are included in the Appendix of this Final Report. We also tested students using the Language Mechanics and Language Expression portions of the TABE (Tests of Adult Basic Education), Level A, Forms 5 & 6. Although the TABE uses grade levels to document results, we provided students and employers the results in a percentage format. When we gave employers the results of the pre- and post-test scores, we did not use workers' names and reported the results in composite form. Students' learning gains from pre- to post-test are one indicator of how successful the classes have been and are a valuable marketing tool.

ESOL LISTENING PRE-TEST

- 1. Fold the paper in quarters to mark the center, then unfold it.
- 2. Fold all the corners into the middle.
- 3. Turn it over and fold all the corners into the center again.
- 4. Fold it in half.
- 5. Pinch the top outside corners and bring them together
- 6. Hold it with the fingers of one hand.
- 7. Open the "wings" and put your thumb and three fingers in the pockets.
- 8. Open and close your package in two directions.

FSOL WRITING PRE-TEST

A. Write a paragraph describing how you would change your situation at Burr-Brown to make it the perfect place to work. You can change anything you want. The only requirement is that you must complete a certain amount of quality work every week. What would you change? What hours would you work? How would you arrange the work day? How would you arrange the work situations? Be serious about your answer and write your paragraph in a thoughtful, logical manner including as many details as possible.

ESOL READING PRE-TEST

I. Please read the paragraphs below and choose the ending that best completes each sentence.

5.1.3 Sequence For Putting On/Taking Off Clothing

If full "bunny suit" protection is specified, as for class 100 rooms, snap one side of the face mask into the hood, place the hood over the head ensuring that the hair is fully covered, snap the other side of the face mask to cover the mouth and nose (and beard and mustache) and snap the hood around the neck. Next, put on the coveralls and tuck the hood inside. Finally, put on the bootees followed by the gloves. Reverse this order for removing the bunny suit.

In all other cases, put on the hair cover first, including the cover for the beard if worn. Next comes the face mask to cover nose, mouth and mustache if worn. Then put on the body cover, smock or coveralls followed by the bootees, if specified. Finally, put on the gloves and/or finger cots. Remove this clothing in the reverse order.

- A. This paragraph tells
  - 1. the purpose for putting on special clothing
  - 2. the order for putting on special clothing
  - 3. the names of the various pieces of clothing
- B. According to the instructions
  - 1. You should put on the bootees before you put on the smock.
  - 2. You should put on the bootees and smock at the same time.
  - 3. You only have to wear bootees if you wear a smock.
  - 4. You should put on the smock before you put on the bootees.
- C. To take off the bunny suit,
  - 1. first take off the gloves.
  - 2. take off the coveralls last.
  - 3. tuck the hood inside.
- D. In class 100 rooms
  - 1. You put on your clothes in a different order
  - 2. You must wear a bunny suit
  - 3. You must reverse the order of putting on the bunny suit.

II. Read this section of the Employees' Handbook and choose the number which best completes each sentence.

540's--The Open Door Policy/Direct Lines:

- The "Open Door Policy" is two things. On one level, it is the informal approach we take to the general process of communications at Burr-brown: employees are encouraged to pursue answers to any questions they may have about the company and their jobs. On another level, it is a formal procedure and program which is designed to assure that employees will be able to communicate their suggestions, complaints, and concerns at and to all levels of management. In an organization our size, it is inevitable that employees will occasionally have problems or complaints. We encourage employees to use the following sequence and procedure when pursuing these issues:
  - 1) Immediate manager: The first step in getting information about your job, wages, safety, or any corporate issue should be to talk to your manager. This relationship is perhaps the most important communication channel in the company; seek to keep it open and honest. A manager is required to respond to your request within five (5) days.
  - Human Relations Section Manager: Occasionally, a questions or problem may arise which cannot be resolved at the employee/manager level. If this occurs, the next step is for either the employee or the manager to seek the help of the appropriate Human Relations Section Manager. The Section Manager takes the responsibility for responding to the issue, including doing the necessary research through all available records and files. Having done this, the Section Manager will then schedule a meeting for the employee with upper levels of management to present the issue. This step should also be done within five days.
  - 3) Human Relations Council: If the issue is still not resolved, the employee or manager man request a meeting of the Human Relations Council to discuss the problem. The employee should at this point prepare a brief, written description of the case for the Council's review. The Council has ten (10) working days to provide a response to the employee.
  - 4) The President: If the parties concerned are not satisfied that the issue has been resolved at this point, they may request that the President review the case.
- A. In the "Open Door Policy," whose door is open?
  - 1. Burr Brown's
  - 2. the employees'
  - 3. all managers'
- B. The "Open Door Policy" means
  - 1. You can talk to the president anytime you have a problem at work.
  - 2. Your manager must talk to you anytime, even if she/he is very busy.
  - 3. You can talk to your manager about any work-related issue.

Articles about the Workplace Education Project

All projects funded under the National Workplace Literacy Program are required to demonstrate good prior planning and show promise for a high quality program. Some, however, exceed minimum requirements and sometimes even their own expectations. Five such projects were selected to be highlighted in this report.

WORKPLACE EDUCATION PROJECT OF PIMA COUNTY ADULT EDUCATION (PCAE)

Tucson, Arizona

Partners:

Arizona Consortium for Education and Training

Southern Arizona Innkeepers' Association

Project Background

The Workplace Education Project of Pima County Adult Education (PCAE) responds to the basic skills needs of a number of employers in southern Arizona, including hotels and resorts, health care providers, and electronics, aerospace and other manufacturers. The project offers instruction to 230 students, in literacy and basic skills, English as a second language, GED test preparation, problem solving/critical thinking skills, and communication. It has selected two "umbrella" organizations whose members employ non-native speakers of English and workers with inadequate basic skills. This provides the opportunity and flexibility to train employees at a number of locations. For example, the project conducts workplace education classes for housekeeping and groundskeeping workers at resorts and hotels, production workers at manufacturing companies, and custodial workers at the University of Arizona.

Key Elements

 Prior to instruction, the Workplace Education Project conducts a job task analysis that identifies the literacy requirements of actual jobs, so skills taught will be directly related to workplace needs.

A70

- Workers are involved in all aspects of program development and implementation.
- Advisory committees are formed at each worksite with representatives from the participating workers, management, and the instructors.
- The program is presented as a positive opportunity for employees.
- Class participation is voluntary.
- In most cases, at least 50 percent of the time employees spend in class is paid release time.
- An assessment tool (pre-test) is developed from specific workplace needs identified in the task analysis and administered to potential students recruited for the class.
- Materials from the worksite are incorporated into the curriculum.
- The curriculum also includes problems and situations that simulate actual situations in which workers use basic skills on the job.
- Ongoing interviews with employees ensure that what is being taught continues to be relevant and is meeting their needs.
- Post-tests are developed to assess student progress and the results are compared with the results of the pre-test.
- Support services such as child care and transportation are provided whenever needed.
- Educational counseling is provided to every student, including confidential discussion of personal educational goals, information about other adult education opportunities, and career options.

Indicators of Success

- Improved communications skills by participating employees, including oral and written skills.
- · Improved reading, math and problem-solving skills.
- Improved morale and self-esteem.
- Better attendance and promptness by some employees.
- Increased productivity by some employees.
- Requests for more classes by both management and workers.
- Community-wide recognition, including many employer requests for PCAE's Workplace Education Project classes.

CHAPTER VI:

A PARTNERSHIP IN LEARNING

You've read how some companies, large and small, are tackling their work force literacy problems. Now let's take a look at how those who are delivering the services view their role.

WORKPLACE EDUCATION PROJECT: Providing Skills for Life

The Workplace Education Project (Tucson, AZ) got off the ground in 1988 after receiving a $72,000 grant from the National Workplace Literacy Program (NWLP). It was one of 37 projects in the country to receive funding from the newly developed program, which is administered by the U.S. Department of Education. The money has allowed this Arizona program to work with several partners to develop training programs for businesses around the Tucson area. The $72,000 is the initial round of funding, and since that time the Project has been funded twice by NWLP.

The Workplace Education Project, part of the Pima County Adult Education program, brings together business partners who need help training employees. The business partners, who pay matching funds, include the Arizona Consortium for Education and Training, a group of manufacturing companies, hospitals and educational institutions, the Southern Arizona Innkeepers Association, a consortium of hotels and resort corporations, and the Tucson Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce, the latest partner. "This partner is our vehicle into the small-business community, so we can meet their needs," says Project Coordinator Linda Hellman.

"We work with them to develop training programs. We perform task analyses and find out what their workers need in skills training," she says. All classes for WEP's various partners are held on site. In most cases, employees are given release time to attend the courses, which are scheduled to accommodate working hours. Subjects vary, depending on the individual company's needs, but Hellman says the goal is to link learning to the job. "We try to be job related as much as possible and to become part of the workplace setting."

While providing job-linked learning is the primary goal, "we also try to make classes relevant to employees' lives outside of work." She points to problem-solving skills or working with numbers as examples of skills that transfer from the classroom to employees' jobs and to their lives. "We like to do things in class that will help workers beyond the job—such as improving their writing skills or furthering their general education. If employees tell us their company might have layoffs, we'll go into résume writing if that's what workers want. We are very responsive to their needs."

Some classes teach the basics to get employees up to a level where they can go on to learn the skills required for their jobs or for job advancement. "We are currently teaching a reading and writing course for one company that draws from different departments, but we apply the lessons to their job situations. We get them into the writing activities they need, such as writing incident reports, memos, claim and adjustment letters, or performance appraisals. We put them into a context that has immediate value."

Class structure is nontraditional. "It's a very flexible program," she says. "We can work with individuals at their own levels. But people also work in groups, depending on their rate of learning." Employees take part in what Hellman calls cooperative learning activities. "We have them work in groups to enhance their team-building skills, which companies really want these days."

Hellman works very closely with each company to establish goals, and then fine-tunes or makes changes as classes move along. "This is a participatory program. We try to have workers involved in all aspects of the program. Advisory committees help us achieve this goal. We get a lot of input from the workers initially, but we've found that our first interviews don't always reveal all their needs," says Hellman. "Sometimes we're five weeks into a class before employees reveal additional problems they may have been reluctant to tell us about at the start. For instance, after a few weeks in a class we were running for a college's custodial workers, one problem came up. They had muble getting college students out of the rest rooms so that they could clean up. That's not something you would necessarily discover in a task analysis. So we built scenarios to teach them how to deal with this situation." Such a problem-specific approach is a big benefit to workers.

Hellman stresses that classes are not just for entry-level or hourly workers. "We have supervisors and managers attend some classes with their employees." She says this is a positive development, since companies that are shifting to Total Quality Management want all employees to upgrade their skills. "We don't advertise our classes as remedial or basic," she adds. "This is an opportunity for everyone."

TUCSON PROGRAM

Linda Hellman Coordinator, Workplace Education Project Pinta County Adult Education Tucson, Arizona

Pima County Adult Education (PCAE) in Tucson, Arizona, began its Workplace Education Project in November, 1988, through funding from the U.S. Department of Education's National Workplace Literacy Partnership Grants. Since that time, PCAE's Workplace Education Project has trained workers at 14 worksites in ESOL, basic skills (reading, writing, math), GED preparation, and communication skills. These customized worksite classes have been provided at a variety of locations, including electronic and manufacturing companies, hotels, a nursing home, a hospital, government agency, and the University of Arizona's Physical Resources Department.

Implementing programs at a number of worksites in a rariety f industries is quite a challenge. With three years' experience chind us now, we have learned a lot about the unique characteristics f workplace education. A great deal of up-front time is needed to tarket the program to management, conduct a task analysis, esign a program, recruit learners, and write curriculum and sessment. Workers are involved in many aspects of the program, cluding planning, development, recruitment, instruction, and ser support.

The Workplace Education Project focuses on meeting the eds of both the workers and the employer. We begin with what called a task analysis. Workers and their supervisors are terviewed and observed on the job. All written and read jobated materials are collected. The task analysis is then used to termine what skills are needed for workers to do their jobs well.

In ESOL, as with most workplace education classes, the riculum is customized to meet the specific needs of each lividual worksite. We use a functionally-based approach that is anized by job tasks and includes problems and situations that tulate actual occurrences workers may experience on the job. Iterials used at the workplace are also incorporated into the scroom instruction.

One of the most outstanding ESOL classes that the Workplace location Project is presently providing is at Burr-Brown, a local stronics company. The learners decided to devote much of their ention to enhancing their reading and writing skills. derstanding specifications, describing work situations, erstanding and describing benefits, and writing requests for ups are some examples of the work-related functions that are the in the classroom.

ERIC

Advisory committees are formed at each workpiace to ensure that the classes are meeting the needs of the workers and the employer. Representatives from the classes, instructors, and the employer discuss the direction the classes are going and suggestions for improvement. Also, workers that attend classes are interviewed on an on-going basis so that the curriculum remains relevant, tlexible, worker-centered, and participatory.

Instructors need extra time to met regularly with the advisory committee. They also have to stay abreast of the changing needs of the workplace. For example, at Burr-Brown, our instructors participated in the Manufacturing Orientation Training offered by the company to new employees which included: Introduction to Statistical Process Control (SPC), Introduction to Burr-Brown's Documentation, Environmental Control Requirements, and Electrostatic Damage (ESD).

Pre-tests are developed for assessment/screening that relate specifically to what will be taught in the class. Post-tests are administered at the end of each cycle to document improvement by comparing the results to the pre-test. All test results are confidential. In most cases, classes are offered twice a week, two hours each class session, within a cycle of approximately 10 to 15 weeks.

Workplace classes demand a great awareness of the company environment and a flexible approach. We have experienced times when an overriding need for productivity necessitated a temporary suspension of classes. At one location where we used the guest dining room for a classroom, there were many times that the class had to move to another room.

Enrollment in PCAE's Workplace Education Project is always voluntary. Many employers pay half release time for workers to attend class. At some worksites, full release time is given by the employer, while at a few, no release time is given. We have found that some release time from work to attend class makes the program more successful.

The goals of the program are to improve employee work-related skills and increase their opportunities for continued employment, career advancement, and further education and training. Since worker-centered learning deals with the needs of the whole person, the Workplace Education Project also strives to emich workers' capabilities as individuals in society. Increased employee morale and self-esteem, fulfillment of personal goals, and a better quality of life for participants are other by-products of workplace education training.

While workplace education differs from the way ESOL instruction is delivered in other environments, the rewards are not so very different at all. Watching a class get involved and excited about learning brings the same kind of satisfaction. The instructor of the ESOL class at Burr-Brown, who has taught in many different types of ESOL classes, recently said, "This class is so great. It's the reason I went into teaching ESOL."

Tucson employers, like their counterparts across the country, are finding that workers at all levels need more education—from learning English and basic skills to learning how to analyze problems, scan documents, talculate formulas and make decisions.

Tucson is not unlike the rest of the nation. A durry of reports has painted a glowny imponomic future for the country unless ousiness, industry and education attendes do more to upgrade workers' skills. The reports—from the U.S. Office for Technology Assessment, the U.S. Bureau of Linner Statistics, the National Center on Education and the Economy and others—point to a shrinking labor force of poorty prepared, prorfy educated workers at a time when American ousinesses are expecting nore than ever it entimizes.

REGARDLESS OF WHERE fault might lie, many workers just aren't up to the greater expectations that pervade the modern work place.

Most jobs today require at least high school competencies, says Greg Hart, director of Pima County Adult Education. "Emologers are ratcheting up their requirements for even entity-level compownent." Laz Ruiz, a UA customan, says she has had trouble understanding directions. Through an interpreter she says, "A professor might ask me to some back to clean later and I'd be standing there not knowing what they're saying. The UA runs English-as-a-secondanguage classes for a couple dozen maintenance workers and Tucson Medical Center just wrapped up GED class for mout 12 employees. Both employers pay workers for a portion of their time in class. The employees are expected to contribute hours of personal time to match.

The success of workforce education comes in being at the work size, making class part of the work day and teaching material in the context of the job. "If you teach beople information that theyre zong to use immediately, their retention of that information is much, much greater than if you're teaching them math they il never use." Hellman says.

ecause of right finances, the Tucson fied School District also cannot offer loyees education to rectify skill tiencies. A principal or another ryisor can merely encourage an lovee to go to night school with uses of pay incentives.

An employers expenses for workplace education can add up. The writing class for TMC supervisors cost $4,303, or about 3391 per supermsor, dovering teacher time, materials and release time for employees. Heilman says Pima County Adult Education charges employers $26.65 an hour-51.66 for a D-week session-for English and basic skills classes. But that charge loesn't cover the county programs costs, such as clerical heip, the coordinator's sainty or other administrative expenses.

Even if it were tree, though, some employers would never be interested in workforce education.

You will always have employers who are not interested in ennancing the skills of their workers because then they'd have to pay them more. They apparently don't have a preplem with high mimover and low productivity. They can still get by," says one employment specialist

Just because were educators doesn't mean we have the means to educate or train our own people who don't meet basic literacy levels," says Mary Ann Lemon, assistant director of personnel in some husinesses, though employees' education needs 30 beyond basic skills and English. Many firms. particularly the high-tech electronics businesses, hire only high school graduates. Employees can read, write and compute, but they need improvement,

At Hughes, the company is undergoing great cultural change," says Daisy Jenkins, Hughes' personnel development manager. "We are moving toward participative management and employee empowerment. All of those things point to a work force that has fewer supervisors and that makes more autonomous decisions, a work force that needs more than basic skills. Employees need communication skills, problemsolving skills, analytical skills, listening skiils.

"The ability to learn is critical for today's workers." Jenkins says. "Education and retraining of the work force are going to be absolutely essential in the future. It's easier to train and retrain people who have the requisite basic skills than to edicate and retrain those who don't Enriquez, at Burr Brown, agrees, "For a company to be competitive, it must emphasize education. Learning the skills for tomorrow's technology is not enough. You have to be able to keep !earning!

Enriquez and about two dozen business leaders and educators have formed the Arizona Consortium for Education and Training to bring together businesses with similar educational problems and find a common solution. One solution the consortium is pursuing is "video college."

making education available to people in their homes via cable television.

"It's too darn expensive for each of us to redo the wheel. Why should each business have a GED program?" he says. "People may be on westare but they still have their CNN, their caple."

Hamman says. "It's a shared problem and it should have a shared solution. It's an education problem, it's a private sector problem, it's a social problem and it's a child care problem. It's our problem.

"For years employers have spent a tremendous amount of money for training the cream, the higher echelon, if businesses want to make a profit, they're going to have to divert resources to teaching literacy and English skills," she

Because of Pima County's employment picture, the impact of diminished education levels in the shrinking tabor pool may not seriously affect Tucson for some years still.

Kolzow says Tucson's employment picture is something of an anomaly because people move here for the lifestyle. As a result, Tucson has "a tremendous rate of underemployment. with many people working in jobs for which they are extremely overeducated." He cited 12000 applications submitted for 1,200 jobs when Sears opened its telemarketing center here last year

Sunilarty, American Airlines and American Express received huge aumbers of applications for their information processing centers, and one company reported Tucsonans scored higher on its entrance exam than apolicants from any other part of the nation.

Rob DeMarco, administrative assist to the program manager at the state Department of Economic Security, 323 that many people who come here for : sunshine have attained high levels of education and are taking entry-level y. just to live in the Southwest, leaving c skilled job applicants farther behind TUSD's Lemon says. "We have a .a. poni to choose from in Tucson. We can post a custodial vacancy for a week and have 200 applicants. A lot of people out there are looking for work. But within that pool we are seeing more people w a language other than English as their primary language. For billingual teacher aide positions, we see more and more people who are not truly bilingual but " are really Spanish speakers."

Hart, of Pima County Adult Education says. "The crunch is going to come. If look at the demographics, you see there are going to be fewer and fewer people entering the work force. When these major employers and economists get together with demographers, they see that we're already in a crunon in terms having sufficiently prepared people to take the jobs of the 1990s and the next century.

Koizow says. "The time is definite;" coming when they won't be able to find literate or skilled people in the work force. Nationally, we aren't getting the number of new entrants into the work force. It may take longer for the problem to get here because labor is not as scarce here as it is in other places around the

Final Evaluation Report

I worked with the Pima County Adult Education Workplace Education Project during its funding period from March 1, 1991 - November 30, 1992. Since the decision was made to incorporate site visit observations into project activities on an ongoing basis, the project director's quarterly and final report(s) include recommendations I made on those site visits. The project director, Linda Hellman, and I met on a regular basis throughout the project's duration to ensure the timely integration of the formative evaluation results.

I met with Linda and her staff five times during the grant period: June, 1991; December, 1991; February, 1992; June, 1992; and October, 1992. In each of these meetings, Linda arranged an itinerary for me that included observations of classes, meetings with key company personnel, advisory boards, and students, and tours of specific companies. Four of the visits also included interviews with project staff and participation in staff meetings. After each site visit, Linda and I reviewed my observations and she made any appropriate changes that were required. Notes from each of these meetings are on file in my office. In December, 1992, I reviewed Linda's final report and she included my suggestions within her final copy.

From its inception, the Workplace Education Project energetically reached out to Pima County business and industry to provide comprehensive, customized workplace literacy education programs. Customers included small as well as large companies needing a variety of literacy services ranging from English as a second language classes to communication/writing classes to algebra and pre-SPC courses. The current project contracted to provide services to 230 employees and by project's end had served over 320 workers. Thirty-seven percent of the workers were limited English proficient speakers.

In addition to providing outstanding literacy services, this project has created innovative curriculum and, most importantly, has documented its development and procedures so that other workplace programs can build on its efforts. The curriculum includes generic as well as job-specific materials. A major contribution is the development of assessment instruments. These assessments include pre- and post-assessments in each literacy area and student and manager needs assessments. The project has incorporated writing sample assessments within its communication/writing modules and developed holistic scoring guidelines to evaluate student writing. Upon completion of recommended changes by project staff and evaluator, these materials will be available to other workplace literacy programs.

The success of the Workplace Education Project is due to its outstanding director and the talented staff she has recruited and trained. Staff members have renained with the project because they enjoy meeting the challenges of the workplace and they are provided with the resources and environment to operate as a team. In addition to maintaining its literacy services and refining its outstanding curriculum and assessment instruments/procedures, the project is investigating ways to enhance manager feedback and to document the reasons why workers do not finish the courses (non-completers). The Pima County Adult Education Workplace Education Project represents a outstanding investment of tax dollars, and I enjoy and appreciate the opportunity to interact with their staff and clients.
