ABSTRACT

This directory provides, on a state-by-state basis, a listing of the key people and organizations to contact for information about services, planning, and needs in general and job-related adult literacy. The contacts can also provide how-to guidance to businesses and literacy groups wishing to develop workplace or work force basic skills programs. Listings for each state, arranged alphabetically, include the following: chief statewide contacts, state Job Opportunities and Basic Skills programs, family literacy, library literacy programs, state Laubach contact, state correctional education contacts, state Literacy Volunteers of America contact, work force/workplace literacy, voluntary programs, community colleges. community-based programs, state literacy hotline, and city/regional contacts or hotlines, if any. The national organizations (listed following the states' listings) can also provide helpful information and advice on state-level activities and on national initiatives that have a state impact. These include the following: general organizations; the U.S. Departments of Education, Labor, and Health and Human Services; community colleges; community-based programs; voluntary programs; state literacy initiatives; union literacy programs; refugee and immigrant programs and English as a Second Language; federal corrections; family literacy programs; libraries; national literacy hotline; and PLUS (Project Literacy U.S.) hotline. NATIONAL DIRECTORY OF KEY STATE LITERACY CONTACTS
1993-94 Edition

published by

The Business Council for Effective Literacy
1221 Avenue of the Americas
New York, New York 10020

April 1993

This National Directory of Key State Literacy Contacts is an aid for the business and literacy communities. It provides, on a state-by-state basis, an up-to-date listing of the key people and organizations to contact for information about services, planning, and needs in general and job-related adult literacy. These contacts can also provide how-to guidance to businesses and literacy groups wishing to develop workplace or workforce basic skills programs. The national organizations (listed beginning on page 126) can also provide helpful information and advice on state-level activities and on national initiatives that have a state impact.

This is the 8th and last annual edition of this Directory under BCEL's auspices. It is our hope and expectation that future editions will be developed and put out as a public service by the National Institute for Literacy.
