ABSTRACT

This guide provides an introduction to state government in North Carolina. It has three aims: to provide information about the organization and function of state departments and agencies; to provide content on ideas and issues relevant to democratic government; and to provide information that establishes a foundation for participatory citizenship. The information in the guide is organized into the following categories: federal government, state government, legislative branch, judicial branch, and political process. Information about North Carolina also is featured in 14 appendices, including education statistics (p105), North Carolina counties population map, state budget, and state symbols. While much of the information is transitory (state officers, elected state senators and representatives, etc.) a significant amount is stable and continuing. (DB)

PREFACE

This book provides an introduction to state government in North Carolina. All aspects of our daily lives – the quality of our health, education, prosperity, and safety are affected by decisions made by elected and appointed public officials. Study of this booklet introduces the reader to those people who determine public policy and enact laws that affect each citizen in North Carolina.

One aim of this text is to provide information about the organization and function of state departments and agencies. Understanding the structure and function of government is fundamental to citizenship in a democracy. Elected officials are public servants who are accountable to the citizens of the state through the electoral process. To ensure that ethical and qualified individuals are placed in these leadership roles, knowledge of the role of the people in the legislative process is essential for all citizens.

A second aim of this booklet is to provide content on ideas and issues relevant to democratic government. Having studied these issues citizens are in a better position to critically evaluate various positions and controversies. They are better equipped to participate in contemporary debate on public issues. Informed and enlightened citizens are capable of the critical thinking necessary to produce effective and responsive action.

Finally, this booklet provides information that establishes a foundation for participatory citizenship. Effective citizenship demands an understanding of political labels and party philosophies if wise decisions are to be made. Knowledge about registration procedures and the voting process is needed for the survival of democracy. Democracy requires effective citizen participation, and learning to develop and practice civic skills is essential. Information leads to interest and interest to active involvement which is a major goal of all social studies education.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

FEDERAL GOVERNMENTUNITED STATES CONGRESS*United States Senate

The United States Senate is composed of two Senators per state, elected by the people thereof, for a six-year term. One-third of the Senate is elected every two years. North Carolina will next elect a Senator in November 1996.

Jesse Helms (R)*Lauch Faircloth (R)*United States House of Representatives

The United States House of Representatives is composed of members chosen every two years by the people of the state. Congress fixed the number at 435 permanently in 1929, and by law this number is apportioned among the states after each ten-year national census. The General Assembly is charged with redistricting the state so that as nearly as possible apportionment ensures "one man one vote."

Electoral votes are determined by a state's total number of representatives and senators. In the 1790 census, North Carolina was entitled to 10 representatives. By 1812 the population had increased so that there were 13 representatives. Population figures fluctuated in proportion to that of the other states and so did representation. North Carolina was entitled to 12 representatives in 1940 but dropped back to 11 in 1960. The state moved upward in total population, and the 1990 census gain entitled the state to an additional representative in the House.

NORTH CAROLINA Close Up

EXECUTIVE BRANCH

COUNCIL OF STATE

 Elected to 4-Year Term

STATE CAPITOL

North Carolina has had two permanent capitals, New Bern and Raleigh, and there have been three Capitol buildings. Tryon Palace at New Bern, the first Capitol, was destroyed by fire February 27, 1798. The first Capitol in Raleigh, completed in 1794, was destroyed by fire on June 21, 1831.

The cornerstone for the present Capitol was set in place on July 4, 1833. Most of the architectural details were carefully patterned after several Greek temples. Desks and chairs were made by William Thompson, a Raleigh cabinetmaker. The Capitol was completed in 1840 at a cost of $532,682.34, including the furnishings.

The building is 160 feet in length from north to south and 140 feet in width from east to west. The whole height is 97 1/2 feet in the center, and it is divided into three stories. Today the lower story consists of ten rooms, eight of which are appropriated as offices to the Governor and staff. Senatorial and Representatives' chambers, located on the second story, are used mainly for ceremonial functions.

The Capitol housed all branches of state government until the 1880's. The Supreme Court moved to its own building in 1888, and the General Assembly moved to the newly constructed Legislative Building in 1963.

EXECUTIVE MANSION

Several residences and locations have served as official home for governors of North Carolina. Tryon's Palace in New Bern and the "Governor's Palace" in Raleigh served as official residences. From the Civil War until the present mansion was completed, chief executives who lived in Raleigh resided in rented houses, hotels, or their own homes. The Yarborough House, a Raleigh Hotel, served as the unofficial residence for several governors between 1871 and 1891.

A bill was passed in 1883 authorizing the construction of an official residence using convict labor and material prepared at the penitentiary. Samuel Sloan of Philadelphia and Gustavus Adolphus Bauer were chosen as architects. The building, completed in 1891, was constructed using pressed brick made at the prison. North Carolina sandstone, quarried in Anson County, was used for trimming, and the finishing was done by North Carolina convicts.

After completion little money was left for furnishing, and the Legislature authorized $1,500.00 in 1891 to make additional purchases. Governor Fowle, the first occupant, brought his own furniture when he moved into the residence.

Several renovations and repairs have been made since the mansion was first occupied one hundred years ago. Extensive renovations were made in 1973 when the General Assembly appropriated $845,000.00 for this purpose. Textile industries in North Carolina provided carpets and draperies, and businesses provided decorative articles.

Twenty-five first ladies and their families have lived in the mansion during the past century. Each has made changes and improvements contributing to its liveability and historical significance.

THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH

The principle of separation of powers into three branches of government has been explicitly provided throughout the history of North Carolina. As a state North Carolina has had three Constitutions: the Constitution of 1776, the Constitution of 1868, and the Constitution of 1971. Several reorganizations of Executive Departments have occurred since 1971.

In 1970 an amendment which required the reduction of the number of state administrative departments and the reorganization of state government was adopted by the voters. This was implemented by the Executive Organization Act of 1971 which provided for 10 departments directed by the Council of State and nine other executive departments. Members of the Council of State are elected by the voters for terms of four years. Secretaries of the Executive Departments are appointed by the Governor and serve at his pleasure. In the Executive Branch on March 1, 1993 there were 77,569 permanent, full-time employees subject to the State Personnel Act.

In 1972 an Executive Cabinet consisting of the ten elected officials and the nine appointed by the Governor was created by Executive Order. This cabinet is an advisory body to the Governor and meets when called by him.

From 1776-1835 the Governor of North Carolina was chosen by the Legislature for a one-year term and was eligible for only three terms in six years. The Constitution of 1868 provided for a four-year term for the Governor and Lieutenant Governor, and they were ineligible to succeed themselves. In 1977 the people ratified an amendment to the North Carolina constitution allowing these officials two consecutive terms. James B. Hunt, the first governor to serve two consecutive terms under this constitutional change, was elected in 1976, in 1980 and then again in 1992 for an unprecedented third term. Hunt is the 65th governor (since 1776) and Dennis Wicker is the 30th Lieutenant Governor of North Carolina.

Governor's Terms of Office and Qualifications

Must be at least 30 years of age.

Must be a citizen for at least five years and a resident of North Carolina for two years.

Eligible to serve a four-year term.

May serve no more than two consecutive terms.

Elected in even-numbered years divisible by four.

THE OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

The Governor, the state's chief executive officer and commander-in-chief of the state militia, is responsible for overseeing the execution of all state laws and for preparing and submitting a balanced budget to the North Carolina General Assembly. As chief executive he exercises authority over state expenditures and administers all funds and loans from the federal government.

With advice from the Council of State, the governor may convene the General Assembly in special session. He also grants pardons, reprieves and commutations, and issues extradition warrants and requests. In 1977 an amendment to the North Carolina Constitution made the governor eligible to serve two consecutive terms of office.

Governor
James B. Hunt

In January 1993, Governor Hunt began an unprecedented third term as governor of North Carolina. During his first two terms Governor Hunt earned a national reputation for educational innovation and economic development. He started standardized testing and focused on reading instruction and dropout prevention programs. He served as chairman of the Task Force on Education for Economic growth. As governor he established a Business Committee for education to encourage the business community to push for school reform. He promoted the building of 4,000 new prison cells and reinstated the death penalty. Governor Hunt has expressed his intent to focus on early childhood education, economic development, prison system reform, health care, and government fiscal responsibility to avoid budget shortfalls.

THE OFFICE OF LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Between 1868 and 1970 the Lieutenant Governor was a part-time official with limited authority. He served only when the General Assembly was in session or in the absence of the Governor. Today the office of Lieutenant Governor is a full-time position, and he is no longer limited to one four-year term. In 1989 the Senate Rules Committee removed his power to assign bills to committees and to make appointments to standing committees. He still retains the power in the executive branch to make appointments to more than 40 boards and commissions.

Lieutenant Governor
Dennis A. Wicker

Lieutenant Governor Wicker was elected to his present position in 1992 after representing Lee and Harnett counties in the State House of Representatives for 12 years. In the legislature he was a strong supporter of educational improvement, environmental protection, and drunk driving legislation. Mr. Wicker, a lawyer by profession, was elected State House Majority Leader in 1989 and has been consistently rated as one of the top ten most effective members of the legislature.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

The Department of the Secretary of State has seven divisions: Administrative, Business License Information, Corporations, Notary Public, Publications, Securities, and Uniform Commercial Code. Each division has its own function, but all work to serve the citizens of North Carolina. In recent years the department has become more involved in citizen awareness and protection. The department maintains records of commercial and financial activities as well as those pertaining to state and local government action.

The Secretary of State is custodian of the Constitution and all the amendments thereto. He is responsible for receiving all ratified bills of the General Assembly and the original journals of the Senate and House. He is also responsible for regulation of sports agents and for supervision of all lobbyists at the General Assembly.

Secretary of State
Rufus Edmisten

Mr. Edmisten was first elected to the office of Secretary of State in 1988 and again in 1992. He is only the twenty-first individual to serve in the office since statehood. He brings to the office a distinguished record of service. He was Attorney General for North Carolina from 1974-85. Prior to that he served on the staff of the late Senator Sam Ervin, Jr. He has an avid interest in the historical foundations of our state and takes an active role in the numerous organizations which emphasize the preservation of artifacts and landmarks.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE AUDITOR

The department conducts audits of the various state departments and institutions in North Carolina. These audits include an examination of transactions for their financial integrity and compliance with legal provisions. In addition, selected state programs are examined for economy, efficiency and effectiveness. Such audits are called "performance audits." State law requires the State Auditor to audit the general purpose financial statements prepared by the state. These financial statements are incorporated in the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report published by the state. The State Auditor periodically audits individual universities and other state-supported entities in accordance with government auditing standards established by the Comptroller General. His office conducts special investigations of suspected illegal acts and waste, and he maintains a hotline for state employees to use in reporting such allegations.

State Auditor
Ralph Campbell, Jr.

Prior to his election as state auditor in 1992, Mr. Campbell was employed as an Administrative Officer with the N. C. Department of Insurance. Other employment includes that of auditor with the N. C. State Health Benefits Office and as field auditor with the N. C. Department of Revenue. He has served on numerous Boards and Commissions including Shaw Divinity School Trustees, the Raleigh United Negro College Fund and the N. C. Black Leadership Caucus. He was elected to the Raleigh City Council in 1985-91 and served as Mayor Pro Tem from 1989-91.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE TREASURER

The State Treasurer is responsible for the receipt, custody and disbursement of all state funds. Assets of the pension funds, other permanent trust funds and moneys in custody and not required before the next business day are invested for the benefit of the various programs of state government. The State Treasurer is a financial advisor to the Governor and the General Assembly. When requested, he provides financial advice to all agencies and institutions of the state. The Constitution and statutes of the state provide for a system of fiscal checks and balances through the functions of the State Treasurer, the State Auditor, and the Governor as Director of the Budget.

State Treasurer
Harlan E. Boyles

Mr. Boyles was first elected State Treasurer in 1976. Prior to that he served as Deputy State Treasurer and Secretary of the North Carolina Local Government Commission. A certified public accountant, his initial post in state government was as an auditor in the Department of Revenue. He heads or is a member of several policy-making bodies including the State Board of Education, State Board of Community Colleges, and the State Retirement System. His business-related, community-oriented and religious affiliations have included the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club of Raleigh, the Municipal Securities Rule-Making Board, the Salvation Army and Westminster Presbyterian Church.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

The Department of Public Instruction is charged with establishing overall policy for North Carolina's system of public schools. Money appropriated by the General Assembly or provided by the Federal government is allocated and monitored by the department. The department collects statistical data on expenditures and student progress and provides consultant services in both fiscal and curriculum areas.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction is an elected official, a member of the Council of State, and the designated secretary and chief administrative officer of the State Board of Education which gives him power to supervise and administer the schools. He is charged with organizing the department and administering the funds provided for its support.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction
Bob Etheridge

In 1992 Mr. Etheridge was elected to a second four-year term as State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Prior to this he served for ten years in the General Assembly, rising to a leadership position as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. He is a member of the National Council of Chief State School Officers; the Advisory Board of Mathematics/Science Education Network, the Board of the North Carolina Council on Economic Education, the Board of Trustees of the North Carolina Symphony and the Board of Trustees of the UNC Center for Public Television. Mr. Etheridge has received the Jaycees Distinguished Service Award and is the recipient of several honorary degrees for his service and contributions.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

The Department of Justice is the “people’s attorney” and is charged with protecting individual rights as guaranteed by the Constitutions of the United States and of North Carolina. The Attorney General heads the department.

The department provides legal services in consumer protection, legislative bill drafting and codification. Counsel is provided to state agencies, institutions and local governments. The department is concerned with special investigations and prosecutions. Other areas of responsibility include law enforcement, State Bureau of Investigation, Police Information Network, and the Justice Academy.

Attorney General
Michael (Mike) F. Easley

Before his election in 1992 as N. C. Attorney General Mr. Easley served as district attorney for the 13th Judicial District and was recognized nationally as one of the nation’s top “drugbusters.” He has served as past President of the N. C. Conference of District Attorneys and past President and Legislative Chairman of the N. C. District Attorneys Association. He has testified before subcommittees of the US Senate Foreign Relations Committee regarding drug interdiction. Attorney General Easley has written numerous articles for leading law and professional journals, and in 1984 he received the US Department of Justice Public Service Award.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The Department of Agriculture serves the farming and consuming public by dealing with the production of food and fiber, as well as non-edible goods. A major purpose of the department is to assist the grower in the promotion and sale of North Carolina agricultural products. The department administers the North Carolina State Fair. Other food programs include truth in labeling and quality standards, with emphasis on animal health. Non-food programs include fuel meters, accurate weighing scales, packaging, pesticide regulation, feed and fertilizer certification and market price information. The department also provides consumer protection services to ensure quality and wholesomeness of foods, drugs, and agricultural products.

Commissioner of Agriculture
James A. Graham

Mr. Graham has been Commissioner of Agriculture since 1964. Prior to this, he was general manager of the Raleigh Farmer's Market, secretary of the N. C. Hereford Association, manager of the Winston-Salem fair, superintendent of the upper Mountain Research Station and a vocational agricultural teacher in Iredell County. He has served as president of several regional and national agriculture associations and has received many agriculture-related awards for his services to the state.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

The Commissioner of Labor is responsible for the administration and enforcement of labor laws. The Department of Labor's Health and Safety Group enforces Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations and the Hazardous Chemicals Right to Know Act, and it inspects boilers, elevators, amusement devices, migrant housing, and mine and quarry operations. The Education and Training Group promotes apprenticeship and job training programs, and the Administration and Regulation Group enforces the wage and hour law, licenses employment agencies, and provides arbitration and conciliation services to labor management groups.

Commissioner of Labor
Harry Eugene Payne, Jr.

A lawyer by profession, Commissioner Harry Payne, Jr. served six consecutive terms in the North Carolina House representing New Hanover county before his election to his present position in 1992. His past work experience includes the family clothing and formal wear business, a documents examiner with the United States Army Corps of Engineers, a teacher of constitutional and criminal law at Cape Fear Community College, and an attorney with the firm of Payne, Boyle, Swart in Wilmington, N. C. His assignments in the General Assembly included chairman of the Manufacturing and Labor and Rules, Appointments, and Calendar Committees. He also served as Co-chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Education.

DEPARTMENT OF INSURANCE

The North Carolina Department of Insurance offers a wide range of specialized services to the people of North Carolina. The primary responsibility of the department is the execution of the laws regarding insurance. The Commissioner must license and supervise insurance companies, regulate the premium rates insurers charge, and protect the holders of insurance policies.

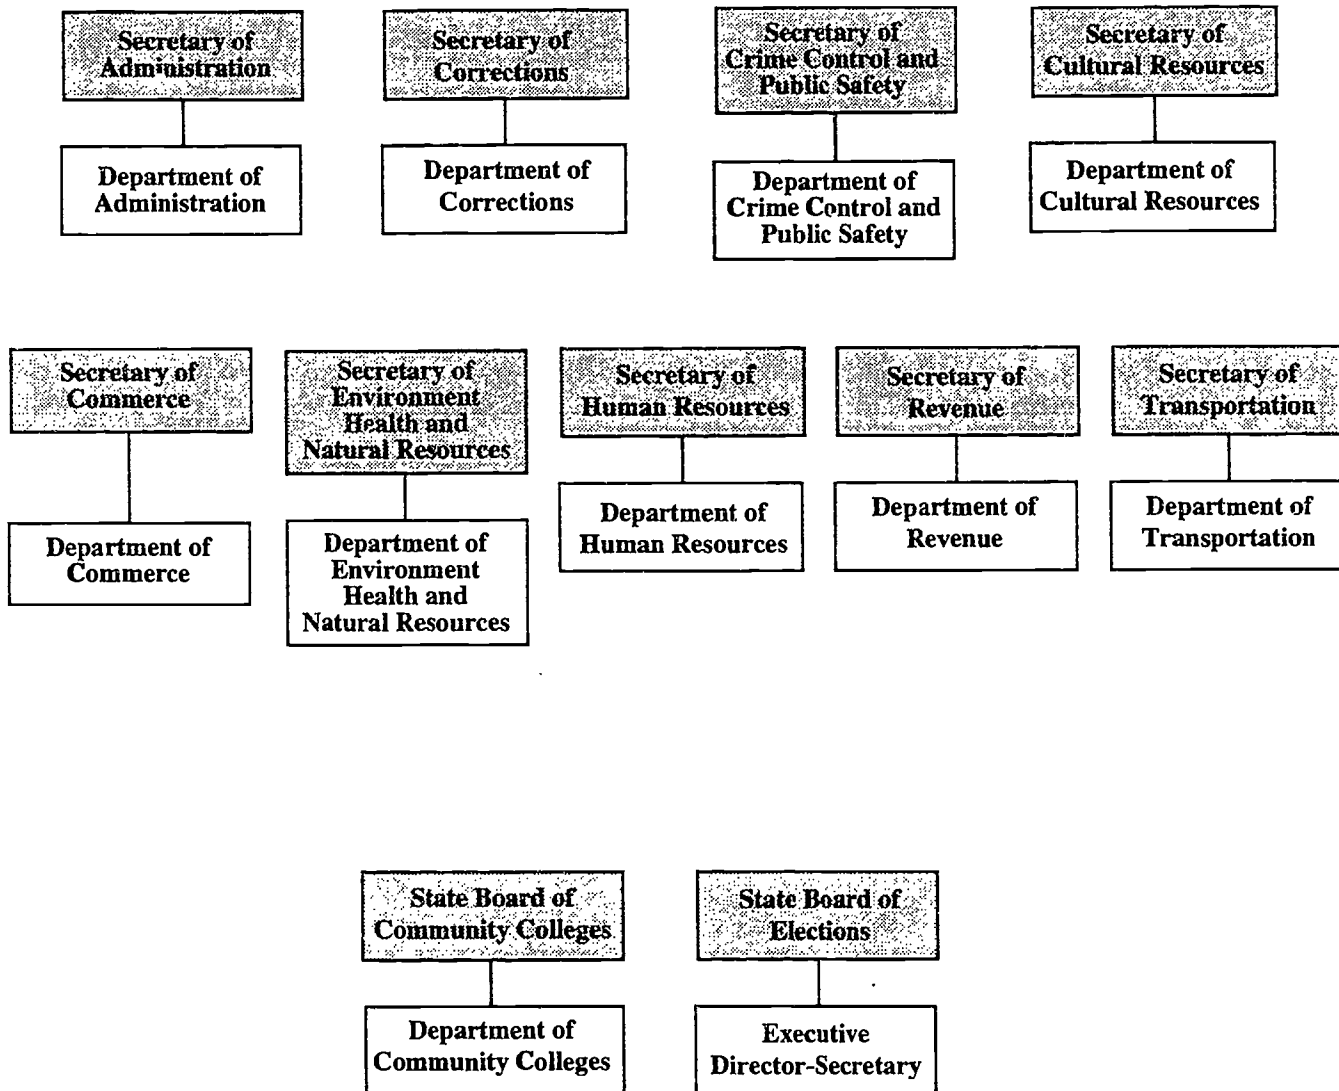

The duties of the Department of Insurance include investigating consumer complaints, licensing of insurance agents, regulating the kinds of insurance sold in the state, providing fire and rescue training, and administering the North Carolina Building Codes.

Commissioner of Insurance
James E. Long

Mr. Long has served as counsel to the Speaker of the House of Representatives. He has been chairman of the North Carolina Property Tax Commission and served as Chief Deputy Commissioner of Insurance. For three sessions he served in the North Carolina House of Representatives, chairing various committees and commissions. He serves as Fire Marshall for the state and is chairman of the North Carolina Manufactured Housing Authority and the North Carolina Arson Awareness Council. Commissioner Long now serves as president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

EXECUTIVE BRANCH - Cabinet

 Appointed by the Governor

NOTE:
 The State Board of Community Colleges elects a President of Community Colleges to head the Department.
 The State Board of Elections is an autonomous agency. The Board appoints the Executive Director-Secretary to administer services.

DEPARTMENT OF ADMINISTRATION

The Department of Administration serves as a staff agency for the Governor. In its role as manager of the state's internal operations, it works to provide services for other state agencies and to ensure that the taxpayers' dollars are spent wisely. The department is responsible for maintaining buildings, managing the state's fleet of automobiles, providing security for state officials, landscaping state owned grounds, and the acquisition and disposition of all state property.

The department administers programs to assist veterans and their dependents. It serves special populations through programs for the disabled, African-American, Native American, children and youth. Advocacy groups are organized on behalf of populations that have been traditionally underrepresented or not represented at all in state government.

Secretary of Administration
Katie G. Dorsett

Secretary Dorsett retired in 1987 as professor in the School of Business and Economics at North Carolina A and T University after thirty-two years of service. From 1983-86 she served on the Greensboro City Council and in 1986 was elected to serve on the Guilford County Board of Commissioners. During her service as a Commissioner she spearheaded such projects as the Minority and Women Business Enterprise Program; the expansion of the Parks and Recreation Commission to broaden minority representation; and the implementation of policies allowing greater diversity on county boards and commissions. Secretary Dorsett has served on numerous boards and commissions and has received honors including the Sojourner Truth Award for community service.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

This department is the state's leading economic development agency and houses programs for business assistance, industrial recruitment, international trade, travel and tourism, and film industry development. The department acts as liaison with the State Ports Authority which operates terminals at Wilmington and Morehead City. The department includes the Employment Security Commission which provides employment training and administers the state's unemployment insurance program and the Energy Division which sponsors energy conservation, emergency planning and community development programs. The department also houses several regulatory agencies which work independently including the Board of Alcoholic Control, Banking Commission, Burial Commission, Credit Union Commission, Industrial Commission, Milk Commission, Rural Electrification Authority, and the Utilities Commission.

Secretary of Commerce
S. Dave Phillips

Secretary Phillips served as Chairman and CEO of Phillips Industries, Inc. in High Point prior to his appointment in January 1993 as Secretary of Commerce. Phillips Industries is a holding company for Textile Manufacturing and Factoring services. Mr. Phillips has served on numerous boards dealing with arts, transportation, education, medicine, and sports. He is chairman of the Wake Forest Babcock School of Management and the High Point Economic Development Corporation.

DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS

The Department of Corrections is responsible for the supervision of all individuals sentenced after conviction of a felony or misdemeanor in North Carolina. The Office of the Secretary, the Division of Prisons, and Adult Probation and Parole are the three major administrative sections of the Department. According to the General Statutes, the Secretary is to provide for protection of North Carolina citizens by operating and maintaining prisons, supervising probationers and parolees, and providing rehabilitative and educational programs.

Secretary of Corrections
Franklin Edward Freeman, Jr.

Secretary Freeman served as Administrative Officer of the Courts from 1981-1993. He worked as Administrative Assistant to Chief Justices William Bobbitt and Susie Sharp, served as Executive Secretary to the Judicial Council, and was Research Assistant to Associate Justice Dan K. Moore. He is a member of the Surry County and Rockingham County Bar Associations and the North Carolina Bar Association. He has received service awards from the Conference of Superior Court Judges, Conference of District Court Judges and the N. C. Clerks of Superior Court Association.

DEPARTMENT OF CRIME CONTROL AND PUBLIC SAFETY

The North Carolina Department of Crime Control and Public Safety has been in operation since April 1, 1977, providing law enforcement and emergency services to the people of North Carolina. The department assists local law enforcement and public safety agencies and works to improve the criminal justice system. Since 1980 the department has had the authority to direct state resources to respond to any emergency or natural or man-made disaster.

The department consists of nine divisions: State Highway Patrol, National Guard, Civic Air Patrol, Alcohol Law Enforcement, Butner Public Safety, Emergency Management, Governor's Crime Commission, Crime Prevention, and Victim and Justice Services.

Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety
Thurman B. Hampton

Prior to his appointment by the Governor to his present position in January 1993, Secretary Hampton served as Assistant District Attorney in 17-A Prosecutorial District at Wentworth, N. C. Other work experience includes that of general practice of law in Eden, N. C.; Assistant Professor of Law at N. C. Central University, Durham, N. C.; and currently holds the rank of Lieutenant Colonel USAR in the US Army Judge Advocate General Corps. He holds membership in several State and National Bar Associations and is active in church and civic organizations.

DEPARTMENT OF CULTURAL RESOURCES

The Department of Cultural Resources was created in 1971 to administer state activities relating to culture, history, and the arts. The functions of the department are concerned with interpretation of our culture and determining ways the products can be made available to the public. The Division of Archives and History preserves our state records, historic places, and history museums. The three divisions are Arts Council, Archives and History, and the State Library. A variety of programs in music, theater, folklife, dance, and literature are supported through over 450 arts organizations across the state. The Division of State Library coordinates library services including an information "hotline," free film service, and consultant service to librarians. The department promotes the North Carolina Symphony and the State Museum of Art.

Secretary of Cultural Resources
Betty Ray McCain

Secretary McCain served as chairman and Staff Director of the N. C. Democratic party and as CoChair of the Jim Hunt campaign for governor during his first two terms as Governor. She worked as a lobbyist for ERA for Governor Hunt during his first administration and also for his U. S. Senate campaign. Her membership in the N. C. Art Society, Symphony Society, Literary and Historical Association and Preservation Foundation, Inc. reveal her variety of cultural interests. She is the recipient of several state awards including the N. C. Heart Association, the Easter Seal Society and the Jaycee Women from whom she received the national Women in Government Award in 1985.

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENT, HEALTH, AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Created in 1989, this department contains most of the state's agencies which deal with environmental protection, public health and natural resources. Major areas of concern include protecting air, mineral, water, and wildlife resources. The department administers health and environmental education, the state's zoo and parks, waste reduction and management, and adult and maternal-child health care. The department provides information regarding the spread of diseases, laboratory analyses and post mortem medical examinations.

Environment, Health, and Natural Resources
Jonathan B. Howes

Secretary Howes has served as director of the Center for Urban and Regional Studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill since 1970. He is presently on leave of absence from the University where he is a lecturer and research professor on city and regional planning. He has served as director of the Urban Policy Center in Washington, DC; deputy director of the program development staff; director of state and local planning assistance; and as an urban planner with the Housing and Home Finance Agency. His knowledge of problems facing cities world-wide has provided an opportunity for him to travel to countries in Europe and Asia.

DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES

This department administers over 500 programs designed to provide access to health care and to improve the social and economic well-being of North Carolinians. Its agencies work with premature infants, young people in trouble, the mentally and physically disabled, and those with drug and alcohol problems. A goal of the department is to prevent problems and to strengthen programs at the local level so people can be better served in their homes and communities.

Divisions of the department include the following: Division of Aging, Division of Services for the Blind, Division of Mental Health, Division of Social Services, and Division of Youth Services. Youth Services operates the state's five training schools and four detention centers, providing services in prevention, treatment, and therapy.

Secretary of Human Resources
C. Robin Britt

Prior to his appointment as Secretary of Human Resources, Mr. Britt was founder, President, and member of the Board of Directors of Project Uplift, Inc. in Greensboro, North Carolina. A lawyer by profession, he was elected to the U. S. House of Representatives, serving one term in the 98th Congress. His committee responsibilities in the House and his community reveal his interests. House committees include Small Business Committee and Subcommittee on tax, Access to Equity Capital and Business Opportunity and the Committee on Hunger. His local committee responsibilities focus on preschool, early childhood education and the needs of children.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE

This department collects and distributes taxes and seeks uniformity in the administration of tax laws and regulations. Activities of the department are divided into two major areas: Tax Schedules and Administrative Services. Tax Schedules include: Corporate Income Tax, Individual Income Tax, Inheritance and Gift Tax, Motor Fuels Tax, and Property Tax Division.

Services provided by the Management Information Division include data entry, audit verification, and preparation of over 2.1 million refund checks. The Tax Research Division publishes a biennial statistical report, and upon request, provides information for the General Assembly and the general public.

Secretary of Revenue
Janice Hardison Faulkner

Secretary Faulkner served as Professor of English at East Carolina University for 25 years. She was the first and only woman to hold the position as Executive Director of the N. C. Democratic Party. She has served as Past President of the State Board of N. C. World Trade Association, President of Hope Historic Foundation and as Chairperson of N. C. Board of Advisors to U.S. Small Business Administration. She has written and edited numerous freelance articles on folklore and local history and is the author of two English textbooks on Grammar and the Language Arts and College English for Business.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

Two main divisions of the department are Highways and Motor Vehicles. The Division of Highways program promotes the construction and maintenance of the state's bridges, highways, and secondary roads. The Division of Motor Vehicles regulates the ownership and operation of the state's motor vehicles. The program promotes driver education and school bus driver training.

Also included in the department are the divisions of Aviation, Ferries, and Public Transportation. Programs promote carpooling, highway safety, bicycle safety, and highway beautification. The Transportation Division is responsible for ensuring adequate rail service for the state.

Secretary of Transportation
Rector Samuel Hunt, III

Secretary Hunt served as a member of the N. C. House of Representatives from 1985-1992. His major contributions as a legislator were his work on the Highway Study Commission, co-chairman of the Joint Legislative Highway Oversight Committee and Chairman of the House Committee on Infrastructure which included the Subcommittees on Highways, Airports, Railways, Waterways, Utilities, Water, Waste Water, and Solid Waste. As a legislator he sponsored the 65 M.P.H. legislation, legislation to increase penalties for speeding in work zones, and co-sponsored the Highway Trust Fund Bill.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

SENATE

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Elected to 2-Years Term

LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

STATE LEGISLATIVE BUILDING - RALEIGH

The Legislative Building was built to house a growing legislative branch and staff. Funds were appropriated by the General Assembly in 1959. In 1961 the General Assembly appropriated an additional one million for furnishings and equipment.

The building is built on a podium of North Carolina granite; walls and columns are of Vermont marble. The podium on which the building rests is 340 square feet, and the building itself is 242 square feet. The Great Seal of the State, located at the main entrance, is 28 feet in diameter. A carpeted main stair, 22 feet in width, leads from the front entrance to the third floor public galleries of the Senate and House.

Senate and House chambers, each 5,180 square feet, occupy the east and west wings. Brass doors, each weighing 1,500 pounds open each chamber to the rotunda. Chandeliers in the chambers and main stair are eight feet in diameter and weigh 625 pounds each. Garden courts and rotunda have tropical plants and trees.

Renovations have been made to increase space and to improve meeting room facilities. A new Legislative Office Building opened in 1982, and most of this space is now used by the legislature. Nearly half the members of each house and support divisions of Legislative Services are now located in the Legislative Office Building.

THE NORTH CAROLINA CONSTITUTION

The General Assembly is the legislative branch of North Carolina government and is the oldest governmental body in the state. A unicameral form of the legislature was used from 1666-1697. The first bicameral legislature was composed of an "upper house" and a "lower house." Unlike later "upper houses," this first one was made up of the governor and his council. The "lower house" always held the "power of the purse" including the salary of the governor. However, it could only meet when called to do so by the governor.

The state has written three constitutions since becoming independent: the Constitution of 1776, the Constitution of 1868, and the Constitution of 1971. Each of these, plus other revisions and amendments, have changed the legislative, executive, and judicial branches. However, from 1868 to 1984 North Carolina ratified only 95 amendments and rejected 34. Much of the decision-making power has always resided in the General Assembly.

The Constitution of 1776 provided for a bicameral legislature elected by the voters. Until revisions of 1835, this General Assembly held the bulk of power, choosing the governor and designing a court system. After 1835 the people elected the Governor, and the General Assembly was thereafter fixed at 170 members. The Constitution of 1868 changed the House of Commons to the House of Representatives and gave the power to elect the executive officials and judges to the voters. The Constitution of 1971 resulted from a study commission appointed to revise the document which had grown obsolete, constitutionally invalid, and illogically arranged through years of amending. This Constitution retained the Declaration of Rights of 1776, amendments of 1868, and the fourteen-article organization. It provided for government reorganization of the administrative departments and gave the General Assembly the power to call itself into special session.

CONVENING THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Terms of office for members of the General Assembly begin on January 1 of each odd-numbered year following the previous November general elections. Newly elected members gather in the chambers of the Senate and the House and collectively take the oath of office. The 1993 session convened on January 27 at 12:00 noon. Day and time for convening have been set by statute for the third Wednesday after the second Monday in January.

Since 1974 the General Assembly has met in regular sessions each year. The first regular session, convening in odd-numbered years, generally averages six months. During this session any type of legislation may be considered. A second session, convening in even numbered years in May and June, is a continuation of the previous session and usually lasts from eight to ten weeks. Types of legislation considered are budget readjustment, pending legislation from the previous session, local bills, appointments, and study commission recommendations.

Special sessions may be convened either by the governor with the advice of the Council of State or by the president of the Senate and the Speaker of the House by joint proclamation upon written request, signed by three fifths of the members of their respective houses. The governor must state the purpose for calling a special session, but the joint proclamation of the Senate and House need not give a purpose.

The Lieutenant Governor convenes and presides in the Senate. Since the House elects one of its own members as speaker, the rules provide that the clerk from the previous session must preside until the new speaker is elected.

ORGANIZATION

The Lieutenant Governor is the presiding officer of the Senate and is elected by the voters. He has no vote except to break a tie. Beginning in 1977 the Lieutenant Governor became eligible to serve for two consecutive terms of four years. The Speaker of the House is the presiding officer of the House of Representatives and is elected by the entire membership. The Speaker may vote or may elect to vote only in event of a tie; however, he cannot vote twice on any measure. Each House elects party leadership in caucus and officers of the house by vote of the membership.

Officers

A president pro tempore is elected from the Senate membership. The Constitution designates that the House must elect a member as speaker. The election of a reading clerk, principal clerk, and sergeant-at-arms is also required by state statute for both houses.

Committees

Committee members in the House are appointed by the speaker and are to reflect the party membership in the House. In the Senate the president pro tempore appoints the number allotted to the majority party. The minority party leader designates the minority party members. These assignments are made at the beginning of each session and remain the same throughout the session.

Every member of each house serves on either the Finance or Appropriations Committee. Most members serve on several Committees. The Senate limits the number of Committees on which members can serve, but the House does not limit the number of committee assignments.

Daily sessions of the general assembly are arranged so that committee meetings are held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday mornings. Principal clerks prepare a daily calendar that lists committee meetings, and these are posted and read at the end of the daily sessions.

In the less formal committee setting, the legislator who introduced the bill explains its provisions and committee members may ask questions for clarification. At this time interested individuals may choose to appear before the committee to express support or opposition.

Generally, committee meetings are open to the public. Executive sessions may be held under certain circumstances as specified in the Open Meetings Law. A statute requires that Appropriations meetings be open.

The committee determines whether a bill is to be considered for further action. A bill may be referred to a Senate subcommittee for further study or amendments. If reported favorably to the floor either the committee chair, another committee member or the bill's sponsor will explain it.

Passage of a Bill

An idea for legislation may originate with any citizen, special interest group, or legislator. The governor, state agencies, and local agencies may also make requests or promote the passage of legislation of interest to them.

Any proposed idea must be drafted in appropriate bill form before it will be considered. Competent drafters are available for this purpose. Bills must be filed with the principal clerks' offices on the day before they are introduced. Bills are read by title and number and assigned to the appropriate committee for consideration. Only a member of the General Assembly may introduce a bill, and several members often co-sponsor bills for themselves or at the insistence of others. Every bill is studied by at least one committee in the House and one in the Senate.

Following committee consideration and a favorable report, the bill is returned to the full house for the second reading. At this time the bill is explained, debate on the bill occurs, and amendments may be offered from the floor. Legislators have the opportunity to vote for passage.

If the bill passes, any amendments will at this time be added to the text, and the bill is then placed on the calendar for third reading. For third reading the same procedure is used. The bill is not explained again, but legislators may debate and add additional amendments before voting. Each house limits debate upon an issue by the individual member. Both houses vote electronically and copies of these votes are filed in the principal clerks' offices and in the Legislative Library for public inspection.

When the bill passes third reading it is sent to the other house where it follows the same procedure. After both houses have passed a bill, the affixing of signatures by the Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker ratify the bill into law.

LOBBYIST

The law identifies a lobbyist as a "legislative agent" who is paid by another during a legislative session to provide facts or arguments about a bill. An individual who is paid only his travel expenses is not considered a lobbyist. Citizens who express personal opinions or testify before committees, reporters, and government officials are not considered lobbyists.

All lobbyists must register with the Secretary of State, pay a $75 registration fee for each business or association represented, and report to the Secretary of State within 30 days after a legislative session ends all expenditures for lobbying efforts during the session. When a lobbyist's report is delinquent, a notification is sent; and if a report is not filed within the allotted 20 day grace period, the registration is revoked.

In the 1991-1992 legislative session, there were 1,017 registrations including 525 individuals who registered with the Secretary of State. These lobbyists represented a total of 550 businesses. Legislation enacted in the 1991 session placed additional restrictions on lobbyists. Lobbyists must report all contributions, food, entertainment and lodging. Two separate reports must now be filed. Businesses must report a compensation dollar figure paid. They must also provide the names of those they entertain if under 10 at a single function.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF NORTH CAROLINA SESSION 1992 RATIFIED BILL

MANAGEMENT FLEXIBILITY FOR LOCAL BOARDS OF EDUCATION AND INDIVIDUAL SCHOOLS

“ § 115C-238.1. Performance-based Accountability Program; development and implementation by State Board.

The General Assembly believes that all children can learn. It is the intent of the General Assembly that the mission of the public school community is to challenge with high expectations each child to learn, to achieve, and to fulfill his or her potential. With that mission as its guide, the The State Board of Education shall develop and implement a Performance-based Accountability Program. The primary goal of the Program shall be to improve student performance. The State Board of Education shall adopt:

- (1) Procedures and guidelines through which, beginning with the 1990-91 fiscal year, local school administrative units may participate in the Program;
 - (2) Guidelines for developing local school improvement plans with ~~three to five year~~ three-year student performance goals and annual milestones to measure progress in meeting those goals; and
 - (3) A set of student performance indicators for measuring and assessing student performance in the participating local school administrative units. These indicators may include attendance rates, dropout rates, test scores, parent involvement, and post-secondary outcomes.”
- (b) G.S. 115C-238.3 reads as rewritten:

“ § 115C-238.3. ~~Elements-Development of local plans; elements of local plans.~~

(a) Development of systemwide plan by the local board of education. -- The board of education of a local school administrative unit that elects to participate in the Program shall develop and submit a local school improvement plan for the entire local school administrative unit to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction before April 15 of the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year in which participation is sought. ~~The local board of education shall actively involve a substantial number of teachers, school administrators, and other school staff in developing the local school improvement plan.~~

A systemwide improvement plan shall remain in effect for no more than three years.

(b) Establishment of student performance goals by the local board of education for the systemwide plan. -- ~~The local school improvement plan shall set forth (i) the The local board of education shall establish student performance goals established by the local board of education for the local school administrative unit and (ii) the unit's strategies and plans for attaining them. unit. The local board of education shall actively involve an advisory panel composed of a substantial number of teachers, school administrators, other school staff, and parents of children enrolled in the local school administrative unit, in developing the student performance goals for the local school improvement plan. It is the intent of the General Assembly that teachers have a major role in developing the student performance goals for the local school improvement plan; therefore, at least half of the staff members participating in this advisory panel shall be teachers. The teachers in the local school administrative unit shall select the teachers who are involved in the advisory panel.~~

The performance goals for the local school administrative unit shall address specific, measurable goals for all student performance indicators adopted by the State Board. Factors that determine gains in achievement vary from school to school; therefore socioeconomic factors and previous student performance indicators shall be used as the basis of the local school improvement plan.

(b1) Development by each school of strategies for attaining local student performance goals.—
~~The strategies for attaining the local student performance goals shall be based on plans for each individual school in the local school administrative unit. The principal of each school and his staff school, representatives of the building -level staff, and parents of children enrolled in the school shall develop a building-level plan to address student performance goals appropriate to the that school from those established by the local board of education. These strategies may include requests for waivers of State laws, regulations, or policies that inhibit the local unit's ability to reach its local accountability goals, (ii) set out with specificity the circumstances under which the waiver may be used, and (iii) explain how a waiver of those laws, regulations, or policies will permit the local unit to reach its local goals. . . .~~

In the General Assembly read three times and ratified this the 8th day of July, 1992.

STATE GOVERNMENT DATA

Seat of Government

Prior to the establishment of Raleigh in 1792 as the permanent capital of North Carolina, the seat of government was moved from town to town with each new General Assembly. Halifax, Hillsborough, Fayetteville, New Bern, Smithfield, and Tarboro all shared the distinction of serving as the "seat of government" between 1776 and 1794. The Assembly of 1794-95 was the first legislature to meet in Raleigh.

Tryon Palace in New Bern, the State's first capitol building, was burned on February 27, 1798. The old State House was burned on June 21, 1831. The first session to convene in the Capitol was on November 16, 1840. The first session to convene in the State Legislative Building was on February 6, 1963.

Executive Branch

On January 7, 1989, Governor James G. Martin, a Republican from Iredell County, became the first Republican Governor ever elected to two consecutive terms. Governor Martin was the 97th individual to serve as Chief Executive of North Carolina and the 65th citizen to serve as Governor of the State since our independence. In January 1993, James B. Hunt became the first Governor ever to be elected to a third term as Governor.

Legislative Branch

The 1993 General Assembly of North Carolina, the State's 140th, was convened in the respective chambers of the Senate and House of Representatives in the Legislative Building in Raleigh at Noon on January 27 by the Lieutenant Governor, Dennis A. Wicker in the Senate and Principal Clerk, Grace Collins in the House.

Prior to 1957, the General Assembly convened in January at a time fixed by the Constitution of North Carolina. From 1957 through 1967, sessions convened in February at a time fixed by the Constitution. The 1969 General Assembly was the first to convene on a statutory date fixed by law. The present amended law sets the date for convening after a general election as 12:00 noon on the third Wednesday following the second Monday in January.

Prior to 1973-74 the only time the General Assembly met in a session other than the regularly scheduled odd-year session was by special call of the governor for some critical need. The economic situation in 1973-74 created a climate which led to the beginning of a second session in the even numbered years. The 1974 session was almost as long as a regular session. Today, rules adopted by State Senate and State House of Representatives limit the type of legislation that will be considered in the "short" session. The 1990 "short" session ran for 55 legislative days, making it the longest, "short" session in history. The 1992 "short session" ran for 42 days for the House and 41 for the Senate.

Women

The first woman to serve in the General Assembly was Lillian Exum Clement from Buncombe County who began her first term in the House in 1921. Two hold the record for the longest years of service for women in the General Assembly. Representative Jo Graham Foster, a Democrat from Mecklenburg County, served ten terms in the House. Senator Lura S. Tally, a Democrat from Cumberland County is beginning her eleventh term, having already served five in the House and five in the Senate. The 1993 General Assembly includes 24 women in the House and seven in the Senate.

Minorities

The first African-American to serve in the General Assembly during this century was Henry E. Frye from Guilford County who began his first term in the House in 1969. Seven blacks are serving in the present Senate, and 17 are serving in the House. One Native American is serving in the House during the 1993 Session.

Men

The Senator with the longest tenure is James D. Speed, a Democrat from Franklin County who is serving his 16th term. He has served six terms in the House and ten in the Senate. The representative with the longest tenure is Liston B. Ramsey, a Democrat from Madison County, serving his sixteenth term in the House. An all-time record for service is held by Dwight Quinn, a Democrat from Cabarrus County, who served 18 terms in the House.

Party Affiliation

In the 1993 Session a total of 39 Democrats and 11 Republicans are serving in the Senate. A total of 78 Democrats and 42 Republicans are now serving in the House.

Legislation Enacted

An all-time record of 3,375 bills were introduced in the 1989 Session with 836 bills ratified. A total of 668 bills were introduced in the 1990 "short" session. In the 1991 General Assembly 761 new laws were passed. In the 1992 "short session" 683 bills were introduced and a total of 341 were approved.

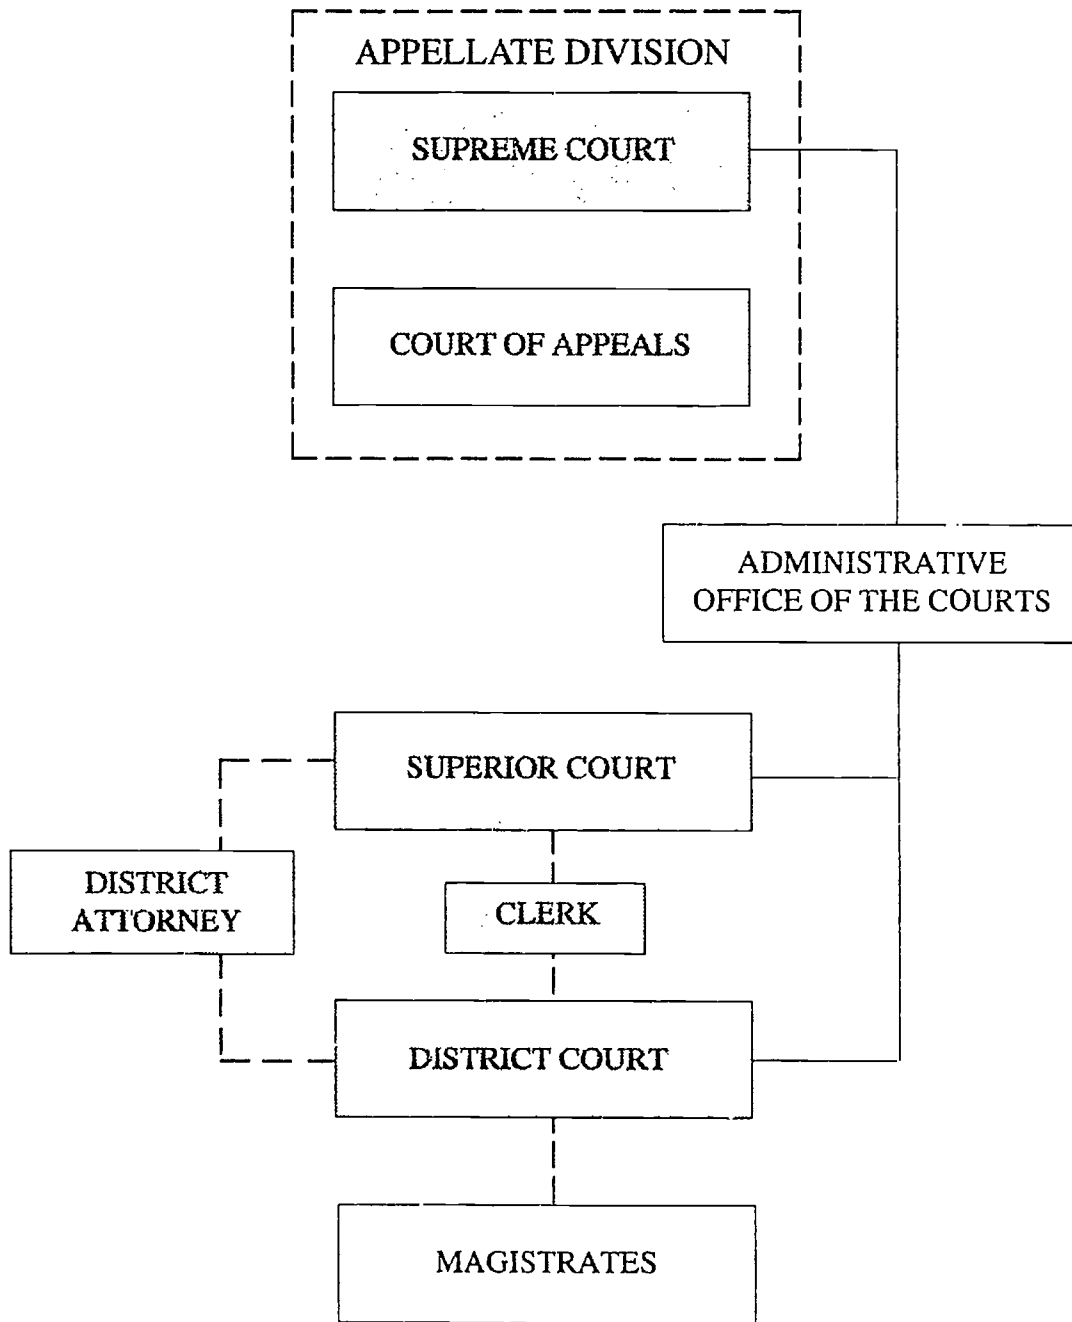

Salaries

Members and officers of the General Assembly received raises in 1992. The following list shows the salaries of members of the General Assembly:

Member*	Base Salary	Yearly Expense Allowance
Senators and Representatives	13,026.00	6,264.00

* In addition, all legislators receive $92.00 per day subsistence allowance during the session and weekly travel allowance of $.25 per mile for one roundtrip per week from their home district whether they make the trip home or not.

JUDICIAL BRANCH

- Elected by the Voters
- Appointed to Office

THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

North Carolina's court system consists of an Appellate Division, a Superior Court Division, and a District Court Division. In 1962, the voters of the state adopted this unified statewide and state-operated General Court of Justice with the approval of a new Judicial Article of the North Carolina Constitution. The new article, amended in 1965, eliminated much of the proliferation and inefficiency of varied special courts. The Appellate Division has two courts: the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals. Perhaps the most significant change brought about by this uniform judicial system was the centralization of administration and budgeting. All court personnel are now paid by the State. The Administrative Office of the Courts, under the Chief Justice, is responsible for developing a single budget to cover the entire judicial system. Centralized administration permits uniform policy throughout the state and makes new programs easier to implement.

The Supreme Court

The Chief Justice and six Associate Justices make up the Supreme Court. They hear oral arguments on questions of law, including constitutional issues. The Supreme Court does not hear witnesses and does not have juries. Sessions are held in the Justice Building in Raleigh. Justices are elected by the voters of the state for eight-year terms.

Selection of Justices and Judges

In 1980 a constitutional amendment was sponsored by the voters which required that Associate Justices of the Supreme Court and Judges of the Court of Appeals, Superior Court, and District Court be duly authorized to practice law in North Carolina prior to election or appointment to the bench. Justices of the Supreme Court and Judges of the Appeals Court are nominated and elected by the voters statewide. District Court judges are nominated and elected by voters in the district. The Governor has the power to appoint justices and judges to fill vacancies until the next regular election of the General Assembly, at which time the people will elect someone to fill the unexpired term. Since most appointees are later elected as incumbents, it is significant to note that most members of the bench in North Carolina were originally appointed by a governor.

The Court of Appeals

A total of twelve judges, elected by the voters for terms of eight years, make up the Court of Appeals. The court sits in panels of three, generally in Raleigh, the seat of the court. However, the Supreme Court may authorize it to sit in other places. This court was created to relieve the heavy caseload of appeals to the Supreme Court.

Superior Courts

The superior courts are courts of general trial jurisdiction. Superior court must sit in each county of the state at least twice a year. In 1992 there were a total of 81 resident judges and a special superior court judge elected by the voters for eight-year terms. Each of the 30 judicial districts has at least one resident judge.

In addition, three special superior court judges are appointed by the Governor to serve four-year terms. These judges are assigned by the Chief Justice of the Supreme court to serve in any county in which they are needed.

The jurisdiction of the superior court extends to all felonies and to misdemeanor cases appealed from district court. All misdemeanor appeals are tried de novo in the superior court. The superior court is the proper court for civil cases involving more than $10,000 in controversy.

District Courts

Since 1970 district courts have operated in all counties of North Carolina. Each of the 30 districts is currently served by one to twelve judges, elected for terms of four years. The district court has original jurisdiction in misdemeanor cases and is the proper court for civil cases of $10,000 or less in controversy. All domestic cases regardless of amount involved are within the jurisdiction of the district court. The total number of district court judges in 1992 was 178.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court designates one district court judge as chief district court judge. This chief judge supervises the magistrates who are appointed for two-year terms by the senior resident superior court judge.

Magistrates have authority to decide minor civil and criminal cases, set bail for arrested defendants, and issue search and arrest warrants. Magistrates preside over small claims court in North Carolina. All magistrates are paid a salary based on the number of years they have served. Service credit is allowed for prior service as a law enforcement officer.

District Attorneys

There are 38 prosecutorial districts, in each of which a district attorney is elected for a four-year term. In each prosecutorial district a district attorney is responsible for prosecuting all criminal cases in the superior and district courts of the district. The district attorney prepares the criminal case trial dockets and advises law enforcement officers within his district.

Clerks of Superior Court

A clerk of superior court is elected in each county for a four-year term. The clerk is responsible for all clerical and record keeping functions in both the superior and district courts of the county. The clerk is also ex officio judge of probate court and hears and decides special proceedings (e.g., condemnations of land for public purposes) in the county. The clerk may issue warrants and set bail for defendants placed under arrest.

Court Reporters

Court reporters are appointed by the senior judge for the superior court and by the chief district judge for the district court. A reporter is not required in district court criminal cases because appeals from district court are tried de novo; however, in all other cases a verbatim record of the proceedings is required. The reporter prepares these transcripts for appeal.

Juries

A jury is provided upon demand in district civil proceedings and in superior criminal and civil proceedings. Since 1968, a jury commission prepares a list of citizens eligible to serve on a jury every two years. The voter registration records and the list of licensed drivers provide the sources of names which are selected at random to be summoned for jury.

Petit (trial) jury service may be for one trial, one day, or for one week depending upon the circumstances and the jury service procedure followed in the particular county. The petit jury must consist of 12 persons. A juror must not have been convicted of a felony or pleaded nolo contendere, or guilty of a felony unless citizenship has been restored. A juror must not have served within the preceding two years on any jury. Other qualifications include residence in the county, at least 18 years of age, and physical and mental competence.

A grand jury consists of 18 persons who meet for several days at the beginning of each criminal court session and who serve for one year. The accused can waive indictment by a grand jury except in capital cases. A grand jury is authorized to indict persons when it finds there is probable cause that the person committed a crime.

Juvenile Court Counselors

The Juvenile Services Division of the Administrative Office of the Courts employs juvenile court counselors in each judicial district. Counselors provide pre-hearing studies, act as probation officers, and generally direct cases involving juveniles. Counselors help the court in detention of juveniles and in cases of undisciplined or delinquent complaints involving children.

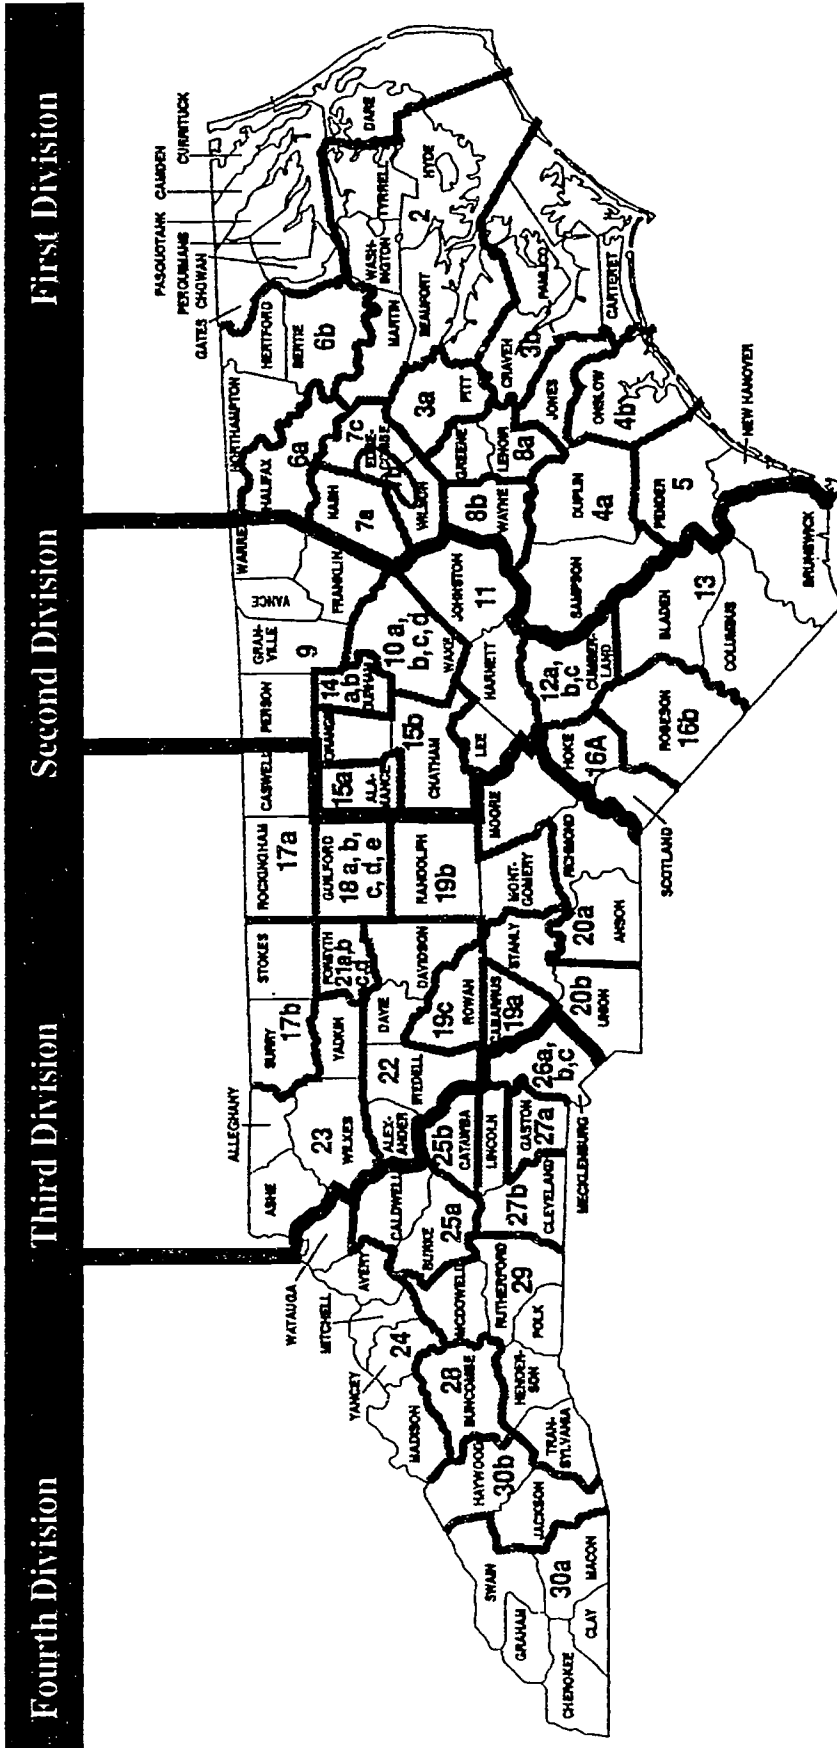

Public Defenders

A public defender system has been adopted in ten judicial districts for the representation of indigent defendants in criminal cases. The public defender and his staff are full-time attorneys who are assigned to represent indigent defendants in criminal cases. This is an alternative system to appointing private attorneys (those in private practice within a county) to represent indigent defendants.

Under North Carolina law, an indigent defendant in a criminal case may not be given a sentence of imprisonment unless that defendant has been afforded an opportunity to have defense counsel, appointed at state expense, to represent the defendant in the court proceedings.

Political Process

POLITICAL PROCESS

RECOGNIZING POLITICAL LABELS

Political parties represent a particular viewpoint regarding social, economic, or political change. Views differ based on perceptions of the methods used to effect change, the degree of change that is needed, and the speed with which change should occur. Terms used to identify views are relative and subject to change as widely held views of society are modified.

Centrist, Moderate, or Middle-of-the-Road positions are neither strongly liberal nor conservative. Advocates desire no change and are satisfied with things as they are.

Conservatives favor preserving the status quo, and they regard proposals for change with distrust. Conservatives agree that change should occur slowly, carefully, and peacefully. Generally, they advocate a return of power to the state and local government levels and less concentration at the national level. Conservatives stress fiscal responsibility and oppose most government regulation of the economy.

Reactionary ideology stresses complete and drastic change to the right. Advocates look back to an earlier more conservative system at some given time in the past. They promote immediate social, political or economic change by whatever means necessary to effect that change.

Liberals desire considerable and quick change. They favor non-revolutionary progress and reform at the hands of the government. Generally, advocates promote increasing involvement of the government at the national and state level in bringing about social, economic, or political reforms.

Radicals advocate drastic and immediate change. They promote new and untried methods in order to effect future change. Advocates desire peaceful methods but may support violent means in order to secure the desired social, economic, and political ends.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Education

Education is a fundamental as well as a constitutional right of all North Carolinians. We, the Democratic Party, are dedicated to the preservation of the credo of Thomas Jefferson that "any nation which expects to remain both free and ignorant expects that which never has been nor ever shall be."

North Carolina must have world-class schools in order to build an economic future predicated upon high-skills/high-wage employment. To these ends, we ascribe to educational excellence for every citizen at every stage of life.

We favor the provision of lifelong education engendered through parental involvement, adequate governmental support, and professional excellence and accountability from the educational community. We should pay any price and overcome any obstacle to ensure that every North Carolinian is guaranteed full and unfettered opportunity to develop his or her innate abilities to the maximum potential.

North Carolina has outstanding public schools, community colleges and universities as well as quality private schools. We must forge an agenda to carry these institutions into the 21st century as models of quality for others to admire and emulate.

Economic and Community Development

The overall health of our state and nation depends on sustained and balanced economic growth. We believe that economic growth is the prerequisite to expanding opportunity for everyone. The free market, regulated in the public interest, is the best engine of general prosperity.

Our workers are among the most skilled and productive in the world. We will work for trade practices and economic policies that will enable them to compete fairly in the world market.

We believe North Carolina must not only continue to attract and foster both new and traditional industries, but also encourage "growth from within the state." Good examples of this focus are the Rural Economic Development Center, the North Carolina Enterprise Corporation, and Community Development Corporations. We will strive to provide a skilled and educated workforce, a solid infrastructure and a quality of life that attracts and creates good new jobs in order to provide a higher standard of living for all North Carolinians. We support expanded governmental investments in developing our state's infrastructure. The state must build and nurture active partnerships with the private sector to ensure the benefits of prosperity to all North Carolinians.

Environment

We believe the last decade has witnessed an unprecedented assault on our national interest and our national security through the poisoning of our air with acid rain, the dumping of toxic wastes into our water, and the destruction of our parks, wetlands, and shores. Pollution must be stopped at the source by enacting sound environmental policies and practices that will ensure a safe North Carolina for future generations. We believe that preserving our natural resources helps to preserve our quality of life, economic growth, and health. We commit ourselves to the wise stewardship and protection of our air, water, soil, forests, and wetlands.

Health and Human Services

We urge the legislature and all agencies responsible for the delivery of health care services to work together to contain costs to assure the highest possible quality of health care to all citizens, regardless of income or geographic location.

We especially advocate preventive and primary health care for children and expanded public efforts to provide the prenatal care necessary to reduce infant mortality.

We support alternative health care delivery systems to allow the elderly and the disabled who wish to have outpatient care remain out of institutions as long as possible. We applaud recent efforts to provide state-supported health care to indigent people and to uninsured and under-insured citizens.

We recognize the public health problem that AIDS presents. We also recognize the widespread misunderstanding of this problem. Therefore, we support state and federal funding for AIDS education and an aggressive school-based AIDS prevention curriculum.

Abortion

We recognize a woman's decision whether or not to have an abortion should be her own. We support keeping abortion safe, legal and accessible to all citizens of North Carolina regardless of their ability to pay. We also support the provision of effective information and counseling concerning effective and responsible parenthood. We believe every woman should have access to prenatal and postnatal care and counseling.

Law Enforcement and Criminal and Civil Justice

The Democratic Party believes every citizen has the right to feel safe from crime. We believe in preventing crime and punishing criminals, not explaining away their behavior. We support tough anti-crime measures, including a judicial system that provides swift and sure punishment. We believe that our systems of law enforcement and criminal justice must be fair, adhering to the principle of assuming innocence until guilt is proven. To achieve these ends, we support initiatives to enhance respect for law and order and those entrusted with its administration.

We support legislation that says no person who is retarded should be sentenced to death or executed. We support legislation to ensure that race of either the victim or the perpetrator plays no role in who is sentenced or executed in North Carolina.

We believe the effect of crime upon victims should be considered in imposing punishment, restitution should be imposed where possible, and appropriate services to victims should be available.

We support efforts to relieve prison overcrowding. The General Assembly should fund additional facilities and alternatives to incarceration.

Defense

Democrats support the maintenance of a modern and effective American military. The United States must be able to defend its interests around the world from hostile enemies. Democrats believe that the United States should use all non-military means at its disposal to resolve international conflicts, but must retain the right to use military force when its interests are at stake.

Human Rights and Dignity

We reaffirm our commitment to the full and equal protection of the lives, liberties, rights and property of all citizens. We believe every person deserves the full opportunity to realize his or her potential.

We support responsible measures to protect the individual's right to privacy from intrusion by government or private information gathering and from the improper use of information from the records of such sources. We believe government should respect individual liberty and stay out of our private lives and personal decisions.

We oppose all discrimination of any kind whether in employment, health care insurance, retirement, education, housing or any other area. We continue to support the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. We will not tolerate another decade in which the only civil rights movement is backward.

We abhor discrimination against the handicapped in education, in the workplace, in the court system, and in the provision of services. We support initiatives to provide greater opportunities to help the handicapped help themselves.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

Education

The NCGOP considers the education of our young people the number one priority for our state. We commend the Republican leadership for making that priority a reality. In five of the last six budgets the percent of the General Fund Budget dedicated to primary and secondary education increased. For 25 years prior to the Republican administration, that percentage decreased in all but two years. During the last eight years, primary and secondary education spending has increased by 1.7 billion dollars.

At the same time, we do not believe simply spending more money will solve our problems. We support more control for local school boards with fewer dictates from Raleigh. We support an emphasis on the classroom and the teacher. We believe there should be a renewed emphasis on the basics.

We feel that there needs to be a better means of accountability for our education system. We also believe that the better teachers who motivate their students to higher standards should be rewarded for their dedication and excellence.

Economic and Community Development

The Reagan-Bush administrations led our nation to the longest peacetime expansion and growth period in our nation's history. We believe that the spiraling growth in federal and state spending must be controlled. We believe that tax increases should only be considered as a last resort after unnecessary and wasteful government spending has been cut.

Environment

We reaffirm our commitment to protect and enhance North Carolina's God given country of clean air, clean water, forests, soils, wetlands, wildlife, open land, and places of beauty.

We recognize that the future economic growth of our state, the health of future generations, and the quality of life for our people demand the effective administration of rational, and even-handed environmental guidelines and rules pursuant to the mandate of Article XIV, Section 5 of the Constitution of the State of North Carolina.

Health and Human Services

As we strengthen the American family, we improve the health of the nation. From prenatal care to old age, strong family life is the linchpin of wellness and compassion.

This is especially important with regard to babies. We have reduced infant mortality, but it remains a serious problem in areas where alcohol, drugs, and neglect take a fearful toll on newborns. Inadequate prenatal care for expectant mothers is the cause of untold numbers of premature and low birthweight babies. These newborns start life at a severe disadvantage and often require massive health care investments to have a chance for normal childhood. We continue to endorse the provision of adequate prenatal care for all expectant mothers, especially the poor and young. Many of the health problems of young people today stem from poverty, moral confusion, and family disruption.

To prepare for tomorrow's expanding opportunities, today's young Americans must be challenged by high values with the support that comes from strong families. That is the surest way to guide them to their own affirmation of life.

Abortion

We oppose the funding of abortion by either the state or the federal government. Positive alternatives to abortion should be a part of state government services to women and their unborn children. The unborn child has the right of life and personhood after conception. However, it is understood that there are special circumstances including rape, incest, non-viable conceptions, grossly malformed conceptions, and damage to the mother and/or child which warrant intervention.

Law Enforcement and Criminal and Civil Justice

Crime is clearly out of control in our state and in our nation. Law abiding citizens, especially in poor neighborhoods, often live in constant fear of crime. The state must step in to ensure the rights of innocent people and victims as well as the rights of the accused.

We believe that the death penalty is an effective deterrent and a just punishment for first degree (premeditated) murder. We call for legislation to expedite and restrict endless appeals that make a mockery of the law. All legitimate procedural safeguards must be preserved to ensure justice.

The state of North Carolina is in need of more prison space to deal with convicted criminals. At the same time we must expand other punishment alternatives for less violent crimes.

Defense

Peace through strength is now a proven policy. We have modernized our forces, revitalized our military infrastructure, recruited and trained the most capable fighting force in American history.

The Reagan-Bush national security program has restored America's credibility in the world. Our security and that of our allies has been dramatically enhanced; the opportunities for the United States to be a positive force for freedom and democracy throughout the world have expanded.

Republicans will build upon this record and advance the course of world freedom and world peace by using our military credibility as a vehicle for security at home and peace abroad.

Human Rights

The Republican Party is committed to the concept of equal rights before the law. Government must treat all citizens fairly and assure equal opportunity for all. We are opposed to any form of discrimination. We strongly support the enforcement of civil rights legislation and commend special efforts to ensure that all segments of the population are aware of their rights and their opportunities.

The role of government is to ensure equality of opportunity, not equality of results. Quotas and similar devices are clearly inconsistent with that role.

EXPANSION OF VOTING RIGHTS

The privilege of voting, which many citizens either take for granted or neglect to exercise existed for very few when our nation was founded. Few citizens, approximately 6%, were able to vote for Washington in 1789. The Constitutional Convention gave each state the right to decide who could vote. At first voting rights were restricted to white, male, Protestant landowners over age 21. The Constitution has been amended on at least 7 occasions in order to enlarge the franchise.

Property ownership was a requirement in all thirteen colonies. Religious beliefs were also held to be important. Some states required church membership and others required a belief in the Supreme Being.

Sex discrimination existed until the 19th amendment was passed in 1920. Women first organized to gain the right to vote in 1848. A few midwestern states gave women the right to vote in the 1860's. Suffragists worked for almost a century before these rights were granted to all women in the nation.

Racial discrimination existed until the end of the Civil War. The 14th amendment in 1868 granted citizenship to former slaves and the 15th amendment was passed in 1870 giving the legal right to blacks to vote. In 1884 the Supreme Court ruled that the 14th amendment did not apply to Native Americans and they were denied their right to citizenship. In 1924 an act of Congress awarded citizenship to native Americans. A poll tax existed until 1964 when it was removed by the Twenty-fourth amendment. Although the tax was small it was cumulative in some states. This payment effectively prevented many poor citizens from voting.

Restrictions remained in some states and with the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act and the 1965 Voting Rights Act discriminatory voting practices were made illegal.

In 1970 amendments to the Voting Rights Act lowered the voting age to 18 in national elections and also banned the use of literacy tests. A uniform age in state elections could only be achieved by an amendment to the Constitution. The 26th amendment was ratified in 1971 giving 18-year-olds the right to vote. Amendments to the Voting Rights Act in 1975 now require that voting materials be printed in the language of minority groups.

VOTING IN NORTH CAROLINA

“Governments are instituted among men deriving their just power from the consent of the governed.” These words from the Declaration of Independence and “We the people...” from our Constitution are evidence that power to govern lies with “the people.” This power is exercised either directly or indirectly through the right to vote. The electoral process allows citizens to make decisions, speak out on issues and express satisfaction or dissatisfaction with public officials. Understanding registration and voting is fundamental to citizenship in a democracy.

Among all democracies the United States has the lowest voter turnout rate. Twenty million Americans who were voting in 1960 are no longer doing so. Only 43.44 percent of North Carolina’s registered voters went to the polls to vote in the 1988 presidential election. When the 26th amendment granted 18-20 year olds the right to vote in 1971, there were over 400,000 young people who fell within that bracket, yet only 130,813 actually registered. In 1988 in North Carolina, 3,432,042 people were registered to vote. Among these 1,297,672 did not vote for President and 2,209,704 did not cast a vote for Governor. At this time the voting age population numbered 4,888,882. Among the 3,432,042 who were registered, 2,247,759 were registered as Democrat and 1,016,546 were registered as Republican.

In 1992 total registration had reached 3,817,380 with 2,313,520 registered as Democrats and 1,217,114 registered as Republican. Those registering as Unaffiliated reached a total of 286,069. The Libertarian Party had 677 registered voters. Among the total number of registrations, 3,064,242 were listed as White; 710,209 were designated as Black; 27,725 were identified as Indians, and 15,204 were classified as Other. The total number of votes cast for President in N. C. was 2,611,850. Among those registered 1,205,530 did not vote for President.

The opportunity to vote is more than a privilege; it is every citizen’s unalienable right and responsibility. Low voting percentages are evident at all levels of government. One vote does make a difference. In the total of singular votes, people are elected to office, bills are passed, and government of the people, by the people, and for the people continues.

STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS

In 1974 the General Assembly declared the State Board of Elections an independent agency. It does not come under the jurisdiction of any other department headed by an elected official. All five members of the Board are appointed by the Governor for a four-year term. Bipartisan membership is mandated by law. No more than three of the members are from the same political party.

One hundred county Boards of Elections are appointed by the State Board. Each county board is composed of three members, and both political parties must be represented.

The State Board supervises the election of the 1200 special districts in the state and administers the Campaign Reporting Act, limiting expenditures and monitoring contributions to political candidates.

ELIGIBILITY FOR VOTING IN NORTH CAROLINA

In all elections in North Carolina any citizen of the United States may vote who is either native-born or naturalized and meets the following criteria:

- Is 18 years of age or will be 18 by the next general election
- Is a resident of the county for 30 days prior to the election
- Registers in person at least 16 working days prior to the election or by mail at least 30 days before the election (effective July 1, 1993)
- Has citizenship restored after conviction of a felony
- Maintains registration by voting in one of the two most recent successive presidential elections or in any other election conducted in the period between the two presidential elections.

LOCATIONS AND TIME

- Polls are open from 6:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. Polls may remain open until 9:30 if problems are detected in voting equipment.
- Voters are assigned a polling place by the board of elections.
- Voters are notified by mail of the precinct and place after registration is completed
- General elections are held on Tuesday after the first Monday in November in even numbered years.
- Party primaries are held on Tuesday after the first Monday in May in even numbered years.

TYPES OF ELECTIONS

Municipal Elections are held in odd numbered years.

National, State, and County Elections are held in even numbered years.

Presidential Elections are held in even numbered years, divisible by four.

United States Senators are elected to serve a six-year term. North Carolina elected one Senator in 1992 and another will be elected in 1996. Members of the United States House of Representatives, State House of Representatives, State Senate, and County Officials were elected in 1992 to serve a two-year term.

In the presidential election year, 1996, and every four years thereafter, North Carolinians will elect the following:

United States President and Vice President	State Treasurer
North Carolina Governor	Superintendent of Public Instruction
Lieutenant Governor	Commissioner of Labor
Attorney General	Commissioner of Insurance
Secretary of State	Commissioner of Agriculture
State Auditor

VOTER REGISTRATION PROCEDURE

- Register at county board of elections, county public libraries, Department of Motor Vehicles when renewing or securing driver's license, or other designated announced places.
- Present identification such as birth certificate, Social Security card or driver's license to verify age, citizenship and address.
- Register as either Democrat, Republican, Libertarian, Unaffiliated or other recognized political party.
- Swear or affirm that all information given is truthful.
- Sign registration form.
- Re-register if you have just moved to North Carolina, if you have moved from one county to another, or if you have been removed from the active registration rolls for failure to vote in a period covering two presidential elections.

- Update your registration if you have moved from one precinct to another within the same county, if you have changed your name, or if you wish to change party affiliation.
- All registrations, reregistrations and updates may be done in person 16 business days before an election. Registration by mail will become effective July 1, 1993. A citizen may register, change party affiliation, report a name change, and report a change of address within a county by mail. A form, available at county boards, must be filled out, signed, and postmarked at least 30 days before the election. Specifics of the N. C. registration could be modified by the "Motor Voter" Bill which has now passed both Houses of Congress.
- Members of the armed forces, their spouses, certain veterans and civilians with the armed forces or Peace Corps may register and vote by mail.

VOTING PROCEDURE

- On entering polling place, give name and address to a judge of elections.
- In a primary election state your party affiliation.
- Enter the private voting booth to cast your ballot.
- Ask for instructions if you do not know how to use the voting device in your county. Various methods are used in North Carolina.
- Vote a straight ticket, vote for individuals listed, or cast a write-in vote.
- Vote by absentee ballot by making and signing a written request beginning 50 days prior to but not later than the Tuesday prior to election day. Return ballot to the Elections Office by 5 p.m. the day before the election. Absentee voting is allowed for incarcerated misdemeanants, the sick or disabled, or students away from home.

EDUCATION STATISTICS

State Supported Public Schools

Programs in public schools range from pre-kindergarten through grade twelve. In May 1992 there were 100 county and 33 city public school administrative units in North Carolina with a total of 1,946 schools. Average daily membership for 1991-92 year was 1,086,380 students. Among the total enrollment 17,000 were American Indian, 10,395 were Asian, 329,802 were Black, 10,031 were Hispanic, and 725,149 were white. Per pupil expenditure based on average daily membership was $4,293. Total personnel, including instructional and non-instructional, was 124,478.

State Supported Special Schools

Two state supported special schools in North Carolina provide for the gifted and talented. The School of Science and Mathematics in Durham is a residential high school in which talented 11th and 12th grade students are provided advanced study free of charge. The School of the Arts, located in Winston-Salem, is the only state-supported high school for the performing arts in the nation. Instruction is provided in dance, music, visual arts, design, and production on both the high school and college levels. Governor's Schools of North Carolina provide a summer program for academically gifted high school students at Salem College in Winston-Salem and St. Andrews Presbyterian College in Laurinburg, N. C.

Non Public Schools

Private school in North Carolina serve 54,186 children in grades K-12. These are located at 471 different sites across the state. During the 1991-92 school year 5,556 students were educated in Home School programs in North Carolina.

Higher Education

Higher education had its beginning in North Carolina in 1795 when the University opened at Chapel Hill. This is the oldest state university in the nation. Sixteen campuses across the state had a total enrollment of 150,818 in the fall of 1992.

The state has a 58 campus Community College System with a present student enrollment of 752,477 which makes this the third largest system of its kind in the nation. Nearly 99 percent of North Carolina's population lives within 30 minutes of a community college.

Thirty-three private senior institutions and four private junior colleges with a total enrollment of 56,333 (1992-93) students serve the educational needs of the state. The state legislature provides $1,095 in state support per student enrolled in the private institutions. In addition, $419 per student is provided for contractual scholarships based on need.

YOUTH LABOR LAWS

Youths under 18 must obtain a youth employment certificate to work, unless specifically exempted. County social service departments issue most certificates, subject to review by the Department of Labor. The Labor Department issues certificates for employment of youths under 16 if they are to be employed as models or as actors or performers in motion pictures, theatrical productions, radio or television productions, or outdoor dramas.

No youth under 18 shall be employed in occupations declared hazardous by the U.S. Department of Labor or found detrimental to the health and well-being of youths by the N. C. Commissioner of Labor.

Prohibited hazardous jobs include: welding, spray painting, meat processing, operating power-driven hoists, saws, and guillotine shears; and operating power-driven woodworking, metalworking, bakery and paper product machinery.

Most jobs in mining, roofing, demolition, excavation, logging and sawmills, the brick, tile or similar products industries, or working with explosives and radioactive materials also are considered hazardous.

Driving a motor vehicle is prohibited when the youth is covered by federal child labor laws.

Most youths will be covered by the federal law, which generally applies to employers of businesses with annual gross sales of $500,000 or employees directly involved in interstate commerce. Certain types of businesses are always covered by federal law, such as hospitals, public or private schools, and public agencies.

In 1987, the General Assembly passed a law enabling 16 and 17 year old youths with driver's licenses to operate motor vehicles under special conditions. The gross vehicle weight cannot exceed 6,000 pounds; the driving must be within a 25 mile radius of the place of employment; the youth must have passed a state-approved, driver-education course; and the assigned driving may not include the towing of vehicles.

This law only applies to businesses and employees covered by state wage and hour laws. The federal child labor laws, which apply to the vast majority of employers and employees in the state, still forbid the operation of a motor vehicle for business purposes by anyone under 18 years of age.

Youths 14 and 15 may be employed only in occupations permitted under the Fair Labor Standards Act as determined by the U.S. Department of Labor. In general, they only are allowed to work in office, retail, food service, or gasoline service establishments. Unless working for their parents, such youths may be employed under North Carolina law only under the following conditions:

- No more than three hours a day when school is in session; six hours on the last day of the school week;
- No more than eight hours per day when school is not in session;
- Only between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., except to 9 p.m. when there is no school the following day;

Where federal law applies, and most youths work in establishments subject to federal law, youths 14-16 may not be employed past 7 p.m. or for more than 18 hours a week during the school year. During the regular school term, no youth under 18 years of age who is enrolled in grade 12 or lower may be employed between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. when there is school for the youth the next day. This restriction does not apply to youth 16 and 17 years of age if the employer receives written approval for the youth to work beyond the stated hours from the youth's parent or guardian and from the youth's principal or the principal's designee.

⁶⁵ There are special provisions under North Carolina law about employing youths at an establishment with an ABC license for on-premise consumption of alcoholic beverages. No youths under 16 may be employed in such an establishment for any purpose. Youths 16 and 17 may not be employed to prepare, serve, dispense, or sell any alcoholic beverage.

No youth 13 or under may be employed, except youths 12 and 13 may be employed outside school hours delivering newspapers; but for no more than three hours per day. A youth employment certificate is not required for delivering newspapers.

Youths under 16 shall not work for more than five continuous hours without a 30-minute rest break. No period less than 30 minutes is deemed an interruption of continuous work.

In exceptional circumstances, the Commissioner of Labor may waive for youths 13 years of age or older any provisions of the state youth employment laws.

Several work situations are exempt from the North Carolina youth employment laws. Work in agriculture, or in domestic employment such as casual babysitting, and volunteer work for medical, religious, educational, or non-profit organizations is exempt from the law.

Employers who violate the youth employment laws are subject to a civil penalty of up to $250 for each violation.

For further information on these and any other youth employment issue, contact the North Carolina Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division, 4 West Edenton Street, Raleigh, NC 27601 or call (919) 733-2152.

State Symbols

STATE SYMBOLS

Channel Bass

The Channel Bass, (Sciaenops ocellatus), often called the Red Drum because of its copper-red color, was officially designated our state saltwater fish by the General Assembly of 1971. Each spring and fall, pier fishermen and surf fishermen expect to catch

Channel Bass weighing 40 to 50 pounds. Adults may live as long as 30 years, reach a length of 5 feet, and weigh about 100 pounds. These fish spawn in coastal waters near inlets and bays. Wind and water currents carry the newly hatched larvae to nursery areas made less salty by fresh water flowing from rivers. Within 6 to 8 months, the young fish have returned to salt water, and by the age of one year, those that have survived are approximately 12 inches long.

Milk

Milk, often called "nature's most perfect food," was chosen as the official state beverage by the General Assembly of 1987. In dairy production, North Carolina ranks 20th in the nation with nearly 1,000 dairy farmers producing 179 million gallons of the calcium-rich beverage each year. North Carolinians consume more than 143 million gallons yearly. Milk is used to make cheeses, ice cream, and other dairy products.

Gray Squirrel

The Gray Squirrel (Sciurus carolinensis) was officially designated as our state mammal by the General Assembly of 1969. Gray Squirrels are statewide in distribution and may be seen in forests, city parks, and yards with shade trees. Squirrels build bulky nests of twigs and leaves on tree limbs, but they may also use nest boxes or natural cavities. Young are born in spring, and often another litter is produced in summer. These popular game animals often bury acorns and other seeds that may germinate and grow into trees.

Eastern Box Turtle

The General Assembly of 1979 named the Eastern Box Turtle (Terrapene carolina) as the state reptile. This well-known turtle is most common in and near wooded areas. It is frequently seen on roads, where great numbers of them are killed each year by motor vehicles.

In most cases, a box turtle does not try to bite when picked up. Instead, it draws in its head, feet, and tail, and closes its hinged shell tightly. Box turtles are mature and capable of mating when 5 years old. Females dig holes in the ground with their hind legs, lay their eggs, and cover them with soft dirt. Hatching turtles dig their way out of the burrow and are able to live on their own without parental help. Full grown at 20 years, box turtles may live for 80 years or longer.

Northern Cardinal

When the selection of a state bird was considered, school children and other interested persons in North Carolina endorsed the Northern Cardinal (Cardinalis cardinalis). The North Carolina General Assembly officially adopted the cardinal on March 4, 1943. Permanent residents throughout the state, cardinals nest in woodland margins and residential shrubbery, with first clutches of eggs usually laid before the end of April. The bright red male and the brownish-red female both assist in caring for the young. Two or three broods may be raised each season.

Honey Bee

The Honey Bee (Apis mellifera) was adopted as the state insect by the General Assembly of 1973. Not a native species, the Honey Bee was brought to North America by settlers from Europe. Few insects are as steeped in folklore, history, and tradition as is the Honey Bee, and few are as valuable to people. Honey, which bees produce to feed the colony, is a natural sweetener, and beeswax, another product of this industrious insect, is used for making candles and polishes. In the process of gathering nectar to make honey, bees pollinate seed-bearing plants that provide us with food and with fiber for our clothing.

Granite

The General Assembly of 1979 designated granite as the official rock of North Carolina. The 90-acre granite quarry located outside Mount Airy in Surry County is the world's largest open-faced granite quarry. Granite from this quarry has been used to build such well-known structures as the Wright Brothers Memorial at Kitty Hawk, the old Education and the Justice building in downtown Raleigh, and the U.S. Gold Bullion Depository at Fort Knox.

Scotch Bonnet

At the request of the North Carolina Shell Club, the General Assembly of 1965 adopted the Scotch Bonnet (Phalium granulatum) as our state shell. The choice of the Scotch Bonnet pays tribute to the Scottish settlers in this state as well as to North Carolina's thriving shellfish industry. This shell is produced by a marine snail that lives in shallow water. Large and distinctive in its appearance, the Scotch Bonnet is china white to creamy in color with yellow to brown spiral bands broken into a series of squares. After the snail dies, its shell may be occupied by a hermit crab.

Emerald

The Emerald was adopted as the official precious stone by the General Assembly of 1973. A brilliant, transparent form of the mineral beryl, the emerald occurs in nature as a hexagonal crystal with a deep green color and a glass-like luster. In North Carolina, the state precious stone is found most often in Mitchell and Alexander Counties in deposits with quartz, feldspar, mica, and - sometimes - hiddenite. Several large emeralds have been found at Hiddenite, in Alexander County, including a 1,438-carat specimen and, in 1970, the 59-carat "Carolina Emerald." When cut to 13.14 carats, the "Carolina Emerald" was valued at $100,000 and was then the largest and finest cut emerald discovered on this continent.

Shad Boat

The shad boat, developed at Roanoke Island, was adopted as the state historical boat in June, 1987. Although production ended during the depression of the 1930's, shad boats were widely used into the 1950's. Well constructed from native trees such as cypress or juniper (Atlantic White Cedar), some shad boats that are nearly 100 years old can still be seen around Manteo and Hatteras. Their shallow draft, speed, and ease of handling made these boats ideal for reaching the shallow waters of Pamlico and Albemarle Sounds, where fishing for shad had been difficult from the traditional small sailing boats.

Flowering Dogwood

The Flowering Dogwood (Cornus florida), the first state symbol to be chosen, was adopted as the state flower by the General Assembly of 1941. The small, greenish-white flowers are clustered at the center of each group of four large, white bracts, which are often mistaken for petals. Flowering Dogwood grows naturally as a small tree in the understory of our forests, and it is a popular choice for landscaping homes, parks, and roadsides. During fall and winter, many kinds of birds and small mammals eat the shiny red fruits.

Pine

The General Assembly of 1963, with support from garden club members and other interested citizens, named the pine (Pinus sp.) as the official state tree. There are eight native species of pine in North Carolina, but each has a limited range. The Short-leaf Pine is the one most nearly statewide in distribution. White, Pitch, Virginia, and Table Mountain Pines are characteristic of the mountains and western Piedmont. Loblolly, Pond, and Long-leaf Pines are more typical of the Coastal Plain and eastern Piedmont. Pines provide not only food for birds, squirrels, and various small animals, but also lumber, pulpwood for paper making, and resins for varnishes and many other commercial products. Prior to 1900 the production of naval stores such as tar and turpentine was important to the economy of eastern North Carolina.

Plott Hound

Officially adopted as the state dog on August 12, 1989, the Plott Hound is one of only four breeds known to have originated in America and the only one that originated in North Carolina. Its name honors Jonathan Plott, who developed the breed for hunting wild boars in the mountains of the state. A gentle and loyal companion to hunters, the Plott Hound has a beautiful brindle-colored coat and a spine-tingling, bugle-like call. Legendary as a tenacious tracker and a courageous fighter, the breed has superior treeing instincts and has long been a favorite with big-game hunters.

THE STATE TOAST

Officially adopted as the toast of North Carolina by the General Assembly of 1957. (Session Laws, 1957, c. 777.)

Here's to the land of the long leaf pine,
The summer land where the sun doth shine'
Where the weak grow strong and the strong grow great,
Here's to "Down Home," the Old North State!

Here's to the land of the cotton bloom white,
Where the scuppernong perfumes the breeze at night,
Where the soft souther moss and jessamine mate,
'Neath the murmuring pines of the Old North State!

Here's to the land where the galax grows,
Where the rhododendron's rosette glows,
Where soars Mount Mitchell's summit great,
In the "Land of the Sky," in the Old North State!

Here's to the land where maidens are fair,
Where friends are true and cold hearts rare,
The near land, the dear land whatever fate,
The blest land, the best land, the Old North State!

Composed in 1904 by Leonora Martin and Mary Burke Kerr.
