ABSTRACT

This manual contains information and materials for the Virginia Summer Reading Program. The "SI for Kids" ("Sports Illustrated for Kids") theme builds on the interest of youngsters in the Olympic games and affords wide interpretation at the local level. Some libraries may focus on sporting events and record setting achievements, others on international culture, and others on the tales and legends of the countries participating in the Olympics. Most libraries find that the program appeals to children aged 3 to 12 years, but participation by teens is increasing statewide. A program guide developed by the American Library Association is included, along with bookmarks, stickers, reading logs, and information needed to implement the summer program. A 90-item bibliography for children is included. (SLD)

Welcome to the 1992 statewide Summer Reading Program. Your participation and efforts to promote reading during the summer make a difference in the lives of thousands of youngsters throughout the Commonwealth.

The attractive, colorful resources from the American Library Association along with a manual from the Virginia State Library and Archives offer local libraries the basic materials for a fun-filled summer. When combined with the imagination and enthusiasm of children's and young adult librarians it's truly a winning combination.

This summer the sports theme builds on the interest of youngsters in the Olympic games and affords wide interpretation at the local level. Some libraries may focus on sporting events and record setting achievements, others on explorations of the international and cultural aspects of the Summer Games, while still others concentrate on the tales and legends of countries which compete in the Olympics. No matter what emphasis the library takes, everyone who participates is a gold medal winner.

GOALS

- Improved access to public library services, resources, and programs for children and young adults.
- Increased opportunities for children to develop and maintain reading skills.
- Increased family awareness of the importance of reading to children and increased family participation in library activities and programs.

These goals provide direction for the Summer Reading Program. Libraries are encouraged to develop local goals and objectives in keeping with the library's established role in the community. Local goals and objectives form a strong framework for the program and enable librarians to evaluate and measure the success and growth of the program.

REGISTRATION

The rules and regulations for the Summer Reading Program are determined by each library or library system. No registration or participation fee may be charged. Libraries are encouraged to design local programs to permit participation throughout the summer though program activities (storytimes, films, crafts, etc) may be offered for a limited number of weeks.

The use of a registration form will enable the library to gather information regarding the audience attracted by the Summer Reading Program. Analysis of local registration information can provide valuable information for future planning.

Statewide there is no set age limit for participation in the Summer Reading Program. Young children whose parents read to them are as eligible as are older teens. Although most libraries find that the program appeals to youngsters between the ages of 3 and 12, during the past few years increased participation by teens has been reported.

Build success into the program for each participant. Competition or "who can read the most books" is not the goal of the program. Encourage each participant to set a personal reading goal. It is just as much of an accomplishment for a "delayed reader" to have success in the completion of a few books as it is for an "accomplished reader" to complete a wide assortment.

Encourage participants to read on their interest and ability levels. Children are individuals and, an individual's reading level is not determined by age or size.

READING LOGS

The reading log for this summer's program is designed as a "training manual" and filled with an assortment of activities and information. Some libraries may wish to develop a companion log for ease in keeping a record of the books which are read.

CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

Some special accommodation may be necessary in order to permit some youngsters to fully participate in the Summer Reading Program and its activities.

Deaf or hard-of-hearing children need to be seated near the program presenter. For these children it may be necessary to provide an interpreter. Be sure to check to see if there are charges for this service. Make an effort to learn a few basic signs.

Some program materials may need to be printed in a larger size of print for visually impaired participants. Sans serif 14 point bold or larger is recommended. Avoid using all capital letters in the body of the text and limit the use of italics. Use of screened color, shadows, and reversals is not recommended. Black ink on white paper is the most easily read. Use coated paper sparingly. If used, select an off-white rather than a color.

Make certain that meeting or programming areas are accessible for handicapped participants. Aisles should be wide enough to accommodate wheelchairs.

Contact Mary Ruth Halapatz at the Virginia Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, 1900 Roane Street, Richmond, VA 23222 (800/552-7015) for information about the services available to children who are certified learning disabled or physically or visually impaired.

CERTIFICATES

The date and method of awarding certificates is determined by the local library. Some libraries award the certificate at the time a child achieves his/her personal reading goal. Others award certificates as a part of a grand finale or other special event.

Certificates awarded for personal accomplishment hold great meaning for the individual.

Remember, for some children, the successful completion of a few books is as positive accomplishment as the completion of many books is for others.

PROMOTION

The Summer Reading Program provides an excellent opportunity for the library to showcase its resources, services, and programs for the community.

Contact print, radio, and television stations to determine local deadlines. Examples of press releases are included in the publicity section of this manual.

School and class visits, end of year letters from principals, teachers, librarians, church bulletins, bulletin boards at local grocery stores, swimming pools, laundromats, etc provide avenues for promotion of the program and its activities.

Library displays along with fliers, bookmarks, activity calendars, are also effective promotion channels.

Clip art designs are included in the program guide from ALA . Remember that the designs may be enlarged or reduced with opaque and overhead projectors or photocopiers.

Plan special events to kick off and culminate the Summer Reading Program. It may be easier to arrange media coverage for a special event than for the typical or ongoing event.

Include the names of sponsors, donors, or special contributors on all publicity and promotional materials. A credit line “sponsored in cooperation with the Virginia State Library and Archives, the Virginia Center for the Book, and your local public library” should appear on promotional materials.

INCENTIVES

Incentives are useful promotion devices. They can serve as a means to maintain interest throughout the summer. The budget of your program will determine the extent to which incentives can be purchased.

Often local merchants, especially fast food establishments, will provide coupons. During discussions with prospective donors, request that they distribute a bookmark or flier about the library's program to their consumers. In this way, prospective participants may be reached and another promotion avenue is accessed.

Be sure to provide donors with information about the program, especially increases in registration, attendance at events, numbers of books read, etc throughout the summer as well as at the conclusion of the program. Request information from the donor regarding redemption rate of coupons. This information provides an indication of the economic impact of the program and the level of financial support from the community.

Quite a few libraries have had success with the use of "book bucks" awarded participants based on the number of books which are read or for volunteer service. These incentives are then used to bid on donated items at an auction or to purchase library incentives. Be sure to establish and post a chart or scale of the requirements.

EVENTS INVOLVING FOOD

The festive nature of kick off and finale events makes it appropriate to serve refreshments. Clear such arrangements through the library director or person in charge of the facility. Common sense care in the preparation and storage of foods should be taken. When possible, notify parents of the menu in advance so that disappointments and/or allergic reactions can be avoided.

Take into consideration the ease of preparation and storage requirements of the foods when planning. Estimate the number of children to be served and the amount of serving time which will be needed. Plan several serving areas, especially if large groups are to be served.

Enlist the assistance of teen and adult volunteers. Their help is invaluable when "spreadables" are involved.

Have an abundant supply of serving utensils as well as paper plates, cups, napkins, and eating utensils on hand. Both damp and dry paper towels or disposable moist wipes are advised.

Provide several large trash containers for cleanup. Recycle whenever possible.

VOLUNTEERS

Most libraries depend on volunteer staff to implement the Summer Reading Program. These individuals should follow the established policies, procedures, and practices of the library. Volunteers provide valuable assistance to the library. Include information about their service in reports to library directors and boards. Just for fun, calculate the number of volunteer hours X minimum wage (or a library salary rate for similar duties) to see the value.

Recruit teens, parents, teachers, members of community groups, etc. Request that each volunteer complete a volunteer application form. Provide time to interview prospective volunteers to assess their interests and skills and to answer their questions.

A volunteer coordinator may be necessary if a large number of volunteers will be involved.

Although some volunteers may be familiar with the library, provide time for an orientation. Explain the library's expectations, the duties assigned, and the work schedule.

For some this may be a first work experience. They may need guidance as to what is appropriate in the workplace, how to relate to others in a professional manner, dress, or work patterns. Provide both formal and informal feedback on performance. Be fair, but firm, when dealing with tardiness, absenteeism, or other problems.

Maintain a record of each volunteer's service to use when asked for a reference or when considering the individual for library employment.

Plan a volunteer recognition event at the conclusion of the Summer Reading Program and award certificates of service or other incentives. Invite library board members and local officials as well as library staff.

PROGRAM PLANNING

Planning is the key to successful programs. Consult your library's policies and procedures manual regarding applicable regulations. Keep library administration and staff informed.

Maintain a master calendar with your program dates, other library program dates, community events, applicable school schedules, and holidays.

Consider the impact your program/activities will have on other service areas of the library. Will additional staff be needed to check out books, assist with the program, or for set-up and clean-up? If staff from other areas or volunteers are to be used, be certain they are aware of their duties and responsibilities.

If your program will be held in a meeting room, schedule the room well in advance. Confirm before publicity is released and again the week before the program.

Maintain a ready reference file for special programs. Include the name of the program, the presenter, address, phone, contact person, fee, etc. Reconfirm date and time of the program the week before the event. Be sure the presenter also has the name of the library contact person should an emergency arise.

If registration or a ticket is required have a written distribution plan. Include such information in promotional releases about the event.

Post a notice of the time the doors will open and the time the program is to begin. Before an event, decide how late arrivals, and other distractions will be handled. Should a patron become upset, try to deal with the individual away from the public area. Be reasonable but firm in your practice.

Decide in advance how groups will be handled. Can they be accommodated within the program area or can a program day for groups be established? Request that groups call for information.

Frequently storytime programs are offered over a period of several weeks. In the summer the audience is likely to vary from week to week.

For young children (3-5 years) a program of approximately 30 minutes is an appropriate length. Add an additional 10 - 15 minutes if a craft is to be included. Incorporate a variety of stories, poems, songs, flannelboard or tell-and-draw stories, fingerplay rhymes, action songs, films or videos into each session. To maintain continuity, open each session with the same activity. Conclude the program in a similar manner. Initiate a related craft activity following the storytime portion of the program.

Relate library materials to the programs. Following the program, have copies of the books or related titles available for check-out. Distribute bibliographies of related materials and other hand-outs at the conclusion of the program.

Develop and maintain an emergency kit stocked with tape, scissors, markers, a spare projector bulb, extension cord, adaptor plug, etc. Prepare a contingency plan which could be implemented "on the spot" should the need arise.

Some other general considerations:

- Is this a one time event or a series of several weeks?
- Are activities continued from one week to the next?
- Can additional sessions be offered if demand warrants?
- What is the age/attention span of the targeted audience?
- How long will the program be?
- Will the program be presented by staff, volunteers, or a special performer?
- Is any training needed?
- Is other staff needed?
- Have other departments/divisions been notified of program?
- Where will the event be held?
- What kind of seating is planned?
- How many children can be accommodated in the area?
- Are special arrangements needed for handicapped participants?
- Will tickets be distributed or is registration required to attend?
- Will furniture have to be moved? Who is responsible for this?
- Are any special arrangements needed?
- What equipment is needed?
- What supplies are needed?
- Will food or refreshments be served? Who will handle? Who will clean up?
- Is publicity planned? What will it include? Who will handle?
- What costs are associated with the event?

The following Program Planning Worksheets are included as guides to help you assess the needs of each event. Duplicate as needed.

SUGGESTED PROGRAM THEMES

READY, SET, READ!

Plan a special "opening ceremonies" program.

SPORTS DEMONSTRATIONS

Invite local coaches, athletes, or instructors to the library to demonstrate their sport. Ask them to bring along some of the equipment that is needed and to include in their presentation information about the rules of the sport, safety aspects, etc.

WHAT TO WEAR

Plan a costume day and invite youngsters to come dressed in the attire of their favorite sport.

Invite youngsters to create their own "SPOR - T" by bringing a T- shirt to the library and tie dyeing it

WORM RACES

Worm races can be held indoors or out. If an outside location is selected, be sure it is in a shady area for the sake of the worms and the participants.

GRAND FINALE GAMES AND ACTIVITIES

Plan special "closing ceremonies" for the Summer Reading Program.

WE ARE READING SONG
(to the tune of Frere Jacques)

We are reading
We are reading
Books galore
Many more
How about a mystery?
What about a sports story?
Oh, what fun
Reading is.

Read for fun.
Remember to READ
Everyone!

PUBLICITY

ALL NEWS RELEASES MUST INCLUDE:

Contact: (Your name, phone)

Date:

News releases should be neatly typed or copies on 8 1/2 x 11 inch paper. They should be hand delivered or mailed first class to your designated media targets. Keep in mind that television is a visual medium, so if you are having a special opening or finale event, an event featuring children dressed in costumes, or a special program, be sure to contact local TV stations.

Make sure that your release clearly indicates who is sending the release. Use your library's letterhead for your release. The name and daytime phone number of a contact person should appear at the top of your release.

Be sure to date your release even if you use the phrase "for immediate release" or "for use upon receipt."

Double-space your release and use wide top and bottom margins to allow for editing.

Keep your release short and to the point. Place the most important information at the top. Include the five "W"s - who, what, when, where, and why. If necessary tell how. Avoid the use of jargon or acronyms.

Time your release to arrive at the city editor's desk or assignment at least twenty-four hours before your event.

At the end of your release put -30- or **###.

Promote the summer program through all available channels, especially through the schools: class visits, newsletters, PTA, staff meetings, packets to librarians/media specialists/teachers, etc.

You may be able to enlist the assistance of a high school journalism or media production class for an extra credit project. This may be particularly popular near the end of the school year when it can influence a final grade.

Invite teens to help create a special summer "rap" or "reading team cheer" for airing over local radio stations.

To help maintain interest throughout the summer have a riddle or trivia question of the week contest. Relate riddles or trivia to a sports or Olympic theme. Post the name of each week's winner in a prominent place in the library. If funds permit, award small prizes or enter names into a special grand prize drawing.

Radio Public Service Announcements

When you prepare a public service announcement (PSA), remember your audience. Listeners can only comprehend a limited amount within a ten, twenty, or thirty second message on the air.

The basic guidelines for how many words per second in a radio public service announcement are:

- ten seconds = 25 words
- fifteen seconds = 37 words
- twenty seconds = 50 words
- thirty seconds = 75 words
- one minute = 150 words

Normally PSA's are typed completely in upper case and double-or-triple-spaced.

Send the PSA on letterhead stationery and clearly identify your library. Include your name, address, and phone number. Be sure to indicate the time period for your PSA to be aired, the number of words in the PSA, and the announcement time or number of seconds it will take to deliver.

Before sending the PSA, read it aloud, time it, and tape it. Play it back and listen carefully to its message. Be certain the PSA delivers the message you desire.

May 1992

Dear Colleagues,

Summer is often a time when a decline in the reading skills and abilities of youngsters is observed. However, it has been documented that children who read throughout the summer generally avoid such a change. By encouraging children to register for the 1992 Summer Reading Team you can help each one become a gold medal reader and a real winner in the truest sense of the word.

Registration for the Summer Reading Program begins _____. Throughout the summer a variety of activities and special events are scheduled at the _____ Public Library. Participants will receive a certificate and a gold medal upon completion of the program.

A calendar of events is enclosed for your reference. All programs are free and open to the public. Groups are requested to call and schedule a program appointment.

Children who are independent readers are encouraged to select books on their reading ability level. Parents are encouraged to read to their younger children.

It is important that children of all ages discover the pleasures which literature offers. Help make it happen. Please encourage your students to register and "read for the gold."

Thank you for your support and cooperation.

Sincerely,

Librarian

Dear Parent/Guardian

The Summer Reading Program is designed to help you promote the pleasures of reading and books. It offers an opportunity for your child to develop and maintain reading skills and to discover the resources of the library through special programs and activities.

Here's how you can help. . .

- Register your child for the Summer Reading Program at the _____ Library or at any branch.
- Help your child set a personal reading goal of books on his/her reading ability level to read during the summer.
- Help your child set a steady, consistent reading pace. Plan time to read and discuss books every day.
- Keep a list of the books which are read and report them regularly at the library.
- Attend the free activities at the library. Schedules are available at _____.
- Visit the library often.

For information about the Summer Reading Program or a calendar of events, call _____.

The 1992 Summer Reading Program is cooperatively sponsored by the Virginia State Library and Archives, the Virginia Center for the Book, and your local public library.

DISPLAYS

The theme offers a wide array of interpretations for displays.

Contact local schools, sporting goods stores to arrange to borrow sporting equipment which can be displayed in locked cases. It may also be possible to borrow such items from staff members of patrons.

Display library materials using track shoes or soccer balls attached to bookends.

Create wall displays such as a track or swimming pool and display the names of participants on small figures.

Use mini pennants or other shapes attached to paper clips to insert in the spine of books to highlight sports books or books about the Olympics.

Display bookjackets on colorful shapes of sporting equipment such as tennis rackets, balls, shoes, etc.

Create a special display area for trivia questions and/or guessing games. Allow space to post the names of weekly winners.

Cut laurel leaf shapes of construction paper and make wreaths to decorate displays.

Provide laurel leaf shapes on which participants may write the titles of the books they have read - one title to a leaf. Tape or staple the leaves into a long chain or giant wreath.

CONTESTS AND GAMES

Trivia contests based on sports and Olympic tidbits help maintain interest in the Summer Reading Program throughout the summer. You may want to have several age categories for this activity such as younger children, teens, and adults. Award small weekly prizes and, if possible, enter the names into a grand prize drawing.

Guessing game contests are also popular and they call on participants to exercise sharp powers of observation. Fill a plastic container with "gummy feet" or other items and permit participants one guess each library visit.

You may wish to have participants guess how many books will be checked out of the library during a period of time or the weight of a stack of books.

Bubble-blowing contests to see who can blow the largest bubble, the longest lasting bubble, or the bubble which floats highest can easily be conducted. Although a bit messier, bubble gum-blowing contests may also be conducted.

The sporting nature of the theme offers lots of opportunities for races, jump rope activities, relays and other games. Make certain that there are enough adults to supervise and keep a first-aid kit handy.

Adapt the popular "Pin the Tail on the Donkey" game to the theme with your library's version of "pin the athlete on the sporting equipment." Some possibilities include: pin the gymnast on the balance beam, pin the swimmer on the diving board, pin the polo player on the horse, etc.

The international aspects of the Olympic games also offers opportunities for exploring the games and pastimes of some of the participating countries.

FILM AND VIDEO

Book 16mm films and videos through the Statewide Film and Video Services of the Virginia State Library and Archives. Send requests on the Film and Video Request Form. Call Film and Video Services at 800/336-5266 for information.

The Ellison Letter Cutting Machine is available for booking through Film and Video Services.

Two Badge-a-Minit badge makers are also available for booking. Remember that the parts for the badges must be ordered separately from the Badge-a-Minit company. Allow plenty of time for delivery.

THE GREAT RACE
a play for people or puppets based on the Aesop Fable
"The Tortoise and the Hare" adapted by
Barbara Fischer

CHARACTERS

Narrator a person or a frog or other animal puppet
Tortoise
Hare
Other characters - a variety of animals - as few or as many as available

SCENERY

A woodland glade
A grassy meadow with a tree
A vegetable garden

PROPS

Stump
Fabric or paper lettuce leaves, carrots, and other vegetables for Hare to eat.
A brightly colored shell for Tortoise to wear during the race.

Narrator: "Have you ever known anyone who was as slow as molasses? Well, Tortoise was just such a creature. She absolutely, positively could not move fast. That's why her behavior came as such a surprise."

"What? You don't know about it? Well, let me tell you what happened."

"It was a beautiful summer day and tortoise was on her way to the stream..."

Narrator exits while describing the scene.

Tortoise enters and begins a slow crawl across the stage. Hare runs in and almost stumbles over Tortoise.

Hare: "Ouch! Tortoise you have got to get out of the way. If you can't move along at the proper pace then you shouldn't even be on the road."

Tortoise: "Hare, you are the one who needs to watch where you are going. You don't own this road and you most certainly aren't the only one using it."

"What kind of a race are you running?"

Hare: "I'm not running in any race right now. I am just in training."

Tortoise: "Hare, you are always in such a rush. I wouldn't be surprised if you were to run right past where you are going. You should take your time, enjoy the scenery, watch out for others."

Hare: "Ha! Being slow never won any race. The race is to the swiftest. Speed is what it takes to be a winner. Lightening speed"

Tortoise: "Are you sure about that?"

Hare: "What do you mean? Of course I'm sure!"

Tortoise: "Well, in my family the motto is 'Slow but sure wins the race'."

Hare: "Tortoise, in your family no one was ever in a real race. You wouldn't know what to do if you even tried to race."

Tortoise: "Hare, I'll have you know I come from a long line of racing tortoises."

Hare: "Racing tortoises? ... What a joke!"

Tortoise: "You certainly are amused Hare. Well, to prove it I challenge YOU to a race!

Hare: "A race? Between us? You must be kidding! Now Tortoise, don't do anything hasty."

Tortoise: "Hare, I am not kidding. I challenge you to a race tomorrow morning from the old stump, down the road past the garden, across the meadow, through the woods, and back to the old stump."

Hare: (laughing) "Oh, all right Tortoise. A race tomorrow morning. You had better start now if you hope to be at the starting line on time."

Hare jogs off still laughing.

Tortoise slowly crosses stage muttering...

Tortoise: "Slow but sure . . . Slow but sure . . ."

Narrator: "That's how it began. It didn't take long for the word to spread to every one."

The scene changes to a clearing in the woods with a stump.

Other characters enter.

Narrator: "By the next morning everyone was waiting at the old stump for the two competitors to arrive."

Animal 1: "I can't believe that Tortoise would do such a thing."

Animal 2: "Yes, it does seem very strange. But you know how determined Tortoise can be."

Animal 3: "And Hare can certainly be very obnoxious at times."

Animal 4: "It's a great day for a race. There's not a cloud in the sky."

Hare enters bowing and laughing.

Hare: "How nice to see everyone this morning. But I don't see my worthy opponent. Don't tell me Tortoise has been delayed. Must have forgotten to start out yesterday!"

Tortoise enters wearing a brightly painted shell.

Tortoise: "Here I am Hare. And I'm ready to race."

Hare: "So you are. Do you think all those colors will give you speed?"

Tortoise: "I told you that I come from a long line of racing tortoises. These are our racing colors. Now, who shall be the judge?"

Narrator: "Since I've had a lot of experience with jumping contests, I'll volunteer. Do you both know the course ... from the old stump, down the road past the garden, across the meadow, through the woods, and back to the old stump."

"On your mark. Get set. GO!"

Hare dashes off. Tortoise slowly crosses the stage coughing over the dust left behind Hare. The others cheer.

Narrator: "Hare was off in a flash. He seemed to fly across the ground leaving Tortoise far behind."

Tortoise: "Slow but sure . . . Slow but sure . . ."

Tortoise exits.

Narrator and others exit.

Scene changes to garden with lettuce, carrots, and other delectables.

Hare enters running but stops in his tracks, looks behind him, and then looks hungrily at the garden.

Hare: "Well, I certainly left Tortoise in the dust. Poor old thing is probably trying to figure out which way to go. Hmm... I dashed off so early this morning I didn't have much of a breakfast. I'll just have a little munch while I wait for Tortoise to catch up."

Hare pulls up some lettuce leaves, a carrot or two, etc and, while eating them exits as though he is going further into the garden after other tasty morsels.

Tortoise enters slowly.

Tortoise: "Slow but sure . . . I thought I saw Hare come this way. Oh, there he is in the middle of the garden eating."

"Hare you'd better hurry along."

Hare (offstage): "Who's that? Oh, it's you Tortoise. There's plenty of time, I'll pass you by as soon as I've finished my snack."

Tortoise: "Well, I'll just keep on going. Slow but sure . . . Slow but sure . . ."

Tortoise exits and the scene changes to the meadow.

Tortoise enters.

Tortoise: "Slow but sure . . . Slow but sure . . ."

Hare enters, runs past Tortoise and stops.

Hare: "Hi there, Tortoise. On your way somewhere? Oh yes, I forgot we are running a race. What a joke. See you at the finish line."

Hare exits.

Tortoise slowly crosses stage coughing.

Tortoise: "Slow but sure . . .

Scene changes to woods.

Hare enters.

Hare: "My it was hot crossing the meadow. I've left Tortoise so far behind there's plenty of time for me to stretch out and take a little nap."

Hare lays down on stage at far left and begins to snore.

Tortoise enters.

Tortoise: "Slow but sure . . . Slow but . . . What' this? It looks like a sleeping hare. He certainly is busy sawing logs. Should I wake him? I think not. I'll just keep up my pace. Slow but sure. . . Slow but sure. . .

Tortoise crawls over Hare and continues on toward the finish line.

Hare turns over sleepily and rolls off stage.

Scene changes to finish line beside the old stump to the left of center stage.

Other characters are on stage cheering for the winner.

Tortoise enters.

Tortoise: "Slow but sure. . . There's the finish line and I'm crossing it first."

Narrator and other characters cheer for Tortoise.

Narrator: "Congratulations Tortoise."

Tortoise: "Thank you all. It was a great race."

Others: "Where is Hare?"

Tortoise: "The last time I saw him he was fast asleep."

Hare enters breathless and triumphantly crosses the finish line.

Hare: "And the winner is . . ."

All: "The winner is Tortoise."

Hare: "Tortoise?"

Tortoise: "Yes indeed, Hare. The winner of the great race is Tortoise."

Hare: "But how . . . ?"

Tortoise: "It was easy. Remember, I come from a long line of racing tortoises and our motto is . . ."

All: "Slow but sure wins the race!"

All: "Hooray for Tortoise. Hooray for Tortoise."

All exit.
