What Is Happening To Our Workplaces?

Our Literacy Standards Are Changing

Our Workforce Is Changing

High Performance Models Are Growing

The Cost Of Hiring Is Growing

Our Literacy Standards Are Changing!

100 years ago - Literacy was defined as being able to write your name.

1930 - The Civilian Conservation Corps defined functional literacy as 3 or more years of schooling.

1936 - The military defined literacy for recruits as 4th grade level.

1947 - The Census Bureau defined functional literacy as 5 or more years of schooling.

1952 - The Census Bureau raised the literacy level to 6 or more years of schooling.

1960 - The U.S. Office of Education defined 8th grade as the literacy standard.

Today - Most operational manuals are written on the 11-12th grade reading level. A high school completion level is needed for functional literacy.

Our Workforce Is Changing!

By the year 2000

The average worker will be 39 years old (today - 36)

16% of the workforce will come from people under age 25 (today - 20%)

22% of the workforce will come from non-English speaking immigrants (today 7%).

75-80% of tomorrow's workers are in the workforce today.

High Performance Models Are Growing!

Can A Workplace Skills Partnership Help Your Company?

Does Your Company Need A Workplace Skills Program?

- Is your company changing from single work stations to team production?
- Is your company changing quality assessment methods?
- Is your company increasing customized services?
- Is your company decreasing product delivery time (just-in-time delivery)?
- Are employees making decisions once made by management?
- Is your company installing new technology (computerized machinery)?
- Is your company expecting changes in regulatory standards (ISO 9000, company guidelines, federal regulations)?
- Is your company expecting changes in the number or composition of your workforce (increases, decreases, turn-over)?
- Are your company's employees having difficulty filling out forms, reading and writing memos, understanding manuals, calculating production, reading graphs/tables, or working together as a team?
- Is your company looking for a benefit that would help your employees prepare for tomorrow's workforce while increasing their production and company loyalty?

What Are The Benefits Of A Workplace Skills Program To . . .

Your Company . . .

- Higher employee skills (basic academics, adaptability, communication, problem-solving, teamwork, decision making, organizational effectiveness)
- Better employee ability to effectively use new equipment
- Better safety (fewer accidents, reduced workman's compensation)
- Higher quality
- Higher production and efficiency (less waste of time and materials)
- Shorter product cycle (turn around time)
- Greater opportunity to promote from within
- Greater employee dedication (reduced tardiness and absenteeism, less employee turnover)
- Higher morale (less hostility/conflict in workplace))

Your employees . . .

- Better opportunity for skill mastery (individualized, adult centered learning provided in supportive environment)
- Better basic skills (academic and workplace)
- Greater preparation for attainment of educational goals (job certification, GED, preparation for technical or college courses)
- Better job performance and opportunity for promotion within plant
- Better self-confidence/ability (transfer of skills - confidence/ability to become more active in community, assist children with school work, handle family financial matters)
- Improved company loyalty

What Will The National Workplace Skills Demonstration Project Provide To Your Company?

Pellissippi State Technical Community College and Roane State Community College will provide:

- Project administration
- Coordinator/instructors (employment and supervision)
- Literacy job task analysis
- Employee assessment
- Coordination of activities with plant management and/or education committees
- Curriculum development
- Educational instruction
- Evaluation of project to assure achievement of goals and objectives

Workplace Skills Program Options
Program Description	Curriculum	Literacy Job Task Analysis	Literacy Needs	Minimal Company Incentives	Expected Participants	Recommendations
Level 1 - Basic program	General workplace skills program based on CASAS, SCANS, ASTD competencies	none	Minimal - literacy needs frequently related to employment and benefit forms rather than performance of work - companies normally have traditional management systems and individual work stations	Generally voluntary program with recognition of employees' accomplishments through certificates and receptions	Self-motivated for job advancement, GED, or personal improvement - minimal barriers to attending classes after work hours	Recommended for small companies with minimal current literacy needs that would like to: (1) provide education as an employee benefit (2) prepare for anticipated changes in management style or technology
Level 2 - Modified program	General workplace skills program with some customized modules	Abbreviated task analysis (review of materials, interviews with employees and management)	Some literacy needs (team work, reading of directions, basic math, communications)	Strong company support, some incentives (T shirts, certificates, banquets)	Self-motivated employees plus those who respond to management and peer support and encouragement	Recommended for small-medium companies who (1) have identified skill gaps, (2) predict expanded literacy needs (new technology, high performance management), or (3) wish to phase in a larger program
Level 3 - Customized program	Customized workplace skills program for specific plant needs	Literacy job task analysis completed in order to identify curriculum needs	Specific literacy needs correlated to plant performance goals	Work release time, shared work release/employee time, paid after work classes, cash bonus for skill level change or class completion, job promotion or security associated with skill level	Wider range of participants (self-motivated to low skilled with educational barriers) - this level attracts the highest percentage of participants	Recommended for high performance companies that would like to incorporate permanent skills programs into their plants

What Are Some Contributions Your Company Could Make To A Workplace Skills Partnership?

- Management support in program development
 - Developmental meetings
 - Orientation of educational providers to the workplace

 - Coordination with training/human resource department
 - Inclusion of program in new hire orientations
 - Educational support through company policies or mission statements
- Liaison to work with literacy provider
- Release time for Employee Educational Team meetings/activities
- Space for Learning Center
- Funding
 - Instructional materials and supplies
 - Program support
- Instructional equipment
 - Computers
 - VCRs
- Office supplies and copying services
- Incentives for employee participation in instruction
 - Release time
 - Shared employee/company time
 - Bonus for class completion or skill level change
- Employee recognition ceremonies/certificates

Do You Need Help Deciding Whether You Need A Workplace Skills Program?

If you already know whether your company needs a workplace skills program, omit the following surveys.

If you would like some help in estimating whether you need a program, two surveys are attached ("Estimating Skill Gaps" and "National Workplace Skills Demonstration Project Management Survey.") Select either one of the surveys. Both are designed to help you estimate your need for a program.

If you decide to begin a program, your educational partnership can provide a literacy job task analysis and an employee assessment to identify specific needs.

Estimating Skill Gaps

Source: Based on the "Basic Skills Worksheet" from A Workforce Literacy Resource Guide prepared by the Birmingham Area Chamber of Commerce with the Literacy (1992).

When employees' skills do not match the skill levels needed to do the job, a skill gap results. For a quick estimate of skill gaps in your company, compare the skills needed to the skill levels of the employees on the job.

Step 1 - Identify the basic skills needed for the job. The skills listed below were identified by the American Society for Training and Development as those most wanted by employers.

Job Classification _____

Skills Needed	Importance	x	Ability	=	Skills Gap
Ability to learn		x		=
Reading comprehension		x		=
Skills Needed		x		=
Ability to learn		x		=
Listening/oral communication		x		=
Problem solving/creative thinking		x		=
Motivation/self esteem		x		=
Interpersonal skills/teamwork		x		=
Leadership/organizational effectiveness		x		=
Other		x		=

Step 2 - Estimate the importance of each skill for that job. Record the estimate in the chart above.

Low importance	0
Moderate importance	1
High importance	2
Critical importance	3

Step 3 - Estimate employees' ability in each area. Record the estimate in the chart above.

Exceptional skill	1
Capable	2
Uncertain	3
Incapable	4

Step 4 - Multiply the importance by the ability to calculate the skills gap.

0	Minimal concern
1-2	Caution - consider modifying the workplace
3-4	Concern - encourage self improvement
4-6	Greater concern - recommend partnership with workplace education provider
6-9	Strong concern - recommend ongoing workplace education program
