ABSTRACT

Many times, young people can make a significant impact on their communities. An example of this potential is evident in the Minnesota statewide youth program, in which at-risk youth rebuild their neighborhoods. The program enables young people to gain job skills while working toward their high school diploma or GED, to play a respected role in their communities, and to build safe, affordable housing. The program targets youth involved with the criminal justice system and those who belong to gangs. The program also helps those youth who have difficulty making the transition from school to work. The program serviced approximately 315 young people in 1995 and 46 units of affordable housing were made available to over 200 homeless, battered women and children, and low-income persons. During 1995, 80% of all participants (ages 16 to 24) successfully completed the program, averaging 90% attendance. Overall follow-up data indicate that an estimated 70% of participants went on to obtain their high school diploma or GED. Fifty percent of all graduates attended a technical and vocational school, college, or other postsecondary institution. Participants gained increased skills in leadership development and self-esteem and reduction in negative behaviors. A synopsis of each of the state programs is provided. (RJM)

YOUTH BUILD PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Prepared by the Minnesota Department of Economic Security
Workforce Preparation Branch/Office of Youth Development
January 1996

*In Accordance with Minnesota Statutes
268.362 to 268.367*

The Minnesota YouthBuild Program demonstrates a commitment to Minnesota's at-risk youth and their communities by helping young people rebuild their neighborhoods and take charge of their lives.

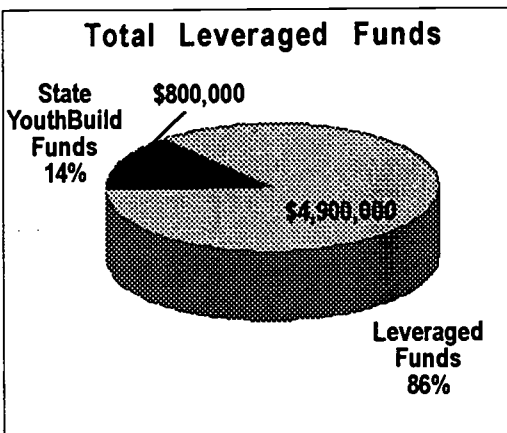

The program enables young people to gain useful job skills while working toward their high school diploma or GED, play a respected role in their communities, and build the most essential commodity needed by their families and neighbors: safe, affordable housing.

Funding and Quality Standards

At the state level, the YouthBuild Program is an integral part of the employment and training programs in the Workforce Preparation Branch of the Minnesota Department of Economic Security. These programs are specifically designed to reduce unemployment and poverty in Minnesota and promote economic self-sufficiency.

In 1995, the Legislature provided $600,000 in YouthBuild funds to the Department of Economic Security which awarded grants to Bi-County CAP in Bemidji, The City, Inc. in Minneapolis, Carver-Scott Educational Cooperative in Chaska, Two or More, Inc. in Minneapolis, City Academy in St. Paul, Rural Minnesota CEP, Inc. in Detroit Lakes, Private Industry Council 5 in Willmar, Arrowhead Economic Opportunity Agency in Virginia, and Guadalupe Area Project in St. Paul.

The program demonstrates substantial leveraging of additional matching funds through its coordination with local community, housing, and educational agencies, technical colleges, trade unions, court services, law enforcement agencies, and drug treatment and prevention programs. Matching funds leveraged for the program totalled over $4 million in 1995.

To ensure quality standards and compliance with state statutes and labor laws, representatives of the Department of Economic Security make regular site visits to monitor the programs and provide technical assistance.

*"The students are gaining in experience as leaders on the job site. They are physically and mentally using their skills."
- Bill Strader, instructor*

In accordance with M.S. 3.197, the cost of preparing this report was $850.

Crime Prevention Focus

The Minnesota YouthBuild program specifically targets youth involved with the criminal justice system and those involved in gangs, with 65 percent of program participants previously involved with the criminal justice system or gangs.

Strict standards are required. Two or More's program requires youth to refrain from all criminal activity and gang involvement while enrolled in the program, including drug and alcohol use. Two or More, Inc. also requires strict tenant screening and standards to reduce and eliminate drug dealing and criminal activity on all housing projects.

"As the construction supervisor, it's very rewarding to watch the students gain knowledge and pride in the work that they do." - Gary Dohse, instructor

*"Each of us is individually responsible to the whole group."
- Akeem Pendleton and Robert Harvey*

School to Work Transition Model

The Minnesota YouthBuild Program is an excellent example of a school to work transition model. Moreover, the program targets youth who have the most difficulty in making the transition from school to work, high risk dropouts and youth offenders. By providing an alternative high school education and technical skills training in the highly skilled field of construction carpentry, participants gain the necessary education and skills to successfully transition from school to a job or advanced post secondary training. In addition, the program provides opportunities in post secondary options, career counseling, job mentoring, and work maturity skills training to assist youth in the transition from school to work.

Community Service Focus

The Minnesota YouthBuild Program is an excellent model of youth community service. Meaningful and necessary community service is accomplished through the rebuilding of neighborhoods and various community service projects across the state.

Program Description

The Minnesota YouthBuild Program served approximately 315 young people in 1995. Forty-six (46) units of affordable housing were made available to over 200 homeless, battered women and children, and low-income persons during the past year. All youth participants are 16 to 24, economically disadvantaged or eligible for the High School Graduation Incentives Program, and have previously dropped out or are at risk of dropping out of school. Approximately half of the participants are youth of color. Last year, approximately 80 percent of the youth served had left or been expelled from school, 65 percent have had involvement with the juvenile justice system, 20 percent are teen parents, a third were recovering chemically dependent, half were experiencing emotional/behavioral or learning disabilities, two thirds come from single parent families, and 90% are economically disadvantaged. The estimated program cost is $1,600 per participant.

"The work we do makes us feel proud, positive, and helpful." - Robert Harvey

Program Objectives

The objectives of the Minnesota YouthBuild Program are fourfold:

- (1) Increase education and basic skills of at-risk youth:
  - Improve basic academic performance and high school attendance
  - Increase high school and GED graduation rates
  - Increase enrollment of at-risk youth in post-secondary and technical institutions
- (2) Increase the employability skills of at-risk youth:
  - Increase job readiness and work maturity skills
  - Increase construction job skills for hard to employ youth
  - Increase job placement for young persons in the building trades/related fields
- (3) Provide leadership opportunities for at-risk youth:
  - Develop self-esteem, respect, and personal empowerment

  - Increase affordable housing for homeless, battered, and poor families or individuals
  - Rebuild deteriorating communities and neighborhoods

*"This program is an investment in my future."
- Yohance Moore*

Program Outcomes

During 1995, 80% of all participants successfully completed the program and averaged 90% attendance overall. Follow up data collected over the past three years indicates that an estimated 70% of the participants went on to obtain their high school diploma or GED. Fifty percent of all graduates went on to technical and vocational school, colleges, and other post secondary institutions. Upon completion of the program, approximately 60% of the participants were employed at an average starting wage of $7.00 an hour. Participants also gained increased skills in leadership development, self-esteem, and reduction in negative behaviors and attitudes regarding work, school, and social interactions.

"Watching these young people work is great. Their growth in self-esteem is one of the best parts of the program."

*-Dave Kinney,
