ABSTRACT

This final performance report provides project outcome information and data to the U.S. Department of Education for the federally-funded Library Literacy Program. The West Georgia Regional Library conducted a project from October 1992 until September 1993 that involved collection development and providing tutoring services to adult learners in a community of 100,000-200,000 people. The project goal was to cooperate with other community agencies in a coordinated effort to increase the reading level of the population in two counties that the library serves. The project provided classroom instruction, small group instruction, and one-on-one tutoring, using the Laubach and Literacy Volunteers of America (LVA) methods. The project served more than 350 adult learners, and provided more than 100 hours of direct tutoring service. The West Georgia Regional Library System purchased high interest, low vocabulary informational and recreational library materials to support a basic literacy program already in progress in Carroll and Haralson Counties. Basic literacy and GED classes were offered, and new adult reader collections were placed in five libraries. Patrons in other library system libraries have access to the new reader collection through interlibrary loan. (SWC)

LSCA TITLE VI GRANT REPORT LITERACY PROGRAM SUPPORT PROJECT

ABSTRACT

West Georgia Regional Library System received a grant of $20,100.00 to purchase high interest, low vocabulary informational and recreational library materials to support a basic literacy program already in progress in Carroll and Haralson Counties. Funds were also used to provide literacy classes held at the Tallapoosa Public Library in Haralson County.

The percentage of adult residents with less than an eighth grade education in the five counties that the library serves ranges from 20.7% to 37.3%. The library system had attempted to supply high interest, low vocabulary materials to its patrons, but had only been able to do so on a limited basis, because of restrictive materials budgets.

In talking to the Director of Adult Literacy for Carroll and Haralson Counties, it was found that there was a great need for public libraries in the area to provide a "New Adult Reader" section in each library that would contain books with a controlled vocabular, but with high interest levels. There was also a need for literacy classes in the Tallapoosa area in Haralson County. With many recent plant closings in the area, adults were finding the need for GED classes and literacy classes.

This project began on October 1, 1992 and was completed in September, 1993. It was under the direction of Roni Willis, Assistant Director, West Georgia Regional Library, with the assistance of Shirley Gantt, literacy coordinator for Carroll and Haralson Counties.

WEST GEORGIA REGIONAL LIBRARY
LSCA TITLE VI GRANT REPORT
LITERACY PROGRAM SUPPORT PROJECT

Background:

The West Georgia Regional Library System serves five counties: Carroll, Douglas, Haralson, Heard and Paulding Counties, a total area of 1605 square miles in the western part of Georgia. The Office of Planning and Budget estimated the population for the library's service area to be 225,302 in FY1992, the fiscal year of the project.

The library headquarters is located in Carrollton. Branch libraries are located in Bremen and Tallapoosa in Haralson County, Bowdon and Villa Rica in Carroll County, Douglasville and Lithia Springs in Douglas County, Dallas in Paulding County, and Franklin in Heard County.

Literacy programs are well established in all counties of the library system. Shirley Gantt is the Literacy Coordinator for the programs in Carroll, Haralson, and Coweta Counties. When talking to literacy coordinators across the system, one need was evident. Books were needed in the public libraries to provide supplemental help to students and to provide them with a place to have reinforcement and recreational reading on their interest and reading level. Ms. Gantt expressed an additional need for funding for the beginning of a literacy program to be initiated in Haralson County, because of recent plant closings resulting in many adults out of work and lacking the skills to get new jobs.

Goal:

The library system's goal was to cooperate with other community agencies in a coordinated effort to increase the reading level of the population in two counties that the library serves. The Library would work closely with the area literacy coordinator and the Carroll County Chamber of Commerce to ensure that services and materials provided through the project would enhance and supplement the literacy efforts in the area.

Objectives:

The following objectives were defined for the project:

1. West Georgia Regional Library will organize a New Adult Reader Collection in five libraries in the system within the first six months of the project.
2. At least 2,700 high interest, low vocabulary books will be purchased, cataloged and added to the library collection during the first six months of the project.
3. An instructor will be hired to provide literacy classes for at least two mornings a week at Tallapoosa Public Library, to begin no later than three months into the project.
4. Circulation of books in the New Reader Collection will be at least 300 per month during the first six months of the project.

Summation of Goals and Objectives:

West Georgia Regional Library accomplished its goal of working with local agencies, including Carroll Technical Institute, Carroll County Chamber of Commerce, and the Literacy Coordinator, to ensure that services and materials provided through this project would support existing literacy efforts.

The Assistant Director of the Library worked closely with the Director of Adult Literacy to create a list of books to be ordered for the New Adult Reader Collections. Books ordered and added to the collection included GED preparation books, books on basic math and grammar, high interest readers, readers to accompany books being used in literacy classes, nonfiction books on job skills, and books with accompanying audio cassettes.

New Adult Reader Collections were created in libraries in Carrollton, Bowdon, Bremen, Villa Rica, and Tallapoosa. A section of shelves was identified at the end of the nonfiction area in each library and was clearly labeled with "New Reader" signs. As books were processed, a symbol of "NR" was placed before the call number of each book to ensure that books would be reshelfed in the correct area.

Publicity was accomplished through announcements in the newspaper, brochures to area students and tutors, and brochures available at the library. All books were listed on the library's computer, so that students in other areas of the library system could borrow the New Adult Reader books through interlibrary loan services.

A total of 3,300 books were added during this project to the five adult reader collections. Circulation of these materials has increased from 25 per week during the first month of the project to over 350 per week during the last month of the project.

A literacy teacher was hired to teach literacy classes at the Tallapoosa Public Library beginning in January, 1993. This was a daytime class, the first of its kind in Haralson County. A total of ten students were enrolled in the class during January. One student was on a 0-4 reading level, four on a 5-8 reading level, and five on a 9-12 reading level. During the second month of the project, twenty-four students were enrolled in the class. By the end of September, 1993, two students had earned their GED, and others in the class had made significant progress.

Through this project, West Georgia Regional Library provided funds for the salary of the teacher of this class. Shirley Gantt, Director of Literacy, was responsible for hiring the teacher and monitoring the success of the class. Space was provided for the class in the library's meeting room.

At the conclusion of this project, Carroll Technical Institute was able to assume the funding for the salary for this teacher and the daytime class continues at the library.

Project Impact:

This project has affected many agencies and individuals in the West Georgia area. After the creation of New Reader Collections in the five libraries that were mentioned, library staff members began to realize how great a need there is for these materials. Plans are being made now to create similar collections in the other branches of the library system.

Tutors and students have enjoyed the collections as well. Tutors appreciate the availability of the materials in the public library so that students can feel that there is a place for them to get books that they can read and are interested in. Many literacy teachers and tutors have brought classes to the library for an orientation and tour. At least one hundred students have signed up for library cards during the course of this project.

Other library patrons that are trying to improve job skills or that are considering working toward a GED use the books in the collection as well. Librarians have found it necessary to budget a percentage of the annual materials budget for New Reader books to keep up with the demand.
