ABSTRACT

The Adult Literacy Program at the Alameda County Library provided employment oriented programs. The project served a community of over 200,000 people, and targeted workforce/workplace learners. The project served 578 adult learners and provided 35,904 hours of direct tutoring service. The report provides a comparison of actual accomplishments to goals and objectives set forth in the grant application; comparison between proposed and actual expenditures; specific details of activities undertaken; the role the library played in the accomplishment of the goals and objectives, agencies and organizations that assisted in the project; and the impact of the federal project on the ongoing program of the library. Attachments include: final fourth quarter expense report, narrative summary of job counseling for period October 1992-September 1993, and program advertisements. (SWC)

Part III: Narrative Report

Provide a narrative report that includes the following information:

1. A comparison of actual accomplishments to the goals and objectives set forth in the approved application. Describe any major changes or revisions in the program with respect to approved activities, staffing, and budgeting, including unspent funds. Explain why established goals and objectives were not met, if applicable.
2. Provide a comparison between proposed and actual expenditures by budget category, i.e., personnel, travel, materials, etc.
3. Provide, as appropriate, specific details as to the activities undertaken -- e.g., if library materials were acquired, describe the kinds of materials purchased; if a needs assessment was conducted, describe the results of the assessment; if training was provided, describe the training and include the dates and topics; if services were contracted out, describe the contractor's activities.
4. Describe the role the library has played in the accomplishment of the goals and objectives set forth in the approved grant, including whether the library was involved in the project's implementation or as a resource and site only.
5. Provide names of agencies and organizations recruited to volunteer their services for the literacy program or that were involved in the coordination and planning of the literacy program. Describe the nature of their role.

6. Provide the names and locations of libraries and other sites whose facilities were used for this project.
7. Describe the impact of the Federal project on the ongoing program of the grantee.

Note: Narrative reports are not expected to exceed 20 double-spaced typewritten pages.

[Further monies or other benefits may, but not necessarily, be withheld under these programs unless these reports are completed and filed as required by existing law and regulations (20 U.S.C. 351 et seq.; 34 CFR Parts 75 and 77).]

Part III: Narrative Report

1. Comparison of actual accomplishments to the goals and objectives set forth in the application.

Objective:

To establish sixteen work place literacy workshops for the purpose of addressing self-esteem, communication, and practical job search skills for students as well as assistance with lesson planning and learning methods for tutors.

Accomplishments:

Michael James, a respected and experienced literacy instructor offered six workshops in Fremont, four work shops in San Lorenzo and four workshops in Pleasanton for students. The workshops in Fremont were well attended and students expressed to staff that the discussions were useful. The workshops in Pleasanton were well attended for two sessions, but lack of attendance in the third and fourth session. The workshops in San Lorenzo were poorly attended at the first session and it was decided that further sessions would be held at Fremont Library where the majority of students reside.

Because Mr. James' expertise revolves around student curriculum, the job counselor hired for the program conducted separate sessions for tutors to discuss lesson planning and learning methods directed toward work related issues. Twenty tutors participated in tutor round table discussions which included training in the use of the new materials.

Objective:

To identify a minimum of 50 students interested in either obtaining or improving employment and providing them with career development information at weekly job clinics.

Accomplishment:

A total of forty-seven students participated in job counseling, either in one-to-one sessions or in small groups. Counseling was offered on-site at Fremont Main Library and the branches in Union City, San Lorenzo, and Pleasanton. The primary purpose of the counseling was to provide information and referral regarding employment opportunities, vocational training programs, legal rights, and other vocational or employment related issues, particularly as they relate to the needs of adult literacy students. In addition, with the assistance of the job counselor, students prepared individualized job search plans, wrote their resumes, prepared to take entrance examinations, practiced filling out job application, write cover letters, and practiced the interview.

Twenty-six students participated in individual counseling. These students received a total of 110 hours of direct tutor service. On the average, each student received four hours of direct tutoring service. Of the twenty-six students, twenty-one left the counseling sessions with resumes.

Seventeen students participated in small group sessions of job counseling. During these sessions, students completed vocational interest assessment, learned the parts and structure of a resume and cover letter and discussed with the job counselor various questions and concerns related to the job search or current employment.

Objective:

To create greater awareness of work place literacy issues by recruiting four employers who will hire qualified learners from the program.

Accomplishment:

Although contacts were made to local companies and the Office of Employment Development, this final link from job search preparation to gainful employment was not successful. Although companies were interested in the literacy issue, and as a result asked our program to provide services (both at New United Motors in Fremont and Reynolds Canning Company in Hayward), students were not hired.

The numbers of hours budgeted for the job counselor/developer were insufficient for this final stage of the grant. At minimum, a .80 position would be needed to provide both the job counseling and job development components as set forth in this grant.

2. Comparison between proposed and actual expenditures by budget category:

	Proposed	Actual
Salary	0	0
Fringe Benefit	0	0
Travel	0	0
Equipment	0	0
Supplies	0	0
Contractual serv.	0	0
Library Materials	2,500	2,484
Other	29,736	29,759
Indirect	2,579	2,579
Total	34,815	34,822

3. Details about activities undertaken.

In October 1992, job counseling was made available to all interested students in the literacy program. Counseling was offered on-site at Fremont Main Library and the branches in Union City, San Lorenzo, and Pleasanton. The primary purpose of the counseling was to provide information and referral regarding employment opportunities, vocational training programs, legal rights, and other vocational or employment related issues, particularly as they related to the needs of adult literacy students. In addition, with the assistance of the job counselor, students prepared individualized job search plans, wrote their resumes, prepared to take entrance examinations, practiced fill out job applications, wrote cover letters and practiced the interviews.

Job counseling was offered in individual and group sessions. Twenty-six students participated in individual counseling. These students received a total of 110 hours of direct tutoring service. On the average, each student received four hours of direct tutoring service. Of the twenty-six students, twenty-one left the counseling sessions with resumes, which in most cases was the first resume the student had ever had.

A survey was mailed to all participants in individual job counseling in an effort to determine qualitative outcomes of student progress, and follow-up phone calls were made. Of those students who responded to the survey by mail or by phone, all said they had been helped by the job counseling, some in finding jobs, some in determining vocational direction, others in confronting immediate work-related challenges. Approximately one-third of the participants who were actively looking for work during the time of the counseling sessions subsequently found employment.

Seventeen students participated in small group sessions of job counseling. During these sessions, students completed vocational interest assessments, learned the parts and structure of a resume and cover letter, and discussed with the job counselor various questions and concerns related to the job search or current employment.

Nineteen new vocational related books (a total of seventy-three copies) were purchased and distributed to Fremont Main and the branches in San Lorenzo, Union City, and Pleasanton. Videos, workshop tool kits, flash cards and work sheets were also purchased and distributed to the branches. These materials covered topics such as:

- *developing essential employability skills
- *oral histories on work and society
- *employment issues facing adults new to the U.S.
- *interaction on the job
- *readings for low beginning through high intermediate levels
- *readings on occupations that do not require a college degree
- *resumes, cover letters, applications, interviews, legal forms
- *overviews of different work places

Twenty tutors participated in a tutor round table discussion of the job counseling sessions available to their students, and a brief training in the use of the new materials. One tutor accompanied her student to the job counseling sessions, and they continued the work of the sessions in individual tutoring, doing research and follow-up.

A one-hour workshop was held for former participants in job counseling in order to provide support for the ongoing job searches and additional information and referral. Two students participated in this workshop. A two-hour resume writing workshop was offered for students who had not participated in individual counseling. Four students participated in this workshop.

Since participating in job counseling, several students have asked for additional copies of their resumes, for referrals for specific occupation needs, and for consultation.

4. Role of the library

The library branch of Union City offered use of its existing Job Center to house materials and is a major referral source for the job counselor. The Union City Branch hosted a job fair and invited our job counselor to be present and recruit potential students for our program. Favorable publicity followed this event. The Business Library, located at Fremont Main Library, also provided the job counselor and students with critical referral information about employment issues. The library also provided space for discussion groups and job counseling.

5. Agencies and organizations recruited to assist.

The job counselor spoke on numerous occasions with the Employment Development Department and the Department of Labor to verify and ascertain federal and local employment regulations. She also worked with the Regional Occupation Program and the local Adult Schools as sources for referral for the students.

6. Library sites utilized in grant.

Union City Library, Fremont Main Library, San Lorenzo Library and Pleasanton Library.

7. Impact of the Federal project on the organization.

This grant was of extreme importance to the students who took advantage of the opportunities offered by a job counselor. The grant allowed us to provide assistance not otherwise available to students (at no cost). One of the basic activities, the creation of a resume, resulted in a finished product for students to give potential employers. Most importantly, the process encouraged self-examination and enhanced the self-esteem of students who had never acknowledged their strengths in such a specific manner.
