Introduction

How to Use the Resource Guide

The purpose of the Resource Guide is twofold:

- to identify and describe materials (primary resources) that might assist you in designing quality preservice and inservice learning opportunities (i.e., curricula, videotapes, discussion guides); and
- to identify materials that will serve as supplemental resources to your personnel preparation and development efforts (i.e., bibliographies, free publications, annotated directories of additional curricula).

What's in the Resource Guide?

The Resource Guide features instructional material in three sections: Instructional Content; Instructional Process; and Additional Resources. A list of topics and information covered in each of these sections follows.

Instructional Content

Materials with which to enrich preservice and inservice personnel preparation in key early childhood/early intervention content areas, including:

Assistive Technology—resources that could be used to share information about the use of assistive technology with young children

Early Care and Development—materials to promote optimum early development, including the design, implementation, and evaluation of quality child care environments that lend themselves to effective inclusion

Cultural Diversity—materials that could be used to facilitate the appreciation of individual differences in ourselves and the families we serve

Evaluation/Assessment—resources for training others in gathering and sharing child and family information

Family-Professional Collaboration—materials for assisting individuals and programs in movement toward family-centered practices and effective collaboration

IFSP—resources that could be used to share information and promote learning about the IFSP process

Inclusion—materials that can be used to promote well-designed, integrated environments for young children

Interagency Collaboration—information and activities that can be used to foster productive collaborative efforts that support young children and families

Legislation—materials for sharing information about federal legislation and policies that affect young children and families

Service Coordination—materials for teaching about case management and service coordination

Specific Populations—instructional resources targeted to specific audiences including medical personnel, paraprofessionals, and practitioners who serve parents with special needs, children infected with HIV, and premature infants

State Planning and Resource Development—resources that can assist states in setting up structures to support and link personnel preparation and development resources and efforts

Teams—materials for promoting teamwork

Transitions—materials that can be used to share information about transitions in early childhood/early intervention

Instructional Process

Resources to enrich the design of quality personnel preparation efforts, including:

Family Participation—materials that can support the involvement of family members in different aspects of early childhood intervention, including leadership, advocacy, personnel preparation, and program design and development

Personnel Preparation and Development—information on models (mentoring, consultation) and methods (instructional approaches, case method, teambased approaches) for supporting preservice education, inservice training, and ongoing staff development

Additional Resources

Lists of other resource guides and personnel preparation materials, including:

Curriculum Guides —compilations of information about existing curricula

Multiple Content Resources—resources that address two or more content areas

How is the Resource Guide Organized?

Each section is divided into two parts: Primary resources and Supplemental resources.

Primary resources are materials that are described at length, including title, author, date, format (print, video, audiotape), content (brief description), level of impact, source, and cost. Typically these are items that were intended for instructional use and lend themselves without adaptation.

Supplemental resources are other materials described in terms of title, author, source, and cost. Addresses and telephone numbers for these sources are provided in the Source List that appears at the end of the Resource Guide. These are items that might be useful as vignettes, handouts, readings, or bibliographic entries.

A Source List follows the content sections and includes publishers and producers for supplemental materials described in the Resource Guide. Two indices follow the Source List and provide alphabetical listings of all Resource Guide entries by author and title.

The pages of the Resource Guide have been designed with lined space in the margins, providing you with room to take notes about individual entries.

The Resource Guide is also available online as a PDF file at [http:\\www.fpg.unc.edu/Publications/Rguide/rguide.pdf]
By downloading Adobe Acrobat Reader (available for free at the website) you will be able to read, copy, print, or search the Resource Guide.

Please note that the Resource Guide is not intended to be a comprehensive document. Instead, this collection represents material the compilers have used, currently use and will continue to use until we discover even better materials in this very dynamic field. Your help in facilitating those discoveries will be greatly appreciated!

Diversity

Janet Gonzalez-Mena

A series of four videotapes designed to help individuals working with young children and their families to integrate culturally responsive caregiving with developmentally appropriate practices and a set of thought-provoking discussion questions comprise this remarkable set of materials. The tapes (Diversity, Independence and Individuality; Diversity: Contrasting Perspectives; Diversity and Communication; Diversity and Conflict Management) display a multiethnic group of practitioners and family members struggling over differences that arise from culturally driven view on caring for children. Preservice instructors, inservice trainers, or individuals with staff development responsibilities could use these materials to uncover pre-conceived notions, provide exposure to other viewpoints within a non-judgmental manner, and offer approaches to conflict resolution, all in a safe context.

Early Childhood Environment Rating Scale (ECERS-R)

Thelma Harms, Dick Clifford & Debby Cryer

This easy-to-use program quality assessment instrument has been revised and expanded to include new interaction items, expanded curriculum materials, more inclusive and culturally sensitive indicators, and more items focusing on staff needs. It looks at quality in terms of categories that include personal care routines, furnishings and display, fine and gross motor activities, language and reasoning, creative activities, social development, and adult needs. Designed for use by classroom teachers, adminstrators, board members, trainers, state licensing staff and family members as an evaluation tool for all day care settings. Could easily be used as an instrument for team-based decision making.

Family Day Care Rating Scale (FDCRS)

Thelma Harms & Dick Clifford

These materials are resources for evaluating family day care settings. FDCRS consists of 32 items organized under six major headings: Space and furnishings for care and learning; Basic care; Language and reasoning; Learning activities; Social devlepment; and Adult needs. Items are included for rating a day care home's provisions for children with special needs. Could easily be used as a self-assessment tool for family day care providers, a quality measure for state and private monitoring agencies, an instrument for team-based decision making or a guide for concerned parents.

Raising America's children Debbie Cryer & Thelma Harms

This ten-part series on child rearing provides child development information for parents and all professionals, including family child care providers, child care center staff, and preschool and kindergarden teachers. The tapes illustrate practical ways to improve the quality of life for children between birth and age six to ensure their emotional, physical, and intellectual well-being. The study guide offers self or discussion questions and follow-up activities and readings. Of most relevance to programs serving young children with disabilities are the sections on Meeting special needs, Listening and talking, and A sense of self.

Supplemental Resources

Active learning for children with disabilities

Bailey, P., Cryer, D., Harms, T., Osborne, S., & Kniest, B.A. (1996). Menlo Park, CA: Addison-Wesley Publishing Co. This manual was designed to complement the other volumes in the Active Learning series (see Active Learning for Infants and Active Learning for Fives in this section). It provides suggestions and resources, targeted to care providers and family members, for helping young children with disabilities learn through play. Learning situations posed throughout the book could be adapted as training activities. Cost: $22.80 plus shipping.

Active learning for fives

Cryer, D., Harms, T., & Ray, A.R. (1996). Menlo Park, CA: Addison-Wesley Publishing Co. This book consists of a planning guide and four activity sections (activities for listening and talking, activities for physical development, creative activities, and activities for learning from the world around them). Lots of ideas for children whose abilities are between 60 and 72 months are included, along with strategies for learning design, implementation, and follow-up. A great basic resource. Cost: $25.01 plus shipping.

new to	An activity-based approach to early intervention Bricker, D., & Cripe, J.J.W. (1992). Baltimore, MD: Paul Brookes. This book shows how to use daily activities to teach infants and young children of all abilities. Chapters focus heavily on considerations for teaching/training and implementation, helpful descriptions, sample activities, and practical methods for monitoring progress. Cost: $27.00.
new to	Activity-based intervention Bricker, D., Veltman, P., & Munkres, A. (1995). Baltimore, MD: Paul Brookes. This practical video illustrates how activity-based intervention can be used to turn everyday events and natural interactions into opportunities to promote learning in young children of all abilities. Visual examples, suitable for preservice or inservice use, introduce ways to use daily activities to maximize growth and development. Cost: $39.00.
	Active learning for infants Cryer, D., Harms, T., & Bourland, B. (1987). Menlo Park, CA: Addison-Wesley Publishing Company. This book is a compilation of ideas and activities for children with abilities up to 12 months of age. It's four sections (planning, activities for listening and talking, activities for physical development, creative activities) could be used to compliment training around issues of child care and inclusion. Cost: $25.02 plus shipping.
	All kids count: Child care and the Americans with Disabilities Act
	(ADA)
	Doggett, L., & George, J. (1993). Arlington, TX: The Arc. This book was developed as a guide to inform the child care industry about the law and to familiarize child care providers with the importance and value of including all children in regular child care settings. Vignettes about different children are offered, which could easily be used in training. Cost: $12.50 includes shipping & handling.
	Developmentally appropriate practice in early childhood programs serving children from birth through age 8
	Bredekamp, S., & Copple, C. (Ed.). (1997). Washington, DC: National Association for the Education of Young Children. This book, intended for use by teachers, administrators, parents, policymakers, and others involved with programs serving young children provides well-grounded information that can serve multiple uses in training, program design, and program evaluation. Cost $10.00. Request item #234.
	Family-guided activity-based intervention for infants & toddlers Cripe, J.J.W. (1995). Baltimore, MD: Paul Brookes. This 20-minute videotape illustrates strategies through which parents and other caregivers can take advantage of natural learning opportunities. The narration and examples are very clear and provide supplemental materials for training audiences that include family members, professionals, and paraprofessionals. Cost: $37.00.

Financing family-centered infant child care Pizzo, P.D. (1992). Arlington, VA: ZERO TO THREE/National Center for Clinical Infant Programs. This paper concentrates on existing sources of funds and ways to combine or "piece" them together. Cost: $7.50 includes shipping & handling.
The first years last forever ! Am Your Child/Early Childhood Public Engagement Campaign. (1997). New York: Author. The new research in brain development tells us of the vital importance of the relationship between caregiver and child in the critical first years of life. This 30-minute videotape describes opportunities for helping children to reach their full potential through attention to bonding and attachment, communication, health and nutrition, discipline, self-esteem, child care and self-awareness. Also available in Spanish (Los primeros años marcan para siempre). Cost: Free by calling David Hlavak (pronounced love-awk). You may need to fax a memo about how you are going to use the tape. Be patient, but persistent as they're filling lots of orders.	new to Getting in tune: Creating nurturing relationships with infants California Department of Education. (1990). Sacramento, CA: Author. This 24-minute videotape highlights differences among infants and toddlers within a child care setting. Instructional areas that could be explored using this videotape include differences in child development and temperament, learning about the children's families and their cultures, developing self-awareness, and mastering the responsive process of watch, ask, and adapt. Part of the Social-emotional growth and socialization module described on page 14. Available in Spanish and Chinese. Cost: $65.00.
Giving our children the best: Recommended practices in early childhood special education Teaching Research Division, Western Oregon State College. (1996). Monmouth, OR: Author. This 18-minute videotape is a useful resource for personnel working in early education programs. Mentions and describes research and values bases for developmentally appropriate practice and other quality features of early childhood programs, including family-centeredness, integration of related services, and	, transition planning. Good footage of assessments and other interactions in natural settings, and footage of and advocacy for a consultative model for the delivery of related services. Students in any discipline serving young children could benefit from this videotape. Cost: $40.00.
Group care Center for Child and Family Studies, Far West Laboratory. (1995). Sacramento, CA: California Department of Education. This module is actually a set of integrated materials including two print resources (Infant/toddler caregiving: A guide to routines and Infant/toddler caregiving: A guide to setting up environments), four videos (It's not just routine, Respectfully yours, Space to grow, Together in care), and a Trainer's Manual. Based on current theory and practice, these materials are clearly organized in lesson plans that can be covered in 45 minutes or more. Each lesson plan includes an overview, key concepts in culturally competent child care, materials, activity sheets, handouts, overheads, discussion questions, and options for further exploration. 	Guide to training materials for home visitors Wasik, B.H., Thompson, E.A., Sheaffer, L., & Herrmann, S. (1997). Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina, School of Education, Center for Home Visiting. The resources in these two companion volumes (written training materials and video training materials) were reviewed and compiled by the University of North Carolina's Center for Home Visiting. In addition to basic ordering information and a capsule description, each annotated entry contains information about the content, presentation/ organization, and quality. Cost: $15–20 plus shipping & handling.
	Hear to listen & learn:
	A language approach for children with ear infections Medley, L.P., Roberts, J.E., & Zeisel, S.A. (1995). Baltimore, MD: Paul H. Brookes Publishing Co., Inc. This 20-minute videotape shows how to recognize the behavioral signs that children with ear infections often exhibit and offers strategies for fostering children's language learning. Ear infections are so common with young children that this tape describing classroom modifications and intervention practices that promote learning and language could be a valuable training resource. Cost: $38.00.
	How am I doing? A self-assessment for child caregivers Carney, I. (1993). Norge, VA: Child Development Resources, Inc. This thorough yet easy to use instrument provides a systematic way of looking at specific skills that may be needed during the normal routine of a caregivers day. Designed to help caregivers see that many of the skills needed for working with children with disabilities are the very same skills they use to provide developmentally appropriate child care for all children, the instrument can be used to help plan appropriate activities for skill development. Cost: $15.00.

Individualized Routine-based Assessment Process (IRAP) for preschool children with developmental delays	_ Aveno, A., Stewart, A., Landon, T., & Voorhees, M. (1994). Charlottesville, VA: Department of Special Education, University of Virginia. The IRAP procedures and materials were developed to assist parents and professionals in adapting existing curricular materials and IEP development practices to meet the needs of preschool children with more severe delays. The IRAP materials (directions manual. goals and objectives packet, family routines packet, kindergarten objectives packet) can be used to support a team process for developing IEPs that enables children to participate as successfully as possible in family, school, and community settings. They include useful examples for training administrators, providers, and family members about a style of assessment that is both developmentally appropriate and functionally oriented. Cost: $38.00.

Caring for children and families: Guidelines for hospitals

Beverley H. Johnson, Elizabeth Seale Jeppson, & Lisa Redburn

This publication was designed to support hospitals in their understanding and application of family-centered practices. It discusses the process of change in hospitals from physician-driven to family-centered care and provides materials to help hospitals and medical personnel identify values and resources; evaluate strengths, needs and priorities; develop a systematic plan for change; and, collaborate and network to achieve goals. Each chapter includes a set of resources that can be reproduced and used in training designed to initiate, support and evaluate family-centered practice. Specific examples of hospitals that have implemented family-centered practices are provided.

Delivering family-centered, home-based services

Larry Edelman

This videotape includes five vignettes, developed to be shown one at a time, followed by discussions and activities that are included in the facilitator's guide. Each illustrates what happens when service providers fail to practice family-centered principles. Roles are played by actual families and service providers, and stories are based on real-life situations. Each vignette illustrates a different theme and is organized in a manner that allows trainers to show a vignette, pause for discussion, show the "actors" reflecting on their interaction, and pause for additional discussion. Background on family-centered principles, objectives, and ideas for additional activities are also included. For many audiences they offer an opportunity to show an interaction, then invite a discussion of how the interaction might have occurred in a more family-friendly manner.

Partnerships in family-centered care: A guide to collaborative early intervention

Peggy Rosin, Amy Whitehead, Linda I. Tuchman, George S. Jesien, Audrey L. Begun, & Liz Irwin

This book is organized in three interrelated sections focusing on family-centered care, team-building, and service coordination. Each chapter features a story to facilitate creative problem solving on issues raised throughout the chapter. Each chapter also features a variety of instructional aides (objectives, activities, discussion questions), skillfully interwoven with content. This resource is much more than a textbook and has broad applicability for teachers and trainers in all early intervention disciplines.

A practical guide to embedding family-centered content into existing speech-language pathology coursework

Elizabeth Crais

This is a curriculum for graduate training program. Four modules, each designed for presentation within an hour and a half class, introduce students to current issues, beliefs, and practices related to using a family-centered approach to working with families of clients with special needs. Modules include student objectives, class outlines, suggested in- and out-of-class activities, recommended readings for instructors and students, materials for producing handouts and transparencies and alternative activities and readings. Topics include terms and issues related to working with clients with special needs and their families, working with families in the assessment process, sharing assessment information and collaboratively setting goals with families, and evaluating and influencing the extent to which services are family-centered.

Building the healing partnership

Leff, P.T., & Walizer, E.H. (1992). Cambridge, MA: Brookline. This book is about family-professional partnerships in the context of early intervention programs. Each chapter includes a section on "Handling Things Better" with instructive vignettes that offer differing viewpoints and comparisons of similar crises that illustrate the divergent approaches of practitioners in like situations, and the subsequent impact on the partnership. Amy Whitehead recommended this book for the Resource Guide as the best she had found on the topic of family-professional partnerships. Cost: $24.95.

A unique resource for training students, service providers and hospital staff members to interact with children and families in supportive and responsive ways. This two-hour videotape, with accompanying study guide, presents six separate segments, each of which portrays different interactions with children with varied medical conditions, and their families. Cost: $137.00.
 Communicating with families in early intervention:
A training module Winton, P.J. (1991). Chapel Hill, NC: Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center. This module consists of objectives, readings and teaching activities related to communication skills. Also includes role play vignettes, strategies for videotaping self-assessment and peer feedback, and an observational rating scale. This module appears as Module 10 in Working with families in early intervention: An interdisciplinary preservice curriculum; which is described in this section. The full curriculum is available for $15.00.
Effective communication for parents and professionals Duffy, S., Phillips, S., Davis, S. Maloney, T., Stromnes, J., Miller, B., & Larson, K. (1992). Missoula,MT: University of Montana, Rural Institute on Disabilities, Dynamic Communication Process Project. This sequence of topical activities address aspects of parent-professional communication in an information plus follow-up activities format that could be easily used in preservice or inservice applications. There are some clever headings to describe the aspect of communication being targeted. For example, the unit on nonverbal communication is called "His Mouth Said Yes! Yes! But His Eyes Said No! No!" Other sections have to do with improving the communication climate, assertiveness, and leading.and partici- pating in meetings. All material necessary for use of each section is provided. This 13-tape series is designed to provide teaching examples of effective communication and interviewing skills. Two tapes are content specific (Exploring Family Strengths and Building a Family Partnership). The remaining tapes illustrate in-depth (60 minute) conversations between therapists and families of young children with disabilities. The families are diverse in both culture and configuration. Accompanying brochures offer highlights of each video, including teaching objectives and discussion questions. Cost: $60.00–75.00 per tape.
On this journey together Ohio Dept of Mental Retardation/Developmental Disabilities. (1991). Columbus: Author. This series of four videotapes (approximately 22 minutes each) is made up of interviews with members of sixteen Ohio families that include children (ages 2–13) with disabilities. Each tape addresses a different topic, including "The Early Days" (initial reactions to diagnoses and labels, helpful strategies), "Partnering with Professionals" (successes and frustrations in working with the professionals who provide services), "Building Brighter Futures" (dreams and expectations, including how to keep them alive), and "Resources for Families" (accepting assistance and support from friends, families, community, and service agencies). Compelling stories and examples for inservice or preservice training. Cost: $10.95 each; $34.95 for all four.

Protective urges California Department of Education. (1995). Sacramento, CA: Author. In this videotape, caregiving and support for the development of very young children is explored from family and provider perspectives. In useful terms, parents speak condidly about their concerns, caregivers discuss ways to provide assistance, and both groups work out conflicting feelings about caregiver/child relationships. Part of the Culture, family

Family and the IFSP process Project Copernicus This instructional package includes a 90-minute training video and a facilitator's guide. The videotape is structured to provide information about and illustrations of key landmarks in the IFSP process (first contacts, development of outcomes, identifying family concerns, priorities and resources, initial IFSP meetings, development of transition plans). The illustrations take the form of vignettes in which practices that are less than family-centered are shown in black and white and family-centered approaches are shown in color. Viewers can easily be cued to watch for specific actions that may create barriers or that foster positive, collaborative relationships. The accompanying facilitator's guide provides clear suggestions for use of the materials as part of a statewide, local, inservice, preservice, partday or multi-day training experience, along with activities and handouts. Best practices in integration (BPI) inservice training model

Susan M. Klein, & Susan Kontos

BPI is an inservice training model for persons delivering services for infants, toddlers and preschool children with special needs within community-based early childhood settings. The emphasis of the Guide and Instructional Modules is systems change through community resource networks, a training process to ensure knowledge and skill regarding collaborative consultation by early interventionists, and a technical assistance process to facilitate the integration of young children with special needs in regular early childhood programs and successful collaboration among all partners. These are well thought-out materials and a bargain for the price.

Essential information for primary health care providers Shishmanian, E., & Helm, D. T. (1993, September). Boston: Developmental Evaluation Center. This manual, for physicians and primary health care providers, contains esential information about early intervention services for very young children. This information is divided into two sections: the first includes excerpts from the federal law that defines these services and the second relates to the system in Massachusetts. The federal information and several nice case vignettes make this a valuable resource. It could also serve as a model, by replacing the Massachusetts-specific information, for other states to use.

 Overview of family-centered service coordination: Facilitator's guide Project Copernicus and Department of Individual and Family Resources
This training program is one in a series (Train the Trainer Series in Family-Centered Service Delivery) designed to address key issues in family-centered care. The overall format is specific and detailed in outlining the "how to" of facilitating training sessions. The "session at a glance" reviews the approximate time necessary to complete each of the eight activities, which focus on defining service coordination, key elements of family-centered practices, evolution and changes in service coordination, qualities of effective relationships with families, and specific roles/activities associated with service coordination. A structured, step-by-step guide provides facilitators with the purpose, time required, learning strategies, and specific materials needed for each activity, but allows for individualized applications of the materials. Medically fragile infants and toddlers: An interdisciplinary training curriculum

JFK Center for Developmental Disabilities

This curriculum recognizes that there are different priorities, resources and schedules across different training settings (including preservice vs. inservice) and is structured to be flexible. It includes seven topical modules: "Overview," "Family Adjustment and Family-centered Services," "Interdisciplinary Team Assessment," "Interdisciplinary Team Intervention," "Feeding Problems," "Service Coordination," and "Community Integration." Intended for implementation by an interdisciplinary training team, it includes learning objectives, topics, notes, bibliographies, discussion questions and additional activities for each module. While the primary mode for training is lecture, ideas and resources could easily be modified into more interactive options.

Monitoring & Evaluation

Alaska Early Intervention/

Infant Learning Program monitoring tool

Alaska Department of Health and Social Services. (1994). Fairbanks, AK: Author. This resource captures the program monitoring process and instrument used by the state of Alaska. The underlying philosophy of the standards reflected in these materials is that within certain guidelines, programs must have the flexibility to address issues in accordance with community and family norms. The examples could be used as a model by other states, as exercises for inservice training, or as teaching examples for students. Cost: Free from source.

Stages of team development Project Vision This 32-minute videotape opens with an overview of the stages of team development: forming, storming, norming and performing, with information about what can be expected at each phase. These concepts are further defined by showing a group in the process of endeavoring to become a team. Four distinct segments of this group's interactions, each representing a phase of team development, are presented, followed by a recap of the key concepts. This videotape, which shows successful group problem-solving, positive parent participation, and shared learning from different viewpoints, could easily be used in conjunction with "A Team in Name Only" (above), which illustrates miscommunications and absence of collaboration. Selected portions of the tape could also be used in training to illustrate skillful group facilitation and successful conflict resolution.

Teaming

Jennifer Olson & Cari Lee Murphy

These multi-faceted materials were developed as part of the BEST (Building Effective Successful Teams) series. Key to the set is the training manual, which includes eight chapters covering team development, roles, group norms, communication, conflict management, goal setting, effective meetings, and action planning. Each chapter is packed with information, activities, questionnaires, and other materials for addressing the content. Three related videotapes (Navigating new pathways: Obstacles to Collaboration, Stages of group development: Overcoming roadblocks to team development, and Navigating new pathways: Effective meetings) and a facilitator's guide complete the package, which was designed to be offered as a 30-hour self-directed course. A workbook for an abbreviated version of the same program (15 hours) is also available. An introductory video, Teaming: The BEST Way, which was produced solely for promotional value, highlights in 10 minutes the key features of the inservice training model which has rich materials and ideas for preservice and inservice training.

Karnes, (Eds.), Meeting early intervention challenges: Issues from birth to three (2ND ed.). Baltimore, MD: Paul H. Brookes. This chapter deals with aspects of teamwork in early intervention, including administrative aspects of teaming and transdisciplinary teamwork. Cost: $30.00.

Collaborative working relationships Elder, J.O. (1994). Minneapolis, MN: Carlson Learning Company. The activities and formats included in this two-part resource address key areas of getting people to work together effectively, including understanding and appreciating differences, motivation for collaboration, and roles and responsibilities for collaboration. The facilitator's manual provides all instructinal materials for delivering four 3-1/2 hour modules, including interactive learning activities and transparency masters. The accompanying participant's workbook contains 35 interactive projects and assessment tools, the Personal Development Profile (a learning instrument to identify work behavioral strengths), and a supplemental reading list. Cost: $156.50 (includes two manuals, postage & handling).
Facilitator's guide to participatory decision-making Kaner, S. (1996). Gabriola Island, British Columbia: New Society Publishers/Canada. This 8-chapter source book offers methods, skills and tools for supporting groups in working together to make wise decisions. Clear useful ideas and materials for encouraging full participation, promoting mutual under- standing, fostering inclusive solutions, and teaching new thinking skills are provided. Cost: $24.95.

new to	Process-based education: An experiential learning technique Gallacher, K., Jurica, J., Bastian, M., & Forest, S. (1997). Billings,MT: University of Montana. This manual provides faculty members with information for implementing Project PROBE , a problem-based approach to learning early intervention content. The basic premise of problem-based learning is to give learners a task or project (the "problem") as the impetus for learning. The challenges and the process fo problem-solving about them are designed to be similar to the challenges students will confront in their professional future. Chapter 1 provides an overview of process-based education, how it was created, and the benefits of using this model. Chapter 2 outlines how to design a course curriculum and methods for developing class projects and tasks. Chapter 3 describes how to prepare for class sessions and how to prepare students for using experiential learning techniques. Chapter 4 reviews the learning process, demonstrates how to use class routines, and describes specialized skills faculty will use to facilitate students' working in teams. Chapter 5 outlines several methods for monitoring student learning, both individually and in groups. Although this model was developed in an early intervention training program, the authors feel the model can be implemented in a variety of disciplines. Cost: Contact source.

Resource Guide

Selected Early Childhood/Early Intervention Training Materials

What's In the Resource Guide?

- Over 300 entries divided into eighteen sections that correspond with key early childhood/early intervention, instructional content, and process areas
- descriptions of complete products that might assist you in designing quality personnel development efforts (i.e., curricula, videotapes, discussion guides)
- annotated entries for materials that will serve as supplemental resources to your preservice and inservice efforts (i.e., articles, bibliographies, free publications, annotated directories)

• 7th edition (1998) features more materials on early care and development (0–9) and cultural diversity

The Resource Guide is a product of Systems Change in Personnel Preparation.
