ABSTRACT

Findings from an Employee Satisfaction Survey conducted in spring 2000 at Austin Community College (ACC) (Texas) indicate that: (1) staff in many areas need customer service training; (2) telephones are not used effectively by many offices; (3) many areas are not able to respond quickly to the needs of college staff; and (4) 18 highly used areas are of special concern because they have high levels of dissatisfaction. The complete Management Response to this survey is presented in this report. Responses include: (1) beginning in spring 2000, customer service training will be available through the Professional Development Office in Human Resources; (2) the Administrative Leadership Team will develop a college-wide plan to address telephone-related issues; (3) staffing in key areas will be reviewed prior to the budget process to ensure availability of adequately trained staff; (4) individual plans developed by each of the 18 areas will be implemented during the next year; and (5) the Employee Satisfaction Survey will be modified and re-administered in January 2001. Employee Satisfaction Survey Summary Response

The Employee Satisfaction Survey was conducted in Spring 2000. Results have been shared college-wide.

Summary of Results

While satisfaction levels varied greatly from service to service, several themes did emerge:

- Staff in many areas need customer service training.
- The telephones are not used effectively by many offices.
- Many areas are not able to respond quickly to the needs of college staff.
- Eighteen highly used areas are of special concern because they have high levels of dissatisfaction.

Management Response

- Beginning in Spring 2000, Customer Service Training will be available through the Professional Development Office in Human Resources.
- The Administrative Leadership Team has begun to discuss issues related to the telephone and will develop a college-wide plan to address these issues.
- Staffing in key areas will be reviewed prior to the budget process to ensure that these areas have enough trained staff to do the job.
- Individual plans have been developed by each of the 18 areas and will be implemented during the next year.

In addition, the Employee Satisfaction Survey form will be reviewed and modified. The survey will be administered in January 2001.

The complete Report and Management Response can be found on the ACC website at <http://www2.austin.cc.tx.us/oi epub/publications.htm>.
