The Tennessee Higher Education Commission coordinates two systems of higher education, the University of Tennessee institutions governed by the University of Tennessee Board of Trustees, and the state universities, community colleges and technology centers governed by the Tennessee Board of Regents. There are currently nine public universities, two special purpose institutes, 14 two-year institutions, and 27 technology centers in Tennessee that serve over 200,000 students. Independent institutions are coordinated by the Tennessee Independent Colleges and Universities. The state and federal student financial aid programs are administered by the Tennessee Student Assistance Corporation. Over 100 languages are offered to schools, businesses and individuals by the Tennessee Foreign Language Institute.

Mission

The Tennessee Higher Education Commission (THEC) was created in 1967 by the Tennessee General Assembly (TCA 49-7-202) for the purpose of coordinating and supporting the efforts of post-secondary institutions in the State of Tennessee. One of its statutory requirements is to create a master plan for the development of public higher education in Tennessee.

The Mission for Tennessee's twenty-first century system of higher education is to:

- Elevate the overall educational attainment of citizens in the State through increased accessibility to mission-focused institutions, which deliver education services on campus, as well as through a planned network of off-campus instruction, and
- Prepare citizens responsibly for success in the new century by providing high quality teaching and research in an environment that serves the needs of its consumers.

The Condition of Higher Education in Tennessee presents a series of goals for Tennessee higher education that will facilitate informed decision making and re-focus the efforts of the state's institutions on issues of greatest need. These goals were developed in concert with the University of Tennessee system and the Tennessee Board of Regents, as well as the independent colleges and universities. The data below provides a summary of the benchmarks and performance for the 2002-2003 report.
