FOREWORD

THIS PUBLICATION supplements the first printed index of pamphlet material. It adds several hundred new titles, lists many publishers submitting their materials for the first time, and lists the numbers of pamphlets in Bulletin 1937, No. 3, which are no longer available.

The use of Bulletin No. 3 justifies the continued effort in indexing pamphlet material on public affairs. Schools and colleges have made the greatest use of the index thus far, but forums and discussion groups are beginning to stress reading in connection with discussion. Many discussion groups are being organized which are based upon the group reading of pertinent pamphlets on public questions. This practice has long characterized the work of the Extension Division of the Department of Agriculture, which has promoted group discussion based on pamphlet material. It is hoped that as the directors and organizers of forums and discussion groups become acquainted with the wide variety of pamphlets on questions of public interest, a similar use of pamphlet material will be made in urban as well as in rural groups.

The data on pamphlets were provided by the publishers and the brief annotations which are descriptive and not evaluative were based upon a reading of the pamphlets submitted by the publishers. The publication was organized and compiled by Phyllis D. Mills and Marcella Hartshorn.

INTRODUCTION

PAMPHLETS—DISPLAYS AND DISTRIBUTION

A NEW experiment in the field of pamphlet promotion, as an aid to adult education in the United States, was launched by the Office of Education, in cooperation with the American Library Association and the Public Affairs Committee, in February 1937.

Thirty Demonstration centers were chosen; 16 in libraries at established public forum centers, and the remaining 14 in libraries selected by the Adult Education Division of the American Library Association, which secured the cooperation of the Librarians.

Using a cross section of the pamphlet material printed, the Office of Education published an annotated bibliography, (Public Affairs Pamphlets, Bulletin 1937, No. 3) comprising 660 individual pamphlet titles on social and economic subjects, under the headings of 80 pamphlet publishers.

There were then assembled 30 sets of these pamphlets for display purposes, to be sent along with the index to the 30 chosen centers, whose responsibilities were:

1. To display pamphlets to enable leaders of discussion groups, social studies teachers and purchasing agents of forums, clubs, etc., to see the current offerings of pamphlet publishers.
2. To advertise and announce the display throughout the community.
3. To make available some guidance to users of the display; to counsel with group purchasers in helping them select and order pamphlets.
4. To report the results monthly and in a final report June 15, 1937.

The reports for March, April, and May 1937, made by the librarians submitting the special report forms give an indication of the variety and extent of the plans developed for these displays.

PAMPHLETS PURCHASED

There is no way of knowing the number of pamphlets purchased as a result of the displays, because a great many people ordered single copies direct from the publishers. Typical of the comments in the reports on this point are the following:

Atlanta, Ga.—Through experience we have learned that the public who visits our forums wish to buy the pamphlets right there and in single copies. For this purpose we have ordered from the various publishers a list of pamphlets to be sent to us on consignment.

Our workers who are in charge of the meetings arrange the displays and attend to the sales of "consignment" pamphlets. The copies that we received on consignment are also placed in the main library * * * these are labeled on the display rack saying that these copies may be acquired at the desk. Since we have no quantity orders we think this arrangement might simplify the ordering and create a bigger desire to get them.

Rochester, N. Y.—Teachers have said that they intended to try a varied group of sample pamphlets with their classes but are unwilling to put in a larger order until they have made the experiment. Several have mentioned that if it were fall they might be interested. The divisions of the library have reported an increased demand for pamphlet material. Many have been amazed at the amount of timely information to be found in so convenient a form. Such an interest fostered by a continued effort to display pamphlets attractively should result in increased orders for the publishers.

PUBLICITY ABOUT DISPLAYS<sup>1</sup>

Month	Newspaper reports or comments	Number of projects reporting articles in educational journals	Radio announcements	Announcements at organization meetings	Number of projects reporting use of poster announcements	Number of projects reporting use of mailed notices	Group orders of pamphlets made at displays and reported	Number of visitors reported
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
March	8 projects report 23 notices in 1,611 column inches.	10	30 in 3 projects.	6 projects reported announcements.	7	5	27	7 projects: 1,954 visitors.
April	9 projects report 9 notices in 153 column inches.	2	54 in 8 projects.	11 reported 181 announcements.	8	11	13,293	11 projects: 3,465 visitors.
May	9 projects report 22 notices in 776 column inches.	2	169 in 7 projects.	7 reported 218 announcements.	5	9 projects reported mailing total of 32,008 notices.	141	13 projects: 6,922 visitors.

<sup>1</sup> Many of the librarians submitted general reports and did not use the suggested blank to give the data requested. Also, uniformity of procedure was not urged, which explains why different numbers of projects reported on the various items. A number of projects reported that attendants were available to guide visitors; 9 projects reported that pamphlets were not sold at the library. Some shifted the display to different places in the communities.

METHODS OF PUBLICITY

Announcements of the coming displays were made in the leading newspapers as well as community organs and school journals. On one occasion an inquiring reporter interviewed "the man on the street" and gathered material for a timely article urging the need for a wider distribution of literature on current civic and social problems.

An unusual newspaper article advertising the display came from Cleveland.

Display at Library Reveals Secret of Design for Living

What amounts virtually to a course in "Living in 1937" can be had by anyone ambitious enough to walk into the sociology division of the Cleveland public library these days.

Would you really like to know what Fascism is? Or whether the choice before America is democracy, fascism, or communism? Or what Germany really wants? Or what inflation means to your pocketbook? Or what socialized medicine means? Or the relation between church and state in this country? They're all there with points of view as divergent as opposing opinions can make them. * * *

Officers of organizations and "key people" in the community were contacted by personal letters; for instance, the American Medical Association was informed about pamphlet material on socialized medicine; chambers of commerce were told of special material on municipal administration; the attention of history and civics teachers was drawn to publications dealing with their subjects. Adult education groups, school superintendents, labor organizations, Parent-Teacher Associations, political and civic groups became acquainted with pamphlets on educational trends.

Besides the letters written to various organizations, study groups, etc., notices were sent to all the high schools, vocational schools, and colleges in the district.

Nor were the enormous possibilities of radio communication overlooked as a means of introducing and arousing an interest in the use of pamphlets for purposes of study on current topics. Sometimes forum leaders devoted part of their radio time to comment on the display, and announcements were made by radio announcers at regular intervals.

Similar announcements were also made at forums, club luncheons, P. T. A. meetings, high schools, colleges, and civic organizations, arousing the interest of adult education specialists, club leaders, teachers, lecturers, students, labor leaders, and legislators. Bulletins and handbills were used in an attractive array of colors, as another means of advertising; the bulletins were placed on telephone poles, bulletin boards, in downtown stores, etc.; and the handbills were distributed in residential sections or carried home by the school children. Show windows of the leading stores were also utilized, and display of pamphlets on particularly pertinent questions were arranged, so as to catch the eye of the casual observer.

ARRANGEMENT OF DISPLAY

The central public library was made the deposit station for the Public Affairs Pamphlets in nearly all of the 30 demonstration centers. A convenient room was generally chosen with a view to accessibility, and special notices were placed in the main entrances and other parts of the buildings, drawing attention to the exhibit. Librarians or trained pamphleteers were on hand to explain the purpose and arrangement of the display, often giving short reviews when special interest was shown. The ingenuity and imagination that has been used in the various methods of displaying the pamphlets has opened the way for interesting future development. The following is an excerpt from one report:

The carefully designed and well-oriented pamphlet display that we have had on exhibition in a seminar room of the University Library has commanded a great deal of favorable comment and is especially beneficial to public forum progress.

This display has been moved over our area to our forum centers. The school board loaned a library truck for this purpose.

The superintendent of buildings and grounds of the county school board here, designed and had made for us a motor-driven replica of the old mill wheel. When posted with pamphlets and publicity and controlled by a stop switch, it became a feature display at various public centers, hotel, and moving-picture theater lobbies, and the like.

The training school for pamphleteers has more than justified the time spent upon it, in that those persons have been highly efficient in their handling of the public particularly in affording them an intelligent insight into the nature of the pamphlets themselves.

Another report states:

In preparing the collection of pamphlets for display in the library, they were first grouped by broad subjects * * * the subject was written on each pamphlet. A color scheme of orange was chosen for posters and cover bindings and a large library magazine rack brought in for holding the pamphlets. Several pamphlets of the same subject were laced together with small cord using the half binding or orange poster cardboard. This keeps the pamphlets in order, brings together several of one subject and leaves the original pamphlet cover design to give variety to the appearance of the whole collection. Several pamphlets were not in binders but left on the table near the rack with the collection of small books.

* * * A library binding company bound the series of Town Meeting of the Air in one Volume gratis as an example of another way of caring for a pamphlet series.

SPECIAL DISPLAYS

An exhibit of pamphlets selected from one display was shown at an all-day meeting of the State Committee of Arkansas Women's Division of the National Democratic Party with 175 women present.

A similar display was taken to the annual meeting of the Little Rock Council of Parent-Teachers. One of the forum staff made a brief talk regarding the purpose of the display and the exhibit at the library.

The Minneapolis Public Forum conducted the pamphlet display at the St. Paul Public Library from June 21 to July 3. From St. Paul the exhibit went to the library of the University of Minnesota for the benefit of students attending the summer session * * *.

The Forum Project at Waco, Tex., exhibited the pamphlet display at the State convention of the Texas State Library Association.

A separate booth was provided and the exhibit was displayed in the same fashion as were the displays of publishing houses. * * * Free copies of Public Affairs Pamphlet Index were distributed. The display was advertised by the chairman of one of the sessions and by the forum director in his address to the librarians. During the following week the pamphlets were exhibited at the Waco Public Library. * * *

The Portland Public Forum showed the entire exhibit at the meeting of Inland Empire Adult Education Association in Spokane, Wash. Part of the exhibit from the Cleveland Public Library was sent to the Great Lakes Exposition during the summer; Lansdowne, Pa., sent its exhibit to the American Association for Adult Education at Skytop Lodge, Pa.; and Los Angeles Public Library sent its display to Yosemite for the annual meeting of the California Library Association.

Special exhibits of the pamphlet display have been made at State and district annual teachers conventions; civic, social, and business organizations; high schools, colleges, and libraries.

WHAT EFFECT ON THE COMMUNITY

Has the public in these places become "pamphlet conscious" as a result of this experiment? The enthusiastic response, especially in those centers which conducted promotional campaigns, lead us to believe there has been an advance in that direction.

A short newspaper notice coming from Cleveland indicates the growing interest in pamphlet material by the general public.

In displaying Public Affairs Pamphlets the Cleveland Public Library has proved the interest of the public in today's social, political, and economic problems. The display which opened a little over a month ago is estimated to have attracted a thousand visitors. Not only have representatives of forums, adult education groups, libraries, clubs, and civic organizations called to make inquiries, but neighborhood leaders as well, who are primarily interested in the solution of social and cultural problems that apply to their own particular community.

The subject range is all inclusive as the visiting list has testified. The visitors include industrial research engineers, heads of advertising agencies, credit men, bankers, purchasing agents, teachers, social workers, newspaper editors, lecturers, ministers, and even individuals seeking definite information * * *.

The Houston Public Library reports:

A growing Pamphlet conscious public, especially among the student groups and youth, is marked evidence of the good already accomplished. That the exhibit was organized during the spring months at a time when clubs, organizations, schools, etc., are disbanding for the summer was a drawback.

Announcements and talks before clubs and study groups brought a general response; but most of the organizations have a season schedule which had already been prepared. It is possible that some of them will make use of the distribution service in preparing their programs for the fall season.

And another report says, "* * * fall seems to be the logical season for ordering for winter programs." But in spite of these unfavorable circumstances requests from organizations throughout the surrounding territory, came in asking for displays on particular subjects. For instance, in Portland, Oreg., the display was shown during the month of May in six different towns, sometimes at more than one center, in a town.

The enthusiastic response of high-school and college students has been shown in their immediate interest in pamphlets and supplementary study material.

The Portland Public Forum reports:

At the various high schools in Portland the principals asked each teacher to announce the display to the classes and also to make a list of pamphlets which would be valuable in school work. Three principals have assured us that they expect to place orders for pamphlets during the summer months. The most interesting student cooperation was demonstrated at Commerce High School. The teachers selected a number of students, asked them to read pamphlets, and to make a selection of the ones they would like to use in class work next year.

Throughout the country there is a growing tendency to make use of pamphlet material in the schools, especially in social science and civics classes.

A CLEARING-HOUSE PLAN TO FACILITATE PAMPHLET ORDERING

"Must I write a dozen letters and a dozen checks in order to get a selection of pamphlet materials listed by various publishers?"

"Isn't it possible for me to get all the pamphlets on the subjects in which I or my group is interested by making one order and mailing it with a check to one address?"

These questions have been asked by scores of people who have tried to make a practical use of the Public Affairs Pamphlets index. Many people have sent lists of from 10 to 100 different pamphlets published by as many as 50 or 60 publishers or organizations to the Office of Education accompanied by checks based on the prices given with the expectation that they might shortly receive their selection of pamphlet material for use in a discussion group or classroom. These orders and checks have had to be returned.

The Office of Education does not stock the pamphlets listed in this index or in Bulletin 1937, No. 3.

The Office of Education cannot fill orders for pamphlets listed in the Public Affairs Pamphlets Index.

EXPERIMENT IN COOPERATIVE DISTRIBUTION OF PAMPHLETS

The Public Affairs Committee, Inc., has further developed a pamphlet distribution service described in Bulletin 1937, No. 3. The Public Affairs Committee has invited the publishers and organizations listing their pamphlets in the index to participate in a cooperative experiment to facilitate the direct purchase of pamphlet materials. Those publishers who have joined in this Clearing House are indicated in this publication in bold-face type. In addition to the publishers and organizations set in bold-face type in the index, the following publishers whose pamphlets are listed in Bulletin 1937, No. 3, are also participating.

American Academy of Political and Social Science, 3457 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Cooperative League, 167 West Twelfth Street, New York, N. Y.

Institute of Pacific Relations, 129 East Fifty-second Street, New York, N. Y.

National Council of Y. M. C. A., 347 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Northern States Cooperative League, 458 Sexton Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

Purchasers may order pamphlets listed in this index or in Bulletin 1937, No. 3, which are issued by the publishers shown in bold-face type directly from the Clearing House on one order blank and with one check.

Pamphlets published by all other publishers and organizations listed in the indexes must be ordered directly from the publishers or organizations listed.

IMPORTANT POINTS

1. Only pamphlets listed in Bulletin 1937, No. 3, and this supplement by publishers set in bold-face type will be stocked in the Pamphlet Distribution Service.

2. All orders must be accompanied by cash. The prices are shown in the Bulletin 1937, No. 3, and this supplement.

3. Single copies as well as quantity orders will be filled.

4. Orders for pamphlets of publishers set in bold-face type should be sent to: Miss Caroline Curtis, Public Affairs Committee, Inc., 8 West Fortieth Street, New York, N. Y.

PURPOSE OF EXPERIMENT

By associating as many publishers and organizations distributing pamphlets as have indicated their desire to cooperate with the Public Affairs Committee, a nonprofit organization with the aim of promoting the effective use of inexpensive literature on public affairs, expects to accumulate a body of experience in dealing with the problems of distribution of this type of material. If it is demonstrated that this clearing-house arrangement is effective in increasing the use of available pamphlet material, a permanent and expanded pamphlet distribution service may result. Other publishers and organizations in the field of pamphlets and inexpensive books will no doubt join in the cooperative distribution plan. The purchasers will then be able to make a wide selection of pamphlets and inexpensive books, produced by many publishers and organizations by addressing their orders and their checks to a clearing house.
