CHAPTER I.

STATISTICAL SURVEY OF EDUCATION FOR THE YEARS 1915 AND 1916.

I. SURVEY FOR THE YEAR 1915.

The total enrollment in all schools and colleges in 1915 was 23,113,931. This number includes 1,155,095 in miscellaneous schools, a number which is largely estimated and is omitted from the succeeding tables. The comparative summaries are based upon the total 21,958,836 as given in the first part of Table 1. This number is made up from reasonably full reports from individual institutions, the only partly estimated number included being that of the enrollment in private elementary schools.

The average length of the school term for 1915 was 159.4 days. In one State the schools were open 194.5 days and in another only 110 days. The term exceeded 180 days in five States; in 19 States it fell below 160 days, 11 of these States having a term of less than 140 days. The average number of days' attendance for every child 5 to 18 years of age (i. e., 5 to 17, inclusive) was 90.4 days, varying from 51.4 in the State having the lowest average to 123.5 in the two States having the highest.

At the rate of 90.4 days per year, in 13 years (the period of school life, 5 to 18) a child entering school at 5 years of age would receive 1,175 days schooling, or 5.88 years of 200 days. In this estimate it is necessary to assume that the percentage of enrollment, average attendance, and length of school term computed for 1915 may continue for 13 years. Table 3 compares this estimate with similar estimates for former years.

Table 4 shows that, by combining the estimate for private schools with the above for public schools, the number of days schooling for each individual is increased to 1,264 days, or 6.32 years of 200 days each.

The Census Office in 1910 reported the approximate number of children in certain age groups who were attending school. By applying the percentage of the total found in each group to the total enrollment reported to the Bureau of Education in 1915, a similar age distribution may be obtained. The number not in school is obtained by subtraction from the estimated population by age groups which is based upon the Census figures of 1910.

These estimates are shown in Table 5.

¹ Includes enrollment 21 years of age and over.

In 1915 the total enrollment of 21,958,836, as previously shown in Table 2, was distributed as follows: 19,990,316 in elementary schools, 1,564,972 in high schools, academies, and secondary schools, and 403,548 in higher institutions. An estimate of the number in each grade may be obtained by applying the approximate percentages for public elementary schools and the actual percentages for secondary schools, with the result shown in Table 6.

The percentage of grade distribution has probably preserved practically the same ratio for the past eight years. The application of the above approximate percentages to the enrollment of various years shows that in 1907 there were enrolled in the first grade 4,066,091 pupils, 2,435,529 were in the fourth grade in 1910, the eighth grade in 1914 had 1,244,098, while 629,432 reached the first year of the high school in 1915. This progress of grade enrollment is shown in Table 7.

It is generally estimated that about one-half of the first-grade enrollment is made up of beginners, the other half being comprised of repeaters or retarded pupils. Assuming that 2,000,000 of the first-grade enrollment in 1907 were repeaters, the beginners that year numbered about 2,066,091, of whom 629,432, or about 30 per cent, reached the first year of the high school in 1914-15.

The enrollment of first-year high-school students for four successive years and the number of graduates for four years later are shown in Table 8. From this table it will be seen that about 39 per cent, or 245,478, of the 629,432 students entering the high school in 1914 may be expected to graduate in 1918.

From the above tables it may be estimated that about 117 in every 1,000 pupils entering the first grade in 1906-7 will graduate from the high school in 1918.

THE COST OF EDUCATION.

The cost of education in the United States in 1915 as shown in Table 9 was $855,039,511. The expenditures of State school systems and of all public institutions and of institutions of higher education are reported by State superintendents or by individual institutions and are reasonably accurate. For the remaining groups estimates were necessary.

Table 12 shows the number and distribution of teachers for 1915 with comparative figures for 1890, 1900, and 1910. In 1915 there were employed in the United States 731,494 teachers, 173,139 men and 558,355 women. The number of teachers in private elementary and miscellaneous schools is partly estimated.

COMMON SCHOOLS OF THE SOUTH.

In 18 Southern States the schools for Negro children are separate from the white schools. Separate accounts of the cost of maintenance of white and Negro schools are not kept in most of these States. Table 18 shows the population, enrollment, average attendance, number of teachers, etc. in white and Negro schools of the Southern States in 1915. The aggregate expenditure for schools of both races in these States was $118,002,755, as shown in Table 19.

KINDERGARTEN STATISTICS FOR 1916.

Tables 12 and 13 are summaries of figures pertaining to kindergartens in the United States for the school year 1915-16, compiled by the Kindergarten Division of the Bureau of Education. An encouraging increase is noted in the number of public-school kindergartens established throughout the country during the year, while the number of kindergartens other than public shows a decrease, owing to the fact that many of the latter have been taken over by public-school boards.

The total number of kindergartens in both public and other than public schools in 1916 was 10,015 and the enrollment 509,112, while the attendance numbered 295,941. The gains in kindergartens, enrollment, and attendance over the preceding year amounted to 529, 22,312, and 5,742, respectively.

Cities reporting that they had public-school kindergartens last year numbered 1,228, which is 123 more than reported such classes in 1915. There were, in all, 8,463 public kindergartens, an increase of 589 for the year, while the number of children enrolled was 434,022, an increase of 24,939. The average attendance was 247,944, showing 8,601 more than for the preceding year.

The number of kindergartens other than public in 1916 was 1,552 and the enrollment 75,090, a decrease of 60 kindergartens and of 2,627 children since 1915.

A study of the geographical distribution of kindergartens shows that the most noticeable gains have been made in the North Central and Western States. In the North Central Division 3,751 public-school kindergartens were reported in 1916, which is 414 more than existed in 1915. The Western Division shows 655 kindergartens, as compared with 543 for the previous year.

The States in which the increase in enrollment has been most marked are: Massachusetts and New York in the North Atlantic Division; Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, South Dakota, and Nebraska in the North Central; South Carolina in the South Atlantic; and Montana and California in the Western Division. California stands out especially for establishing 94 additional kindergartens in 26 cities and towns, with an increased enrollment of 3,829 children. Montana has also taken a stride forward by changing its record of last year of 6 kindergartens in one city, with an enrollment of 115 children, to 31 kindergartens in six cities with 964 children enrolled.

Two hundred and sixty kindergartens have been established in 140 cities and towns which never had them before. California takes the lead in this particular also, with 38 kindergartens in 21 different places. Iowa follows, with 20 kindergartens in 13 places, while the following States rank close in line: Michigan, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin, and New York.

The status of the movement in many parts of the country shows such encouraging, as well as interesting, progress that a few typical examples may well be cited. Chicago, with a population of 2,000,000 and 376 kindergartens already, reports that its school officials have been given unlimited authority by their board of education to provide all their elementary schools with such classes wherever the attendance justifies taking such a step. Buffalo, N. Y., with a population of 423,000 and 121 kindergartens at the present time, is attempting to do the same thing and has recently opened 9 new classes. This takes care of all the schools except three, and these, it is planned, are to have kindergarten classes added next year. Kansas City, Mo., with a population of 248,000, conducts 77 kindergartens and reports that it can be placed in the list of school districts maintaining such classes for all pupils between 5 and 6 years of age, inasmuch as it has adopted the policy of opening a class in every elementary school in which there is a sufficient number of children to justify this action. Pasadena, Cal., with a population of 30,000, conducts 15 kindergartens. It has had a kindergarten connected with each of its elementary schools for many years and is thoroughly committed to this department of education, believing it to be the most important single phase in all elementary work. Plainfield, N. J., with a population of 20,000, has had a kindergarten in all its primary buildings for many years and never considers the erection of a new building without planning for a kindergarten room. It has 11 kindergartens at the present time. Long Beach, Cal., having a population of 17,000, reports that its 14 kindergartens, one in each of its elementary schools, takes care of all the children in the city between the ages of 4 and 6 for whom this training is desired. Pomona, Cal., with a population of 10,000, has had 6 kindergartens, one in every elementary school, for 22 years. The kindergarten has recently been made a regular part of the elementary course, and this year it was found that 93 per cent of its first-grade children had had kindergarten training, or 189 out of 214 enrolled. Titusville, Pa., with a population of 8,000, has a kindergarten in every grammar school. The system has been in full operation for at least 15 years, and both the community and school administration regard it as a valuable part of the public-school work. Many other cities report that they have kindergartens in all their elementary schools.

In several cities the school authorities have shown increased interest in the kindergarten as a result of privately initiated movements. For instance, in Hutchinson, Kans., there is a kindergarten, privately conducted, for which the board of education has only been able to provide and furnish a room in a public-school building. The superintendent of Hutchinson hopes in due time that the kindergarten will be run entirely by the board of education and that it may lead to the establishment of kindergartens in all the schools of the city. Mendon, Mich., has accomplished in part the result hoped for by Hutchinson. A kindergarten conducted for three years in this city under the management of the Women's Club, recently had to be discontinued on account of lack of funds, but the public sentiment aroused by this private work was so strong that this year the public-school board incorporated the kindergarten in its school system.

Again, cities are reporting experimental kindergarten work carried on with a view to proving the value of this kind of training before definitely incorporating it in the school curriculum. Youngstown, Ohio, introduced kindergarten methods in this way last February, with the result that one kindergarten has now been permanently established. An experiment made in Houston Heights, Tex., proved so satisfactory that the school officials contemplate a kindergarten in each of the grade schools for next year.

Encouraging reports have also been received from a number of cities and towns which give interesting evidence that they will establish kindergartens in the near future. Forty-seven places report kindergarten work conducted in connection either with the subprimary or first grade.

The growth of kindergartens in cities, towns, and industrial villages of this country during 1916 has been in keeping with the record of the past six or seven years, which has shown more progress in this respect than any previous period of equal length. This is especially true of kindergartens supported by school funds. This progress had been due largely, it is believed, to the efforts being made to spread the knowledge of the kindergarten and to arouse the demand for kindergarten classes, which were begun on a national organized basis about eight years ago.

CHAPTER II.

STATE SCHOOL SYSTEMS, 1915 AND 1916.

THE YEAR 1914-15.

The summaries of State schools which are here presented relate exclusively to public elementary and high schools, maintained by State and local taxation. City and village systems are included.

Statistics of State school systems for 1916 will be found beginning on page 64.

Such statistics as it was possible to obtain from outlying possessions of the United States are shown in the 1916 tables. These figures are not complete and are not included in the total amounts of the divisions and the United States.

As the school census age is not the same in all States, it is necessary for purposes of comparison to assume a uniform school age. The Bureau of Education for many years has compared the reports of enrollment and attendance with the estimated population 5 to 18 years of age (i. e., 5 to 17, inclusive). This estimate is made annually by applying the percentage of 5 to 17 at the last census to the Census Office estimates of the total population.

Number of children 5 to 18 years of age (5 to 17, inclusive) to every 100 persons of the total population.

The preceding table shows a relative decrease in the ratio of children to adult population for five decennial years. This decrease is partly due to the addition of foreign-born adults to our population, but it is caused mainly by the decreasing birth rate.

The following synopsis shows the estimated school population in two groups, 5 to 14 and 14 to 17 years. The total population 5 to 18 (5 to 17, inclusive) for 1915 was 26,425,100.

It is not possible at this time to make a close estimate of the number of children of each age, but the approximate distribution by certain age groups, based upon the percentages of the last census, will be found most useful in the comparison of school statistics. This estimate is given in the following table:

Rural population was defined by the Census Office in 1910 as the population outside of cities of 2,500 inhabitants. At that time 53.7 of the total population was found in the rural districts. The percentages ascertained for 1910 may be applied to the 1915 population to show the approximate distribution of urban and rural population for that year, as given in the following table:

Estimated population per square mile, and urban and rural population, 1915.

Nearly 54 per cent of the total population is rural, while almost 60 per cent of the school population is found in rural communities. The age grouping corresponding nearest to the 5 to 17 group which can be given accurately is the 6 to 20 group given by the Census Office in 1910. If the same ratio is applied to the 1915 population, the approximate apportionment of like population will be found as shown in the following table:

As only about one-third of the States report elementary enrollment by grades, it is impossible to give accurate statistics of grade enrollment. In the number of States reporting by grades each geographical division is represented, making it possible to approximate the enrollment in each grade for the divisions. This estimate is shown in the following table. The second part of the table, showing high-school enrollment by years, is not an estimate. It shows the actual enrollment as reported to the Bureau of Education by high-school principals in 1915.

CHAPTER III.

STATISTICS OF CITY SCHOOL SYSTEMS, 1915-16.

The cities of 5,000 population and over numbered 1,233 at the last census. On account of consolidation there were 1,229 in 1916. These cities have 1,241 systems of public schools, 12 of the cities having dual systems.

It has been six years since the Bureau of Education began the collection of city school statistics on the enlarged schedules now in force. This schedule consists of two parts, printed on separate sheets. The first part relates to all school statistics other than fiscal, such as the teaching force, enrollment, attendance; the second part covers all financial items—receipts, expenditures, and value of school property.

The results of the inquiry for 1916 were much better than in 1915. The attendance statistics were not received from 148 school systems, while 194 systems failed to report their financial items. For these systems which did not report, careful estimates were made, based either upon their last report to this office or upon the report of cities similar in population and location. These estimates are included in the summary, Tables 1 to 12.

The cities are arranged in four groups. All cities having 100,000 population and over in 1910 are in the first group, and all below 100,000, but having 25,000 or over, are in the second group.

The third group includes all cities of 10,000 population and over, but below the second group; while the fourth group includes the remaining cities down to 5,000 population.

The statistics of the separate groups are summarized in Tables 3, 7, and 10, while the statistics of the four groups are combined in Tables 4, 8, and 11. The 1,241 systems had a combined enrollment of 7,173,112 pupils, and an average attendance of 5,762,197. There were 194,449 teachers and 13,269 supervising officers employed. The running expense of the systems amounted to $256,941,963, while new buildings, sites, equipment, etc., added $58,736,422, making with other payments the aggregate expenditure of $357,966,051. The salaries of teachers, principals, and supervisors included in the above amounted to $187,687,474.

About 42 per cent of the population of the United States is to be found in the cities of 5,000 population and over. These cities have about 35 per cent of the school enrollment of the State school systems and 38 per cent of the average daily attendance. Of the public-school teachers, 33 per cent are in the cities, and they receive about 51 per cent of the salaries paid to teachers. The running expenses of the city systems amount to about 48 per cent of such expenses for the United States, and their outlays for buildings, sites, equipment, etc., reach 57 per cent.

The total expenditure for public schools in the cities amounts to 49 per cent of the aggregate expenditure of the States.

In Tables 1, 7, and 16, the term "Other payments" includes redemption of bonds, redemption of short-term loans, payments of warrants and orders of preceding year, payments to sinking funds, payments of interest, and miscellaneous payments, including payments to trust funds, textbooks to be sold to pupils, etc.

CHAPTER IV.

UNIVERSITIES, COLLEGES, AND TECHNOLOGICAL SCHOOLS, 1915-16.

The tabulated reports of universities, colleges, and technological schools for 1915-16 are based upon returns from 574 institutions, as compared with 563 institutions for 1914-15. States and municipalities control 97 of these institutions, and private corporations control 477. A few colleges have each year failed to report, and when this occurs for two years in succession their names are dropped from the tabulated list. Additions to the tabulated list include those institutions from which reports are received after the lapse of two years and those which give evidence of reaching satisfactory standards of work. The names of the institutions thus added or dropped will be found in the following list:

CHAPTER V.

AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL COLLEGES, 1915-16.

[The institutions commonly known as "agricultural and mechanical colleges" or "land-grant colleges" are brought together in this chapter and made the subject of special treatment. In addition to being considered here, the institutions are included in the general tables of the different classes of schools appearing in other parts of this report. In some States the agricultural and mechanical college is merged in the State university, and in such cases the figures given in the statistical tables apply to the entire institution.]

FEDERAL ACTS FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE COLLEGES OF AGRICULTURE AND THE MECHANIC ARTS.

The principal acts providing for the support of instruction in these institutions are three in number:

(1) The act of July 2, 1862, granting public lands to the States, known as the "first Morrill Act," and the act of March 3, 1883, amending the previous act and providing for the investment of capital.

(2) The act of August 30, 1890, making yearly appropriations to the States and Territories in aid of colleges of agriculture and the mechanic arts, known as the "second Morrill Act."

(3) The act of March 4, 1907, known as the "Nelson amendment," increasing the annual appropriation to $50,000 per year to each State and extending the conditions for the use of the funds.

In addition to the three acts supporting instructional work there have been three acts granting Federal aid for experimentation and extension work:

(1) The act of March 2, 1887, the "Hatch Act," granting $15,000 to each State for agricultural experiment stations.

(2) The act of March 16, 1906, the "Adams Act," increasing the annual payment for experiment stations to $30,000 for each State.

(3) The act of May 8, 1914, the "Smith-Lever Act," making an annual appropriation to each State for agricultural extension work.

There are also a number of subsidiary acts and amendments, such as the acts authorizing the detail of Army officers to the colleges as instructors in military science and tactics, the act authorizing free postage on reports, etc.

The benefits of the act of 1862, or of later acts in lieu of it, are received by every State, and 53 institutions are thereby aided—one in each of 43 States, and two each in Massachusetts, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia, and Kentucky. Massachusetts divides its fund between the Agricultural College and the Institute of Technology; while Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia, and Kentucky divide the funds between institutions for white and colored students.

The amount of the appropriation under the acts of 1890 and 1907 is now fixed at $50,000 for each of the 48 States and the two insular possessions—Porto Rico and Hawaii. Sixty-eight institutions are aided. Seventeen States maintain special colleges for colored students, which receive part of this fund.

PROFESSORS, INSTRUCTORS, EXTENSION, AND STATION STAFF, 1915-16.

The number of professors, instructors, extension workers, and experiment station investigators for the year 1915-16 is given in detail in Table 2, page 380. The following table gives the totals for the past five years:

MORRILL-NELSON FUND.

Funds Appropriated Under Acts of Congress of Aug. 30, 1890, and Mar. 4, 1907.

The total appropriation for the year ending June 30, 1916, from the United States Treasury in aid of colleges of agriculture and the mechanic arts under the provisions of the acts of Congress of August 30, 1890, and March 4, 1907, was $2,500,000, each of the 48 States and the two insular possessions receiving $50,000. Table 10, on page 400, gives the details for the year 1915-16. In addition this table shows $1,283.45 received from bank interest on daily balances during the year in three States and added to the principal. The annual installment has been fixed at $50,000 to each State since the year 1911-12. The following tables give the amount expended under each schedule and the proportion each year.

LAND-GRANT FUND OF 1862.

Income from Funds Created by the Land-Grant Act of 1862.

Under the act of Congress of July 2, 1862, 10,929,215 acres of public lands were allotted to the different States; of these, 1,149,867 acres remain unsold. From the sale of these lands permanent funds have been created amounting to $15,105,925, and yielding an income of $916,151 for the benefit of the colleges. Table 11, page 404, gives the details of income and expenditure for the year 1915-16. The figures below are the totals for the past two years.

CHAPTER VI.

PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS IN 1915-16.

The first table given below, showing the number of schools, professors, students, and property, is a brief statistical summary of professional schools in the United States for the school year 1915-16. The table following it shows similar statistics for seven years. Returns were received from nearly all of the professional schools known to this bureau. A few did not report the number of students and graduates, and for them the figures for the previous year are presented. The totals, therefore, may be assumed to be practically correct. A number of important schools connected with universities and colleges state that separate reports of the value of grounds and buildings, endowment, income, and the number of volumes in libraries could not be made for the reason that these are used in common by different departments. It should be borne in mind that the totals here given are aggregates for the schools which reported these items.

LAW SCHOOLS.

The number of schools of law reported to the Bureau of Education for the school year 1915-16 was 124. Of these, 102 were departments of universities, and 22 were independent schools. In the number of students a gain of 1,070 is shown and in the number of graduates there was a loss of 104 from the graduates of the previous year. This decrease may be attributed to the lengthening of the course in a number of law schools.

Of the 124 schools reporting, 11 evening schools report a course of four years, 93 schools a course of three years, 19 schools a course of two years, and 1 school a course of one year.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS.

The number of schools of medicine is less by one school than in the year 1914-15. The loss in the number of students is 415; the loss was 1,738 students in the previous year. The loss in the number of graduates in medicine is 309, as against 303 for the school year 1914-15.

Forty-three schools of medicine demand as a requisite to admission one year of attendance in a recognized college. In 43 other schools two years of college work is required; in 1 school three years' work is required, and in 3 schools four years' work is required.

NURSE TRAINING SCHOOLS.

A gain of 11 is noted in the schools for the training of professional nurses, and a gain of 1,570 in the number of pupils. The increase is due to the opening of new hospitals in various sections of the country.

The widest possible variety of conditions for the training of nurses exist, and generalizations from the totals and summaries should be made with due caution.

CHAPTER VII.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE NORMAL SCHOOLS, 1915-16.

This chapter presents the statistics of 279 public and private normal schools reporting to this office for the year ended June, 1916.

In the regular training courses for teachers in the 279 normal schools there were enrolled 111,672, as compared with 100,325 reported in 1915, showing an increase of 11,347 students. Of the 111,672 students reported there were 2,785 preparing to be kindergarten teachers. In addition to the students in training courses for teachers in these public and private normal schools, 32,450 students were reported as pursuing such courses in 1,373 public high schools, and 6,006 in 280 private high schools and academies. In universities and colleges there were 48,018 students in professional courses in education. These items are set forth in the following table, which makes a comparative showing for the past three years:

Students in teachers' training courses reported for four years.

The number of normal graduates reported from the 279 public and private normal schools for 1916 was 24,534, or 22 per cent of the number of normal students in these institutions.

The following synopsis compares the progress of public and private normal schools in the past 25 years:

CHAPTER VIII.

SUMMER SCHOOLS IN 1916.

A complete directory of the summer schools reporting sessions held in 1916 is included in the educational directory for 1916-17, published by the Bureau of Education (Bulletin No. 43, 1916). The directory gives the name and location of each school, the name of the director or principal, and the probable date of the session of 1917.

There were 734 summer schools reporting sessions in 1916, of which 63 were regular sessions of universities, 62 of colleges, 94 of normal schools, 34 of other institutions, while 481 were reported as independent schools.

The number of students enrolled was 298,219, which was an increase of 56,408 over the number enrolled in 1915. This does not include the pupils enrolled in the summer practice or observation schools often held in connection with teacher training schools and which in 1916 numbered 21,295.

The average length of session was 7.3 weeks instead of 7.1 weeks as in 1915.

Only 36 schools held sessions of less than 4 weeks; 345 held sessions of 4 or 6 weeks; 152 of 7 or 8 weeks; 114 of 9 or 10 weeks; 57 of 11 or 12 weeks. The remaining 30 schools were in session from 13 to 21 weeks.

CHAPTER IX.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE HIGH SCHOOLS, 1915-16.

For the year ending June, 1916, reports were received by the Bureau of Education from 12,003 public high schools, with an enrollment of 1,456,061 students. The number of public high schools reporting and the number of students enrolled continue to increase each year.

The number of students enrolled in the fourth year of public and private high schools in 1916 was 233,827, or 14.57 per cent of the total enrollment. The graduates numbered 215,801, or 92.30 per cent of the number enrolled in the fourth year class.

The number of four-year high schools steadily increases. Of 12,003 public high schools reporting, 8,906 had four-year courses. There were enrolled in these schools 1,362,514 students, or 93.57 per cent of the total high-school enrollment.

Based upon the returns from 3,544 public high schools, summarized in Table 14, the estimated per capita cost of the public high schools in 1916 was $59.86. The financial statements of only those schools in which high-school cost was clearly separated from elementary expenditure was included in this tabulation. The 3,544 public high schools represented in this table reported 466,879 students and an aggregate income of $27,946,589. By applying the above per capita cost of $59.86 to the total high-school enrollment, the estimated cost of public high schools was found to be $87,000,000.

DENOMINATIONAL AND NONSECTARIAN SCHOOLS.

The number of private high schools and academies reporting in 1916 fell slightly below that of the preceding year, but the number of students remained practically the same. Of the 2,203 schools reporting, 1,570 were under the control or influence of religious denominations and 633 were nonsectarian. The enrollment by States in each of the schools of 12 denominations having 1,000 or more high-school students is given in Table 23. The number of schools controlled by each of 26 denominations with the teaching force and enrollment is shown in the following synopsis:

CHAPTER X.

COMMERCIAL AND BUSINESS SCHOOLS, 1915-16.

The Bureau of Education has the names of more than 1,400 private commercial and business schools. There are hundreds of other business schools which are departments of normal schools, private high schools, and other institutions. Only 912 of the private business schools responded to this bureau's request for statistical information in 1916. This was 69 more than the number reporting the preceding year.

There were 192,388 students in the 912 business schools reporting, an increase of 9,102 over the preceding year. In 746 private high schools there were 17,228 students in business courses, while 2,844 public high schools had 243,185 students in such courses.

Students in commercial courses, 1915 and 1916.

The number of students in business courses in public and private normal schools and higher institutions has not been reported for a number of years. These and the enrollment in the hundreds of business schools not reporting would increase the total to at least 475,000.

The following synopsis relates exclusively to the statistics of the 912 commercial and business schools reporting to this bureau:

To supply the information desired by many correspondents of the bureau, the principal of each private commercial or business school was asked to answer this question: "What system of shorthand do you teach?" Answers were received from 701 of the 912 business schools reporting. Of these, 480 reported one system only, while 221 schools reported two or more systems. The number of schools teaching each system in 1916 is shown in the following table:

CHAPTER XI.

STATISTICS OF SCHOOLS FOR NEGROES.

The statistics of negro schools of all grades are included in the general educational statistics in other chapters of this volume. The leading facts concerning negro schools are presented in this chapter for the convenience of those who desire to make a separate study of such schools.

In 1916, 22 States and the District of Columbia reported 167 public high schools for negroes, with 716 teachers and 14,461 high-school students. Public schools reporting 10 or more students of high-school grade are included in this tabulation. The following synopsis will show the growth of these schools since 1910:

Tables 2, 3, and 4 relate to secondary and higher schools for negroes, excluding public high schools. Private high schools and academies and public and private universities and colleges and normal schools are included in this list.

CHAPTER XII.

STATE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

There were 121 State industrial schools reporting to this bureau in 1916. These schools employed 1,361 teachers and enrolled 61,828 inmates—49,009 boys and 12,819 girls. The average enrollment for the year was 35,603, as reported by 114 of the 121 schools. The number committed during the year was 24,617, of whom 79 schools reported 2,856 who could neither read nor write. Of the 24,535 inmates discharged during the year, 109 schools reported 22,114 who could both read and write.

Some of these schools are not, strictly speaking, State institutions, but are controlled by private corporations and associations. They receive children committed by public authority, however, and receive public appropriations to care for these children. The following institutions are of this class:

- Delaware Industrial School for Girls, Wilmington, Del.
- Junior State School, Athens, Ga.
- Chicago Home for Girls, Chicago, Ill.
- House of the Good Shepherd, Chicago, Ill.
- Convent of the Good Shepherd, Sioux City, Iowa.
- St. Elizabeth's Home for Colored Children, Baltimore, Md.
- St. James's Home for Boys, Baltimore, Md.
- St. Mary's Industrial School for Boys of the City of Baltimore, Baltimore, Md.
- Plummer Farm School, Salem, Mass.
- House of the Good Shepherd, Detroit, Mich.
- Sisters of the Good Shepherd, Grand Rapids, Mich.
- Hudson County Catholic Protectory, Arlington, N. J.
- New York Juvenile Asylum, Chauncey, N. Y.
- House of the Good Shepherd, New York, N. Y.
- St. Vincent's Industrial School, Utica, N. Y.
- Glen Mills Schools, Glen Mills, Pa.
- Wisconsin Home and Farm School, Dousman, Wis.

CHAPTER XIII.

SCHOOLS FOR THE BLIND AND THE DEAF.

Tables 1 to 6 present the statistics of school for the blind. This bureau has a record of 71 schools for the blind in the United States. Of these, 58 are controlled directly by the State or by corporations which receive pupils at the expense of the State, 10 are under the control of the city boards of education, and 3 are privately controlled.

Only 61 schools for the blind reported to this office in 1916. These schools employed 687 teachers and enrolled 5,155 pupils. Property valued at $14,659,506 was reported by 48 schools, while 51 schools reported an aggregate expenditure of $2,009,693, including $214,906 expended for buildings and improvements. The per capita cost of maintenance and instruction was almost $380, or about $20 more than in 1915.

Tables 7 to 15 present the statistics of 159 schools for the deaf. Of these schools 69 were State schools or received pupils at the expense of the State; 71 were public day schools controlled by city boards of education; and 19 were private schools. These schools employed 1,941 teachers and enrolled 14,733 pupils. Of the State schools 66 schools reported property valued at $21,041,425, and 65 schools reported an aggregate expenditure of $3,850,476, of which $324,727 was expended for buildings and improvements. The per capita cost of instruction and maintenance in State schools for the deaf averaged $318, or nearly $20 a year more than in 1915.

CHAPTER XIV.

SCHOOLS FOR THE FEEBLE-MINDED.

There were 38 State schools and 28 private schools for the feeble-minded which reported to this bureau in 1916. Public day schools for subnormal children were reported in 118 cities. Detailed statistics of these schools appear in Tables 6, 7, and 8. Special institutions for nervous children may be found in Table 9.

The year 1915-16 shows a marked increase, 64 per cent, in the number of cities which provide special schools or classes for backward and subnormal children. The State of Minnesota encourages the formation of such classes by appropriating for their support, allowing each year $100 per capita for children enrolled therein. By State law in New Jersey classes for subnormal children are limited to 15 pupils each.

In the following table financial items do not appear, as such classes form a part of the city school system and separate accounts are seldom kept.
