Will New England have too few college graduates by the year 2020?

That's the question answered in a ground-breaking new study commissioned by the Nellie Mae Education Foundation and conducted by a team of experts from the University of Massachusetts Amherst and the University of Connecticut. The answer, and what it means for the region's prosperity, and levels of educational access and attainment, is examined in “New England 2020”.

EDITOR'S MEMO

This edition of CONNECTION'S ANNUAL DIRECTORY OF NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES is the 38th guide to New England higher education institutions published by the New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE). The 2007 edition provides readers with a thorough overview of our region's most valuable resource—its 270 colleges and universities.

The revered diversity of America's higher education institutions is on full view here, albeit in abbreviated form. New England's two-year community and technical colleges, long-established land-grant institutions, traditional liberal arts colleges, world-famous research universities and professional schools all offer pathways to empowerment and success for our students, while they generate tremendous economic energy and serve as irreplaceable cultural assets to our communities.

College-bound students and their families will find useful information herein on each of New England's degree-granting colleges and universities, including tuition and room and board charges and a summary of admissions information, deadlines and fees.

With its thousands of names and titles of key campus administrators and its institution-specific data on campus benchmarks ranging from enrollment to endowment value, the directory is also a must-have reference tool for policy-makers, educators, CEOs and elected officials in New England and beyond.

College-bound students and others can also learn here how to receive a substantial break on college tuition. NEBHE's "Tuition Break" program saved 8,300 participating students more than $45 million in tuition last academic year. See pages 17-19 for more information on this Tuition Break. In addition, a guide to the financial aid process and traditional grant and loan programs available to New England students appears on pages 22-28.

The information in the college listings sections of CONNECTION'S 2007 DIRECTORY is derived from a NEBHE survey of New England colleges and universities that was conducted in the late summer and fall of 2006. As always, we thank the hundreds of campus officials who worked with us to submit survey responses and make this resource complete.

For a deeper analysis of higher education issues and trends, look to NEBHE's quarterly, CONNECTION: THE JOURNAL OF THE NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION. Now celebrating its 20th anniversary as America's only regional journal on higher education, CONNECTION offers vital data, compelling features and expert commentary on subjects ranging from New England's changing demography to higher education access and workforce development.

To receive CONNECTION and stay abreast of important higher education news and analysis, become a Friend of NEBHE. For a small contribution, Friends of NEBHE receive four quarterly issues of CONNECTION plus the 2007 ANNUAL DIRECTORY and other valuable benefits, including CONNECTION'S Campus Newslink, a biweekly email digest featuring links to the latest news and events from New England's 270 colleges and universities. For more information, visit us at www.nebhe.org/friends.

Finally, a proposition to our readers: in the coming months, the CONNECTION staff will be exploring ways to bring the valuable information contained in this directory to the web. We are especially interested in your comments and suggestions. So please drop us an email at connection@nebhe.org and let us know how an online incarnation of CONNECTION'S ANNUAL DIRECTORY could better serve you and your colleagues. That's what we're here for.

A Directory of Readiness

EVAN S. DOBELLE

Most good jobs formerly open to smart, ambitious high school graduates now require a college degree. Each year, fewer avenues to success exist for those who haven't attended college. Yet, New England lags in making higher education available to all groups, particularly minority and lower-income students. If we are to be "college ready" and "world ready," we must ensure that more of our residents continue their educations beyond high school and earn associate, bachelor's or graduate degrees.

NEBHE and the six New England states have recently launched an exciting regional effort called College Ready New England. The approximately 270 institutions listed in this, the 38th edition of CONNECTION's Annual Directory of New England Colleges and Universities, are both contributors to and beneficiaries of this new regional initiative.

College Ready New England aims to increase the numbers of students who graduate from high school prepared for college and then go on to earn college degrees. To achieve this goal, NEBHE has joined forces with New England's governors, education commissioners and state higher education officers to share the best ideas and most successful methods for preparing more students, young and old, for college success. College Ready New England will also develop marketing campaigns targeted at students who face the most difficulty entering and succeeding in college. New campaigns will impress upon these students and their parents the value of a college degree in today's job market and give them the resources to navigate through available options.

The colleges and universities in this directory are contributors to the College Ready New England effort because their faculty and staff are the region's greatest resource in improving education and encouraging students to prepare for college. The expertise residing on our college campuses can inform and strengthen pre-K-12 teaching and help a new generation of educators spark a love for learning in younger students and adults. One excellent example of this dynamic may be found in Worcester, Mass., where Clark University students and faculty are energizing neighborhood schools with the latest innovations in teaching and learning.

Colleges are also contributors to this effort in another way. No professional marketing staff can do as much to stir a passion for learning in young people as can dedicated college students enlisted to serve as ambassadors for higher learning. For example, University of Connecticut admissions officers have successfully involved diverse students in calling prospective students of color who are ambivalent about enrolling. Students listen to their peers.

The colleges and universities in this directory are also beneficiaries of College Ready New England because their future absolutely depends upon a flowing pipeline of college-ready students (and New England's future depends, in turn, upon the vitality of its higher education enterprise both as a key industry and as the source of tomorrow's skilled workers). The region's elite colleges draw from a global pool of students, and the presence of these international students enriches our campuses and their communities. In New England's own cities and rural villages, however, we can also find thousands of educationally underserved students headed for passionless jobs and no careers. We cannot leave these students behind.

College Ready New England will expand the higher education horizons of all New England residents in the years to come. This directory is not only a convenient one-stop reference tool for all college-bound students—high-school seniors, potential graduate students and adult learners—who are planning for college and conducting a college search. It is a directory of readiness.

*College Ready
New England will expand the higher education horizons of all New England residents.*

NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION— Six States, Countless Opportunities for

The New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) was founded in 1955, when six visionary New England governors realized that the future prosperity of the region rested upon higher education—and that their six small states could do more working together than working alone. The six committed their states to the shared pursuit of academic excellence. Soon thereafter, NEBHE was approved by all of New England's state legislatures and authorized by the U.S. Congress.

Today, New England's future is inextricably linked to the innovation emanating from the region's approximately 270 colleges and universities and the intellectual potential of its people. NEBHE's capacity to expand educational opportunity and strengthen the relationship between higher education and the region's economic and civic development is more critical than ever.

NEBHE Programs

Hundreds of Majors ... with a Tuition Break!

The New England Board of Higher Education's Regional Student Program (RSP) provides a Tuition Break to New England residents when they enroll in certain degree programs at out-of-state public colleges and universities in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

In academic year 2005-06, nearly 8,300 New England students went to college through the RSP Tuition Break and saved $45 million on their annual tuition bills. Full-time students enrolled in the RSP Tuition Break program saved an average of $6,800 each on their annual tuition bills. All of New England's public colleges and universities participate in the RSP Tuition Break Program.

In addition to helping New England students and families pay for college, the RSP Tuition Break enables the New England states to avoid spending billions of dollars in capital and operating expenditures for academic programs already offered in other New England states.

For more information, see www.nebhe.org/tuitionbreak

Get Ready ...

College Ready New England

College education is more critical than ever—for individuals and for New England as a whole. NEBHE's College Ready New England initiative aims to increase the educational achievement of all New Englanders—and bolster the region's overall economic competitiveness—through expanded college readiness, participation and success.

College Ready New England functions as a regional network through which the six states share resources, best practices, cutting-edge policies, program innovations and research. The program focuses on two areas.

A College Readiness and Success Campaign will bring together educators, policymakers and businesses across New England to meet four goals:

- Increase the number of high school graduates and GED recipients
- Increase the number of high school graduates prepared for college and career success
- Increase the number of people enrolling in two- and four-year colleges
- Increase the number of two- and four-year college graduates

Through a Regional College Access Marketing Initiative, College Ready New England will help the six New England states develop and implement cutting-edge marketing and outreach campaigns designed to put more students on the path to college.

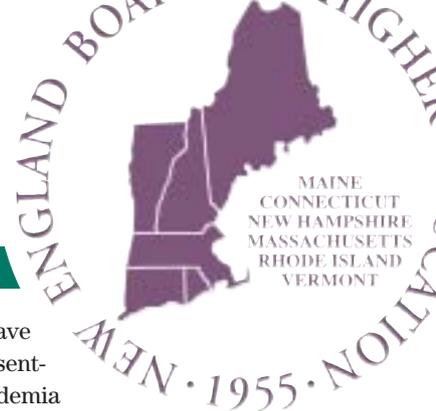

Governors, K-12 commissioners and higher education commissioners in all six New England states have committed to supporting College Ready New England.

Excellence Through Diversity... Diversity in Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics

The fastest-growing segments of New England's job market demand skills in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM). Yet many of the region's fastest-growing populations have been severely underrepresented in these fields. NEBHE's Excellence Through Diversity (ETD) program aims to create a regional environment that supports the full participation of groups that have been traditionally underrepresented in STEM disciplines in academia and industry—particularly African-Americans, Hispanics, Native Americans and Southeast Asians.

ETD's Annual Science Network program, co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, brings together hundreds of high school, undergraduate and graduate students interested in STEM disciplines to meet with academic and industry professionals for a day of networking and information-sharing. ETD also provides professional development opportunities for graduate students in STEM disciplines and an online information clearinghouse featuring STEM resources.

For more information see: www.nebhe.org/diversity

NEBHE also offers:

Regional Conferences that bring together several hundred opinion leaders and practitioners from New England and beyond for a day and evening of insightful discussion on key education topics, addresses by major national and international speakers and networking.

Professional Development programs that provide cutting-edge curriculum and professional development for community college faculty in collaboration with secondary school teachers and college and university professors. Programs focus on science, technology, engineering and math fields.

International Exchange Programs that offer affordable study-abroad opportunities at colleges and universities in Quebec and Nova Scotia.

FAQ

What is tuition?

Tuition is what colleges charge for courses and instruction. Other costs billed to students include fees and room and board. Tuition at state colleges and universities is typically based on a student's residency. A student who is a resident of the state where the college is located is charged the in-state tuition rate; a student from another state typically pays a much higher out-of-state tuition rate. A student eligible under the RSP Tuition Break program pays a regional rate that is between the in-state and out-of-state rates. Note: Only the tuition portion of college costs is discounted by the RSP Tuition Break program, not fees, room and board and other expenses.

How much of a discount is the RSP Tuition Break?

The Tuition Break allows an eligible student to pay a regional rate, which is significantly less than out-of-state tuition. The rate is based on a percentage (up to 175 percent) of the out-of-state college's in-state rate. Example: In-state tuition = $3,000; Out-of-state tuition = $12,000; Regional tuition = $5,250 (discount of $6,750).

Is the RSP Tuition Break a scholarship?

No. It is a discount on the regular out-of-state tuition rate that a student pays when attending a state college or university in another New England state.

Is a student in the RSP Tuition Break program eligible to apply for financial aid?

Yes. A student should complete the FAFSA federal application and any financial aid applications required by the college(s). For more information, check Financial Aid Resources listed in this flyer.

Is the RSP Tuition Break for New England only?

Yes. The program is only for permanent New England residents attending out-of-state public colleges and universities in the six New England states – Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont.

How does a student qualify for the RSP Tuition Break?

As a permanent resident of a New England state, a student is eligible for the RSP Tuition Break when enrolled in an approved degree program offered by a specific public college or university in another New England state. Approved majors (associate, bachelor's and graduate) for residents of each New England state are listed at www.nebhe.org/tuitionbreak. For a list of programs, search our online database of programs or download the annual catalog.

How does a student apply for the RSP Tuition Break?

A student must declare an approved Tuition Break major that is offered by that college and indicate, "applying for NEBHE RSP Tuition Break" on the college's application for admission.

How is a student accepted as an RSP Tuition Break student?

The college or university notifies a student of acceptance through the RSP at the time of acceptance to the college.

Can a student already enrolled at a college declare an RSP Tuition Break major at that college?

Usually. An enrolled student needs to contact the registrar and/or the college's RSP campus representative, listed at www.nebhe.org/tuitionbreak.

What happens if a student changes from an approved RSP Tuition Break major to a major not approved?

The college bills the student for the full out-of-state tuition once he/she is enrolled in a non-RSP degree program.

Can the RSP Tuition Break be used to attend a private college?

No. Only New England's state colleges and universities and community colleges participate.

Why is a state of residence not listed as eligible for an approved degree program?

A state is not listed when one of the state colleges or universities in that state offers a comparable program (which in some cases has a different name).

If an out-of-state college is closer to a student's permanent home, is the student eligible for the RSP Tuition Break?

Sometimes. A student who lives closer to an out-of-state college than an in-state college offering the same program, is eligible for the RSP Tuition Break in some cases. Most community colleges (and some four-year campuses) allow this eligibility. Refer to RSP Policies: Proximity Policy for details at www.nebhe.org/tuitionbreak and contact an RSP campus representative to find out if a particular college allows this eligibility.

Are graduate programs available with the RSP Tuition Break?

Yes. Hundreds of approved master's, doctoral and graduate certificate programs are available. In certain cases, graduate students may petition for eligibility for other unique programs. Refer to RSP Policies: Highly Specialized Graduate programs. Details are available at www.nebhe.org/tuitionbreak.

Is the RSP Tuition Break a new program?

No. The program turns 50 years old in 2007. The RSP was established by NEBHE in 1957 to expand educational opportunities for New England residents and help the states avoid duplication of costly academic programs. Since 1957 the RSP has provided New England residents with savings on more than 200,000 annual tuition bills. The RSP has also saved individual New England states billions of dollars in expenditures, because they do not have to start up and operate academic programs that are offered in other New England states.

Visit www.nebhe.org/tuitionbreak for a complete list of approved programs available to residents of each New England state, and programs offered by each college or university.

Financial Aid Resources for New England College Students

Meeting College Costs Using Financial Aid

Wendy A. Lindsay

At least half of all students receive financial aid to help pay for college, which costs on average about $15,000 a year for a student attending a public college in state or double that for a private college (according to College Board 2005 data).

What are students expected to pay each year towards their college expenses? Colleges make that determination based on personal finance information provided by students and their parents on their financial aid applications.

For starters, students (and parents of dependent students*) need to complete the federal government's FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) to be considered for most kinds of financial aid, including loans. Students also need to complete additional financial aid application forms required by the colleges they wish to attend.

The FAFSA asks students (and parents of dependent students*) to report family income, assets and benefits, and other information such as size of family and number of family members in college. Based on this information, the federal government calculates a student's Expected Family Contribution (EFC) and reports the EFC to colleges listed by the student on the FAFSA and on a Student Aid Report provided to the student.

Colleges often use additional criteria to determine a student's EFC based on the other applications they require. The colleges identify the student's eligibility for financial aid by subtracting the EFC from the Cost of Attendance.

What is the Cost of Attendance? The colleges determine the estimated full cost of attendance for their students, which includes not only tuition, fees, room and board, or the costs of off-campus living, but also books and supplies, transportation and personal expenses.

Financial aid is available from four basic sources: the federal government, state government (see agencies listed on page 27), colleges and universities, and private sources (including foundations, community organizations and corporations).

Federal Aid

The federal government awards three major types of financial aid: Grants (gift aid, based on financial need); Work-Study (an award based on financial need, providing part-time employment arranged by the college); and Loans (borrowed money which must be repaid).

Grants

Federal Pell Grants and Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (FSEOG) are awarded by the colleges to undergraduate students who are identified as eligible by the federal government, based on information provided in the FAFSA.

Work-Study

Work-study money is awarded by the colleges to students identified as eligible by the federal government, based on information provided in the FAFSA. The students earn the award amount through part-time employment provided or arranged by the college.

Federal Perkins Loans

Federal Perkins Loans are very low-interest loans administered by participating colleges for undergraduate, graduate and professional students with exceptional financial need who are enrolled part-time or full-time. Priority is given to Pell Grant recipients. Students repay their loan to the college where they received it.

Federal Stafford Loans

Federal Stafford Loans are for undergraduate, graduate and professional students enrolled at least half time. Students can borrow up to a maximum loan amount each year they are enrolled and pay back the loan after leaving college. Financial need is not a requirement, but loans are subsidized for students demonstrating financial need (the interest on their loan is forgiven while they are enrolled in college).

Federal PLUS Loans

Federal PLUS Loans are for parents of dependent* undergraduate students enrolled at least half time. The maximum amount to be borrowed equals the cost of attendance minus any other financial aid received by the student. Repayment generally begins within 60 days after the loan has been disbursed.

Where to Obtain Stafford and PLUS Loans

If the college participates as a lender in the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program, students/parents borrow directly from the federal government by applying through the college's financial aid office. Otherwise, students/parents borrow from a bank, credit union or private lender that participates in the Federal Family Education Loan program (FFELP).

Consolidation Loans

Multiple Stafford or Plus loans can be combined into one loan for easier repayment. Information on Direct Loan consolidation is available from www.loanconsolidation.ed.gov or 800-557-7392. For FFELP consolidation, contact the lender or loan service agent.

Non-Federal Aid

Scholarship, grant and loan programs are administered by agencies, foundations and loan authorities in each New England state. (See detailed list starting on page 25.)

Scholarships and grants (gift aid) are awarded based on financial need and other criteria, such as academic and personal achievement, religious affiliation, ethnicity, memberships, hobbies or special interests. Scholarships and grants are offered by state financial aid agencies, colleges and universities, private businesses, foundations, community organizations, veterans' groups, etc. To research scholarship opportunities, conduct free searches online using sites such as www.fastweb.com (see other web site resources on pages 24 and 25). Also check with the colleges, high school guidance offices, public libraries, chambers of commerce and community organizations for scholarship directories and lists.

*Independent students report only their own income and assets (and their spouse's, if married). A student is considered independent if one of the following applies: Born before Jan. 1, 1983 (for 2006-07 academic year), married, enrolled in a graduate program (beyond bachelor's degree), has legal dependent(s), is an orphan or ward of the court, or a veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces.

Cost of Attendance

Tuition, fees, room and board, books and supplies, transportation, personal expenses.

Expected Family Contribution

Determined from the FAFSA and/or the College Board's Profile and any other financial aid application required by the college.

Eligibility for Financial Aid

The maximum amount of money students can expect to receive in financial aid.

FREE INFORMATION

Free financial aid information and free scholarship searches are readily available from several sources including the federal government, state financial aid agencies, college financial aid offices, high school guidance counselors, libraries and the Internet.

Watch out for scholarship scams! Explore all free sources before considering any private, fee-based scholarship service. Make sure a private service is reputable. Information is available from the Federal Trade Commission at www.ftc.gov or telephone 1-877-FTC-HELP.

MEET DEADLINES

Students need to check with the college financial aid office to find out which application forms are required and what the deadlines are. Financial aid applications must be completed on time, and early is better. Note: Students can apply for financial aid before they have been accepted by the colleges where they have applied for admission.

The FAFSA should be completed as soon as possible after January 1. Students and families can choose to estimate their income for the previous year and verify it later, instead of delaying their application until after filing taxes.

File the FAFSA electronically at www.fafsa.ed.gov. Obtain an electronic PIN to "sign" the FAFSA at www.pin.ed.gov determined by "federal methodology" and/or "institutional methodology."

Federal methodology is a calculation, according to a formula specified in federal law, of information provided in the FAFSA, based on the student's income and assets, and in the case of dependent students, also the parents' income, assets and number of dependents. Detailed information available

Institutional methodology is a calculation conducted by colleges and universities who require other financial aid applications.

Other Ways to Meet College Costs

- Use a tuition payment plan arranged through the college's financial aid office.
- Get an out-of-state tuition break: The New England Board of Higher Education's Regional Student Program provides New England residents with a tuition break when they study approved majors at public colleges and universities in other New England states. Eligibility is explained at www.nebhe.org/tuitionbreak. Or call 617-357-9620.
- Participate in community service: Americorps is a national program that allows college-age students to earn education awards in return for national service. Visit www.americorps.gov or telephone 800-942-2677.

- Attend college half-time or part-time and take longer to complete a degree, but still remain eligible for some financial aid (attending at least half-time is required for federal Stafford and Plus loan programs).
- Attend a lower-cost, two-year community college then transfer to a four-year college to earn a bachelor's degree.
- Commute to college instead of living on campus.
- Work for a company or organization that provides tuition assistance.
- The U.S. Armed Forces offer various college financing options to students who meet eligibility requirements. Information is available at the U.S. Department of Defense's career guide site: www.myfuture.com.

1. The higher education institutions listed in CONNECTION'S 2007 DIRECTORY OF NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES & UNIVERSITIES are authorized to grant academic degrees at certificate, associate, bachelor's, master's or doctoral levels. Colleges and universities are listed alphabetically by state with public institutions appearing first, followed by independent institutions. A separate section listing law and medical schools follows the state-by-state sections.

Independent institutions listed are nonprofit except for the following for-profit institutions: Briarwood College, Gibbs College, Goodwin College and Paier College of Art Inc. in Connecticut; Andover College and Beal College in Maine; FINE Mortuary College, Gibbs College and New England Institute of Art in Massachusetts; Hesser College and McIntosh College in New Hampshire; and New England Culinary Institute in Vermont.

Information in the institutional listings is derived from a New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) survey conducted in the summer of 2006. Participation in NEBHE's survey is voluntary. Institutional respondents may elect not to supply all requested information.

2. Institutions generally provide their main telephone and fax numbers and the institution's homepage on the World Wide Web. (For telephone numbers of admissions offices, see the section of each listing titled "Admissions Information.")
3. Brief factual descriptions note the year the institution was founded, types of programs offered and degrees awarded.
4. The NEBHE survey asks campuses to provide the names and titles of senior campus officers. In general, the campus officers listed include presidents, academic deans, chief financial officers and undergraduate admissions and financial aid officers.
5. Most New England colleges and universities are accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC), a regional accrediting body based in Bedford, Massachusetts. NEASC accreditation indicates that a college has purposes appropriate to higher education, has the necessary resources to achieve its stated purposes through educational programs, is substantially doing so, and gives reasonable evidence that it will continue to do so in the foreseeable future. Accreditation by NEASC applies to the institution as a whole; therefore it is not a guarantee of the quality of every course offered. NE indicates that an institution is accredited by NEASC. NE cand indicates that the institution is a candidate for accreditation by NEASC.

Some New England institutions and/or their individual programs are accredited by other accrediting bodies. Specialized indicates that an institution or one or more of its academic programs carries such accreditation. Further information about such accreditation may be described in footnotes. Interested students should contact the institution directly for further information.

In the case of law and medical schools, additional accreditation is indicated as follows:

AALS Association of American Law Schools

ABA American Bar Association

AMA-AAMA American Medical Association-American Association of Medical Assistants

AMA-CAHEA American Medical Association-Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation

AOA American Osteopathic Association

LCME Liaison Committee on Medical Education

6. In a semester system, the academic year is divided into two equal units. In a trimester system, the year is divided into three units. In a quarter system, the year is divided into four units. Other calendar systems include 4-1-4, which features two terms of four months each and a one-month intersession intended for experimental or intensive study and variations such as 4-4-1 or 4-1-4-1.
7. An institution's student body is classified as men for men only, women for women only or coed for men and women.
8. Tuition/Fees generally refers to annual tuition and mandatory fees, if reported, for a typical undergraduate (except in the case of institutions that enroll only graduate students). Institutions listing tuition per credit hour are footnoted as such. For public institutions, in-state tuition and mandatory fees are listed first; followed by out-of-state tuition and mandatory fees. Tuition and fees are current for the 2006-2007 academic year. Fees may include the cost of health insurance required by some institutions if students are not covered by comparable health insurance and may vary according to program of study. The figures listed for Tuition/Fees do not include room and board charges unless otherwise indicated.
9. Housing, Room & Board refers to average annual charges for students living on campus and participating in a standard meal plan (unless otherwise noted) during the 2006-2007 academic year.
10. Listing generally shows the estimated market value of institutional endowment, if available, as of June 30, 2006, unless otherwise indicated. Endowments under $1 million are not included. In most cases, the value of endowments listed in the law and medical school section are also included in the affiliated institution's total endowment in the state-by-state listings.
11. Listing shows the total number of full-time employees (excluding faculty) and part-time employees (excluding faculty), in most cases as of Jan. 1, 2006.

12. Listings shows the total number of full-time faculty and part-time faculty, in most cases as of Jan. 1 2006. Faculty counts may include adjuncts.
13. Figure refers to the total library collection. In most cases, reported collections include books, serials, other paper materials, e-books, serial subscriptions (including electronic), microforms and audio visual materials.
14. Enrollment figures are for the fall 2005 term. The figures are reported by institutions based on a headcount of full- and part-time degree enrollment in undergraduate and graduate degree programs and full- and part-time non-degree enrollment.
15. Admissions Information is presented in a brief narrative and may include: examinations required by institutions as part of the admissions process or for placement after admission; application deadlines and fees for first-year students; and information regarding special admissions programs and related deadlines. The admissions office telephone number, email address and website address are also provided.

The Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) exam is not generally listed; however most institutions require the exam of students for whom English is a second language.

Generally listed admissions examinations are indicated as follows:

ACT American College Testing Program

ACT/ASSETT American College Testing Program ASSETT Test

DAT Dental Aptitude Test

GRE Graduate Records Examination

LSAT Law School Admissions Test

MAT Miller Analogies Test

MCAT Medical College Admissions Test

OAT Optometry Admissions Test

SATI Scholastic Aptitude Reasoning Test

SATII Scholastic Aptitude Subject Tests

Some of the more popular special admissions programs include:

Early Decision, in which the institution provides early notice of admission and requires a non-refundable deposit if the student accepts the offer; and Early Notification, in which the institution give early notice of admission and requires that students make a deposit that is refundable if the student decides not to attend.
