How can we better prepare GED students for college?

Five years ago, the Nellie Mae Education Foundation established the New England ABE-to-College Transition Project – the first grantmaking program within our Adult Literacy initiative. Our goal was to bridge the gap between academic work required for a GED certificate and skills required for college-level work. We developed a partnership with the renowned New England Literacy Resource Center (NELRC), whose expertise in educational transitions for adults inspired and shaped our undertaking. So far, the 25 ABE-to-College Transition programs that received our grants and participated in technical assistance activities with NELRC have prepared more than 1,600 GED recipients for college.

Recently, Dr. Julia Gittleman of Mendelsohn, Gittleman & Associates completed an evaluation of the Project. What resulted is one of the few studies that documents GED recipients' access to higher education — The New England ABE-to-College Transition Project Evaluation Report.

EDITOR'S MEMO

The New England Board of Higher Education is pleased to bring you CONNECTION's 2006 DIRECTORY OF NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES & UNIVERSITIES. This edition represents the 37th higher education directory published by NEBHE. Over NEBHE's 50-year history, this directory has provided readers throughout New England and beyond with a detailed look at the region's richly diverse higher education enterprise.

The colleges and universities profiled in these pages are as varied as the New England landscape. New England's two-year community and technical colleges, its evolving land-grant institutions, its world-famous liberal arts colleges, its major research universities and high-quality specialty schools all fuel our economy, empower our students and contribute immeasurably to our communities and civic life.

Information reported in the state-by-state institutional listings in CONNECTION's 2006 DIRECTORY is derived from a NEBHE survey of New England colleges and universities which was conducted in the late summer and fall of 2005.

For CONNECTION's traditional readership of policymakers, journalists, legislators, higher education leaders and CEOs, the directory serves as a reference tool, providing names and titles of key campus administrators, institutional enrollment and employment data and more.

College-bound students and their families will find useful information here on each of the nearly 270 institutions listed, including tuition and room and board charges, and a summary of admissions information, deadlines and fees.

Readers will also find important information on how to take a bite out of college tuition bills. Last academic year, 8,400 students saved $44 million in college tuition costs by participating in NEBHE's Regional Student Program (RSP). See pages 18–22 for more information about the RSP. For information on traditional grant and loan programs, see pages 24–30 where NEBHE's Wendy Lindsay presents a guide to financial aid and an overview of scholarship and loan programs available in each New England state.

Of course, there is much more to New England higher education than alphabetical listings and facts and figures. For a deeper analysis of higher education issues and trends, see NEBHE's quarterly journal, CONNECTION: THE JOURNAL OF THE NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION. Each issue of CONNECTION offers vital data, compelling features and expert commentary on subjects ranging from New England's changing demography to higher education access and workforce development.

Finally, we urge you to consider becoming a Friend of NEBHE. For a small contribution, Friends of NEBHE receive four quarterly issues of CONNECTION, plus this ANNUAL DIRECTORY and other valuable benefits, including CONNECTION's Campus Newslink, a biweekly email digest featuring links to the latest news from New England's 270 colleges and universities. For more information, see the special advertisement on pages 16–17 or visit us at www.nebhe.org.

As always, we welcome your comments and suggestions on CONNECTION's ANNUAL DIRECTORY and all issues of CONNECTION: THE JOURNAL OF THE NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION. Just drop us an email at connection@nebhe.org.

Community outreach and health education are important roles for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Vermont. Each year, we provide flu vaccine to Vermont seniors and other high-risk individuals. A Directory of New England's Potential

EVAN S. DOBELLE

The New England Board of Higher Education is pleased to provide this 37th Annual Directory of New England Colleges and Universities as both a practical guide to the region's 270 colleges and universities and a glimpse into New England's future.

These institutions are New England's greatest assets. They power our economy directly by employing more than 250,000 people and spending $20 billion annually in operating costs alone. But more importantly, their tradition of superior scholarship draws young people not only from our own six states but from across the nation and around the globe who dream of going to college in New England.

The 850,000 or so students who attend New England colleges each year infuse the region with new ideas and fresh perspectives. Many of them will stay in New England after earning their degrees and enrich the region's vital institutions, ranging from our world-class teaching hospitals to cutting-edge arts groups to technology startup companies.

Fifty years ago, against the backdrop of shuttered factories and a resounding "baby boom," New England launched a range of groundbreaking education initiatives, including the New England Board of Higher Education.

Now, New England looks to a new group of talented people to lead the region through another one of those periods of redefinition that characterizes its rich history.

This time, a rapidly changing global economy demands flexible, creative, independent thinkers in every industry. We need savvy global communicators who understand other cultures and languages and who can forge new ties in the international economy. We need creative thinkers whose artistic sense can be applied to distinguish offerings in a cluttered marketplace. We need scientists and engineers with the drive and the values to improve life for all people. And we need engaged citizens who, even as they reach out to the wider world, strive to create a better, more just society here at home.

Read between the lines in this directory, and you will see the remarkable story of 270 New England colleges and universities, each working in its own unique way, to build the future: the public land grant university stimulating an economically distressed downtown with a new art museum ... the small private college working with a neighboring community college to provide pathways up for single mothers ... the dozens of New England colleges lending a helping hand to college students displaced by natural disaster. You will see a story of unlimited potential.

Indeed, in this special annual directory issue of CONNECTION, you will see the future of New England.

Evan S. Dobelle is president and CEO of the New England Board of Higher Education and publisher of CONNECTION.

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences, Boston Campus

The Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences has been preparing the region's top health care professionals since 1823. But with national shortages in the health care workforce, the College needed to expand its student body, its academic offerings, and its physical space. School officials turned to us. We issued a $51 million tax-exempt bond allowing them to expand and renovate their Boston and Worcester campuses, meeting the College's needs and the needs of the health care community. That's what we do. Our experienced team provides creative business solutions, tax-exempt bond financing, and loans at competitive rates to help nonprofits in Massachusetts grow. So give us a call. Because when it comes to smart financing and business solutions, we're your prescription for a successful project.

NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION ... Working Together for College

Half a century ago, six visionary New England governors realized that New England's future hopes rested with higher education. Against a backdrop of deep economic uncertainty and exploding college enrollments fueled by the G.I. Bill, these governors formed the New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) and committed their states to the shared pursuit of excellence. Soon after that, NEBHE was approved by New England's six state legislatures and authorized by the U.S. Congress.

Much has changed since those days. New technologies have transformed New England's workplaces, schools and homes. The clang of the machine shop has given way to the click of the mouse. New populations have enriched the region's economy and culture. And a college education has become a prerequisite of upward mobility—a pathway to economic success and civic engagement.

A few things have not changed. One, New England's future is inextricably linked to the innovation emanating from its 270 colleges and universities and the intellectual potential of its nearly 850,000 college students. Two, six states can do more together than one can do alone. And three, higher education is still the future of New England.

Today, each New England state is represented on the New England Board of Higher Education by eight delegates—leaders of education, business and government who are appointed by their states' governors and legislative leadership. They are supported by a staff of dedicated professionals who work closely with public and private partners throughout the six-state region.

NEBHE Programs

More than 700 majors with a tuition break

NEBHE's Regional Student Program (RSP) provides New England residents with major tuition savings at out-of-state public colleges and universities in New England. Established in 1957, the RSP is available to students who pursue specialized degree programs not offered by their home-state public institutions. In academic year 2004-2005, the RSP saved more than 8,400 New Englanders $44 million in tuition!

The RSP also saves New England's taxpayers millions of dollars because the states don't have to start up and maintain expensive academic programs that are already offered by their neighbors. The RSP is a common market for higher education.

Critical Analysis... Controversial Issues ... Tomorrow's News ... Get the CONNECTION?

CONNECTION: THE JOURNAL OF THE NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION is America's only regional magazine on higher education and economic development. Each quarter, CONNECTION offers expert analysis and hard-hitting commentaries on issues ranging from New England's changing demography to outdoor education programs, from federal student aid policy to campus architecture. A Boston newspaper called CONNECTION "the best vehicle in the region to follow new trends in business and the economy as they affect New England colleges and universities." A New Hampshire paper noted that "the magazine is packed with information."

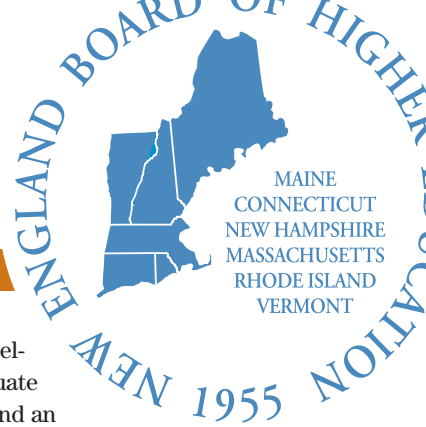

The NEBHE Mission

The mission of the New England Board of Higher Education is to promote greater educational opportunities and services for the residents of New England.

Readiness and Success

CONNECTION'S ANNUAL DIRECTORY OF NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES & UNIVERSITIES provides vital information on each of New England's nearly 270 colleges and universities, including data on enrollment, endowment, tuition, fees and room and board charges as well as names and titles of thousands of campus administrators.

CONNECTION subscribers also receive CONNECTION's Campus Newslink—an email news digest featuring the latest news, events and comings and goings from New England's 270 college campuses.

Diversity in Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics

The fastest-growing segments of New England's job market require skills in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM). Yet many of the region's fastest-growing populations have been severely underrepresented in these fields. NEBHE's Excellence Through Diversity (ETD) program aims to create a regional environment that supports the full participation of groups that have been traditionally underrepresented in STEM disciplines in academia and industry—particularly African-Americans, Hispanics, Native Americans and Southeast Asians. ETD's Annual Science Network program, co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, brings together hundreds of high school, undergraduate and graduate students interested in STEM disciplines to meet with academic and industry professionals for a day of networking and information sharing.

ETD provides professional development opportunities for graduate students in STEM disciplines and an online information clearinghouse featuring STEM resources. ETD also is engaged in a Congressionally funded research study examining key issues related to underrepresented populations in STEM disciplines and careers.

More Programs

NEBHE's Policy and Research programs provide vital data and analysis of higher education trends, convene opinion leaders and practitioners to share best practices and forge strategies to address New England's higher education challenges.

NEBHE's Professional Development programs provide cutting-edge curriculum and professional development for community college faculty in collaboration with secondary school teachers and college and university faculty. Programs focus on science, technology, engineering and math fields.

NEBHE's International Exchange Programs offer affordable study-abroad opportunities at colleges and universities in Quebec and Nova Scotia.

It takes a rare combination of luck and insight to predict what the future will bring. That may be why even experts often get it wrong — dismissing innovations that may signal big changes in their industries.

At HEFA we are privileged to glimpse the future from a unique vantage point. Every day we work with forward-thinking, higher education clients who have the vision to see what is possible. This past year with tax-exempt HEFA financing, a leading university built a high-tech facility to enable cutting-edge learning, a world-renowned research institution invested in advanced microscopes to drive tomorrow's medical breakthroughs, and a local college built a new residence hall to house the students of the 21st century.

Out-of-State Tuition Break for Residents of New England

REGIONAL STUDENT PROGRAM 2006-07

Take your pick.

700+ MAJORS
WITH A TUITION BREAK

NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION

CONNECTICUT • MAINE • MASSACHUSETTS • NEW HAMPSHIRE • RHODE ISLAND • VERMONT

Regional Student Program Tuition Break for New England Residents

The New England Board of Higher Education's Regional Student Program (RSP) provides residents of the New England states — Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont — with an out-of-state tuition break when they enroll in approved majors at public colleges and universities in other New England states.

All of New England's 78 public colleges and universities participate in the RSP, offering more than 700 majors with the RSP tuition break. Programs are available through the RSP at all academic levels: associate, bachelor's, master's, certificate of advanced graduate study, doctoral and first-professional.

RSP eligibility

The approved RSP majors are listed in the annual state-specific RSP Apple Book catalogs. The Apple Books are available in print and online from the New England Board of Higher Education. Visit www.nebhe.org or telephone 617-357-9620.

Residents of a particular New England state are eligible for an approved major, because that major is not offered by any home-state public institution. Students apply for RSP status on the institution's application form; no separate application is required. The institution notifies applicants who are accepted for admission whether they have been granted RSP status.

The approved majors listed in the Apple Books do not necessarily include every program for which residents might expect to be RSP-eligible. Participating colleges and universities may decide against offering certain programs through the RSP, such as those programs that are highly competitive.

In addition to being eligible for programs listed in the Apple Book, in certain cases graduate students may petition for RSP eligibility by documenting that the program in question is not offered by any home-state public institution. (RSP Policy 3B2a.)

Also, in certain cases students who reside near a state border may apply for RSP eligibility at an out-of-state public college that is closer to their home than an in-state public college offering the same program. (RSP Policy 3B3.)

The RSP tuition break

The RSP tuition rate reflects a significant break on an institution's out-of-state tuition rate. Public colleges and universities charge out-of-state tuition to students who permanently reside in other states and in-state tuition to students who permanently reside in the state where the college or university is located.

Information on tuition rates is available from participating colleges and universities and from the New England Board of Higher Education.

In academic year 2004-05, more than 8,400 New England students were enrolled through the RSP and saved nearly $44 million on their annual tuition bills. Participating students enrolled on a full-time basis saved on average nearly $6,500 in tuition each in academic year 2004-05.

The RSP is a tuition-discount program. Students are eligible based on their program of study, not on financial need. RSP students are eligible to apply for financial aid from other sources.

Shared resources

The RSP enables the six New England states to expand educational opportunities for their residents, while avoiding duplication of costly academic programs. Established by NEBHE in 1957, the RSP has provided New England residents with savings on more than 190,000 annual tuition bills. Meanwhile the RSP has helped the individual New England states avoid spending billions of dollars in capital and operating expenditures for academic programs already offered in other New England states.

Financial Aid Resources for New England College Students

Meeting College Costs Using Financial Aid

Wendy A. Lindsay

In academic year 2004-05, the average cost of attending a four-year private college in the United States was more than $29,000 a year, according to the College Board. The average cost of attending a four-year public college was $14,000 for an in-state student and $21,000 for an out-of-state student. Multiply that by four, and the average pricetag for a bachelor's degree is $118,000 at a private college and $57,000 to $84,000 at a four-year public college.

Understandably, prospective college students and their families often find these costs daunting, and most turn to financial aid to help foot the bill.

In fact, at least half of all students receive financial aid to help pay for college.

Financial aid is available from a variety of sources, including the federal government, state government agencies (listed on page 27), colleges, private foundations, community organizations, corporations and the military.

What are students and families expected to pay? That depends on their current financial situation and ability to help pay the cost of a college education. Students and families provide relevant information on the financial aid applications required by the colleges, who in turn decide what a family is expected to contribute.*

For starters, students and their parents need to complete the federal government's FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) to be considered for any financial aid, including loans.

In addition to the FAFSA, colleges usually require students to complete a college financial aid application form. Some colleges also require their applicants to complete the College Board's application, called Profile, for awarding non-federal student aid funds.

The FAFSA asks students and their parents to report income from the previous calendar year and provide other information such as number of children in college and amount of money in bank accounts. The federal government calculates the Expected Family Contribution (EFC) and reports this information to the colleges selected by the student. A Student Aid Report is also sent to the student.

Colleges often use their own criteria to determine a student's EFC based on information from the applications they require. The colleges identify the student's eligibility for financial aid by subtracting the EFC from the Cost of Attendance.

What is the Cost of Attendance? The colleges determine the estimated full cost of attendance for their students, which includes not only tuition, fees, room and board, or the costs of off-campus living, but also books and supplies, transportation and personal expenses.

Students who are independent report only their own income and assets (and their spouse's, if married). A student is considered independent if one of the following applies: Born before Jan. 1, 1981 (for 2004-05 academic year), married, enrolled in a graduate program (beyond bachelor's degree), has legal dependent(s), is an orphan or ward of the court or a veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces.*

CALCULATING ELIGIBILITY

Cost of Attendance

Tuition, fees, room and board, books and supplies, transportation, personal expenses.

Expected Family Contribution

Determined from the FAFSA and/or the College Board's Profile and any other financial aid application required by the college.

Eligibility for Financial Aid

The maximum amount of money students can expect to receive in financial aid.

Types of Financial Aid

There are three basic types of financial aid: (1) scholarships and grants, (2) federal work-study and (3) loans.

Scholarships and Grants

Scholarships and grants are gift aid, because, unlike loans, they are not paid back. They are awarded based on financial need and other criteria, such as achievement, religious affiliation, ethnicity, memberships, hobbies or special interests.

Scholarships and grants are offered by the federal government, state financial aid agencies, colleges, private businesses, foundations and community organizations, towns, high schools, veterans' groups, etc. Information is available from colleges, high school guidance offices, public libraries, community organizations, scholarship directories and online resources (see page 26).

Federal Pell Grants and Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants are awarded by the colleges to students who are identified as eligible by the federal government, based on information provided in the FAFSA.

Individual states have grant and scholarship programs for their residents. (See detailed list for New England states on page 27.)

Federal Work-Study Program

Work-study money is awarded by the colleges to students identified as eligible by the federal government, based on information provided in the FAFSA. The students earn the award amount through part-time employment provided or arranged by the college.

Loans for Students and Parents

Loans, which account for about 60 percent of all financial aid, can be taken out by students, parents or both. Students do not have to pay back their loans until after leaving college; however, parents must begin making payments soon after the loan is disbursed.

Federal Perkins Loans are very low-interest loans administered by the college for students with exceptional financial need.

FREE INFORMATION

Free financial aid information and free scholarship searches are readily available from several sources including the federal government, state financial aid agencies (see list starting on page 27), college financial aid offices, high school guidance counselors, libraries and the Internet (see page 26).

Watch out for scholarship scams! Explore all free sources before considering any private, fee-based scholarship service. Make sure a private service is reputable. Information is available from the Federal Trade Commission at www.ftc.gov or telephone 1-877-FTC-HELP.

MEET DEADLINES

Students need to check with the college financial aid office to find out which application forms are required and what the deadlines are. Financial aid applications must be completed on time, and early is better. Note: Students can apply for financial aid before they have been accepted by the colleges where they have applied for admission.

The FAFSA should be completed as soon as possible after January 1. Students and families can choose to estimate their income for the previous year and verify it later, instead of delaying their application until after filing taxes.

File the FAFSA electronically at www.fafsa.ed.gov. Obtain an electronic PIN to "sign" the FAFSA at www.pin.ed.gov

A paper FAFSA is available from local libraries, high schools, colleges and from:

Federal Stafford Loans for Students

Through the federal Stafford Loan Program, students can borrow up to a maximum loan amount each year they are enrolled and pay back the loan after leaving college. Loans are subsidized for eligible students (the interest is forgiven while the student is enrolled) or unsubsidized (the interest accrues while the student is enrolled). If the college participates as a lender in the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program, students apply through the college's financial aid office. Otherwise, students apply to a bank, credit union or other lender that participates in the Federal Family Education Loans program (FFELP).

Federal PLUS Loans for Parents

Parents who take out federal PLUS loans begin payments within 60 days after the loan has been disbursed. If the college participates as a lender in the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program, parents apply through the college's financial aid office. Otherwise, parents apply to a bank, credit union or other lender that participates in the Federal Family Education Loans program (FFELP).

Other loan programs are available from state financing authorities, as well as from private lenders and some colleges.

Armed Forces

The U.S. Armed Forces offer various college financing options to students who meet eligibility requirements. Information is available at the U.S. military's career guide site: www.myfuture.com. Options include the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) Program, which helps enrollees pay for some college expenses and the Montgomery G.I. Bill, which provides financial support to those who attend college after serving in the military.

Other Ways to Meet College Costs

- Use a tuition payment plan.
- Get an out-of-state tuition break: The New England Board of Higher Education's Regional Student Program provides New England residents with a tuition break when they study approved majors at public colleges and universities in other New England states. Eligibility is explained in the annual RSP catalog, available at www.nebhe.org or from NEBHE at 617-357-9620.
- Participate in community service: Americorps is a national program that allows college-age students to earn education awards in return for national service. Visit www.americorps.gov or telephone 800-942-2677.
- Attend college half-time or part-time and take longer to complete a degree, but still remain eligible for some financial aid (attending at least half-time is required for federal Stafford and Plus loan programs).
- Attend a lower-cost, two-year community college then transfer to a four-year college to earn a bachelor's degree.
- Commute to college instead of living on campus.
- Work for a company or organization that provides tuition assistance.

Institutional methodology is a calculation conducted by colleges and universities who require other financial aid applications, such as the College Board's Profile, in addition to the results of the FAFSA.

1. The higher education institutions listed in CONNECTION'S 2006 DIRECTORY OF NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES & UNIVERSITIES are authorized to grant academic degrees at certificate, associate, bachelor's, master's or doctoral levels. Colleges and universities are listed alphabetically by state with public institutions appearing first, followed by independent institutions. A separate section listing law and medical schools follows the state-by-state sections.

Independent institutions listed are nonprofit except for the following for-profit institutions: Briarwood College, Gibbs College, Goodwin College and Paier College of Art Inc. in Connecticut; Andover College and Beal College in Maine; Gibbs College and New England Institute of Art in Massachusetts; Hesser College and McIntosh College in New Hampshire; and New England Culinary Institute in Vermont.

Information in the institutional listings is derived from a New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) survey conducted in the summer of 2005. Participation in NEBHE's survey is voluntary. Institutional respondents may elect not to supply all requested information.

2. Institutions generally provide their main telephone and fax numbers and the institution's homepage on the World Wide Web. (For telephone numbers of admissions offices, see the section of each listing titled "Admissions Information.")
3. Brief factual descriptions note the year the institution was founded, types of programs offered and degrees awarded.
4. The NEBHE survey asks campuses to provide the names and titles of senior campus officers. In general, the campus officers listed include presidents, academic deans, chief financial officers and undergraduate admissions and financial aid officers.
5. Most New England colleges and universities are accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC), a regional accrediting body based in Bedford, Massachusetts. NEASC accreditation indicates that a college has purposes appropriate to higher education, has the necessary resources to achieve its stated purposes through educational programs, is substantially doing so, and gives reasonable evidence that it will continue to do so in the foreseeable future. Accreditation by NEASC applies to the institution as a whole; therefore it is not a guarantee of the quality of every course offered. NE indicates that an institution is accredited by NEASC. NE cand indicates that the institution is a candidate for accreditation by NEASC.

Some New England institutions and/or their individual programs are accredited by other accrediting bodies. Specialized indicates that an institution or one or more of its academic programs carries such accreditation. Interested students should contact the institution directly for information about such accreditation.

In the case of the law and medical schools additional accreditation is indicated as follows:

AALS Association of American Law Schools

ABA American Bar Association

AMA-AAMA American Medical Association-American Association of Medical Assistants

AMA-CAHEA American Medical Association-Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation

AOA American Osteopathic Association

LCME Liaison Committee on Medical Education

6. In a semester system, the academic year is divided into two equal units. In a trimester system, the year is divided into three units. In a quarter system, the year is divided into four units. Other calendar systems include 4-1-4, which features two terms of four months each and a one-month intersession intended for experimental or intensive study and variations such as 4-4-1 or 4-1-4-1.
7. An institution's student body is classified as men for men only, women for women only or coed for men and women.
8. Tuition/Fees generally refers to annual tuition and mandatory fees, if reported, for a typical undergraduate (except in the case of institutions that enroll only graduate students). Institutions listing tuition per credit hour are footnoted as such. For public institutions, in-state tuition and mandatory fees are listed first; followed by out-of-state tuition and mandatory fees. RSP Tuition refers to reduced tuition paid at public institutions by students participating in NEBHE's Regional Student Program (see pages 18–22 for more information). Regular out-of-state fees apply. Tuition and fees are current for the 2005-2006 academic year. Fees may include the cost of health insurance required by some institutions if students are not covered by comparable health insurance and may vary according to program of study. The figures listed for Tuition/Fees do not include room and board charges unless otherwise indicated.
9. Housing, Room & Board refers to average annual charges for students living on campus and participating in a standard meal plan (unless otherwise noted) during the 2005-2006 academic year.
10. Listing generally shows the estimated market value of institutional endowment, if reported, as of June 30, 2005, unless otherwise indicated. Endowments under $1 million are not included. In most cases, the value of endowments listed in the law and medical school section are also included in the affiliated institution's total endowment in the state-by-state listings.

11. Listing shows the total number of full-time employees (excluding faculty) and part-time employees (excluding faculty), in most cases as of Jan. 1, 2005.
12. Listings shows the total number of full-time faculty and part-time faculty, in most cases as of Jan. 1 2005.
13. Figure refers to the total library collection. In most cases, reported collections include printed volumes, micro-units, electronic titles, paper and electronic serials and periodicals.
14. Enrollment figures are for the fall 2004 term. The figures are reported by institutions based on a headcount of full- and part-time degree enrollment in undergraduate and graduate degree programs and full- and part-time non-degree enrollment.
15. Admissions Information is presented in a brief narrative and may include: examinations required by institutions as part of the admissions process or for placement after admission; application deadlines and fees for first-year students; and information regarding special admissions programs and related deadlines. The admissions office telephone number, email address and website address are also provided.

The Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) exam is not generally listed; however most institutions require the exam of students for whom English is a second language.

Generally listed admissions examinations are indicated as follows:

ACT American College Testing Program

ACT/ASSETT American College Testing Program ASSETT Test

DAT Dental Aptitude Test

GRE Graduate Records Examination

LSAT Law School Admissions Test

MAT Miller Analogies Test

MCAT Medical College Admissions Test

OAT Optometry Admissions Test

SATI Scholastic Aptitude Reasoning Test

SATII Scholastic Aptitude Subject Tests

Some of the more popular special admissions programs include:

Early Decision, in which the institution provides early notice of admission and requires a non-refundable deposit if the student accepts the offer; and Early Notification, in which the institution give early notice of admission and requires that students make a deposit that is refundable if the student decides not to attend.

I Did The Math

"I earned my first degree through the College of Technology pathway program at Norwalk Community College in Engineering Technology. Then I transferred to the University of Hartford's engineering program and now I'm finishing my Ph.D. in Engineering at Rutgers.

The affordable, accessible education of the Connecticut Community Colleges made it possible for me to start my education and offered me scholarship and transfer opportunities that I couldn't find anywhere else. It was the best investment I ever made."

– Paola Jaramillo

Economic Impact studies show positive returns on the investments made by students and the State of Connecticut in the Connecticut Community Colleges:

- For every credit completed, students will average $169 more per year while working.
- For every year of full-time study, students will earn approximately $5,027 more each year they are in the workforce.
- Every $1 invested by students, returns $6.17 in discounted future earnings over 35 years.
- The State of Connecticut saves $24.2 million each year because higher education improves employment opportunities, and reduces demand for health and human services.
- Taxpayers win because every dollar of State money invested in Connecticut's Community Colleges today returns a cumulative of $18.33 over the next 35 years.

Each year thousands of students, like Paola Jaramillo, begin their academic careers at a community college and learn that the decision to invest in themselves and their education pays dividends in improved earnings, employment opportunities, marketable skills, and a better life for themselves and their families.

Give us a call at (800) 33.CLASS or visit us online at www.comnet.edu to learn why you should invest in a community college education.
