

Division VI Plenary, Saturday 16 November

Prof. Necia Werner, President, IEEE Professional Communication Society

Dr. Necia Werner (President, IEEE Professional Communication Society) is Associate Teaching Professor and Director of Undergraduate Studies in English at Carnegie Mellon University. As an educator and writing program administrator, she directs CMU's undergraduate degree programs in professional and technical communication, including the technical communication course for engineers and computer scientists. Werner's research on technology-enhanced learning tools for teaching technical communication skills has been supported by the National Science Foundation and the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.