

Minutes for C37.30.1 Task force
September 17, 2013
Hilton Palacio del Rio – San Antonio, Texas

- The task force did not meet at the spring 2013 session.
- Consensus from the utility members present indicated that loadability of switches is used for determining the capability of switches.
- Utility members were asked to provide their phase to phase and phase to ground clearance requirements for 500 and 800 kV.
- Manufacturing members were asked to provide open gap spacings for 500 and 800 kV switch designs.
- The introduction of C37.30.1 was reviewed. The portion reviewed is as follows: “...This consolidation effort is the first phase of a two-part process to facilitate harmonization of the IEEE C37.30 series of standards with existing International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) documents covering switch devices. The second phase of the process will be to incorporate technical changes where needed and to harmonize with IEC standards.” It was the consensus of the members that revisions to C37.30.1 would be harmonized with C37.100.1 as this group is working to harmonize with the relevant IEC standards. Ken Harless will compare the current versions of both documents and prepare an initial summary to the group by year end.
- Ken Harless will attend the IEEE 1427 meeting to get further clarification on the methodology used to determine electrical clearances and will report back to the group.
- The current document is valid through 2021. A proposed time line was discussed with a recommendation that a PAR be requested June 2014.
